The Artistic

Sterling Piano.

The most popular Piano on earth.

There are more Sterling Pianos constantly being sold than any other make.

The largest and the representative music dealers of the United States handle the Sterling Piano.

Many of our best musicians and teachers prefer the Sterling Piano.

The Sterling Co., of Derby, Conn., is positively shipping 150 Pianos per week, and yet is always behind on orders.

All this signifies something.

Yes, it shows that the Sterling Piano must embody more of the good qualities and desirable features that appeal to Piano purchasers.

That Sterling cases never fail to suit the most critical eye, and that IF YOU BUY A STERLING PIANO YOU WILL BE SURE OF A LIFETIME OF HAPPINESS SO FAR AS MUSIC IS CONCERNED.

MUCH DEPENDS ON IT.

Chicago's Welfare Bound Up In the Strike Conference.

Chicago, June 12.—Bankers, capitalists, real estate men and a host of others whose welfare depends more or less on building activity in Chicago, to say nothing of the thousands of workingmen, today expressed the hope that the meeting of contractors and trades' union representatives, scheduled for late this afternoon, would result in a settlement of the labor difficulties.

Aside from the immense money loss which has resulted from the labor war, a number of men have been killed or injured in riots; a large number of families have been made dependent upon charity, and there have been several cases of suicide by men who have become despondent over their enforced idleness. Still others have wandered away from their homes, apparently unsettled mentally. Altogether, this is considered the most disastrous building trades war the city has ever endured.

This afternoon, delegates from the labor unions are expected to meet with representatives of the contractors' council. The contractors will announce their position to the labor conference, and, according to present plans, the later will lay these before their respective unions for action. The contractors' position as it will be outlined at the conference has not yet been made public, but it is believed to have been modified. They may not persist in demanding the dissolution of the Building Trades' council as the fundamental move for a settlement. The demands which will be made of the unions will probably include the following: No restriction in the amount of work a man shall do in a day; no restriction in the use of manufactured material (prison made excepted); no restriction in the number of apprentices; no restriction in the use of machinery; the right of the employer to employ and discharge whom he sees fit; that the foreman shall be the agent of the employer, and that eight hours shall constitute a day's work, with the rate of wages which prevailed at the beginning of the labor war.

'FRISCO QUARANTINE.

San Francisco, June 12.—The board of health has decided to raise the quarantine of Chinatown twenty days from the verification of the last case of plague, which was on June 2. If another case is found, however, the quarantine will not be lifted until twenty days from the date of such discovery.

EMPEROR SPEAKS

The Chinese Monarch Invites the Western Powers to Restore Order.

FOR A PROTECTORATE

Under His Name to Reorganize the Government and Establish Reforms.

London, June 12.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says: Weng Tang Ho, emperor Kwong Hsu's tutor and confidant, who was dismissed by the dowager empress after the coup d'etat in 1898, sends with the special sanction of the emperor and his party, including three viceroys, a message to the people of the West. In part it is as follows:

"His majesty is convinced, through amply trustworthy sources, that the loyal support of many scores of millions of the Chinese will be accorded to his proposals for putting an end to the state of anarchy brought about by the sanction of the empress Hsi Tsi.

"The government of China being virtually non-existent, the emperor proposes that the foreign powers whose troops dominate the capital, shall remove his imperial person from the palace in which his majesty is confined a prisoner; shall declare Empress Hsi Tsi and her present ministers to be usurpers, and shall bring Emperor Kwang Hsu to Nankin, New Chwang or Shanghai, wherever the said foreign powers deem to be the most suitable situation for the new capital of the Chinese empire under the new conditions. It is proposed by his majesty and his advisers that the foreign powers should declare a joint protectorate and undertake the task of governing the country through his majesty."

The message suggests that the protectorate should abolish certain boards in Pekin, appoint new ministers, abolish the existing so-called army, and establish gendarmie under foreign officers; take control of customs, posts and telegraphs, and work them through Chinese officials and establish a uniform currency; readjust taxation and insure freedom of religion.

"China is ripe for the change of tide which the reactionaries vainly seek to stem. If it should be on the other hand that the foreign powers seriously contemplate the dismemberment of the Chinese empire they have before them the huge task of facing dense millions, who, although lacking training and who make but contemptible soldiers, possess boundless powers of passive resistance, and would be able to wear out the patience of any European rulers seeking to govern them without regard to the prejudices of the oldest civilization. "The conquest and division of China would be possible with 100,000 troops, but to retain and govern would require 1,000,000 soldiers and centuries of work. The task would end with the most unhappy results for both the conquered and conquerors. His majesty and his advisers beg America and Japan to pause before resorting to dismemberment until the emperor's right to govern his own and restore the happiness of this great division of the human race have proved abortive. If the people are assured that the powers are guiding and protecting his majesty, and do not intend to swallow the country themselves, the soldiers will return to the allegiance from which the empress diverted them."

MEN FOR KEMPFF.

Long Orders Marines In Response to Admiral's Request.

Washington, June 12.—The navy department has received the following cablegram from Admiral Kempff: "Tong Ku, June 11.—In case all communication Pekin cut not able go alone; if other nations go will join to relieve Americans pending instructions. Situation serious. Battalion of marines from Manilla has been urgently requested. Answer."

Upon receipt of the above Secretary Long sent the following cablegram to Admiral Remey at Manilla.

"Send by Solace are dispatch to Kempff 100 marines, arranging if practicable that after landing Solace shall continue homeward voyage as previously ordered."

LONDON IS CUT OFF.

Communication Between It and the Chinese Capital Severed.

New York, June 12.—London has been severed temporarily with two centers of the most interesting news, Pekin and Pretoria, says a London correspondent of the Tribune. The Boxers, like the Boers, have cut the wires, and Tien Tsin and Taku have not known with precision what was happening at Pekin, where the imperial government is censuring the regular troops for offering resistance to the rebels, and complimenting the fanatical mobs for their patriotism and public spirit in killing foreigners and burning their property.

The force of over 2000 marines which left Tien Tsin on Sunday and yesterday in three trains is believed to have reached the capital in safety. The presence of this force was urgently needed, for the dowager empress has dropped all pretenses and is in open sympathy with the enemies of the missionaries and foreigners, and all the mission property at Pekin is menaced with the fate of the American station at Tung Chau, where the buildings have been destroyed and the native Christians murdered by the soldiers commissioned to protect them.

It is the story of Armenia repeated in Pekin. All Christian converts and foreigners at the capital are at the mercy of the mobs, as well as the regular soldiers, unless marines from the thirty-one ships of war can protect them.

A reassuring feature of the situation is apparent in the heartiness with which the great powers are co-operating in a determined effort to protect foreign interests in China. The United States government is accepting its responsibility for the lives and property of Americans, and even the minor states, like Denmark, are adopting protecting measures.

Reports that Russian troops have crossed the frontier and that 6000 men from the garrison at Port Arthur are preparing to go to Pekin under an arrangement agreed upon by the European powers are not fully confirmed, but the crisis is so momentous that jealousies and the suspicion of the European capitols may be overcome and the army may be dispatched to Pekin to avert a catastrophe of massacres.

IT MUST BE SERIOUS.

Kempff Places Cap. McCalla In Charge of Marines.

New York, June 12—Nothing is known as yet of the reasons which compelled Capt. B. H. McCalla to go ashore at Tien Tsin personally instead of placing the little force of Americans under the command of a subordinate officer, says the Washington correspondent of the Times. A high official of the navy department took the view that the situation was so serious that Admiral Kempff considered it advisable to have the best officer on his ship ashore, instead of keeping him on the Newark.

"Capt. McCalla is a cool headed and able officer," said the official who advanced this opinion, "and Admiral Kempff very likely thought that the situation called for all the brains, ability and experience that could be secured. It is unusual to send the captain of a ship ashore, but Admiral Kempff is the judge of the needs of the situation. In my opinion we shall have some very stirring news from China before the week is out."

ASKS FOR PROTECTION.

American Consul at Chin Kiang Reports Danger There.

GIVEN DEGREES.

Choate and Professor White, of Harvard, Are Honored By Cambridge.

London, June 12.—Cambridge university this afternoon conferred the degree of LL.D. on several distinguished persons, including Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador here, and Professor John Williams White, of Harvard. In presenting the degree to Mr. Choate, the public orator, Dr. Sandys, briefly touched on the many ties linking the United States and Great Britain, adding that when either country was at war the principles of neutrality proved to be perfectly consistent with the feeling of tacit goodwill existing between the leading statesmen of the nations.

PENSIONS AND PATENTS.

Three Sixth District Old Soldiers Given Pensions.

Washington, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Original—Levi D. Bryant, Aitkin, $6. Increase—Robert Archibald, Deerwood, $12; Porter Morse, Aitkin, $8.

The following patents were issued today: James R. Farnham and F. F. Schenk, of Princeton, blotter attachment for check or receipt books; Peter Gilley, of West Duluth, self-heating sad iron.

J. S. VAN ANTWERP.

DEVRIES' JOB.

The California Democrat Is Made an Appraiser By Republican Influence.

New York, June 12.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Representative Marion Devries of California has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the board of general appraisers at New York caused by the failure of the senate to confirm the appointment of former Representative W. D. Bynum of Indiana.

Though Mr. Devries is appointed as a Democrat, it is said his selection was largely due to the influence of prominent Republican politicians, including Senator Hanna, Representative Babcock, chairman of the congressional campaign committee, and Representative Dick.

GOLD FIND.

News of a Discovery Two Days' Run From Cape Nome.

South Bend, Wash., June 12.—The steamer Rival, Capt. Johnson, came in today from Bristol bay, on Bering sea, within two days' run of Cape Nome. The captain reports the discovery of gold in paying quantities on the headwaters of the Nuzgak river, a tributary of Bristol bay. He was told of the discovery by a missionary there, but the news was suppressed by the Alaska Packers' association, which has canneries on the bay and thousands of men engaged for the canning season, who would stampede for the diggings if the discovery was made known. While there the Rival towed in twelve vessels with men and supplies for the canneries.

DRAKE'S BENEFICENCE.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 12.—Former Governor Drake of Centerville, who was here attending commencement exercises of the Drake university today, announced that he had made the university a joint heir with his five children in his will. His property is valued at $3,000,000, and the university will receive $500,000. Governor Drake has already contributed in various benefactions $200,000 to promote the institution.

FORCING HIS WAY

Buller's Force Carries the Last Defile to the Charleston Flats.

RUMORS ARE PLENTY

Reports From Lorenzo Marques Have the Boers In Bloemfontein Again.

London, June 12, 10:05 a. m.—It is officially announced by Gen. Buller that Almond's nek has been forced. The war office posts the following from Gen. Buller:

"Headquarters in Natal, June 11.—We forced Almond's nek today. It is not marked on the map, but is the last defile to Charlston flats. The enemy were in considerable force, with several guns in position. The brunt of the fighting fell upon the Second Dorsets, who carried the position at the point of the bayonet, and the Third cavalry brigade, who were heavily attacked on our right, from very broken country round Iketini mountain. I hope casualties are less than 100, which, considering the extreme length of the position, is much less than I expected.

"The whole attack was directed by Hildyard, whose dispositions were extremely good. The artillery, Tenth brigade, and Third cavalry brigade did most of the work."

London, June 12, 1:27 p. m.—A plentiful crop of reports has been filtering through Lorenzo Marques. According to these, Gen. Dewet, with 13,000 burghers, is marching on Johannesburg, the Boers have retaken Bloemfontein, where President Steyn again occupies the presidency, the British have sustained a severe defeat at Elandsfontein, and have also lost 750 killed and wounded and 150 prisoners in a fight at Vredefort. Nothing from any source lends color to these stories, with the exception of the last, which is probably the Boer version of the disaster to the military battalion of the Derbyshire regiment at Roodeval.

In regard to President Steyn being at Bloemfontein, a dispatch from Maseru, Basutoland, dated Monday, June 11, says President Steyn was then at Vrede, 200 miles from Bloemfontein.

Gen. Buller seems to be making substantial progress, and ought soon to possess the railroad at Charlestown (in the northern extremity of Natal), whence, presumably, he will advance on Heidelberg and effect a junction with Lord Roberts.

A dispatch from Lichtenberg, dated June 11, says sixty Johannesburg mounted policemen, with a Maxim gun, have surrendered to Gen. Hunter.

A probable explanation of the reports that a British force is moving through Swasiland comes in a dispatch from Port Elizabeth, dated June 11, announcing the return there of the British cruiser Doris from Koso bay, whither she had taken a number of whaleboats with the object of landing an armed force, presumably part of a plan to penetrate into Swasiland. The Boers, however, got wind of the expedition and the force was not landed.

According to a Cape Town dispatch the cabinet crisis continues. It is added that should Premier Schreiner secede from the bund, as he threatens, his action would place the bund in the minority in the assembly.

Mr. Schreiner has accepted the resignations of J. X. Merriam, treasuier, and J. W. Sauer, commissioner of public works.

Among the members of the yeomanry killed at Lindley is P. R. Power, of North Texas, and son of W. T. Power.

HOW ABOUT METHUEN?

Has Not Been Heard From For Several Days.

London, June 12, 5:20 p. m.—The following dispatch has been received at the war office from Gen. Forrester-Walker, in command of the lines of communication in South Africa: "Cape Town, June 12—The following is from Kelley-Kenney, dated June 11. No communication from Methuen since June 7. He was fighting June 6 to the north of Vetchkop. Steyn is near Reitz. The British prisoners sent to Vrede, are well treated".

VICTORY FOR BRITISH.

The Force From the North Defeats the Boers.

London, June 12, 6:32 p. m.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Gen. Kelley-Kenney:

"Bloemfontein, June 12—Our troops from the north are at Honingspruit (south of Roodeval, where the Boers cut the British lines of communication) having defeated the enemy. They will be at America Siding tomorrow at 8 a. m. Gen. Knox moves out from Kroonstad to intercept the enemy. Fuller particulars later".

IS AT MACHADODORP.

Transvaal Government Is Located at That Place.

London, June 12, 3:30 a. m.—Machadodorp has been officially claimed the capital of the Transvaal. A Lorenzo Marques dispatch says that the village has swollen into a small city, the majority of the new inhabitants living in tents.

An official Boer telegram asserts that the British have been defeated with considerable loss at Donkerspoort in the southern extremity of the Free State or Orange River Colony, ten miles from Norvals Pont. It was thought that this district had been cleared of Boers and rebels long ago.

The Boers still cling to Laings Nek, but Gen. Buller's forces are still working far around in that direction.

Lord Roberts has wired Cape Town that prior to Wednesday, he liberated 151 officers and 3500 of the rank and file, the Boers consequently took off only 900.

All of Gen. Harrington's force had landed at Beira a week ago. The organization to invade the Transvaal from the north is already far advanced. A Boer deserter who arrived at Maseru yesterday asserts that 7000 Boers participated in the Roockrantz engagement, that Gen. Oliver was killed and Gen. De Villiers mortally wounded.

The American young women who are nursing in the hospital at Ladybrand, have been slighted by the Boer women who are nursing the Boer sick in the same hospital, and have been made the object of unpleasant remarks because Americans are nursing the English.

HOPE FOR INDIA.

Rain Falls and a Good Monsoon Is Predicted.

London, June 12.—The viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, has cabled to the secretary of state for India, Lor George Hamilton, announcing that a good rain has fallen in southern India, that there have been scattered showers elsewhere and that the meterological reporter forecasts a good late monsoon. The hot weather, however, still prevails and the famine relief situation has not altered. There are now about 5,802,000 persons receiving relief.

NEAR TO WAR.

Russia and Japan Reported Recently on the Verge of Hostilities.

Victoria, B. C., June 12.—The steamer Queen Adelaide, from the Orient, brings a story that six weeks ago Japan and Russia were close to war over the land of a Japanese trader, whose removal was requested by Russia at Masampo. War was said to have been averted by the refusal of Great Britain to act with Japan.

Advices from Shanghai tell of the murder of the Chinese general, Lang Hop, while parleying with the Boxers near Ting Fu. He was cut down from behind.

The French consul at Yarran has been found to be supplying arms to the rebels in South China, and the Chinese government has asked for his removal.

TRAIN WRECK.

St. Louis, June 12.—A special to the Globe Democrat from Spokane, Wash., says: Meager particulars received here to the effect that the Great Northern eastbound train, which left here yesterday, was derailed at Summit, Mont., at an early hour this morning. It is supposed the accident was the result of a broken rail. Two engines and four coaches were reported to have gone into a ditch. A score or more passengers were injured, but none were killed outright:

Those severely injured are: S. J. Leland, West Superior; R. Matub, Seattle; Frank R. Gantor, Winnipeg; Lee Adrain, New York; Jacob Hanson, Portland; Mrs. E. J. Broderick, Leavenworth; William James Morgan, St. Paul; L. G. Mortinson, Wyatt Hill, Mich.; George Olson, Spokane; C. M. Ogard, Edna, Minn.; Martin McCulley, Butte; Emil Borgan, Fergus Falls.

Some of the passengers are said to be fatally hurt.

COMMENDS THE FILIPINOS.

Otis Says They Are the Cream of Asiatics.

Washington, June 12.—During Gen. Otis' afternoon at the war department and the conference with the various departments in regard to the different needs in the Philippines, he had many questions to answer respecting present and future conditions in the Philippines, and of these he talked quite freely. He made one statement which came as a surprise, for he declared that the Filipinos were, without question, the very best of any Asiatic races living on the Pacific coast and islands. He paid a high tribute to their acquisitiveness, saying that young and old were alike anxious to learn from the Americans and quick to do so if given an opportunity. The demand for schools on the American plan was insatiable. It had not been possible to secure a supply of Spanish-American text books, the market having been denuded of such. When the hungry Filipinos were told this, they begged for American school books, and declared that their children could learn from them even without the Spanish text and translations. Gen. Otis found to his astonishment that such was the case, and says that in the course of a very few months the Filipino children pick up a fair knowledge of English. Even the old natives con the text books in their effort to fix English phrases in their mind.

There was a dearth of teachers, too, and Gen. Otis often had recourse to the soldiers in his ranks who knew a little Spanish and so were suitable for detail as teachers.

Gen. Otis said he looked upon this educational movement as the only solution of the Philippine problem, and was confident that the spread of American ideas through the Filipino schools would in the end make good citizens of the Filipinos.

CREDIT MEN MEET.

Their National Association Convention Opens In Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, June 12.—The fifth annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men opened a three-days' session at the Hotel Pfister today, with 260 delegates in attendance. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Governor Edward Scofield and Mayor David S. Rose for the state and city, and by Horace M. Battin for the Milwaukee association. President John Field of Philadelphia then delivered his address. He said the association had shown a remarkable growth in the past year.

The greater part of his address was devoted to "Personality" in connection with a credit system. "A statement of assets and liabilities may be termed the sentimental basis of all credits," said he, "but we all know that figures are very misleading, especially if they are wrong. It has often been said that figures do not lie, but on the other hand it may also be truthfully said that nothing lies like figures, and to my mind, therefore, it is absolutely necessary to take into consideration the question of personality in every instance where credit is asked for."

TWO MORE GENERALS

The Capture of Two Filipino Generals Is Reported By MacArthur.

ARE BOTH IMPORTANT

One of Them a Prominent Leader of Guerrillas In Luzon.

Washington, June 12.—Gen. McArthur cabled the war department today as follows:

"Reported capture of Gens. Hizon, near Mexico, and Cavestany, at Alcala, both important—latter very important leader of guerrillas in Pangasinin province (Luzon).
"MACARTHUR."

Gen. Corbin attaches considerable importance to these captures. In his opinion they are more nearly in the nature of surrenders than captures, and indicate that the principal leaders of the insurrection are abandoning that cause and are coming into Manilla to accept American supremacy.

ON WAR PATH.

Chicago Inter-Ocean After the Associated Press of New York.

Chicago, June 12.—Judge Gibbons issued today a temporary injunction on the complaint of the Inter-Ocean Publishing company restraining "The Associated Press of New York" from doing business under the name of "The Associated Press."

The bill of complaint sets forth the various acts which led up to the decision of the supreme court compelling the Associated Press of Illinois to furnish its news to the Inter-Ocean Publishing company; refers to the entering of the decree May 17, 1900, in accordance with the mandate of the court, and gives in detail the recent meeting of the Associated Press, when several of the old officers resigned and new officers were elected.

According to the allegations of the bill, the change in officers was for the purpose of allowing the organization of a new association which would gradually take on the business of the association against which the judicial ruling has been given. The Inter-Ocean Publishing company, as a shareholder in the Associated Press of Illinois, objects to the organization on the grounds that its only object is to succeed to the business of the Associated Press of Illinois.

The suit is against the Associated Press (incorporated under the laws of the state of New York); Melville E. Stone, general manager; Stephen O'Meara, William L. McLean, Frank B. Noyes and A. H. Belo, directors of the new organization.

The temporary injunction restrains the defendants from "doing business under the name of the Associated Press, and from interfering with or attempting in any manner to injure or destroy the business of the Associated Press of Illinois, and from interfering with the business thereof or endeavoring to cause any part of the firm or corporation to annul or cancel or break his or its contract with the Associated Press of Illinois, and from sending out any circular to the members of the Associated Press of Illinois, or in any other manner soliciting or asking them to join and become members of the Associated Press, incorporated under the laws of the state of New York."

A prayer asking that the temporary restraining order be made perpetual is appended to the bill.

Attached to the complaint are the bylaws of the new organization and copies of letters purporting to have been sent out by the officers of the new association outlining the plan and purpose of the Associated Press of New York.

LINES ALL RUNNING.

St. Louis Transit Company Operating All Its Divisions.

St. Louis, June 12.—All the lines of the St. Louis Transit company are once more operating, but only a portion of its cars are running. The experiment of sending out cars over some of the lines without police guards having worked satisfactorily yesterday, that plan was carried out today on several additional divisions. Owing to the mayor's proclamation, there was comparatively little trouble today. The injunction forbidding the use of explosives or fire arms, and warning those having no business on the streets to keep off, is having a good effect.

The strikers and authorities are preparing statements and making up lists of witnesses to be heard at the coroner's inquests, which will settle the responsibility for Sunday's killing.

Tomorrow the coroner will summon a jury to inquire into the death of C. Edward Thomas, the striking street car conductor killed in front of the posse barracks on Washington avenue Sunday evening.

During the past two days the sheriff's posse has gained a number of new members, most of whom volunteered. The Twenty-third company, composed mostly of young lawyers and business men, is the last to be organized. Ransom post G. A. R., whose members comprise some of the city's best citizens, is organizing a company to be sworn into the posse. Delos R. Haynes, the well-known real estate man, will command this company.

Police Lieut. Stack and several civilian witnesses were on hand, and the three deputy sheriffs on whom subpoenas had been served were absent. Coroner Lloyd telephoned to Chief of Police Campbell asking that the men be compelled to appear Wednesday morning, to which time the inquest was adjourned.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK

Crop Reports Received By the Northern Pacific For Minnesota Division.

A DIFFERENT STORY

To the One That Was Recently Wired East By President Mellen.

St. Paul, June 12.—Northern Pacific crop reports from Minnesota and the Dakotas received yesterday completely reverse preceding reports and place a gloomy outlook on the crop situation. It says the yield will not be more than 75, perhaps 50, per cent of a crop.

Last week the Northern Pacific officials were rather optimistic, as was evidenced by President Mellen's telegram to New York, contradicting adverse rumors. Great Northern officials have been pessimistic from the start, and their calculations seem to be nearer the truth.

Yesterday's reports cover the entire system clear to the coast. The report on the Minnesota division, given below, seems to apply equally to all Northwestern divisions, with little variation.

The report says the crop situation on the Minnesota division is becoming more serious every day, and farmers are sorely disappointed at the continuance of unfavorable weather.

The recent showers which gave rise to favorable comment in grain circles, turned out to be of little consequence, because of the hot winds which followed. Between Staples and the Red river considerable damage is reported to all vegetation, especially on low lands, owing to frost the early part of the week. The most conservative persons do not expect, as stated above, more than 50 to 75 per cent of a crop. Flax, corn and potatoes for the most part have not sprouted, and generally speaking, farmers will not replant. Wheat and oats are losing their strength, and are sadly in need of rain. Rye is in poor shape and grasses also.

On the Little Falls and Dakota branch the situation is a few points better than on the Minnesota division, especially along the western half of the branch. Wheat is from four to eight inches high and shows a fairly good color. Yet all vegetation needs heavy rain. Rye ground near Sauk Center is being plowed under, as quality of crop would be too poor to cut. Everything else is on the decline.

The Fergus Falls line is also in bad shape. From Wadena to Underwood grain is heading out at six and eight inches, and turning yellow below. Between Fergus Falls and Wahpeton a killing frost occurred Friday night.

That portion of Minnesota south of the "Dakota Crossing," of the Manitoba division is in better shape. Wheat has a good stand and color and is from four to six inches high. All other growths need moisture badly. This section seems especially favored, as one agent reports, "the farmers expect the largest crops seen in many years."

In North Dakota some farmers are harrowing up poor wheat. The plant has matured too rapidly, and has not developed in a healthy manner. The shot blade is appearing, although the wheat is but seven and eight inches high. If the hot weather continues ten days longer early wheat will be headed out. The only thing which can assure even a half crop is plenty of rain and cool weather. An average yield of flax is anticipated.

Farmers in Manitoba believe it is not too late to revive the crops in the provinces and yet secure a fair yield.

Oliver Dalrymple, of Casselton, thinks the crops will revive if there is more rain, although most farmers along the Dakota division do not expect more than ten bushels to an acre.

Along the Fargo & Southwestern branch, the general impression is that wheat has been damaged 10 to 15 per cent by drought. The damage is looked upon as permanent.

The same conditions exist along the James River Valley branch.

A "wonderful transformation" is reported along the Cooperstown branch where there have been splendid rains and cool days.

A marked improvement is reported on the Jamestown & Northern branch, where wheat is commencing to take on a healthy look.

In Montana there is no uneasiness. That state will have a good crop.

Professor Otto Lugger of the state experiment station, has returned from the Red River valley, where he has been investigating the reports of grasshoppers. He found the farms threatened with very serious damage to their crops. The locusts are of the destructive species, and promise to be very thick. Governor Lind has placed $1000 at the disposal of Professor Lugger, and will do whatever may be found possible or advisable to ward off the plague. Professor Lugger has started several hopper dosers to work, and has stirred up the farmers to doing their best to kill off the unwelcome visitors. At a conference with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific officials yesterday morning, they agreed to furnish kerosene oil for the dosers and take a hand in the fight if it becomes necessary. To prevent a return of the locusts next year is of supreme importance, for if they are allowed to propagate, they will multiply by millions. Professor Lugger says the farmers should plow every acre of stubble this fall.

"To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,
Creep on in petty space from day to day
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way of dusky death."

Procrastination is the thief of health as well as the thief of time. There are few things in which procrastination is so much indulged as in letter writing. We mean to write, but "to-morrow and to-morrow creep on" and we neglect it. This is bad enough when the correspondence is social or business in its character, but when it concerns the vital issue of health it is infinitely worse.

This touches you, if you are one of the women who have felt inclined to take advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of a consultation by letter, free. You have studied the evidence which shows how other women have been cured. You cannot doubt but that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does cure diseases peculiar to women; irregularity, ulcerations, inflammations, bearing-down pains. You cannot doubt it, because of the force of the testimony of hundreds of thousands of weak women made strong, and sick women made well, and you mean to write—to-morrow.

Write to-day. Your letter will be read in private, its contents guarded as a sacred confidence, and an answer promptly mailed you in a plain envelope without any printing upon it. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"When I wrote you about my ailments I was living in Richland, Iowa," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 647 South Liberty Street, Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Before I had taken four bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heartfelt gratitude, but will confirm the truth of all I say if those who write inclose stamped envelope for reply."

RICH STRIKE.

Tower, Minn., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A cablegram was sent to London today conveying the information of a rich strike made on the Foley gold mine located in the Seine River district lying north of this place and just across the border in Canada. The cablegram was fowaded fom the mine to Albet Kitto, a mechant of this city, and with it was a letter from the Superintendent in the course of the strike. While crosscutting from No. 5 vein at a depth of 200 feet to reach the Lucky Joe vein, which was supposed to be 100 feet to the north, a 6-foot vein was encountered. Twenty feet distant which shows up a wonderfully rich strike of ore. Several large nuggets of the yellow metal were blown out with the first blast put in and a general avenue of excitement the new vein gave over $100 per ton. Crosscutting will be continued and many other veins which show on the surface will be opened up. The Foley is owned by an English syndicate which is supposed to be made up of capitalists interested with Cecil Rhodes in South Africa, and the developments there are being watched with considerable interest. The syndicate has already acquired twenty-eight other properties lying in the vicinity of the Foley, Golden Star and Randolph, nond it is expected they will start work on several more properties in the same section.

Owing to the low stage of water which has prevailed the Seine River camp has not been very active in the way of putting in new machinery the past month. Several carloads of machinery is lying here waiting for a heavy rain to raise the water in the lakes so that it can go in by boat. Passengers can be taken through, but it is hard to get freight through.

The Golden Star has made another rich strike at the sixth level, so reports say, and work of sinking on the new vein is in progress. A rumor has reached here that the strike made in the fifth level has also been reached by drifting at the sixth level, and that drifting in the same direction will also be done at the seventh and eighth levels of the mine.

Both the Golden Star and the Randolph, which adjoins it, are crosscutting to other veins on the properties. The Star will use a diamond drill to make the examination. It is now the opinion that this section is a perfect network of veins, many of which do not show on the surface.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but now her health is excellent." Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running cores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Abbett, druggist. Guaranteed.

LOW RATE FOR CONVENTION.

One Fare For Round Trip to Democratic Convention.

St. Paul, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Western Passenger association, Eben E. McLeod, chairman, has acted favorably upon the application made by L. A. Rosing, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, for reduced rates for the Democratic state convention to be held in Minneapolis, on Wednesday, June 20.

Following is the official arrangement: A rate of one fare for round trip from any part of Minnesota to St. Paul and Minneapolis and return; excursion tickets to be sold on June 19 and 20, also for trains arriving at the Twin Cities on or before noon of June 21, good returning until and including June 22. Tickets to be good for going passage commencing date of sale and continuous passage in each direction.

STEPHENS WRITES A LETTER.

Missouri Governor Criticises St. Louis' Mayor and Press.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 12.—(Governor Stephens yesterday gave out a statement which he had wired to the New York World regarding the St. Louis strike, which is in part as follows:

"Vigorous action has been taken by the state government and St. Louis police department to enforce respect for law in St. Louis and protect life and property. The Republican mayor, however, who is a candidate for re-election, not desiring to offend, positively refuses to co-operate with us, which lends encouragement to the lawless conditions. As governor, I have conscientiously and fearlessly done my duty as my judgment directed.

Most of the newspapers in St. Louis endeavor to stand in with the lawless element as well as with the better element and think it popular to withhold support from state officers and constantly criticize every act of the police authorities. A similar strike upon the street railways was ordered in Kansas City, about the same time the St. Louis strike was ordered but proved a failure because the mayor, the newspapers and the sheriff all co-operated with the police department.

WILL BE A WARM ONE

The Democratic State Convention In Ohio Promises to Be Lively.

CONTESTS IN PLENTY

A Fight Predicted For Every Place on the State Ticket.

Columbus, Ohio, June 12.—All the preliminary work of the Democratic state convention was completed today. The old state committe concluded its business during the forenoon, and the delegates met in the afternoon to select the members of the new state committees and other members of the different committees. Th committees all meet tonight so as to be able to report to the convention tomorrow morning. The committee on credentials has a contest to settle between the Wilson and Farley delegates, of Cleveland, and other minor contests to consider.

The committee on resolutions will have many differences of opinion to settle on the language of the platform, but there are no radical differences regarding the issues. The differences are mainly as to the form in which the declarations shall be made. There will be contests for all places on the state ticket. One of the contests is between Col. James Kilbourne and Congressman John J. Lentz of this city for delegate-at-large. The McLean men control the convention by a large majority, and they have been favoring Lentz, but the delegates of this district, at their meeting today, endorsed Kilbourne for delegate-at-large, and as Mr. Lentz is making a fight now for re-election to congress, he may not antagonize the delegates of his district. The delegates of this county also endorsed Kilbourne.

There is some talk of making John R. McLean a delegate-at-large, notwithstanding his purpose to sail for Europe next Saturday and not attend the Kansas City convention. In that event, there will be a contest for the place of first alternate-at-large, who would, no doubt, be called upon to act in the absence of Mr. McLean.

Among the list of names mentioned, the most prominent are Charles N. Haskell and John C. Welty for delegates-at-large for the northern part of the state. The agitation for admiral Dewey as the candidate for vice president continues, and it is claimed to be entering into the contest for delegates-at-large. Dewey was entertained here last week by Kilbourn. Still, those who talk most about Bryan and Dewey for the ticket at Kansas City seem to favor Lentz.

Although McLean cannot be here, he is represented by confidential men, who are non-committal on the Dewey candidacy.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

State Convention Opened With Unusually Large Attendance.

Red Wing, Minn., June 12.—The eighteenth annual convention of the state Federation of Labor opened yesterday morning, W. J. Black, president of the Red Wing Potters' union, presiding at the preliminary exercises. Rev. Mr. Lewis delivered the invocation. The welcome of the city was extended by Jens K. Grondahl, and that of the local federation by President J. O. Hancock. The latter reviewed the history of labor unions and advocated organization in every hamlet until every laborer is unionized. "That would end strikes," he said. "Professional politicians and lawyers are running the country to perdition. Workingmen, the patriots of the country, should be more represented in legislatures and in congress.

President Neary, of Minneapolis, taking the gavel, responded to the addresses of welcome. He was glad to accept the hospitality of this city, which, considering its size, distanced all others in labor organizations.

A credentials committee was appointed, consisting of Frank Schoening, Winona; C. H. Bona, St. Paul; G. Davis, Duluth; W. J. Black, Red Wing. Committee on constitution, Henry Giese, Jr., St. Paul; C. L. Higgins, Duluth; Arthur Field, Minneapolis; F. J. Bell, Minneapolis; H. Goetzinger, St. Paul.

It is the largest convention ever held in the state.

BOLD ROBBER NABBED.

St. Paul, June 12.—In broad daylight yesterday two men entered the office of the Anheuser-Rush Brewing company in this city, held the office force quiet with leveled revolvers and rifled the safe. They attempted to escape but were followed by a number of brewery employes and after a desperate fight with policemen were both captured. The authorities say they are Jim Rogan and George Balfour, but the men gave their names as George Dixon and George Ballford. Dixon was badly injured in the fight. Most of the money was recovered.

KIDNEY CURE

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

St. Paul, June 12.—The supreme court, Judge Lewis filing the decision yesterday affirmed the order of the district court allowing the city of Fergus Falls to foreclose a mortgage for $10,000 on the Grand hotel property in that city. The money was loaned in 1890 to a man named Bell for the purpose of inducing him to erect the hotel. In 1891 Bell sold the property to George Rurvee, and the latter sold it to the Fergus Falls Hotel company, defendant in the action. The defense was that the mortgage was void because the city officials had loaned the money contrary to law.

The supreme court states that the money was loaned contrary to law, but that the city may invoke the powers of the courts to enforce the collection of the debt by foreclosure proceedings. Purchasers of the property subsequent to the execution of the mortgage, but with the notice of the mortgage lien, cannot take advantage of the fact that the action of the city officials was ultra vires. The decision will end a long fight over the property.

In the case of the Deering Harvester company, appellant, vs. Frank Hamilton, et al, respondents, the courts sustained the ruling of the district court that, although a contract contains a provision that it may be terminated at any time by one of the parties, in this case the plaintiff, it cannot be terminated without reasonable cause, and further, that the offer of a specific amount, with a refusal to accept it, the money not being produced, does not constitute a tender.

More trouble over the insurance on the A. H. Fletcher stock of goods, burned at Okabena in 1897, was settled by the court. This was the case of Fletcher, respondent, vs. the Fire and Marine Mutual Insurance company, of Minneapolis, appellant, and the order of the district court, in favor of Fletcher's claim, is reversed.

Judge Lewis affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of Eliza McLean, respondent, vs. John Q. Crosby, appellant, holding that an additional consideration to that expressed by a deed may be shown by parole evidence, provided such consideration be consistent with the operation of the deed.

The lower court is also affirmed in C. H. Rossman, respondent, vs. Laxaras Tilleny, appellant, a dispute of $200 attorneys' fees.

EVERY ISSUE.

Chicago, June 12.—Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, arrived in Chicago yesterday and will be here several days looking over the preliminary work of the coming presidential campaign. Wednesday William J. Bryan will meet Senator Jones here for a final conference before the Kansas City convention. Senator Jones said:

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that I will endeavor to persuade Mr. Bryan to consent to the dropping of the 16 to 1 plank from the platform this year. There will be no abandonment of any issue of the Chicago platform."

BRITISH AT A STANDSTILL.

Ashantis Hold the Kumassi Relief Expedition In Check.

London, June 12.—Col. Willcocks, in command of the Ashanti relief expedition, cables from Pharpsu, under date of June 9, as follows: "Have just received a message from Col. Carter from Kwisa, reporting that he advanced June 6, affecting a junction with Col. Hall at Bekwai. He found the rebel forces strongly fortified at Dompoassi. The fight continued for a long time and the enemy were dislodged, but on account of the loss of seven European officers wounded and ninety other casualties he was unable to advance and returned to Kwisa.

There is no news from Kumassi. Hall is at Esumeja and Bekwai, which is friendly. Kokofu and Adansi are in a state of rebellion. The Donglassi are probably joining the rebel forces."

TROUBLE AT LEECH LAKE.

Another Messiah Shows Up and Indians Are Restless.

Leech Lake, Minn., June 12.—An Indian giving the name of Gway-Tay-Gonce appeared at the Leech Lake agency recently and announed that he was the Messiah. He said that all of his descendants, Indians and white men, who lived in houses were soon to be destroyed by a big cyclone, but all Indians who lived in tepees would be saved.

The man secured the confidence of many of the Indians, who had such faith in him that about 200 left the agency and went into camp on Squaw Point. The matter gradually grew so serious that Capt. Mercer, the Indian agent, sent out and had Gway-Tay-Gonce arrested.

The other Indians remain at Squaw Point and are becoming ugly. They make many threats and as there are no troops at the agency now, trouble is feared.

United States Marshal Grimshaw admits trouble is brewing, but further than this will say nothing.

PROTEST BY IRELAND.

Rome, June 11.—The Osservatore Romano publishes a letter from Archbishop Ireland to Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, warmly protesting against a recent statement by the Journal De Geneve, which he characterizes as "rubbish" —that he wrote to the duke of Norfolk denouncing the doctrine of the temporal power of the pope and the methods of the congregations and the Roman curia.

Mgr. Ireland declares that he speaks and thinks with the pope on such a serious matter and he reserves to himself the right to repeat these declarations by word of mouth to Cardinal Rampolla, when next he visits Rome in order to avail himself on his grace's jubilee and to receive the papal benediction.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

An attempt was made near Kenosha, Wis., last night by unknown persons to wreck the Northwestern passenger train due to arrive in that city at 9:32 p. m., by placing a large number of ties across the track. A farmer boy, Charles Hawes, who lives nearby watched three men pile the ties, but was unable to get close enough to identify them. When the men left Hawes removed the obstruction and by working with might and main, succeeded a few minutes before the train was due.

His Hand to His Hip Pocket.

Workmen Have That Habit to a Remarkable Degree.

A workman will suddenly pause in his work and whip his hand around to his hip-pocket. For a gun? Not a bit of it. For a plug of chewing tobacco. Very often he will bite off a piece and put the remainder back with an air of dissatisfaction. It was not what he wanted, but having bought it, he must chew it. If this experience has been yours, buy for trial a plug of Gold Rope, Kingbolt, Thrasher or Rise and Shine, and you will find it better than the ordinary brands. The above brands are made by the Wilson-McCallay Tobacco Co., of Middletown, Ohio, a company which is absolutely independent of any trust or monopoly. Workmen have it in their power to strangle monopoly by buying tobaccos made by independent concerns. The Wilson-McCallay brands are clean, pure, wholesome. They do not give heartburn and other effects of a similar character. If you are a working man the inside of your dinner pail is a good place to scratch the names of these four famous UNION made brands, Gold Rope, Kingbolt, Thrasher, Rise and Shine.

A SMALL ADVANCE

Wheat Started Easy, Made a Strong Advance But Declined Again.

THE CHIEF FACTOR

Duluth Board of Trade, June 12.—The wheat market was very much excited this morning and prices fluctuated within a wide range. The chief factor was the continued drought in the Northwest, there being reports of serious damage to the crops in consequence of the lack of rain. The market opened easy and lower on account of profit-taking, but soon bulged upward. Then came a weather bureau prediction of showers in Minnesota and the Dakotas, and this caused a decline of 1c, although it is claimed that showers only will be insufficient to save the spring wheat crop. Liverpool failed to respond to the rise in American markets, wheat there being steady and only ¼@⅜d higher. The market firmed up during the last half hour and closed ½c higher than yesterday here, and ¼c higher at Chicago for the July option.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ⅝c off at 72½c, sold at 73⅛c at 9:30, advanced to 74¼c at 10:20, reacted to 72⅝c at 12, and was down to 72½c at 12:30. It turned stronger and closed at 73⅜c, being ½c higher than yesterday. September wheat opened ⅝c off at 70⅝c, sold up to 71c at 9:30, declined to 70¼c at 11:30, and was closed at 71¼c, a net advance of ⅝c. ON THE CHICAGO BOARD.

Chicago, June 12.—In excitement and volume of trade, this wheat market was the peer of recent sessions. The Northwest drought was the allabsorbing consideration. This territory this morning was reported still without adequate rains and the crop damage reports were numerous and very pessimistic. The government report, too, was considered bullish, but it was a minor influence. July opened easy, 1c lower to unchanged at 72¾@73⅛c and in fifteen minutes shot up to 74¾c. Then came a set back, the opening was due to profit-taking, and following the bulge longs again forced the price back, but the clip thus caused was followed by another rally to 74⅝c. At this point, the weather bureau prediction of showers in Minnesota and the Dakotas became an influence and July declined to 73⅝c. The prediction was for showers, while it is asserted that to save the spring crop general rains are needed, but the prediction struck the market at a very nervous moment and was for that reason quite influential. Cables were not responsive to the advance here yesterday. Local receipts were 118 cars, of contract grade, Minneapolis and Duluth reported 15 cars, against 554 last week and 61 a year ago.

Later, rains were reported from Dakota and Minnesota, some of them said to be quite heavy. This caused selling, under which July declined to 72@73⅛c. Near the end the market recovered partially, closing firm, July 1c over yesterday at 73⅝c.

The corn market was strong early with wheat, but responded with great alacrity to the reaction in the big market, turning decidedly easy, following the buige. Trade was fairly large and country offerings liberal. July opened a shade lower at 38⅝@⅞ and sold up to 39¼@⅜c, but reacted from that to 38⅝@⅜c. Local receipts were 345 cars.

The corn close was firm and July was 1⅛@⅜c improved at 38⅞@39c.

Oats were quite lost sight of in the wheat excitement and those who remained in that pit contented themselves largely with following the fluctuations of wheat. July opened unchanged at 22c sold to 22¾c and then reacted to 21⅝c. Local receipts were 49 cars.

The provision market was weak. Hogs were lower at the yards, packers were sellers and the outside demand early was slack. July pork opened 12½c lower at $11.62½ and sold off to $11.45. July Lard opened 5c down at $6.77½@6.80, and July ribs 5@7½c depressed at $6.77½, declining to $6.70@6.72½.

Close: Wheat June, 72½c; July, 73⅛c; August, 71½c. Corn, June, 38⅝c; July, 38⅝@39c; August, 39⅜c. Oats, June, 21⅞c; July, 22¼c; August, 21⅝c. Pork, June, $11.47½; July, $11.47½; September, $11.57½. Lard, June, $6.67½; July, $6.67½; September, $6.72½; October, $6.72½; November, $6.70. Ribs, June, $6.67½@6.70; July, $6.67½@6.67 bid; September, $6.67½@6.70. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 76@77c; No. 3 red, 74@75½c; No. 2 hard winter, 72½@73½c; No. 3 hard winter, 68@73c; No. 1 northern spring, 74@75c; No. 2 northern spring, 72@74c; No. 3 spring, 66@72c. Corn, No. 2, 38⅞@39¼c; No. 3, 38¾@39c. Oats, No. 2, 22½c; No. 3, 22¼c. Flax, Northwestern, $1.30; Southwestern, $1.30; September, $1.33; October, $1.29. Rye, 55c. Barley, 38@43c. Timothy, cash, $2.55; September, $2.65. Clover, $7.75@8.00.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Small Gains at Opening, Followed By Recessions.

New York, June 12.—London sent higher prices for Americans this morning and there was a general response at the opening here all along the line. The demand was not large and gains were small. The opening rise in prices was not maintained and the market yielded on a small volume of dealings. Steel stocks were very irregular, Tennessee Coal falling 1¾, while Republic Steel advanced 1. Third Avenue lost 2½ and Wheeling & Lake Erie, first preferred, jumped 2⅜. For the most part the market hung nearly stagnant at about last night's level. Prices hardened in the second hour, but so slightly as to have little significance. St. Paul got up to 114 and Tennessee Coal recovered a point. A majority of stocks did not move at all. Dealing in bonds were small and prices lower.

Rather an urgent demand for stocks of the grain carrying roads developed from the shorts on the weather bureau's prediction of rain in the Northwest, and the Grangers and Pacifics rallied. Sugar rose to 116, and the steel stocks recovered partly. The market then fell back into an inanimate condition. Minneapolis & St. Louis lost 2¼ points. The closing was dull and unsteady and net changes were small.

THE RANGE TICKET

W. G. Bonham of Eveleth and E. O. Loveland of Soudan the Men.

NO OTHERS LIKELY

Bonham Is After Probate Judgeship, and Loveland the Superintendency.

W. G. Bonham of Eveleth, is the latest Richmond in the field of politics. He has been mentioned frequently as a candidate for the Republican nomination for judge of probate, but he has hesitated some time before consenting to run. Now, however, he has announced himself definitely as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the probate judgeship, and he has notified some of his Duluth friends to that effect. He is now in the hands of the voters who will be gathered into the Republican county convention next week. He has lived on both ranges, coming to Eveleth from Tower, and in both places he has made a host of friends and made a record that will advance rather than retard his race for the nomination. Altogether he is likely to prove a formidable opponent to the present incumbent of the probate judgeship, who is also, of course, a candidate.

Edwin O. Loveland, now principal of the Soudan schools, is a candidate for the office of superintendent of schools for the county against B. N. Wheeler, who now holds the position. Mr. Loveland is also a strong candidate, and he will bring many delegates down from the ranges in his support.

So far as can be learned, this appears to be the entire range ticket, about which so much has been said, and which has been an uncertain element in the calculations of all Duluth politicians who have been trying to figure out the outcome of the warm little scrap that is now in progress in anticipation of the coming Republican county convention. It is stated on good authority that there will be no other range candidates for any office, and if that is true it clears the situation not a little. With all possibility of range opposition out of the way, if it is out of the way, it makes the Sargent—Halden—Whipple combination the strongest thing on the boards.

SCHOONER WRECKED.

Manitowoc, Wis., June 12.—The schooner Jason Parker, of Racine, bound from Racine to Suttons Bay, light, went on the SouthManitou island in a dense fog early yesterday and filled with water. She was manned by Capt. Henry Harvig and his son, John, with Chris Johnson and Charles Foster, of Racine, as sailors. The vessel was becoming a wreck and was stripped of all her valuable rigging.

BIG TRAFFIC IN TIES.

The tug Tom Dowling and scow arrived this morning from the north shore with 6000 ties, making her tenth trip in thirty-two days. The tie business is furnishing quite an extensive traffic for coasting vessels, as the shore is lined with them from Two Harbors to Grand Marais.

ANOTHER BOAT TIED UP.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 12.—The schooner Alfred Krupp was tied up to the breakwater yesterday, making three big barges of the Bessemer fleet that are waiting for orders.

ASK BIDS FOR BOATS.

The lake shipbuilding trust, Craig, of Toledo, and the Jenks Shipbuilding company, of Port Huron, were asked last week, says a report from Detroit, by Edward Carter, of Chicago, and W. W. Brown, of Cleveland, for bids on five steel steamers of the Welland canal size. It is understood that they are not alone in the matter, but represent a syndicate that is organizing a corporation for the operation of a fleet in the lake and ocean trade. It is the opinion among the builders that the trust will get the job, as it has not only more yard room than the other concerns, but the facilities for turning them out in faster time than either Craig or the Port Huron yard. Their dimensions will be 240 feet keel, 40 feet beam and 25 feet deep, and they will cost about $160,000 each.

PORT OF DULUTH.

TIME DRAWING NEAR.

But a Few Days More to Complete the Census.

The work of taking the census must be completed by next Friday evening. That is the final day allowed for the enrollment of the people of Duluth. The necessity for active and vigilant work and co-operation upon the part of the people will present itself to everyone. The people of the city have been sending in names during the past two or three days much better than before and the result is that the census comittee has come to the conclusion that there are a great many Duluth people who will not be enrolled. Many names have been secured which had not been obtained before and have been added to the lists.

There is still time to do much good and if the people of Duluth will come forward in these last two or three days and bring all the information they have of people who are away from the city and who belong here, to the census committee, it will result in adding a large number to the population who would otherwise be missed. Send information to 618 or 514 Chamber of Commerce building or telephone 65 of the Duluth system or 210 of the Zenith system.

High School Athletes Say Ironwood Violated the Rules In the Dashes.

Now that the high school athletes have recovered from their hard luck and disappointment resulting from the Ironwood meet, there is some talk of entering a formal protest against Ironwood in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Manager Hugo of the track team, and Clint McCormick, who accompanied the high school men to Ironwood as the local official, claim that Ironwood repeatedly violated the rules in starting the dashes. Urquhart, one of Ironwood's best sprinters, takes a flying start. After the starter

What Did He Find In the Antarctic?

There is considerable curiosity being manifested in regard to the wonderful revelations that Explorer Borcherevinck has intimated he will make when he reaches Sydney on his return from his trip towards the South Pole. The voyager into Antarctic seas remarked that the discoveries and revelations were too important to be entrusted to a chance and passing acquaintance, and so the world waits patiently for information as to what the adventurous Scandinavian has found or seen down in those Polar regions. He did not find the South Pole; it is not claimed that he got within several hundred miles of it. It may be that he found some new ice-bound islands, or perhaps a race of Antarctic giants. But, asks the Portland Telegram, is there any good reason why the world in general should be absorbed with interest in the earth's poles? Perhaps it is because there are only two of them, and because they happen to be located in such inaccessible places, that hundreds of lives and millions of money have been sacrificed in the vain attempt to find or approach them. Why couldn't one of them have been located up in Alaska, and the other in South Africa? These poles, however, having chosen to place themselves in such outlandish regions, and to refuse to have any intercourse with the rest of the world, or to be sociable in any way, and to wrap themselves around with miles of icebergs, deserve to be ostracised and abandoned to their fate. But, nonsense, aside, Borchgrevinck may have something rather interesting to report. It may be remembered that M. de Garlache, writing about the comparatively recent Belgian Antarctic expedition, said that they passed through water that was thronged with cetacea, balneoptera and negoptera—whatever these may be; they sailed over areas that had been represented on the maps as dry land—or ice-covered land; and he also relates that some of the party were sunstruck in January. All of which is not greatly important, if true; but it must be that Borchgrevinck has a bigger yarn to spin. At least he will tell something that will give him a chance to lecture, and possibly this report is only a sort of an advance advertisement.

Defeat of Woman Suffrage In Oregon.

A proposed amendment to the state constitution, granting the franchise to women, was defeated at the election in Oregon last Tuesday. In ten years from 1889 to 1899, the women of Colorado, Utah and Idaho acquired the full right to vote. Illinois, Connecticut and Ohio granted women school suffrage. Minnesota permitted them to vote for members of library boards. Iowa gave them a very restricted right to vote on questions involving the issue of municipal bonds. Louisiana empowered taxpaying women to vote on all questions submitted to taxpayers. But in the same ten years three different suffrage bills failed in Arizona, three in Arkansas, two in South Dakota, four in California, and four bills and one constitutional amendment in Connecticut. In Delaware the constitutional covention refused to strike out the word male. In Illinois four suffrage bills failed, and two failed in Indiana. In 1895 all voters in Massachusetts, men and women, who were eligible to vote for school committees, were allowed to vote on the question: "Is it expedient that municipal suffrage be granted to women?" Of the men, 86,970 voted yes and 186,976 no. Of the 575,000 women entitled to vote more than 550,000 declined to do so, and less than 4 per cent voted yes. From these and facts that it refers to, the Chicago Inter Ocean draws the conclusion that women themselves are not in favor of woman's suffrage.

TRYING TO FOOL LABOR.

As early as last March the house committee on judiciary heard arguments from representatives of organized labor in favor of a measure to limit the powers of the federal judiciary in the granting of injunctions. These pleas were of a most convincing nature, and as the senate had passed a measure such as was desired some years ago, organized labor felt assured that the house committee would avail itself of the opportunity and speedily recommend the proposed measure in order that congress might act upon it. In that, however, the advocates of the bill were mistaken. The committee took its own time, and while it would have preferred to postpone the matter indefinitely, in view of the approaching election, it did not dare to insult organized labor. It took good care, however, that the bill should not pass congress, and to that end deferred its report until the closing hours of the session, when it was certain that no such measure would be able to get through congress.

The report was placed on file in favor of a law which will restrain the federal judiciary from coming to the assistance of organized capital in labor disputes through the granting of injunctions. But congress had no time to take up the report and pass the bill before adjournment, and so the whole matter goes over. There would have been sufficient time to enact the bill into law had the dominant party in congress desired to do so. But it did not. The report was held back purposely until the very last hour, when it was certain that on account of the rush of other business it could not be acted upon. This much organized labor should understand and not be fooled by the hypocritical plea of a favorable report at the eleventh hour. Had the Republicans been honest in dealing with the matter, the bill would now be a law.

Some man whose identity is not disclosed, but who is said to have been "very close to Gen. Otis," tells a Washington correspondent that there will be no scandals unearthed in the Philippines; that Otis has been straight and honest. Good, if true. It is becoming so that to discover that an official sent to Alaska or an island possession is "straight and honest" is a matter for surprise and congratulation. But, as the Portland Telegram says, Gen. Otis ought to have been good for something; he seems not to have suppressed the insurrection to any appreciable extent, except in his reports.

Senator Hale expresses the feelings of several millions of the American people in his terrible allusion to England in India and in South Africa—expending millions of money for the bloody crushing of two little republics, while millions of its subjects in Asia are starving to death. But what could Senator Aldrich mean, asks the Springfield Republican, in calling Mr. Hale's remarks a "political speech?" The Rhode Island senator would apparently have us think the matter somehow touches upon American politics.

Bryan is fortunate in a good many small particulars. The malevolent opposition of J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, is one of them. Morton abused Cleveland, before the latter's election, much as he is abusing Bryan, but for some reason not apparent on the surface, Mr. Cleveland, who is not a man to turn the other cheek when smitten on one, appointed Morton his secretary of agriculture. So, perhaps, Morton thinks he stands to win an office, whether McKinley or Bryan is elected.

The administration bill to provide a public place for ex-Minister John Barrett for services rendered—otherwise known as the Oriental trade commission bill—did not fare well in congress. The comment of Senator Platt, of Connecticut, was quite pertinent. Some persons, he said, were making it a business to promote these commissions in order to create comfortable places for themselves. Barrett belongs to the class of politicians from which Rathbone and Neely were drawn.

This is the simple manner in which some local Democrats manufacture confidence: In 1880, Garfield, Republican; in 1884, Cleveland, Democrat; in 1888, Harrison, Republican; in 1892, Cleveland, Democrat; in 1896, McKinley, Republican; in 1900, Bryan, Democrat. They say it is the Democrats' turn. But they forget that, except for this purpose, they don't count Cleveland as a Democrat.

Millionaire's sons show an increasing fondness for the ownership and management of newspapers. George T. Oliver, the Pittsburg steel-maker, has now bought for his son, George, a recent Yale graduate, the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, which used to be the chief newspaper support of the Republican party in Western Pennsylvania.

Only three days more in which to complete the census. If you have not been counted, send word to the citizens' census committee. Let there be an accurate and full count of Duluth's population.

The Rounder

All kinds of people have all kinds of trouble. One might think that a person who lacks the faculty of hearing, and who by that luck is protected from the insistence of the bill-collector and the bore, ought to be happy, yet one has come to the attnetion of the Rounder who is far from happy. It develops that he has preempted the affections of a nice little girl over in West Superior, so that he's all the world to her. Saturday the young woman's residence was connected with the telephone line, and she had bright visions of how she was going to enliven the dark periods of her absence from her, found but deaf flame by snatches of conversation over the wire. But alas! when she broke the glad news to her young Lochinvar she received a shock of disappointment that well nigh buried toasts from its throne. She had forgotten that her young man was deaf to ordinary conversation, and never a peep could his deadened ears catch over the telephone. At last accounts the young man was looking for a blind man with no memory to act as a substitute for him at this end of the line.

There are undoubtedly degrees of suffering, but there is a limit to the extent of showing it. This is shown at great disasters like the Virginia fire, or worse still, though farther back, the Hinckley fire. Men who had lost everything in the world as a rule showed no more perturbation than would men who had lost a gold piece of $10 down the well. There are exceptions, of course, and some of the sufferers become hysterical and nervous. The general run of them, however, do not show nearly so much emotion as would be expected. It seems to be a fortunate provision of the Creator that human suffering shall go so far and no further. For if it progressed in proportion to the cause of it in such cases as the Hinckley fire it would be more than humanity could stand. Those sufferers who had lost the majority of their friends and probably all of their relatives at Hinckley seemed simply dazed for a day or two after the disaster. They simply did not, probably could not, comprehend the extent of their misery. If they had something would have given away. Then as the daze wore off gradually the horror of it all grew upon them, until they could embrace the whole terrible thing. By that time the danger of insanity or other serious effects had passed away.

One man who passed through the scenes of the Hinckley fire pretty thoroughly and saw in the neighborhood of 300 pitifully charred and twisted human bodies says that the first corpse he saw affected him quite as much as the whole 300 did. That is, the horror of the first one was so great that he scaled the limit of his possibilities in the way of appreciating such a thing, so that none of his subsequent impressions exceeded the height of the first one. In fact toward the last the impressions began to grow dimmer, and he began to get used to the sights, so that he was almost unfeeling at the last.

NORTH DAKOTA.

North Dakota Irrigation Superintendent Insane---Pembina Murderer Sentenced.

Bismarck—Word has been received by Governor Fancher of the temporary insanity of W. W. Barrett, state superintendent of irrigation and forestry, one of the best known officials of the state. George Barrett, son of the unfortunate man, will manage the affairs of his father's office for a time, in the hope that his father's mental affliction will be only temporary. Overwork is believed to be the cause of the trouble.

H. J. Burns, a cook for the tracklayers of the Bismarck, Washburn & Great Falls road, was fearfully carved up with a butcher knife in the hands of Timekeeper Brumm last night in the hospital with a cut through the skull into the brain and his arms slashed badly. His condition is serious. The cutting occurred as the result of a quarrel between the two men over breakfast. Brumm gave himself up and is in jail. He is a son of ex-Congressman Brumm, of Pennsylvania.

Pembina—Judge Sauter sentenced Joseph Houle, the man who murdered his wife about a month ago, to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at Bismarck.

Fargo—Fargo is to have another high school building, to cost $40,000. The number of pupils in the city schools has increased so rapidly that sufficient accommodations cannot be found in the six buildings now used for school purposes.

Larimore—There has been no rain here except showers. They have been of no benefit to the crops. A soaking rain is needed and it is doubtful even if that would be of much use now. The wheat crop is in bad shape.

IN MICHIGAN.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Calumet and Hecla Mining company has just closed a deal with the Penoyars, the Saginaw lumbermen, for the entire output of their mill at Shelldrake for five years. The Calumet and Hecla uses in its mines about 15,000,000 feet of 12 by12 and 6 by 12 timber each year, besides millions of feet of timber.

Houghton—The temperature, smoke and gas at the Calumet and Hecla mine has been steadily decreasing since the opening of shafts 6 and 7, and it is thought that it will be possible to open the other shafts soon.

The list of aspirants for the nomination for the office of sheriff of Houghton county still grows. One of the latest booms to be launched is that of Capt. George Miller, who commanded a company in the Cuban campaign.

Work is being pushed at the site of the new Baltic stamp mill in the excavating and laying of the foundations. Some difficulty is being experienced on account of numerous springs that are found beneath the surface, the water interfering with the operations. In order to secure a solid foundation for the stamp heads it is necessary to go down about twenty-four feet, where there is a layer of sandstone.

At the Isle Royale stamp mill it is necessary to go down some sixty-five feet in order to strike hardpan. Iron cylinders twelve feet in diameter are being sunk which will be filled with concrete.

HIS TRIP TO EUROPE

SHAKESPEARES HOME

Visit to It One of Remarkable Interest---The Field of Waterloo.

Charles A. Towne talked last evening at Pilgrim church on his trip to Europe, giving reminiscences and thoughts which came to him during a period of five months' travel in most of the countries of that continent. It was an informal narrative rather than a formal address, and Mr. Towne gave many interesting bits of information.

Rev. Alexander Milne introduced Mr. Towne, and in his remarks said that in these days of the Cook tourist the globe-trotter is not so scarce as he once was.

Mr. Towne, in opening, said that it was true that the Cook tourist is everywhere, like the trail of the serpent. This rather surprising comparison he explained by an illustration of how many people tour Europe. With Mrs. Towne he was in a famous art gallery at Antwerp, and they were seated before a magnificent painting called "The Night Watch," one of the grandest works of art in existence. They had been seated there in silence—in awe, almost—for many minutes, drinking in the beauties of that marvellous work, when suddenly they heard a scurrying and bustle in a corner of the room, and there entered through the door a party of people. One man, the guide, immediately ran over the pages of a book and began to read hurriedly a description of the painting before them, "The Night Watch." The crowd gathered around him, craning their necks and necks to catch his words. When he finished they gave a glance at this picture that would bear hours and hours of study, and even then would reveal new beauties, and then they scampered through the door to look for more. It was a Cook tourist party.

Mr. Towne detailed the trip across the Atlantic in a rather humorous way, directing several little pleasantries at himself and Mrs. Towne, reminiscences which, by the way, are those of almost every sea voyager. He ran over hurriedly their course of travel through Ireland, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Turkey, Italy, Switzerland, France, Scotland, etc. There was always the feeling with them at first that they wanted to see something new and something strange, and so they journeyed from place to place, but in vain, until they reached Turkey. There they found everything strange and unlike anything they had ever seen, and in that respect they were gratified.

To give an adequate idea of a five months' trip in a narrative, Mr. Towne said, would be impossible, and he would content himself with picking out one of the towns, one of the cities, some of the tombs, some of the battlefields, etc., to talk about. He opened with Shrewsbury, in England, the scene of some famous battles, and he recited a portion of "Henry IV," by Shakespeare, as illustrating one.

It was apparent, from Mr. Towne's description and the feeling with which he told of it, that one of the most interesting and deeply impressive features of his trip was his visit to Stratford-on-Avon, the place which gave birth to William Shakespeare, and whose name has immortalized the little town. Stratford, said Mr. Towne, lives principally on agriculture and Shakespeare. Thirty thousand people visit the home of the greatest of poets every year, and from 7000 to 10,000 of them come from America. He described the little village, the home of Shakespeare preserved by the people of the city, the school which he attended, and finally the grave where his bones lie. The chapel where he was laid at rest is a most interesting place. All around it are reminders of the life of the genius buried there. One window Mr. Towne described particularly. It bears a representation of the famous speech of Jacques in "As You Like It," beginning "All the world's a stage," etc., and this Mr. Towne recited very effectively.

In describing the country around Avon and the scenes among which William Shakespeare grew to manhood, Mr. Towne said that nature holds nothing more beautiful, poetic or inspiring. It has been argued that it is inconsistent to believe that William Shakespeare could have written such magnificent poetry and shown such a wonderful knowledge of nature as he did when he had no other opportunities for study and reflection than the village of Stratford afforded, and these same people who argue this go up to London, said Mr. Towne, and find that a man there, Francis Bacon, received the inspiration that gave birth to those great works from the London streets and pavements. Why, said he, the very air of Stratford is poetry, and no more perfect environment for a genius like Shakespeare could be found.

From Stratford Mr. Towne carried his listeners to London and described some of the many interesting scenes there. He found that one who has read much is at home in London, recognizing the streets, the famous buildings, and even the queer omnibuses. He gave a very interesting description of the laying of the cornerstone of the Albert and Victoria museum, by the queen herself, which function he and Mrs. Towne, through the courtesy of friends, were able to witness from the platform arranged for the distinguished guests and nobility, thus seeing it to great advantage.

In describing this Mr. Towne spoke of the entry on the scene of the prince of Wales and after watching his manner and his smiling words and comments here and there, he could easily understand why the prince is such a popular gentleman. "He is what we call in America, an excellent mixer," said Mr. Towne.

He then ran over the trip to the continent, touching on incidents of the journey through Belgium, into Austria, to Bucharest and other points, and finally closed with a rather extended description of the scene of the battle of Waterloo.

There is no battlefield, said Mr. Towne, which can be seen in its entirety so effectively as that of Waterloo. Chattanooga is the nearest approach to it which he could recall. A mound has been erected as a monument and after climbing 237 stairs to the top of this the entire field is laid open to the eye. Where this mound is was the apex of the triangle in which the fight shaped itself. At the apex was Wellington, commanding the allied forces. Mr. Towne explained in detail the positions of the forces, where Napoleon took his ground and where he placed his generals. As he stood there viewing the field, the thoughts could not but come to him why did not Napoleon do this and why did he not do that. He found himself constantly figuring out how Napoleon could have won and he said that it was due to the fact that, though his better judgment told him that it was better that Napoleon should have fallen, his mission having been fulfilled and a Divine Providence ordaining that he should pass from the scene of action, the strong sympathy and admiration which he had ever had as a boy for Napoleon would come back to him. The day when they visited Waterloo, was the eighty-fourth anniversary of the fight and the field was in much the same condition as it then was. The fields of grain were there waving in the sunlight, and the red poppies could be seen here and there looking for all the world like blood as they were viewed in the distance. It is a saying there that where the blood ran deepest the grain now grows thickest.

Mr. Towne closed by bringing forth miniature flags representative of the nations which they visited and he told of their entrance to The Hague where the peace conference was on and the patriotic pride and joyful emotion which they felt when they saw, among the group of flags of nations on the balcony of the large building where the conference was held, the stars and stripes of their own nation waving to and fro in the breeze.

BOLD ROBBER.

There is a bold, single-handed outlaw roaming on the Mesaba iron range that must have escaped from a half dime novel, so spectacular are his business methods. Shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning a masked man holding a revolver in his hand entered the dance hall and dive kept by Dave Kelly at Hibbing. It must have been a dull night, for even the night watchman was sleeping. The robber made him go into the ice house at the point of a revolver and then locked the door upon him. Then the desperado went up stairs and woke up the clerk, trotted him along at the point of the same revolver and made him open the safe. From this the robber took $300 and some small change and then, having finished with the clerk, he put him, too, in the ice house.

Then the mysterious robber left the place, and he has not been seen since, so far as is known. The ice box was not comfortable, the men found. Chilled almost to exhaustion they kicked at the door until they nearly gave it up. They were just about to resign themselves to their fate when somebody woke up and rescued them from their chilly prison. The rescuer was at first somewhat awed by the muffled sounds proceeding from the ice box, but finally he recognized human voices from within, and his fears being conquered he opened the door.

Some believe that the masked robber was the same man who shot a miner at Eveleth several weeks ago, and who has been seen hiding on the range, though he has not been located b ythe authorities.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Chicago Journal: If we must civilize in China, let's go in with Russia, who seems to be in the Chinaman's confidence. We don't want anything to do with France, who has always sneaked around China in pickpocket fashion, and Germany talks too much cant about "divine mission" and that sort of thing. But Russia is a good, honest chap, with a comparatively clean record, and a pretty lusty fellow into the bargain.

Baltimore Sun: This country is not called upon to pull British chestnuts out of the Chinese fire and Great Britain ought to be left to settle its own troubles with Russia if there should be complications between the two countries as a result of the rising of "Boxers." With our troubles in the Philippines and our maladministration in Cuba the United States has all that it can attend to without hunting for trouble elsewhere or taking sides in the disputes between rival European landgrabbers in the far East.

Philadelphia Press: The Chinese territory now occupied by the Boxers isolates Pekin from the region to the south. It is inconceivable that this disturbance should exist without the connivance of the mandarins in Pekin, but it is probable that the riot and ravine will slowly subside and leave the imperial authority in full control and the imperial treasury with a heavy indemnity to pay. The loss of life is deplorable, but every one has known that if Europeans scattered themselves over rural China when riots came the central government would be unable to protect them.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It will not be long before Siberian territory contiguous to China will be occupied by millions of Russians; a "made to order" empire which will furnish an inexhaustible and permanent base for military operations in Asia and practically independent, so far as men and supplies are concerned, of the czar's dominions west of the Ural mountains. When these not remote results are accomplished, if the czar then finds that he needs China in his business it will need more than China to check them. These stories of menacing Russian armies are not likely to materialize for years. Time is Russia's best ally.

Minneapolis Times: The two horns of the dilemma would seem to be the bad feeling between Russia and Japan and the determination of the empress dowager to keep China solely for the Chinese. Bad as either war would be, one which resulted in the partition of China amongst the great powers would seem to be more in the interests of civilization and progress than one which witnessed a clash between Japan and England on one side and Russia on the other. Should the latter come about, it is impossible to foresee what complications might result, how widespread might grow the conflict or what nations might become involved before the war was six months old.

In my experience with the sick, I have seen some very serious cases of kidney and bladder troubles cured through the use of Warner's Safe Cure, after doctors had failed to do any good. I have used it myself several times when bilious and for indigestion, and never have failed to find help from its use. I am therefore pleased to endorse it as well worthy the confidence of those suffering with stomach troubles or diseases of the pelvic organs.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, May 28th, 1900.

On reading and filing the petition of Robert N. Burnett and Arthur W. Burnett, executors of the estate of said deceased, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into their hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; and alleging that it would be for the best interests of said estate and all parties interested therein to sell all said real estate belonging to said estate and to use the proceeds of such sale in the payment of the legacies, charges and allowances against said estate, and to reinvest the balance of said proceeds, if any, for the benefit of said estate and those interested therein; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to them granted to sell all the real estate of said deceased situated in said county belonging to said estate. And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said executors to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses and that it would be for the best interests of said estate and of all parties interested therein to sell all of said real estate;

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday, the 25th day of June, 1900, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the court house, in Duluth, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said executors to sell all of the real estate of said deceased to pay such debts, legacies and expenses and to reinvest the balance of the proceeds of such sale.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, the 28th day of May, A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

WILL SELL THE BONDS

Ordinance For Negotiation of Electric Lighting Plant Bonds Passes.

TIME IS NOT FIXED

Fire Commissioners Communicate to the Council---Lively Remarks Passed.

The ordinance providing for the sale of $110,000 bonds for the building of a municipal street lighting electric plant, was passed with a unanimous vote by the council last night. However, the city clerk is instructed not to advertise the bonds for sale until some future time, to be designated by a separate resolution of the council.

When the ordinance was reported for its final passage, Alderman Cromwell moved that action be postponed till June 25, on which date the Black River Falls company proposed to make another bid for furnishing the city with electricity for street lighting purposes.

Alderman Neff opposed Mr. Cromwell, saying that it was time to decide whether the city should build the plant or not, and that he for one would carry out the instruction of the people at the last election and vote for the sale of the bonds. Mr. Neff then asked William Burgess, representing the Black River Falls company, if the proposed bid could include anything but the supplying of the power for an electric plant. Mr. Burgess said that it would not, and that the city would be expected to supply the lines and poles. This information punctured the Cromwell motion, in that it made it apparent that even though the city did make a contract with the Black River Falls company, on the proposition to be submitted in two weeks, the city would certainly have to sell part of the bonds to build a system. The question then arose as to whether, if part of the issue was put on sale, the remainder of the issue would not be outlawed in a certain length of time, and several of the aldermen, particularly Alderman Cullum, thought it best to make the sale cover the entire amount of $110,000.

Alderman Carey said that he felt it was incumbent on the council to stand by its pledge to the people, as he was certainly in favor of passing the ordinance for the full amount.

Alderman Krumsieg discovered that the proposed ordinance did not designate the date for the advertising and sale of the bonds, and moved to recommit it to the ordinance committee, with instructions to fill in the blank spaces to have the advertising take place at once.

Alderman Haven was the first and only Republican alderman to come out point blank and urge the passage of the ordinance. He said that the people had voted for the sale of the $110,000, and he could see no reason why the council should turn against the people.

Alderman Cullum again spoke against issuing just a few of the bonds, and urged that the entire amount be voted for sale, and Alderman Cromwell withdrew his motion to postpone action till June 25.

The ordinance carried unanimously, and immediately a resolution was offered by Alderman Carey and adopted, instructing the city clerk not to advertise the bonds for sale till further orders from the council.

The bid of the Commercial Light and Power company for furnishing the city with street lights, under a short-term contract for one, two or three years, was submitted. For a 4000-hour service of three years the bid was $70 a light; the same service for two years, $80 a light, and for one year, $85 a light.

The differences between the council and the board of fire commissioners in regard to the sending of the new fire engine to West Duluth and the removing of the fire alarm wires from poles of the old telephone company furnished fuel for some blistering remarks. The fire commissioners in their diplomatic, communicative way, informed the council that the board was not responsible for the purchase of the new engine, but since the engine had been purchased, the board believed it could be used to a better advantage uptown. They further said that an engine was not necessary at West Duluth, but the board would send a small engine out there provided the council found ways and means for equipping it without taking any more money from the fire department fund.

The communication in full is as follows:

"The board has realized for some time that West Duluth has an insufficient number of firemen to ensure reasonable fire protection, and May 1, 1899 notified the council that to properly protect the property in West Duluth three additional men were needed, and asking that you audit pay rolls for three more men. This request was refused.

"July 1st, 1899 we reported "that the fire service at West Duluth is inadequate, and if a fire takes place at the sawmills there will be little hope of saving them with the force we now have. This was in support of a request for fire tug service, which was granted, and in the opinion of this board, the fire tug and the additional men were all that the service required to make it complete at that station.

"We would like to again call your attention to the fact that there is it sufficient volume of water in the hydrants, the force is sufficient, and the hydrants generously enough distributed, for us to handle any fire in West Duluth without steam engine. Excepting only the two mills owned by the Mitchell & McClure and Merrill & Ring Lumber companies, where an engine might possibly assist, but in the yards of either plant the coals from the engine would almost certainly set more fires than it could extinguish, and would entail the inevitable risk of burning up the engine itself. On the other hand, with the four additional men referred to we could give these mills better protection, as we could use our hose on the hydrants belonging to the mill system. These mills have pumping engines of large capacity, and hydrants well distributed through the mills and over their docks.

"The putting into service of this engine will cost $4200 per annum, and would increase the fire-fighting force by only one man, while by the employment of four additional men on the present apparatus, the force will be increased just that number (four), at an expense of but $2800, and the company will be enabled to efficiently handle the ladders and two streams of water. The present force of eight men is distributed as follows: one man is off nearly all the time (that is, each man get one day off in ten) and during meal hours (nine of the twenty-four) there are five men at quarters; two are drivers and must care for the apparatus and horses, which leaves three to handle the hose and ladders. The balance of the day (fifteen hours) there are five men to handle the hose and ladders. Now, supposing you have an engine and five more men; the force is not increased at all during meal hours, because three men (engineer, stoker and driver) are with the engine, and the two extra men change off the above mentioned three men. The balance of the day (fifteen hours) the available forces to handle hose and ladders is increased only one and occasionally two men.

"Adding four men to the present force, which is the urgent request of this board, will give the company eight and ocassionally nine men during fifteen hours of the day, and six men (double the present number) during meal hours, to handle the hose and ladders. This expense will be $2800 per annum.

"The Duluth fire department is now reduced from the 112 men which it once had, to the 80 now employed, and while we were formerly able to handle two streams from engines No. 1 and No. 2, we can now handle but one from each without crippling other parts of the service.

"The board of fire commissioners has endeavored to maintain the efficiency of the Duluth fire department at the high mark which has characterized it for so many years, notwithstanding the enforced system of economy under which we have all been laboring. We have retrenched at every point, but the affairs of the department have been so conducted that the fire insurance rates have been kept down, notwithstanding the limited funds at our command; and now we do most seriously object to the useless expenditure of a large sum which can be of very little, if any, benefit to any one of the thousands of taxpayers who are obliged to meet the expense.

"We have the entire responsibility in this matter; we have the authority, vested by the city charter, to locate the apparatus of the Duluth fire department, and we believe it to be our duty to locate it to the best advantage; hence we have located the new engine at headquarters fire hall, on account of its large water-thrawing capacity. Your attention is called to the fact that at no time has this board recommended the purchase of a steam fire engine for West Duluth, but have at all times considered it extravagant and useless for such a purpose. This will remain a fact until a large number of tall buildings have been erected there. The engine recently purchased is larger than could be used to advantage at West Duluth. It would require three horses to draw it, a new floor to bear its weight, and would necessitate an extra stall and many other items of expense over and above a smaller engine.

"While we do not recommend the putting of an engine in service at West Duluth, but do on the contrary, recommend the employment of four additional men to operate the present equipment, we will, however, in the interests of harmony only, and against our better judgment, if your honorable body should still insist, put one of the smaller fire engines in service at West Duluth; providing the council furnish the necessary funds from some other source than the fire department fund, and that this expense be not charged up to the fire department; providing, however, further, that your honorable body pass a resolution requesting from the board of fire commissioners such action, and expressly absolving us from any and all charges of improvidence or maladministration of the affairs of the fire department in this matter, and assuming for the common council of the city of Duluth all responsibility for any accusation of malfeasance which might otherwise attach to this board.

"After listening to the communication from the fire commissioners, Alderman Schaffer moved that a committee of three be appointed to confer with the commissioners and definitely settle the matter for all time to come. This was adopted, and Acting President Carey appointed Aldermen Krumsieg, Cromwell and Haven on the committee, but not before Alderman Barnes had made a vigorous attack on the fire commissioners' position. The West Duluth alderman reviewed the history of the engine from the time it was first talked of and petitioned for by the industrial interests of that part of the city, and said:

"If the fire commissioners did not believe that the engine was necessary, why did they not come out frankly and say so before it was purchased, instead of coming out now and refusing to send it down to West Duluth, saying that they have the power and all that.

"Gentlemen, in refusing to carry out this plain obligation, the board of fire commissioners are guilty of a dishonorable act. They have wilfully taken public money, appropriated for a specific purpose and used it for something else."

The second collision of authority between the council and the fire commissioners came about on a resolution introduced by the fire department committee, in which for the third time it was urged that a resolution be passed instructing the board to remove the fire alarm system from the poles of the Duluth Telephone company to the poles of the Zenith City company. Along with this resolution was a somewhat severe censure for the board's failure to comply with the previous resolutions of the council urging the removal of the wires.

Alderman Krumsieg said that the old company had apparently hypnotized the fire commissioners, and that it was high time that the council take steps to compel the board to carry out the council's instructions.

"It looks to me," continued Mr. Krumsieg, "as if the fire commissioners are working in the interest of the old company. However, they may be doing it unintentionally."

Alderman Neff urged peace measures and soft answers, and the fire committee's resolution was finally recommitted.

The ordinance giving the board of water and light commissioners authority to cut off water and gas from buildings where the consumers failed to pay their bills was passed, with an amendment by Alderman Wairworth, which provides that the owner of a building shall not be held liable for bills contracted by tenants, for a period of longer than fifteen days where a flat rate charge is made, or for a period longer than forty-five days where a meter rate is charged.

An ordinance was introduced granting a right-of-way for a spur track on Paradise alley, for the benefit of business houses on the east side of Lake avenue south.

There were forty-five applications for renewal of saloon licenses and two very long and urgent petitions against the granting of licenses to the West End Palm Garden at 1920 West Superior street, and Sullivan's saloon at 22 Twentieth avenue west.

The Twentieth Century.

When a few months more shall have passed we will then stand at the very threshold of the twentieth century, and the nineteenth will be a thing of the past. It will, however, be known as the century of invention and discovery, and among some of the greatest of these we can truthfully mention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated remedy for all ailments arising from a disordered stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency, constipation and biliousness. It has been one of the greatest blessings to mankind during the past fifty years as a health builder. Many physicians recommend it. Take advice, try a bottle and be convinced, but be sure to get the genuine with a Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

The Heinrich Concert.

The following is the very excellent program which will be given at Pilgrim church Thursday evening by Max Heinrich and his daughter, Miss Julia Heinrich, a brilliant young contralto:

There is no 40 cent coffee that excels Baker's Premium Coffee at 25 cents.

HE IS IMPRESSED.

New South Wales Railroader Sees Wonders In Duluth.

M. Oliver, railroad commissioner for New South Wales, who has been inspecting Northwestern railroads lately, has just left Duluth after studying the terminal facilities of the roads here. He said: "I think that the arrangements by the American railways for the quick handling of their traffic are admirable and superior to any in other parts of the world. I was struck with the terminal facilities at the head of the lakes and the elevator and mill systems furnished many valuable pointers which I shall remember on my return. Our business in New South Wales is hardly sufficient to warrant the construction of such systems of terminals to handle it, yet it is growing, and eventually we shall have to employ some of the methods used here in handling it.

"American railroad rolling stock, as I have seen it, is the finest in the world. Your freight equipment is inestimably more capacious than ours. The capacity of our cars is six tons, and here I see that thirty tons is a standard load."

Samaritans vs. Board of Trade.

The Modern Samaritan baseball team will meet the Board of Trade ball team at Oneota Park on Tuesday afternoon. The following is the line-up:

Samaritans—	Board of Trade—
Harry Wilcox	catcher — W. Wistedt
Strum and Cadot	pitchers — Chapman
C. F. Webster	first base — Barnes
Kempton	second base — Kitchli
DiMarco	short stop — Gearhart
Crosby	third base — Getchell
Villett	center field — Cross
Leidell	right field — Deleuw

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Iowa, writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. And my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery which wholly cured me. Hundreds have used it on my advice and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50 cents and $1. Trial bottles free at W. A. Abbett's drug store.

EATS ANYTHING

Since Leaving Off Coffee.

"I wish to give my experience with coffee for the benefit of other people. I used coffee for several years and was a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia. The doctor told me not to use coffee or tea, and put me on a light diet, and I felt better.

"Then I commenced to drink coffee again, and had the same trouble come on.

"One day I told a friend about it, who said if I would stop drinking coffee altogether I would feel better, and advised me to use Postum Food Coffee in its place.

"I tried the Postum but did not like it, so I told him about it, and he said I didn't cook it right, that is, didn't boil it enough, and that I should use cream instead of milk, and to make sure I would use it, he sent a package to the house.

"After I used that package, I would have no more coffee in the house. Now I don't know what it is to have dyspepsia, and I can eat anything. I also give Postum to my two children and they are the healthiest children you could find anywhere. The youngest is a boy 15 months old, and we have been giving him Postum for seven months, three times a day. He weighs 30 pounds, and I know that Postum is what keeps both of them so healthy.

"I think all people who have dyspepsia get it from coffee drinking.

"Yours truly, Mrs. Jno. Stringer, 29 S. Florida Ave., Atlantic City, N. J.

PLENTY OF WORK ON RANGES.

More Mines Operated and Big Increase for Labor.

St. Paul, June 12.—Factory Inspector Moersch of the state labor bureau, returned today from an inspection tour through the mines on the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges. He found forty-one mines operating, where there were but twenty-two in 1899, the force of 2000 men employed last year has been increased 40 per cent, and any able-bodied man who seeks employment on the range can find it. The average daily wages of the miners have increased from $1.86 in 1899 to $2.11 this year.

RAG TIME FIEND

Most Original Character Is Gathered In By Police For Long Time.

"You've got the most popular man in the United States locked up. If you don't believe it, see me. Hold on there, don't cut my suspenders or I'll go up in the air like a balloon, and then you'll wish you had bought me a parachute. What's my occupation? Why I'm a horse thief. I was born in West Superior, but you oughtn't to lock me up for that. Say, pard, if you give me a rope I'll show you how to commit suicide."

Such were the copious flights of incongruent monologue that H. S. Curran hurled forth at noon today when he was pushed behind the bars at police headquarters. Besides being "unconscionously intoxified" he is charged with stealing a cash register in West Superior. The register could not be found on his person. He had evidently been intimately associated with a foolish powder before Officer Norman Terry arrested him on Lake avenue south, as the following dreary stretch of misguided conversation will bear evidence:

"Well if you won't give me a rope, give me a limburger cyclage sandwich and a blond welsh rabbit; then, when midnight passes in the sky, I'll show you the greatest bacoon ascension on record. What, me steal a cash register what you say is cruel and false. I'm a horse thief and a gentleman, but I wouldn't disgrace my ancestors by stealing a cash register. Say, I certainly am leading a ragtime life.

A ragtime piano in my ragtime flat;
Wear ragtime clothes from hat to shoes,
I read a paper called the Ragtime News;
Got ragtime habits and I talk that way,
I sleep in ragtime and rag all day.
Got ragtime troubles with my ragtime wife,
And I'm certainly leading a ragtime life."

The police cut loose and told him he would have to lead something worse than a ragtime life if he didn't make less noise, and Curran wept bitterly as he called for a rope. He will probably be held for the West Superior authorities.

Thomas Cullen was given a hearing this morning, charged with stabbing Harry Levin, a bartender, at 341 Lake avenue south, last Thursday. He entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to sixty days' hard labor.

George Straub, was the most picturesque of the early morning group in police court. He was an ebony hued individual with no visible means of support—both legs having been cut off at the knee. He and Charles Harris and Frank Schow were allowed to go under suspended sentence.

Theodore Emanson, a 14-year-old West End boy was in court and had the distinction of being the first prisoner ever arrested by his own mother, so far as the local police records show. Last Saturday night young Emanson and a playmate named Reno Pierce, crawled out of bed after every person else had retired, and went to a candy store at 1705 West Superior street. The store was closed and the boys broke in a window and stole a baseball, some chewing gum, a package of cigarettes and some lead pencils. The detectives were quietly working on the case, but last night Mrs. Emanson discovered what the boys had done and she marched both of them into the police station early this morning. Both had a good cry over the affair and the boys were set down for a hearing late this afternoon.

Will Talk on Europa.

Hon. Charles A. Towne will deliver a lecture, "Reminiscences of a Vacation in Europe," at the Morley Congregational church, on Friday evening, June 15. This is not the same lecture as that delivered at the Pilgrim church last evening, but is instead an entirely separate lecture, though based upon the same European journey. It is a part of the series of entertainments known as the Fortnightly Lecture course.

School For Teachers.

A school for teachers is being held at the high school this week, beginning yesterday. It is for the purpose of introducing the new Speer system of teaching arithmetic, which has been adopted in part of the Duluth schools, and which will probably be extended to all of them. The school is for the benefit of any teachers that desire to remain and benefit from it, and it is being conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Hizey, of Chicago.

The Virginia Relief.

N. J. Miller will go to Virginia tomorrow morning to look after the work of relief. The Duluth comittee has already raised about $600 and much clothing and provisions but more is needed. There are 106 families burned out and they are in need of considerable assistance.

Last Friday evening the Virginia council passed an ordinance fixing fire limits and hereafter no building can be erected in the business district except it be of brick or brick veneer.

Becoming a Mother

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing can compare with the horrors of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipation of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom that cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of MOTHER'S FRIEND during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to mother and child. This scientific liniment is a godsend to all women at the time of their most critical ordeal. Not only does MOTHER'S FRIEND carry woman safely through the perils of child birth, but its use greatly prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Send for free booklet to THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Georgia.

SURPRISE TO THEM

Local National Guard Companies Astonished at Result of Inspection.

NOW IN NINTH PLACE

Company C, Leading Last Year, and Good as Ever, Drops Down.

In the history of the local Guard companies there has been no such surprise as that occasioned by the announcement of the annual inspection ratings just made public. Company C, acknowledged to be the hardest working company in the state, won first place in the National Guard last year. The inspection put up by the company this year was fully up to that of a year ago, yet the pride of Duluth is dropped with a dull and heavy thud to ninth place among the National Guard companies of Minnesota. Company A, the second company in the state last year, is dropped to fourteenth place and only four notches higher than Company G.

Company D, First infantry, of St. Paul, succeeds Company C in the highest honors of the Guard, and Company I, First infantry, of Minneapolis, takes second honors in the state, succeeding Company A. Battery B, of Minneapolis, gets third place, and another First regiment company swings in for fourth honors.

The Third infantry fails to secure a higher position than ninth place, which is held by Company C, and G and A companies do not change their respective regimental positions held last year. Company G, ranking eighteenth in the state, ranks fourth in the Third regiment, and the only company that separates the three Duluth companies is D, of Zumbrota, which, according to Lieut. Pray's ratings, is given third place.

Taking the ratings as a whole, the state of Minnesota should feel proud of its National Guard. The race is close between the leading companies, and the markings show a high state of efficiency. Company C of the Third, while it appears to have been given a rather unjust rating, is but 3.69 behind the first company.

The First artillery, with headquarters in St. Paul, is given first place in the regimental markings, with the First infantry, Second and Third infantry third.

The following is the report of Lieut. Pray, inspector general of the National Guard, showing the standing of the various companies and regiments to be as follows, the figures representing the percentage gained by each on a basis of 100 for perfect:

Company, Regiment and Station.	Percentage.
D, First, St. Paul	95.75
I, First, Minneapolis	94.73
B, Artillery, Minneapolis	94.40
C, First, St. Paul	94.20
A, Artillery, St. Paul	93.46
M, Fourth, Minneapolis	92.87
K, First, Stillwater	92.68
G, First, Red Wing	92.67
C, Third, Duluth	92.06
B, First, Minneapolis	88.90
D, Fourth, Minneapolis	87.65
C, Fourth, Minneapolis	87.75
A, First, Minneapolis	87.59
A, Third, Duluth	86.40
D, Third, Zumbrota	84.30
A, Second, New Ulm	84.00
A, Fourth, St. Paul	83.12
G, Third, Duluth	82.09
B, Third, Onoka	82.86
G, Fourth, Owatonna	82.25
G, Fourth, Austin	81.77
F, Second, Spring Valley	81.58
E, Third, St. Paul	81.30

H, Second, St. James	78.14
I, Third, Morris	78.13
F, Third, Northfield	78.43
H, Third, Olivia	72.75
E, Second, Waseca	71.40
C, Second, Winona	65.00
D, Second, Rochester	64.90
B, Fourth, St. Paul	63.15
E, Fourth, Lake City	62.26
I, Second, Albert Lea	Not insp'd
E, Fourth, Minneapolis	Not insp'd
First Artillery, St. Paul	93.30
First infantry, Stillwater	92.52
Third infantry, St. Paul	81.62
Second infantry, New Ulm	75.20
Fourth infantry, Litchfield	75.18
First brigade, St. Paul	83.09

Accompanying the report is an order from the adjutant general noting a number of changes in the disposition of companies.

Company I, Second regiment, Albert Lea; Company E, Fourth reserve, Minneapolis; Company D, Second infantry, Rochester; Company B, Fourth reserve, St. Paul, and Company F, Fourth regiment, Lake City, have all been mustered out of the service.

Company F, Third infantry, located at Northfield, is transferred to the Second regiment and will be known as Company D.

Company G, Fourth regiment, located at Owatonna, becomes Company I, Second regiment, taking the place vacated by the Albert Lea company.

Company L, Fourth regiment, located at Brainerd, is transferred to the Third regiment, to become Company F.

The First regiment will hereafter consist of three battalions of three companies each, and Gen. Ben, brigade commander, is instructed to immediately order an election or an additional major in the regiment.

Adjt. Gen. Lambert today issued rules and regulations for small arms practice of the National Guard. The season begins with the issuance of the order and will continue to Oct. 31.

Target practice this year will include work with the Gatling gun and with the 3.2 field pieces, as well as with the rifle and revolver.

Rigid rules are made as to instructing the men in the armories before they are allowed to shoot upon the range, and all companies not having outdoor ranges are instructed to provide themselves with such.

For home practice each company of infantry will be issued 1000 rounds of fixed ammunition and 2000 rounds of loose ammunition, or its equivalent.

Company commanders are required to keep on hand for emergencies 1000 rounds of fixed ammunition, which under no circumstances is to be used for target practice.

TO ST. LOUIS.

Street Railway Men Who Came Here During Strike Going Back.

Six Duluth street car men left last night for St. Louis to take the places of striking conductors and motormen. It is said that fully twenty men have already left this city for the scenes of violence and bloodshed in the Missouri metropolis, and that others will follow. Cities all over the country are contributing men to replace the strikers in St. Louis, and there is said to be some sort of an association whereby one street railway company is bound to help another out of labor difficulties, but of this nothing is known definitely.

In the party that left for St. Louis last evening were Frank Currie, J. F. Liska, F. W. Mullen, J. M. Cummings, P. J. Erickson and Frank Evans. Most of the men were "extras" on the lines of the Duluth Street Railway company, but Frank Currie and J. R. Liska were regulars, and apparently left for St. Louis in search of excitement.

Currie came to Duluth during the street railway strike in the spring of 1899. He has been here but little over a year, and yet is one of the best known men that ever handled a motor. He gained this wide acquaintance through his reputation as a scrapper. During the Spanish-American war he was a gunner's mate on the battleship Iowa, under "Fighting" Bob Evans. He was somewhat of a sea portorial turn of mind, and not satisfied with a few hour's active service before Santiago, he enlisted with the non-union men to fight the strikers here. After the strike was over several of the old men seemed to have a particular spite against Currie, and he succeeded in thrashing every man that had nerve to pick a quarrel with him. This brought his name on the police court records not less than three or four times.

A WOMAN'S VIEW.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on the Nature of Men.

Some time ago in the columns of the New York Journal I uttered the assertion that "Every man is safe or unsafe as a woman chooses to make him," says Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the paper named.

The statement has brought me an avalanche of letters, reproving and disapproving, criticising and commending. The majority were written by women, who take exceptions to my assertion. One writer says:

"Would you mind being more explicit in your next article? You must be aware that constantly sweet, high-minded young girls and women are insulted by the men who they unsuspectingly trust themselves with. I know many women not yet 21 years of age who are completely disillusioned in regard to men being gentlemen. It is unjust to your sex to say we are to blame.

"I do wish, Mrs. Wilcox, that you would refute the stereotyped old expression and the old belief on the part of men and some women that a man's conduct is what a woman makes it when in her company. It is a fallacy.

Another woman writes me that I would change my ideas were I to be a "pretty widow" for a few years.

Men love danger.

Meantime I must adhere to my statement. But I will particularize.

The ignorant young girl, reared with the idea that men are spiritual beings by nature and education, is liable to be shocked into worldly wisdom if she associates freely with the opposite sex.

If she is properly instructed by her parents she can avoid many if these disillusioning experiences.

Knowledge is power and protection, and it is in no sense incompatible with innocence.

He is aggressive. He is immoral in action, he is often selfish, and withal he has a paradoxical love of the goodness he seeks to molest.

In his secret heart—so secret he does not always know it is there—every man hides a hope that the woman he unlawfully pursues will be strong enough to resist him. While he is using his most persuasive arguments to overthrow her scruples he is wishing she might prove to him that she is invulnerable. When she does prove so—like the strange, incongruous being he is—he goes away and leaves "virtue to be its own reward."

But always the fact remains that he is looking for his ideal who can resist him, and that he always respects her (and usually leaves her) after he finds her.

But there is one satisfaction in the experience to the woman who has been left to wisdom and solitude—and that is the knowledge that the one kiss a man remembers all his life is the kiss he did not get.

Woman is not as angelic always as she thinks herself. It would be better for her and for the world if she were taught from the begining that she is half human. Let her believe that the Divine rules, but let her know that she, as well as man, has the human side to her which needs to be guided and guarded.

Man knows that she has, and he knows that her education in these matters is a sham and a deceit. He likes to introduce a woman to her earthly self, and he is often brutal in his methods.

It is then he offends and fails.

Once let a man realize that a woman understands all about herself, and that she is discreet and prudent because she wants to be so, not because she knows no better, and he will accept the situation with grace.

Woman is taught to hide, conceal and be about her natural and God given impulses and emotions, and man knows it. He knows, too, that curiosity is the vulnerable point in her armor.

Woman so often wonders what a man will do next that she frequently finds out to her sorrow.

If she had not wondered she need not have sorrowed.

Woman is not responsible for man's feelings or words. But she can control his conduct when he is sober, not his attempt at conduct, but his behavior.

A man may kiss a woman's hand or even her cheek once against her will, but he does not continue his trespasses without co-operation.

This statement refers to civilized men—not to the savage brute.

There are a great number of these grown up schoolgirls in society today, married and single.

Woman sets the pace for man in morals.

CONSULT M'KINLEY

Republican Leaders Confer With Him Before Going to Philadelphia.

LOOKING FOR A TAIL

Vice Presidential Timber Looked Over and Bliss Is Talked Of.

Washington, June 12.—The president had quite a number of prominent callers today before the cabinet meeting. They included Senator Hanna, chairman of the Republican national committee; Senator Allison, Senator Fairbanks, Senator Penrose and Thomas K. Lowrey, of Minnesota, one of the delegates-at-large from his state to the Philadelphia convention.

Senator Hanna goes to Philadelphia tomorrow to attend the first meeting of the sub-committee of the executive committee. He probably will see the president again before his departure. Senator Fairbanks goes to Ohio tonight to deliver an address to the graduating class of the Ohio Wesleyan university and will not reach Philadelphia until Saturday. Senator Allison also expects to arrive on that day. Mr. Lowry, who is pushing Senator Washburn, of his state, for the vice presidency, continued his journey to Philadelphia today. Although the gossip around the white house in connection with the presidents' callers centered particularly about the vice presidential nominations, the senators who conferred with Mr. McKinley were reticent, concurring only in the statement that the situation had not yet crystallized.

"No one can say with positiveness who the nominee for vice president will be," said one of the senators, after he had left the White House. "Things are shaping up some, but the problem is a difficult one to solve. I think the Republican leaders are, as a rule, of the opinion that the nomination should go East, so as to secure a geographically balanced ticket.

"Secretary Long would make an admirable candidate, but his state is safely Republican, and his nomination would avail little from a strategical point. Most Republicans, I think, would prefer to see the nominee chosen from New York, but there are difficulties in the way. Governor Roosevelt's attitude prevents a natural selection. If Cornelius N. Bliss would accept the nomination I think the problem would be solved. He is being urged to permit his name to go before the convention, but he has thus far declined, and I am afraid he cannot be induced to alter his position. He retired to private life from choice for domestic reasons, and nothing, I fear, will induce him to re-enter politics."

WISCONSIN.

Delegates to the Democratic Convention All In Line For Bryan.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 12.—The Democratic state convention to elect four delegates-at-large, and to ratify the selection of twenty district delegates to the national convention at Kansas City, met at the Alhambra theater at 11 o'clock today. A profusion of flags adorned the Auditorium and stage, while in the background hung a large picture of William Jennings Bryan. The convention is made up of 663 delegates.

George W. Peck, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order and announced the appointment of Judge James H. McGillan of Green Bay as temporary chairman. Mr. McGillan is a young man, not more than 30 years of age, the selection being made in recognition of the young Democracy. He spoke in part as follows:

"We have assembled today for the purpose of choosing delegates to the national convention at Kansas City, to be held on the fourth day of July, 1900, at which time a man will be chosen who will succeed William McKinley as president of the United States, on March 4, 1901. The platform they adopt may not be the same as that adopted by the Democratic party in Chicago in 1896, but the difference between the two will be so small that it will take the eye of an expert to detect the difference; and I am satisfied that, standing on that platform, battling as vigorously and earnestly as he did in 1896, William Jennings Bryan will be the man whom the Democratic party will crown as the leader of men in the United States.

"I believe that the opportunity for Democracy has arrived. The Republican party and the present administration have given the people four years of broken pledges and broken promises; they may talk to you of their prosperity, but when we look around us and see the misery and the trials of the poor man we must admit that it is the prosperity of wealth and not the prosperity of labor. Look where we may, we see the laboring man engaged in a life and death struggle for an existence with capital."

On the matter of trusts he said:

"The Democratic national convention at Kansas City will, I doubt not, adopt a platform for the regulation of trusts. The cry of the people has been heard. The formation of these gigantic trusts has resulted in the throwing out of employment of thousands and thousands of deserving men, taking from families and the loved ones o fthese men their only means of subsistence.

"Under the Republican administration these trusts have been fostered from infancy until they have attained the proportions of a giant and have the Republican party by the throat by their campaign contributions and otherwise, to such an extent that the Republican party finds it impossible to exist without them.

"The greater part of the Republican party campaign contributions come from the trusts of the country, who, in turn, cover the amounts back into their own treasuries by the reduction of the wages of the laboring men, they have coerced into voting the Republican ticket."

He then attacked the national administration for the course pursued in the enactment of the Porto Rican tariff bill. The administration was also criticised on its Cuban policy in deluging on that island "a horde of office seeking carpet baggers," the speaker continuing:

"We have seen our armies on foreign soil in the far Philippines, where we have entered without disclosing our purpose or our ultimate object. We are seeing the flower of American manhood being sacrificed again to that spirit of imperialism.

"Most of these foreigners who have come to our shores have come here to escape the burdens of the standing army and the spirit of imperialism that burden the foreign countries and now today, when we see ourselves surrounded by what might be turned into peace and plenty, the very things that turned these foreigners from their fatherlands are transpiring here to make our common people discontented with their lot and to increase their burdens and taxations.

"It is for the Republican party to proclaim for what purpose we are now waging war in the Philippine Islands. If we are honest in our purpose simply to restore peace and then to establish a government for these people, the war could be easily ended by making our declaration publicly to be such, but backed as it is by that grasping money power and the Republican party, it will make no declaration until that element sees fit to allow it. The Democratic national convention will declare against those evils that raise their voice in protest to heaven."

He closed with a plea for harmony in carrying out the work of the convention.

At the conclusion of Judge McGillan's speech, committees on credentials and permanent organization were appointed and a recess taken.

West Duluth

As was expected, the fire commissioners' reply to the council, which was read last evening on the question of placing a fire engine at West Duluth was a statement of the considerations that led them to fail to comply with the council's request to station an engine there, and an assertion that their action is within their powers. They contend that the water head in the mains is sufficient for fire protection, and that, while the steamer would cost $4200 per year additional, and but one man would be added to the fire fighting force, four men without the engine could be placed there for $2800 per annum, and the service would be much better. They added that they believed it their duty to keep the new engine at fire headquarters to protect the tall buildings down town.

The council appointed a committee, consisting of Aldermen Krumsieg, Cromwell and Haven to confer with the commissioners and adjust the matter.

A BATH NOT PAID FOR.

R. W. English, the carpenter, took an involuntary bath yesterday, and while his experience is now affording amusement for his friends, it had its serious feature, for his bath tub had six or seven feet of water in it, and was a matter of thirty feet or so long and about twenty feet wide, being the basement of the building in which his shop is located, on Grand avenue, and drowning was not such a remote contingency.

Mr. English was engaged in baling out the basement, which was nearly full of water, with the aid of a horse and a barrel. He had run a chute down into the basement as a runway for the barrel, along which, on being filled, the barrel was dragged out by the horse.

Mr. English had filled the barrel and was steadying it along the slope, when the horse stopped to rest without notifying Mr. English of his intention. The latter lost his equilibrium when the stop came, and sliding backward down the chute kerplunked into the water. By desperate paddling he managed to get hold of a plank, on which, after getting the water and flotsam he had accumulated out of his mouth, and regaining his wind, he navigated around until he found a landing place and safety.

FOR THE FOURTH.

The committee of arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration met yesterday afternoon at Barnes & Lanner's office and received reports of progress from the sub-committees. The arrangements were found to be progressing in a way to insure the success of the plans to make the affair a great event. Replies from the secret society lodges are coming in, both from West Duluth and the West End, and the turn out of lodges will be a big one. The committee on orators was empowered to go ahead and make engagements for the day. There was a general expression of a desire to have Mayor Hugo present, and the committee will extend him an invitation.

The committee on parade will urge the business men to decorate their wagons and have them in line if they do not feel like making any more of a display.

The committee on printing was directed to go ahead and get out bills.

FUND FOR VIRGINIA.

A subscription for the Virginia fire sufferers was taken among the business men in the central part of town by A. Lofgren, yesterday, the sum of $58.75 being raised in a very short time.

This is but a small part of West Duluth's contribution, however, a total of $300 or $400 having been given, the mills and other large industries subscribing large amounts.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of seventeen hundred fifty-one and 35-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Gerhard A. Tenbusch and Anna M. Tenbusch, his wife, mortgagors, to William Q. Burnett, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of May, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 8th day of May, 1895, at 4 o'clock p. m., in book 127 of mortgages, on page 196.

Said mortgagee having died on or about February 6th, 1898, at Lenawee County, Michigan, then the place of his residence, such proceedings were had in the probate court of said Lenawee County that the undersigned were duly appointed executors of the last will and testament of said deceased, a duly authenticated copy of which appointment was recorded on June 18th, 1898, at 3:15 o'clock p. m. in the office of the register of deeds in and for said St. Louis County on page 327 of Book N of Miscellaneous records, and such further proceedings were had in the probate court of said St. Louis County that the undersigned were also thereby duly appointed as such executors, a duly authenticated copy of which latter appointment was also recorded on June 18, 1898 at 3:15 o'clock p. m. in the office of the register of deeds in and for said St. Louis County on page 327 of Book N of Miscellaneous records, and the undersigned ever since have been and now are acting as such executors; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The easterly twenty-five (25) feet of lot six (L. 6) in block two (B. 2) of Fleischer and Cremer's re-arrangement of block fifty-six (B. 56), Duluth Proper, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, in St. Louis County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 28th day of July, 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $1751.35 and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, June 11th, A. D. 1900.

ROBERT N. BURNETT and ARTHUR W. BURNETT,
As executors of the Estate of said Mortgagee, WILLIAM Q. BURNETT, deceased.
JOSEPH WARD REYNOLDS,
Attorney for said Executors.

STUPENDOUS JUNE BARGAIN EVENT

IN THE BIG POPULAR DAYLIGHT BASEMENT.

Tomorrow Morning at 8:30 o'clock Freimuth's Popular Big Daylight Basement inaugurates its initiatory June Bargain Sale—proposed to be the greatest Trade Event of its kind in the history of Head of the Lakes retailing.

As we say, this is our "First One," hence it is our intention—our sole and only aim—to make it a sale without peer or parallel—one that will create a most lasting impression upon the minds of those who patronize and take advantage of it. It is a sale that will herald its own distinctive greatness—its own genuineness—and its own countless money-saving opportunities throughout Duluth and vicinity.

The sale is arranged to last one week, beginning tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock and closing Tuesday night at 6 o'clock. The Goods offered in every line are the most dependable grades, and, moreover, there will be plenty of them. Of the thousands of bargains offered and price-ticketed we are only able to mention on this page a small portion, but we depend upon a truthful and concise description of these to sufficiently announce the character of the bargain-giving.

Careful preparations have been made for the convenience of buyers at every turn—extra salespeople have been employed.

The Coming Man.....

Is the boy of today. If you want to be the right kind of a man treat him in a manner that will make him realize his responsibility. Don't forget that his actions are apt to be as good or bad as the clothes you put on his back. It's unfair to expect your son to be well-mannered in ill-mannered and slovenly clothing.

Why is Electric Light Best?
Because it is Healthy, Clean, Pure and Brilliant.

HEALTHY! It has no odor. Professor Thompson states one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.
SAFE! As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation
CHEAP! By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

DEWET IS DEFEATED

Methuen and Kitchener Vanquish Him and Restore Roberts' Communication.

FIGHT WAS A DRAW

Roberts Engages Botha and Gains Ground But Boers Not Beaten.

London, June 13.—Lord Roberts' line of communications has been practically restored by a complete victory gained by Gens. Methuen and Kitchener over Gen. Dewet yesterday. The Boer camp was captured, and the burghers, it is added, were scattered in all directions.

Lord Roberts has fought a battle with Gen. Botha, at the end of which, though the British gained considerable ground, the Boers were not beaten.

Lord Roberts' dispatch is regarded as eminently satisfactory. It ends a period of suspense caused by the cutting of his line of communications, and indicates what a strong grip he has on the situation.

The result of the battle between Lord Roberts' forces and those of Gen. Botha is eagerly awaited here, but it is believed the Boer commander will only complete, which he seems to have already commenced, though there is some hope in London that Lord Roberts will be able to surround him.

The decisive victory scored by Gens. Methuen and Kitchener is regarded as likely to have a more far-reaching effect than any recent action in the Orange River Colony.

Gen. Kitchener's progress south, it is believed, must have almost equalled the records of all forced marches. His detachment from headquarters was a merely routine procedure, as the chief-of-staff is responsible for the line of communications.

Gen. Buller is rapidly fulfilling Lord Roberts' hope that he will make his forces felt. A dispatch from Joubert's Farm, under today's date, announces the continuation of Buller's successful march, the occupation of Volkrust without opposition and the capture of a number of prisoners, while the Boer casualties yesterday are reported to have been very heavy.

London, June 13.—After a week's silence, Lord Roberts has been heard from, his line of communication having been practically restored by means of a complete victory gained by Generals Methuen and Kitchener over Gen. Dewet at the Rhenoster river, yesterday, June 12. The Boer camp was captured and the burghers, it is added, were scattered in all directions.

Lord Roberts, on being notified of the cutting of his line of communications, sent Gen. Kitchener in all haste to join Gen. Methuen. June 11 Lord Roberts attacked Gen. Botha, who was in strong force 15 miles southwest of Pretoria. After strenous opposition, the British forces gained considerable ground, but Gen. Botha, when Lord Roberts left the field, was still undefeated.

All is quiet at Pretoria and Johannesburg, and Lord Roberts says the government need have no apprehension about the security of the army in South Africa as it will not take long to remedy the reverses and repair the railroad.

A lengthy dispatch forwarded to the war office by Maj. Gen. Knox, from Kroonstad, presumably sent there by messenger, reads:

"Kroonstad, June 12.—We have been requested to forward you from Lord Roberts the following dispatch from the Pretoria residency at 8:08 a. m., today:

"Pretoria, June 12.—Pretoria and Johannesburg are perfectly quiet and several of the inhabitants have expressed gratitude for the peace and order which prevail.

"After surrendering the city, Botha retired to a place about 15 miles east, on the Middleburg road. He had a small force at first, but, during the last few days, his numbers increased, and his being so near the town kept up the excitement in the country, prevented the burghers from lying down their arms and interfered with the collection of supplies. It, therefore, became necessary to attack him. This I did yesterday. He held a very strong position, practically unassailable in front, which enabled him to place the main portion of his troops on his flanks, which he knew, from former experience, were his vulnerable parts.

"I sent French with Porter's and Dixon's cavalry brigades and Hutton's mounted infantry around by our left, and Ian Hamilton, with Broadwood and Gordon's cavalry brigade, Ridley's mounted infantry and Bruce Hamilton's infantry brigade round by our right. Both columns met with great opposition. At about 3 in the afternoon, I saw two of Hamilton's infantry battalions advancing to what appeared to be the key of the enemy's defence, on their left flank. This was almost gained before dark and I ordered the force to bivouac on the ground they had won.

"Dale-Carew, with his division, occupied our center. As I have explained he could not attack, but he gradually advanced so as to support Ian Hamilton, and when I left the field he was on the line held by the enemy's outposts in the morning.

"I hurried back to get news of Methuen's movement. On hearing that the Free Staters had taken advantage of our crossing the Vaal to interrupt our communication, I ordered Kitchener with such troops as I could spare to Ver (Vredefort) with orders to push south and communicate with Methuen, who, I know, had a very compact force in the vecinity of Heilborn. I also dispatched a special messenger to Methuen, instructing his to push on at all speed to the main line of railway. These two officers met at Vredefort road station in the evening of June 10. They marched yesterday to Rhenoster river, where Methuen gained a complete victory over Dewet, and took possession of his camp and scattered his troops in all directions. He and Kitchener marched today toward Kroonstad.

"Her majesty's government need have no apprehension as to the security of the army in South Africa. The enemy gained a slight success, which was unfortunate, but which will be remedied very shortly and it will not take long to repair the damage done to the railway. As these divisions are all in existence, I am now able to hold the line between this and Rhenoster in strength. Methuen will arrange to guard it onward as he advances.

"Hunter should be at Poatchefstroom today. He will then move to Johannesburg.

"We have communicated with Buller, who will no doubt, soon make the presence of his force in the field felt.

"Our losses yesterday were not, I trust, serious, but I deplore the death of that gallant soldier, the earl of Airlie. The only other casualties reported as yet are: Seventeenth Lancers Maj. the Hon Lionel Fortescue and Lieut. the Hon. C. Cavendish, both killed."

At the Cape the ministerial crisis continues. The Times' correspondent cables that though the announcement of the resignation of Messrs. Tewater, Sauer and Merriman was premature, it seems certain that they will resign. It is not likely the whole ministry will resign, a solution af the difficulty being possibly found by the progressives lending Premier Schreiner two members to fill vacant seats in the cabinet.

Haus Sauer, a brother of the dissentient minister, J. W. Sauer, has just arrived in England from the Cape. In an interview today he said he believed Mr. Rose-Innes would consent to join Mr. Schreiner, and was sure Sir John Gordon Sprigg would also do so if asked.

A BOER ACCOUNT.

Story the Wiping Out of the Derbyshires.

London, June 13, 5:30 a. m.—The following bulletin, the Boer version of the disaster to the Derbyshires, was posted by President Kruger Sunday at Machadodorp: "On June 7 four divisions of burgher's commanded by Steenkamp, Fremnan, Duplay, Fourie and Nel, attacked the British at Roodeval. Killed 200, took 750 prisoners and captured immense stores of food and ammunition—6 Maxim guns and 5000 lyddite shells. Some food was taken by the Boer farmers and the rest was burned."

Gen. Dewitt was also fighting on June 2, whether at Roodeval or elsewhere is not clear, but the Boer war office gives it out that he captured 250 suits of clothing, blankets, gloves, boots, etc. Being unable to carry them with him in his rapid sweep through the country, according to the Transvaal war office, he burned the whole mass.

Gen. Dewet has also reported that he put 1000 British out of action and destroyed property valued at £20,000. As Lord Methuen is officially described as fighting on June 1, it is possible that he was engaging Gen. Dewet. According to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Machadocorp dated June 10, via Lourenzo Marques, those around President Kruger say that Louis Botha and DeLarey have been offered indirectly £10,000 a year to lay down their arms and President Kruger expects the same offer to be made to himself. President Steyn and Dewet. President Kruger believes that the British make these offers to close the war on the principles that it would cost less than to fight it out.

A dispatch from Lourenzo Marques says that 15,000 Boers are reported to be retiring on Middleburg from various quarters and that after weeding out the faint hearted, 20,000 steadfast men are still left.

Gen. Buller was unable on Monday to follow up the Boers from lack of cavalry as well as water. The dispatches describe him as fighting a spirited advance over a rugged field, under prolonged rifle fire. The Boers had two guns, which they got away. Few dead or wounded Boers were found. It seems probable that the major portion of the Boers had withdrawn before the advance began. Lord Methuen, Gen. Rundle and Gen. Brabant are reported to have 2000 men and fifty guns engaged in fighting the Boers in the eastern part of Orange River colony.

The war office casualty returns up to June 9 aggregate 23,501 besides 202 officers and 12,255 men sent home as invalids, but not including the sick in South Africa in hospitals.

THE BOERS EVACUATE.

They Leave Majuba and Laings Nek to Buller.

London, June 13.—The war office has issued the following:

"Buller, to the secretary of war: Joubert's Farm, June 12, 5:12 p. m.—Encamped four miles north of Volksrust. Laings Nek and Majuba were completely evacuated by the Boers last night. Gen. Cleary from Ingogo is now coming over the Nek. I have had to camp here for want of water. A correct list of casualties will be sent as soon as received."

GOVERNMENT FOR BOERS.

London, June 13.—It is learned by the Associated Press that the government has at least decided upon a plan for the civil settlement of South Africa. The details are kept most secret, but it can be safely said that the Orange River colony and the Transvaal will become crown colonies, the latter probably being renamed the Transvaal colony. Sir Alfred Milner, it is declared, is to be high commissioner of South Africa, in spite of the opposition he has incurred.

It is believed, though it cannot be verified, that a portion of the Transvaal will be partitioned off to Natal.

The whole arrangement may be roughly described as coinciding with the views advanced by the progressives as opposed to those held by the Boudites. The final steps in this direction have been taken during the last few days. Mr. Chamberlain sent for J. P. Fitzpatrick, author of "The Transvaal from Within" who is well known in connection with South African affairs, and spent a whole day in consultation with him. Mr. Fitzpatrick will sail for Cape Town June 16 to join the advisory committee which Sir Alfred Milner is forming.

BRITISH CASUALTIES.

Roberts Reports Methuen's and the Derbyshire's Losses.

London, June 13, 6:05 p. m.—The following dispatch has been received at the war office from Lord Roberts:

"Katsbosch, June 12.—In yesterday's engagement Methuen had one killed and eighteen wounded. Among the latter is Lieut. Cearle of the Twelfth battalion of yeomanry.

"On June 7 the Derbyshire militia lost thirty six killed and 104 wounded, all of whom were in the Yeomanry hospital, which was captured by the Boers and retaken by Methuen."

BRYAN IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 13.—Col. W. J. Bryan, with Mrs. Bryan and their children, arrived in Chicago today. The party leaves tonight for Minocqua, Wis., where they will be the guests of Col. M. C. Wetmore, of St. Louis, at his summer home.

Among Col. Bryan's visitors today were Mayor Harrison, Senator Jones, National Committeeman Johnson of Kansas; Charles A. Walsh, of Iowa. It was said that the chief topic of conversation was the make-up of the platform for the coming campaign.

At Minocqua, Col. Bryan may meet Charles A. Towne, who is Col. Bryan's running mate on the Populistic ticket.

TROUBLE AT CHEFOO

CRUISER GOES THERE

Yorktown Sent to the New Seat of Trouble From Shanghai.

Washington, June 13.—The navy department has been informed that the Yorktown sailed yesterday from Shanghai for Chefoo.

The United States consul at Chefoo informed the state department yesterday of Boxer disturbances at that place, but no particulars were furnished.

It appears that the movement of the Yorktown from Shanghai to Chefoo was not directed from Washington, and it is assumed that the order was issued by Admiral Kempff, the senior officer of the United States squadron in Chinese waters. At Chefoo the Yorktown would be within a day's sail of the admiral's flagship at Taku. She should arrive at Chefoo Friday or Saturday of this week.

Meanwhile, the Castine remains at Shanghai. The condition is not known at the navy department, but it is understood that Admiral Kempff is in touch with her commander by the coast cable, and if the situation at Chin Klang becomes more acute, he will order the ship up the Yang Tse to that point if she is able to move. Otherwise, a marine guard will be dispatched up the river in the ship's boats.

FIGHT WITH BOXERS.

Sixteen British Marines Chase Two Thousand of Them.

London, June 13.—Sixteen British marines, reconnoitering in advance of the column reaching to Pekin, fought and chased 2000 Boxers Monday, killing twenty or thirty. Evidences of Gen. Nich's operations were found in headless bodies. The whole country presents a desolate aspect, entire villages having been deserted.

The expedition numbers 2044, as follows: British, 915; German, 250; Russian, 300; French, 128; Americans, 104; Japanese, 52; Italians, 40, and Austrian, 25.

ANTI-FOREIGNERS NAMED.

Reactionists Appointed to the Tsung Li Yamen.

Washington, June 13.—A cablegram has been received at the state department from Minister Conger, at Pekin, stating that Tuan, the father of the heir apparent, has been appointed president of the Tsung Li Yamen; also, that three other new ministers have been appointed, all affiliated with the party opposed to foreigners. On the whole, Mr. Conger reports teh situation as not materially improved.

Guards are repairing the railway, and as soon as they have arrived at Pekin, it is Mr. Conger's belief that the safety of the foreigners at that capital will be assured.

RIOTING IN PEKIN.

The Troubles There Have Reached an Acute Stage.

Washington, June 13.—Official dispatches received in diplomatic quarters in Washington show that the rioting in Pekin has reached an acute stage, with the rioters directing a number of their assaults against members of the different foreign legations there. One of these dispatches states that the secretary of the Belgian legation was attacked too successive times on Monday, and escaped after being maltreated by the mob.

On the same day, two officials of the British legation serving as student interpreters, were attacked by a large crowd of roughs. The young Englishmen held the attacking party back for a time, but when the mob threatened to close in on them, they drew revolvers, and by a show of force, made their retreat without bodily injury.

About the same time the British summer quarters, 14 miles from Pekin, were burned down. These quarters were quite extensive and had just been completed. They belonged to the British government, and not to Sir Claude MacDonald, the minister of Pekin, which gives added significence to the depredation.

The killing of the chancellor of the Japanese legitation at Pekin, Sugiyama Akira, is not referred to in the official dispatches received here but full credit is given to this report by the Japanese officials who are personally acquainted with Mr. Akira, and with many of the circumstances detailed. The killing of a number of the diplomatic bodies, and the foregoing assults on the officials of the foreign countries, are regarded as presenting the most serious phase of the situation that has thus for occurred.

Mr. Keisiro Nabeshima, said today:

"We have no official confirmation of the killing of our chancellor at Pekin, but there appears to be no doubt of the fact, and it presents a most serious condition. The chief offense is against Japan, but aside from that it is against the entire diplomatic body at Pekin, for if any one of them is subject to such assault, they all share in the same doing. I was personally acquainted with Mr. Akira, as he served under me in the foreign official at Tokio, while I was chief of the division of protocols. He was a bright young man, about 38 years of age and had a wife and four children. He was one of the most expert chirographers in Japan and this gained him the post of chancellor at Pekin, where he went about three years ago."

Mr. Nabeshima said the Japanese government had pursued the utmost reserve up to this time, not wishing to be open to any suspicions, but he felt that if this tragedy had occurred there would be energetic action taken.

One of the most significent features of the affair, in his judgment was that the killing was reported to have been done by the troops of the empress and not by any lawless mob. While there might be some excuse for mob depredations, Mr. Nashima said, it would be difficult to take any such view of Chinese attack on officers of the foreign governments.

MARINES FOR CHINA.

The Solace Sails From Manilla With a Force.

Manilla, June 13.—The United States hospital ship Solace sailed at midnight last night, having on board 100 marines and five officers, Maj. Waller commanding, in response to the telegraphic request sent from Tong Ku, June 11, by Rear Admiral Kempff. Thirty other marines left last week on the United States gunboat Nashville, bound for Tien Tsin.

The marines on the Solace had been destined for Guam. It is believed that others will be sent there later on. A supply ship will leave this week and possibly the cruiser New Orleans will sail later.

EXTRAORDINARY RUMOR.

Shanghai, June 13.—Extraordinary rumors are current here to the effect that the powers have settled the Chinese question by agreeing to forgive the dowager empress and her Manchu advisers, provided they promise to amend their future conduct.

TO CARRY TROOPS.

Hong Kong, June 13.—The steamer Nation has been chartered to convey 300 troops to Tien Tsin. She is being fitted by the artificers of the Terrible. The troops today drew their field equipment. The date of their departure has not been made known.

GO TO TIEN TSIN.

Hong Kong, June 13.—Orders have been issued to the contingent of British troops assembled here for service in the north to sail for Tien Tsin June 14. Maj. E. Morris, of the artillery, will be in command.

AFTER TAYLOR.

Sheriff Goes to Indianapolis With a Requisition For Him.

Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—Sheriff Suter has gone to Indianapolis with a requisition on Governor Mount from Governor Beckham asking for the extradition of W. S. Taylor to the state for trial on the indictment charging him with being an accessory to the murder of William Goebel.

Indianapolis, June 13.—Justus Goebel, Attorney T. C. Campbell and Sheriff Suter arrived here today from Frankfort, Ky., with a requisition for W. S. Taylor, Republican chairman to the governorship of Kentucky. The three men called at the capitol to see Governor Mount, but he had gone to Crawfordsville early today.

The governor will return this evening and Attorney Campbell will present an argument on the requisition.

NURSE'S STORY

Says Cuban Postal Officials Rounded Inspector Maynard at Death's Door.

Havana, June 13.—The Post this morning publishes a sensational story connected with the postal frauds. It says it has an attested communication from Fred Spencer, the hospital nurse who attended Inspector Maynard during his last illness, alleging that the patient was called upon by two postal officials, who persuaded him, when in a semi-conscious state, to sign important documents. The next day the patient died.

Spencer expresses the belief that the securing of the signature must have been a very important matter, as two men holding such positions as those held by the callers would not have risked contracting yellow fever for any light reasons.

Spencer, the paper announces, gives the names of the men in question, but the Post does not publish them, simply saying that both are prominently connected with the postal frauds.

HOLDS SESSION.

Republican National Committee Has Its First Meeting at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 13.—The Republican national committee held its first session here today. Chairman Hanna was not present at the opening of the meeting, but was expected later. In his absence Vice Chairman Henry C. Payne was designated to preside temporarily. There were several absentees, specially from the Western states and the number of proxies was much larger than usual.

Secretary Dick announced the states and districts in which there were contests. There were thirty-three contests, involving the seats of seventy-four delegates. This is about one-eleventh of the entire convention, a remarkably large proportion in a convention where there is no question as to the main issues. The involved seats are:

State.	Contests.	Seats Involved.
Alabama	7	16
Georgia	1	2
Louisiana	6	14
Mississippi	1	2
New York	1	1
Pennsylvania	1	1
Ohio	1	2
Tennessee	5	12
Texas	7	16

THREE HURT.

Leetonia, Ohio, June 13.—Three postal clerks were hurt in the derailing of the Pennsylvania limited here this morning: W. P. Brown, of Beaver Falls, seriously; J. V. Fox, of Salem, and P. Griezz, of Maximo slight.

THE CITY IS QUIET

St. Louis Officials Think the Reign of Terror Is Over.

A STRICT BOYCOTT

Members of the Sheriff's Posse Are Unable to Buy Food.

St. Louis, June 13.—Sheriff Pohlman and Chief of Police Campbell are of the opinion that the reign of terror that has prevailed during the greater part of the past month or more as a result of the street railway strike is at an end. They are confident that their combined forces will be able to prevent any further lawlessness. It seems to be the general opinion that Sunday's riot was the culmination of these outbreaks. Chief Campbell said today:

"I am now of the opinion that the worst is over, and that there is now no need of calling out the state militia. The shooting of those men Sunday has given those inclined to riotous to understand what they are to expect, and, I believe, will result in greatly relieving the situation.

"We have withdrawn the police from several of the lines and will continue to as fast as we consider it safe. I believe that the Transit company will be able to run its cars in most parts of the city in the future without difficulty. There may be some trouble at night in the extreme southern and northern portions of the city, but the police and posse men will be able to cope with it."

The street car service is rapidly improving and a number of lines are being operated at night.

In the negotiations to end the trouble the street car men still firmly maintain their attitude. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is expected here this week to take charge of strike affairs, and his coming is looked on in labor circles as a sure sign that the fight against the Transit company will be pushed to the limit.

Sheriff Pohlman's posse comitatus has almost reached the number, 2500, asked for by the police board. About 2000 possemen have already been assigned for duty. This force is comprised mostly of well-known business men and citizens. The strict enforcement of law that has marked the service of the different companies of deputies has brought them into disfavor with strike sympathizers, and as a result, citizens wearing deputy sheriff's badges are made to suffer the inconveniences of a systematic boycott in many localities. They have been unable to buy food. At first meals were obtained at boarding houses and restaurants near the different power houses and car sheds at which deputies were stationed. But upon being debarred by the eating house, the sheriff was compelled to arrange for feeding his men at their respective stations.

Henry G. Brown, a stationary engineer, living with his wife and family at No. 2841 McNair avenue, on June 4 was sworn in as a member of the posse comitatus and assigned to company M. Since then, he says, the neighbors have looked upon him as an enemy of the laboringman and have not given his family a moment's rest. It finally developed that Mrs. Brown could not purchase food in the neighborhood, and she sent word to her husband, who was given leave of absence for three days to return home and protect his family.

The inquest over the bodies of Edward Thomas and George Rine, victims of last Sunday's riot at Washington avenue and Sixth street, began today. A large number of witnesses were present.

The following jury was empanelled: E. J. Lorenz, plumber; J. C. Shifferle, house furnisher; J. A. Grombech, hatter; William Sieling, furniture dealer; Fred Everetz, cutter; Louis Kaltwasser, merchant.

Attorney Maurier said he would endeavor to bring out evidence showing that the shooting was not done by the deputies in performance of their duty under the law and, therefore, was not justifiable.

The first witness was James P. Klatz, a guest at the Lindel hotel, who stated that at the time of the shooting Sunday, he was sitting in his room overlooking Washington avenue, and saw an orderly body of uniformed street car men marching west on Washington avenue. As far as he was able to see no overt act was committed by them, but two rocks had been thrown at a passing car. When the head of the column had almost reached Sixth street, witness saw several men with guns step out and meet a number of the strikers who had left the ranks. There was some scuffling, and one of the men with a shotgun fired, and a man in a uniform dropped. The street car men fled at the first shot, according to the witness, and firing became general along the block and from the windows of the posse barracks.

JEWISH CHARITIES.

Papers Read at the National Conference In Chicago.

Chicago, June 13.—"The Problems of Jewish Charities in Small Cities," by Rev. Dr. I. Callsch, Richmond, Va., was the first paper read at todays session of the national conference of Jewish charities. Among other papers read, was one by Mrs. S. Fiske, Denver, Col., on "Progress of Jewish Charity."

The report of the committee on uniform records was then taken up and discussed. The conference will conclude this evening with the election of officers and the report of the committee on resolutions.

The following officers were elected to serve two years: President, Max Senior, Cincinnati; vice presidents, Mrs. S. Pisko, Denver, and I. S. Isaacs, New York; secretary, Miss Hannah Marks, Cincinnati. Members of the executive committee were elected as follows: Julian Mack, Chicago; Dr. I. L. Leucht, New Orleans; Dr. H. J. Messing, St. Louis; Max Herzberg, Philadelphia, and Meyer H. Levey, San Francisco.

ARRESTED FOR SETTING FIRE.

Tucson, Ariz., June 13.—Thomas Lewis, a miner, has been arrested on a charge of setting fire to the Catalina forests, where 50,000,000 feet of timber was destroyed. A miner who was with Lewis claims that Lewis became incensed over the pine needles and set fire to them, causing the most disastrous forest fire ever known in the country.

DEMOCRATS OF OHIO

SOME HOT CONTESTS

Warm But Ineffectual Fight is Made on Two McLean Delegations.

Columbus, Ohio, June 13.—The Democratic state convention was called to order at the Auditorium at 10:40 o'clock today by Hon. William S. Thomas, of Springfield, chairman of the state committee. Portraits of Bryan, Thurman, Jackson, McLean and others were conspicuous. Chairman Thomas addressed the convention on the work of the party and the prospects for the present year.

Chairman Huntington was received with an ovation. He said:

"You are assembled in state convention for the fourth time since the memorable campaign of 1896. Since that time Democratic thought in Ohio has been slowly but surely concentrating along certain lines of reform and manifesting every year the renewed devotion of Buckeye Democrats to the fundamental principles; until today, more than ever before in its history, our party is distinctively and peculiarly 'the party of the people.' Your last convention at Zanesville merely emphasized the conclusions which the party had solemnly reached at Columbus and Dayton in 1897 and 1898. The Zanesville convention, and subsequently its candidates, reaffirmed the Chicago platform and indorsed for president in 1900 the greatest popular leader of modern times; the eloquent orator in whose tongue 'is the law of kindness,' the honest citizen in whose heart is the love of justice; the unselfish statesman in whose mind is the welfare of mankind—the friend of the people and the dreaded foe of their enemies—William J. Bryan. That reaffirmation and that endorsement represented the earnest convictions of the Democracy of Ohio then; and there is no reason to believe that those convictions are changed now.

"You are assembled at a time most critical for the nation and for the Democratic party. We shall take no step backward, but we shall take long strides forward. The time has come when every American citizen must determine for himself whether this nation shall continue to be in fact as well as in name a republic, or shall pattern after Great Britain and become a colonial empire. We believe that if we are to have a democracy, it cannot be too democratic, if we are to have a republic it cannot be too republican. To remain a democracy—to remain a republic—is to preserve union. It was true in 1860 that this nation could not long endure 'half slave and half free,' and it is true now that that it cannot long endure half republic and half empire. Therefore the paramount question which must be answered by the American people before the Ides of November, is: Shall the Union be preserved?

"We invite an adjustment of differences—or at least of cessation of factional strife—between those who are agreed that the Union must be preserved. There are those who would preserve the Union and at same time maintain the gold standard; and there are those who would preserve the Union and at the same time restore the bimetallic currency that has always been and always will be the only basis of permanent prosperity in this country. But what good will either of these accomplish even from his own point of view, if we have bimetallism or the single gold standard and the Union is destroyed? What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? What shall it profit a nation like ours, if it gain the whole world and lose its own character? Whatever a man's convictions on the money question, if he believes that the republic must remain, he is a fool if he trade the greater principle for the lesser; he is blind if he do not unite with others to achieve the main object, no matter how he may disagree with them in respect to lesser object. Democrats, get together. And not Democrats only, but all you of every political faith who would first save the Union from the threat of imperialism, from the curse of militarism and from the blight of monopoly, and after that is done would agree to disagree while determining other questions. Our appeal is not the appeal of the Democratic party as a political organization. It is an appeal to the honor and the interest of our land, from all those who believe that George Washington was right and George Third was wrong.

"We must have a long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether. And that will be the end of Mark Hanna's 'pull' with this government.

"When we point to signs of empire and their dangers, which have appeared on every hand, multiplying every day since the hour when William McKinley took oath before God and his countrymen that he would support the constitution of the United States, we are told that there is no imperialism. But they who say there is no imperialism are the very ones aiming to destroy the republic and create the empire. Their own teachings, their own conduct, their own purposes are startling evidences that they be ignorantly or viciously, when they say there is no imperialism. As a matter of fact the empire is at hand today, both in our dealings with our own people, and our policy toward other peoples. The present administration has established and fostered an industrial imperialism at home and a military imperialism abroad. An army of soldiers is not more imperialistic than an army of trusts. The waters of Asiatic seas are not more treacherous to our welfare than the water in millions of watered stock. A military and an industrial dictatorship go hand in hand. The men who would rule others against their will by the bayonet, and the man who would rule others against their will by the power of monopoly deserve but one name—the name of tyrant; and tyranny will not be endured by the American people. Suppose the czar of Russia, by royal edict, were to arbitrarily raise the price of bread throughout his dominions to all his subjects; would not that be called a wanton act of imperialism? But how would it differ from the edict of a trust in the United States, arbitrarily raising the price of any particular necessity of life which it might have the power of control? If a king anywhere on earth were to lay hands upon the sources of production among his people, and thereupon were to limit the supply, control the distribution and fix the price of natural products for his own benefit, would that not be called an act of imperialism of trusts as practiced in this country today? The truth is that trusts do what kings would never dare. The king of England laid a tax on tea in Boston harbor, and as a consequence lost an empire; but the king on monopoly in the United States lays a tax on every article in universal use, and as a consequence expects his dupes to re-elect a president who will confirm this power. Show me anywhere on earth an act of monarch or dictator more imperious than an act of congress that truns the highest functions of government over to national banks and makes the magnitude of the people's debts the index of their prosperity. Show me in the world's history a more arbitrary use of imperial power than is implied when the money trust controls the circulating medium of a country and the other trusts control all its manufactured and many of its natural products. You cannot show it. And still our opponents say there is no imperialism—there is only 'duty' and 'destiny' and 'responsibility.' Meanwhile Duty wears a crown, Destiny carries a scepter and Responsibility benignly smiles on both and says: 'God bless you, my children.'

Only a short time ago they were telling us with equal earnestness that there were no trusts. But when Mark Hanna dictated a platform for the Republican state convention of Ohio, which was adopted in this auditorium but a few weeks since, he forsook that old falsehood and made full confession of his sins and the sins of the Republican party. That platform not only acknowledged the existence of trusts, but proceeded to classify them. In effect, it declared that there are three kinds of trusts—good, bad and indifferent. The indifferent trust is the trust that is not big enough to attract much attention; the bad rust is the trust that refuses to throw up its hands when the political highwayman appears, and the good trust is the trust that contributes most to the Republican party, to which it owes its life. Thus nowadays, instead of telling us there is no imperialism, they will be pointing us to the comparative advantages of different brands of imperialism. Some will doubtless be labeled "polygamy," others "slavery," others "tariff taxes between parts of the Union," and still others with various designations more or less appropriate. And then we shall have dissertations on their respective merits by a man whose only claim to renown is: he bought a United States senate and afterward boasted that he "knows his business." But when this happens we shall have gained one point. We shall have forced them to admit that imperialism is at hand, just as we have already forced them to admit that trusts are today operating in every state of the Union, in violation of the law and to the ruin of the public welfare.

Behind these trusts—the industrial and the imperial—is one greater than any and from which all the others come. It is the political trust operated by M. A. Hanna and represented in the White House by William McKinley. This is the trust that goes into every state, every congressional district, every county and every precinct in this country, dictating who shall be candidates for public office; who, being candidates, shall be elected; who shall make the laws, and what kind of laws they shall be when made. The political trust is the trust that goes into state legislatures and even to the distant islands of the sea, to procure public franchises for its favorites. This is the trust that determines which party shall predominate in both branches of congress, and in return for services to that end openly and shamelessly bestows foreign consulaships and local offices upon those who promote its interests. This is the truth which gathers up the usufruct of all the other trusts and applies their millions annually to perpetuate itself in power. This is the trust that worms itself into political conventions, as it has recently done in Ohio and from this very platform and is able to prevent delegates from voting for their choice for a state officer, even after they have been instructed by their constituents for whom to vote. This is the trust that is able to prevent the people of Ohio from celebrating the one hundredth year of their glorious history, in a manner already provided by law, because, forsooth, the political trust would make of the Ohio centennial a political machine. This is the trust whose operations are universal—the mother of all the other trusts. Sometimes its offspring multiply too rapidly, and then it becomes like "the old woman who lived in a shoe—she had so many children she didn't know what to do." But when this happens to the political trust it has a remedy in killing off some of its children by giving others advantages over them; and so the family resumes its former numbers and prospers on continued robbery without attracting too much attention. This trust fixes the policy of government, dictating what shall constitute it. It is able to stifle freedom abroad and breed corruption at home; for under its operations it is easier for a political boss to buy a United States senatorship than for a slave to buy his liberty in the Philippines.

You cannot destroy the other trusts and let the political trust live. They must stand or fall together. If all the other trusts were destroyed, the political trust would breed their successors; but if the political trust is destroyed, all the others will die from lack of nourishment. To accomplish this is the object of democracy; it is the object of your assemblage here and will be the object of the greater assemblage that will presently give a new expression of the national faith at Kansas City. And when that is done and our candidate is nominated, at one stroke we shall have made an end of the imperialism of industry and the imperialism of arms.

A majority of the committee on credentials reported in favor of seating the Dowling delegation from Montgomery and the Wilson delegation from Cuyahoga county, and that all delegates hereafter be selected at primaries.

A minority report was submitted to seat the Grimsley delegation from Cuyahoga instead of the Wilson delegation. Another minority report was made to seat the Shoup or anti-Dowling delegation from Montgomery.

At Dayton it was a fight against Joseph Dowling as the so-called boss, and at Cleveland a similar fight against Harry Wilson. The Dowling and Wilson men were both known as the McLean delegations.

A hot discussion ensued that caused great commotion in the hall. It was after 12 o'clock when the roll of eighty-eight counties was ordered called on the second minority report, which was defeated by 214 yeas, 317 nays, and the twenty-five Dowling delegates kept their seats.

Finally the call of the counties on the first minority report was ordered, resulting 354 yeas, 363 nays, and the Wilson delegation retained their seats.

Mr. Dowling moved to reconsider the vote on the first minority report and this movement caused the wildest scene of the day. The call of the counties proceeded without difficulty, the motion to reconsider being withdrawn. The majority report on credentials as originally submitted was then adopted.

The temporary organization was made permanent and the reports of the committee on rules and resolutions were then adopted. The resolutions are as follows:

"We, the Democrats of Ohio, in convention assembled, reaffirm our adherence to the Democratic national platform adopted at Chicago in 1896; but new and grave issues have arisen, threatening the safety of free government itself, which should command at this time the most serious attention of all patriots.

"We enter our protest against the doctrine that the president or congress can govern acquired territory outside and independently of the constitution of the United States, as a doctrine utterly subversive of every foundation principle of our government. The Declaration of Independence, the flag and the constitution must everywhere stand together, as emblems of human liberty and equal rights for all, and where one goes, all go. We therefore denounce imperialism under any pretense as necessarily leading to militarism and as wholly foreign to our system of government, and declare that neither congress nor the president can exercise any power whatever not derived from the constitution. We therefore denounce the Porto Rican tariff bill as a palpable violation of the doctrines of the fathers and of the fundamental principles of our government, which is based upon equal rights to all.

"Trusts and monopolies formed for the purpose of arbitrarily controlling production and prices in the interest solely of combined capital, if allowed to go, can result only in industrial serfdom for the mass of people. We therefore oppose such combinations and demand that not only shall existing laws against combinations in restraint of trade be rigidly enforced, but, believing that protective tariffs and railway discriminations have been and still are the chief supporters of monopolies, we favor the removal of all duties from imports monopolized by trusts and also demand that enactment and enforcement of such legislation as will prevent every specie of discrimination, and believe that the courageous and honest application of the Democratic maxim of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none" will be effective to destroy and thereafter prevent any trust or combination of capital that is prejudicial to the general welfare; we demand the repeal of laws giving special privilege to any person, class, locality or interest.

"We denounce the currency law passed by the present congress, which transfers to the banks the entire control of the paper currency, thus laying the foundation for a money trust which will have power to control the prices of all property and to stimulate or strangle business. On the other hand, by requiring the government to redeem all forms of currency in gold, it continues and multiplies the evils of the "endless chain" and imposes upon the government the entire burden of supplying gold whenever demanded, and to obtain which it must issue bonds when necessary, necessitating not only a perpetual debt but a perpetually increasing debt.

"In lieu of a currency of bank promises to pay, to be expanded and contracted as the interests of the banks alone may dictate, we demand that the general government shall not only coin the metals but shall issue and regulate the value of paper currency also in the interest of all the people, and that all currency intended to circulate as money shall be legal tender and be maintained at a parity of value, and be registered with a view to maintaining staple price levels and safe business conditions.

"We affirm anew our undiminished faith in the acknowledged leader of our party, William J. Bryan, and demand his nomination at Kansas City for president of the United States, and the delegates elected by this convention are instructed to so cast their votes."

A resolution was adopted requesting the Ohio delegation to Kansas City to present a propostion to the National Democratic committee to locate their headquarters in Columbus.

GET POSSESSION.

Kentucky Democratic Officials Get the Offices and Buildings.

Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—The court of appeals entered an order today sustaining in part the motion of Attorney General Breckenridge in the minor state contests. The court discharges the supersedeas bonds of the Republican state officials so far as they relate to possession of the state offices and buildings. The effect of this is to put the Democratic state officials into possession of offices and buildings at once. The motion to discharge the supersedeas as to the salaries of the state officers was overruled, and this part of the controversy goes over to the fall term. Judge Burna (Republican) dissented.

WERE DELICATE BOYS.

Many Celebrated Generals Who Were Puny in Youth.

The soldier is often looked upon as being the embodiment of strength, health, and activity that it may be something new to learn that many celebrated generals have as boys been anything but robust or noted for the virtues just mentioned, says the London Express.

Lord Roberts is the most signal example of this. As a lad he was so delicate that when he went out to India, on his first voyage there as a soldier, it was generally supposed by his most intimate friends and relatives that his life would necessarily be short, so pale and delicate was he. We have several independent accounts of how the crew of the ship and some of his messmates pitied the tender-looking young Anglo-Indian and prophesied that an early grave would be his!

But the Indian climate, his native climate, too, set him up, and worked wonders in him. How have those prophets of evil been falsified by what we in our time see and know of the man!

The duke of Wellington was not at all strong when a lad, and his mother was often much concerned about his health. At Eton he got the reputation of being rather a silent, taciturn, somewhat sullen youth. But it is generally believed now that this was as much due to his delicate health as to any individual characteristics of his own temperament.

Arthur Wellesley could not stand the knocking about and rough-and-tumble life that some of his Eton friends enjoyed at that time, and they were not slow to make him aware of the fact.

Rochefort Maguire, whose recent adventures in Kimberley and hero to the garrison have made his name more known even than before the siege, was almost "given up" when a boy, so poor was his general health.

His destined career had to be changed for no other reason than that his health would not stand it, and he had to go out to the Cape in order to seek that health which seemed to be denied him in England. Happily he found it there, and found fortune too at the same time; so he, at any rate, cannot now moan his fate.

Maguire found at the Cape a man still more influential than he himself was to become, a man who also had to leave England, and the prospect of being a clergyman, owing to his weak state of health. This man had once been intended for a parson, like his father, and would have perhaps ended his days as a country vicar had not bad health stepped in and made him give up that idea and set out for Cape Colony. Then his health became renewed, and today the whole world knows Cecil Rhodes almost as well as it knows anybody.

Rhodes may well be called a "soldier" as regards fighting, for, though not a military man by profession, he was always willing to take any share of fighting that came along his way, and his advice to doubtful Britons during the late crisis in Kimberley, to "be like me and sit tight," will not be readily forgotten. It was said that Kruger had such an opinion of Cecil Rhodes' fighting powers that he proposed to put him into a cage when Kimberley was taken, but it may be also said that Rhodes would have shown the Boers no small amount of resistance first before he had thus allowed himself to be taken, for he is by instinct a fighting man to the very bone.

Havelock was never very strong, and as a boy was decidedly on the dark side of health. Even when a man, his pale face was a general subject of remark among his followers. But they all knew his worth and courage when the time of trial came.

Perhaps no civilian in this century was more a born fighter than was Lord Byron, had he been able to become a real soldier, but he was kept back from that by his deformity and by constant bad health. Yet he went forth manfully to help the Greeks in their struggles for independence against the Turks, and perished at Missolonghi.

The present kaiser has never been a robust man, and as a lad was still more delicate. His deformed arm always gave him much trouble in affecting his general health, especially in his younger years. But he has, by his splendid resolution and care, grown out of this constant bad health, and today he is a fighting man with whom all Europe has to reckon—a man not easily to be beaten in what he undertakes.

So that there is much hope for delicate boys after all, if they have the right sort of British pluck in them.

Health and strength are largely a matter of will power, after all.

THE SAINT-SANG.

A curious survival of medievalism is, says our Brussels correspondent, now to be witnessed at Bruges, in the celebration of the 750th anniversary of the entry within the city precincts of the relic known as the "Saint-Sang," or Holy Blood, said to have been preserved by Nicodemus and St. Joseph of Arimathea, says the London Chronicle. In 1149 it was given by Baldwin III, King of Jerusalem, to his brother-in-law, the count of Alsace, who brought it from the Holy Land and placed at Bruges in 1150. From that time it has remained in possession of the town.

The oily Blood is preserved in a crystal reliquary shaped like a cylinder, both ends of which are ornamented wth crowns, made in 1388. The chest in which it is kept is a fine example of goldsmith's work of the year 1617, being ornamented with precious stones of great value. It is in this receptacle that the relic is borne through the streets of the city during the first two Sundays of May. The procession consists of seven groups representing the different parishes of the city, each preceded by its cross-bearers and acolytes, and followed by the parochial clergy. It makes a complete circut of the principle streets, and concludes at the Place de Bourge, where a temporary altar has been erected, from which the cardinal archbishop of Belgium pronounces his benediction.

WAS TOO POLITE.

An American, who will never allow a woman to stand in a street car if he has a seat to offer her, met with disaster in Hamburg, lately writes a foreign correspondent. He was not familiar with street car rules in Hamburg, and lost a fare in consequence. As he stepped on the car and took the only vacant seat at the rear end the conductor lowered a sign that read "Besetzt." He did not know that the word meant "occupied," nor understand its signification.

At the next corner the car stopped, one passenger got off and two women got on. One of the women took the vacant seat and quick as thought our polite American arose and offered his seat to the other one, who accepted it.

The conductor came from the further end of the car, explained to the polite man that the vehicle was overcrowded, contrary to the law, and that as he was the one who was standing he must alight. He did so.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Out Weak and Lower But Soon Turned Strong.

TRADING WAS LARGE

North Dakota and Manitoba Have Not Received Relief From Drought.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 13.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning, with large and active trading, but soon turned strong and prices advanced above yesterday's figures. The depression at the opening was caused by the rains in Minnesota and South Dakota, but the sentiment changed when it was learned that no relief from the drouth had been experienced in North Dakota and Manitoba, from which quarters there came numerous complaints. Another bullish factor was a report on the Chicago board that Japan had declared war against China. Towards noon prices eased off again and the close was 1c lower than yesterday here and practically unchanged at Chicago for the July option.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board, July wheat opened 5c off at 72⅝c, sold up to 73⅝c at 10:45, reacted to 73⅜c at 11:15, recovered to 73¾c at 11:20 and closed at 73¼c, being 1c lower than yesterday. September started 5c lower at 73¾c, advanced to 74⅝c at 11:30, reacted to 74⅜c at 11:50, and closed at those figures, the same as yesterday. Cash sales were about 100,000 bus, at ¼c under July. Corn, oats and barley were unchanged. Rye declined 1c. Cash flax was unchanged. September flax rose 1c, while October flax declined ¾c. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 74⅝c; to arrive, 74⅞c; July, 73¼c; September, 76c. No. 1 northern, cash, 72⅝c; to arrive, 73c; July, 73¼c; September, 74⅝c. No. 2 northern, 71c. No. 3 spring, 69c. Oats, 23½@23⅝c. Rye, 33½c. Barley, 37-32c. Flax, cash, $1.80; in car lots, $1.75; September, $1.34; October, $1.28½. Corn, 38⅝c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 215; rye, 1; flax, 13. Receipts—Wheat, 234,200 bus; corn, 20,600 bus; oats, 8824 bus; barley, 610 bus; flax, 7621 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 32,000 bus.

CHICAGO BOARD.

Cereals Open Easier But Rally, and Provisions Easy.

Chicago, June 13.—Wheat started weak today on the rains in Minnesota and South Dakota. Trade was large and the feeling excited. July opened 3@3½c lower at 72⅝@72¾c. North Dakota and Manitoba, however, were reported still unrelieved from the drought and sent in numerous complaints. Aberdeen asserted there were now prospects for the crop. A rumor became current on the board of trade that Japan had declared war against China. There had been some heavy selling early, but these considerations turned the tide and July rallied to 73⅝c. Local receipts were 81 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 484 cars, against 331 last week and 431 a year ago.

Later July touched 74c, but reacted on profit taking, closed firm, a shade over yesterday. July at 73¾@74c.

Corn early this week with wheat, there was considerable pressure to sell and the demand was slack. July opened 1@1⅛c down at 38⅜@38¾c and sold down to 38c. At the decline, trade was large. Influential bulls came to the support of the market and the wheat rally served as a support. July rallied from the bottom to 38⅝c. Receipts here were 349 cars.

Oats were easy early and dull, but turned firm and were fairly active later, helped by the corn firmness. July opened ½c lower at 21⅝c and rallied to 22⅛c. Receipts here were 135 cars.

Provisions opened easy with wheat and were barely steady for some time. July pork opened 7½@12½c lower at $11.35@11.40 and sold to $11.12½. July lard opened 2½@5c down at $6.62½@6.65, easing to $6.57½@6.60, and July ribs began the session a shade depressed at $6.67½.

Close: Wheat, June, 73¾c; July, 73⅝@74c; August, 70½c. Corn, July, 38⅝c; August, 38¼@38c. Oats, June, 22c; July, 22⅛c; August, 22c. Pork, June, $11.25; July, $11.25; September, $11.35. Lard, June, $6.55; July, $6.55; September, $6.55@6.57½; October, $6.57½; November, $6.57½. Ribs, June, $6.55; July, $6.53; September, $6.55@6.57½. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 75@75c; No. 3 red, 72@75c; No. 2 hard winter, 72½@73½c; No. 3 hard winter, 66@72c; No. 1 northern spring, 73½@74c; No. 2 northern spring, 72½@73c; No. 3 spring, 67@72c. Corn, No. 2, 39@39c; No. 3, 39c. Oats, No. 2, 22¾c; No. 3, 22½@23c. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.80; Southwestern, $1.80; September, $1.33; October, $1.28@1.28. Rye, 55½@56c. Barley, 37@43c. Timothy, cash, $2.55; September, $2.65. Clover, $7.75@8.00.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market weakened decidedly on the plain and common kind this week. The better class of horses are still in a strong demand, horses, which have not declined in value, as has the common class of horses, as there are scarce on the market and in the country. Ordinary drivers and common work horses dropped $15, and sustained heavy losses to the shippers. Supplies of horses were too large compared with the existing demand.

COURT ON WHEELS.

It Will Soon Start For Ranges to Make Citizens.

In a very short time the political workers of the various persuasions will be getting down to business on the manufacture of citizens for voting purposes. Since the law was passed requiring that voters must be citizens of the republic, it has been one of the duties of the political worker to see that all of the foreign-born men of his locality got their second papers in time to register their suffrages at the polls in the elections, and there will be a great deal of that work to do this summer. There has been a large increase in the vote of this county since the last election, and the increase has been pretty generally distributed over the county, some of it coming to Duluth and some of it to the iron ranges.

Much of this new vote as well as a large number of older settlers must undergo the scrutiny of the district court before it can be allowed to vote at the coming elections, because the second papers that the law requires every voter to have unless he was born in this country have not yet been obtained. It is the province of the political worker of both parties to hustle in this element, and if need be, to pay the dollar required as a fee for the issuance of the required permit to vote.

The parties have not started in on this campaign as yet, though some quiet work has been done and an average of two or three citizens per day has been the output of the district court for some time. There will be no more general term of district court, but second papers can be secured every Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the opening of the special term. Applicants must bring with them their first papers and two witnesses who can testify to the facts that the applicant has been a resident of the country five years, a resident of the state for one year, and that he has borne a good reputation.

A little later the district court will be "put on wheels," which is the way usage expresses the carrying out of a law passed a couple of years ago. This provides that special terms of district court may be held by the judges at points away from the county seat for the sole purpose of hearing applicants for second citizenship papers. Under this law the ranges were pretty well toured by the court two years ago, and in due time arrangements will probably be made for a similar tour this year.

In order to vote at the fall elections, which will take place Nov. 6, men must have been citizens for three months, and this places the limit for making voters at Aug. 6. There is less than two months left in which the citizenship industry can have play, and some tall work will have to be done on both sides.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Net Gains Throughout the List on the New York Exchange.

CLOSING WAS DULL

Gains at the Opening Followed By Depression and Then a Recovery.

New York, June 13.—The market advanced slightly at the opening in response to the higher prices for Americans in London. Gains were restricted to half, except in Baltimore & Ohio, which rose a large fraction. Dealings were on a very light scale. The opening rise was better held than on previous days this week and was extended in spots. Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific were features of strength in the Railway list, with gains of about a point or over. The grangers hung back rather heavily. Sugar, Tobacco, Manhattan, Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas rose strongly. The movement spread to the metal stocks, in which Tennessee Coal led with a gain of 2⅜; Steel and Wire preferred rose 2. Federal Steel 1½ and other stocks in the group a large fraction. The Minneapolis & St. Louis stocks were weak. The preferred losing 2½. The market was dull and easier at the end of the hour. The market became very spotty and irregular in the second hour. Some demand continued for Consolidated Gas and other gas stocks hardened in sympathy. Norfolk & Western was bid up 1⅞. The rest of the market was sluggish and reacted on very small dealings. The bond market was dull, but prices were well held.

New York Central was marked up to 131. The general list remained almost immovable, with trumpted intervals between sales. The closing was dull and firm at net gains throughout.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 13.—The market for cotton futures opened steady with prices unchanged to 1 point higher. For a time around the call, business was almost at a standstill and the movement did not exceed 2 points. Bullish Liverpool cables and foreign buying orders subsequently put new life into the market and brought about a sharp advance in all options, with the summer months, however, leading the upturn by 2 to 3 points.

NEW YORK'S COLORED POPULATION.

Though a large proportion of the negro population of New York still remains in the degraded condition which was the natural result of the race's servitude, there are many—both men and women—who have broken through the barriers surrounding them, and have won for themselves respectable positions in various walks of life, says the Scottish American. No longer are they crowded together into the same extent as formerly. They are to be found above the Harlem as well as below it and in the suburbs of Brooklyn as well as in the quarters which in times past were considered particularly their own. In the latter borough there is a society of Sons of Virginia and in Manhattan the colored people from North Carolina have banded themselves together under the name of Sons of the Old North State. They have several churches of their own and also places for special callings.

The negro medical fraternity numbers about fifteen, all with diplomas from well-known institutions. Five are graduates of the Long Island college, and Harvard, Dartmouth, the university of Pennsylvania and Howard university are all represented.

HER WISH.

The old, pensioned-off nurse of a certain aristocratic family took a mournful pleasure in the "In Memoriam" cards which were sent to her from time to time, says an exchange. On one occasion one of her former nurslings, now middle-aged, visited the old dame, and noticed the collection of cards displayed above her mantelpiece.

"Ah, yes, I treasure them all," said the old nurse. "There, you see, is your poor pa's, and there's your sainted ma's, and here's the dear little twins," and your Master George's, and if I only had yours I believe I could die 'appy."

MURPHY IS HELD.

His Own Testimony Shows He Refused Census Information.

John Murphy's own statement before the United States Court Commissioner, Thomas H. Pressnell this morning was enough to convict him of the charge of refusing to give the required information to a census enumerator. The hearing took place at 10 o'clock and Assistant Attorney M. D. Purdy was here. Murphy admitted that he had put the enumerator off two or three times but denied that he ever said that he absolutely would not give information. He was held to the next term of the United States grand jury and his bail was fixed at $100. In default of it he went to jail.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the hearing of Robert Brotherton, charged with selling liquor without a government license, was held.

The hearing of Capt. George Brooks of the tug Crosby, charged with running through the canal faster than the regulations allow, was also to come off this afternoon.

THE CIRCULAR ISSUED.

Change of Northern Pacific Superintendents Is Announced.

E. C. Blanchard has been promoted from the position of superintendent of the Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific road to superintendent of the Minnesota division, with headquarters at Minneapolis. E. L. Brown, the former superintendent of the St. Paul & Duluth road, succeeds Mr. Blanchard as superintendent of the Lake Superior division, with headquarters in this city.

It was stated a few days ago that this change was on the boards. They were made public officially this afternoon on receipt of a circular letter from J. W. Kendrick, second vice president of the Northern Pacific road. Mr. Blanchard takes the place of A. E. Law, and Mr. Law has been assigned to the position of acting general superintendent of the Northern Pacific, pending an extended leave of absence granted to General Superintendent M. C. Kimberly.

COMING IN RAPIDLY.

People Awakening to Importance of the Census.

The work which the newspapers and the citizens' committee have been doing for three weeks is beginning to bear fruit than it ever did before. Information is pouring in to the committee and Special Agent Getty so lively as to almost swamp them. The people are beginning to realize at last the importance of having a full count of the city. All today and yesterday, too, people have been calling the office up to ask why they have not been enumerated, or to give information of people who ought to be, etc. This spirit is very gratifying to the enumerators, the committee and everybody connected with the taking of the census, and it means that Duluth will get a fair showing. All the committee has to complain of now is that the rush did not begin sooner.

Let the rush keep up, however, for there are only two days more in which to complete the enrollment of the city.

WISCONSIN DELEGATION.

Milwaukee, June 13.—The Wisconsin delegation to the Democratic national convention held a meeting today and arranged plans for the trip to Kansas City. It was decided to have a special train and the chairman said about 200 Wisconsin Democrats would go with the delegation. The delegation decided to present the name of Mayor David S. Rose, the chairman of the delegation, as temporary chairman of the national convention.

ACQUIRE THE TITLE

City Will Get Properly Against Which There Are Assessment Judgments.

WILL STIR OWNERS

If City Pushes Matters They Will Be Forced to Settle.

It is more than probable that within the next few weeks the city will take legal steps to acquire title to all property against which there are tax assessment judgments. At the request of City Attorney Mitchell, the city comptroller has prepared a statement showing the descriptions of property forfeited to the city by reason of tax assessment sales. This statement comprises 72 pages with from 20 to 25 descriptions on each page, making between 1500 and 1800 pieces of property that appear to have been forfeited to the city.

Mr. Mitchell says that he has not footed up the total amount necessary to redeem this property, but it is quite large and some of the descriptions probably have other assessments against them, sufficient in amount to make it questionable as to whether or not the owners will redeem, but in most instances the property will probably be redeemed if the owner understands that the city expects to either enforce payment or acquire title to the property.

The city attorney suggests that it would be desirable to have the city comptroller authorized to secure bids for furnishing the name of the owner appearing on the record of each description of this property, with a view to notifying either by public advertising or by personal notice with postal card, or both, the owners of these pieces of property, that unless they redeem within a specified length of time, the city will proceed to enforce its right to the forfeiture of the lands.

By making a few test cases to quit title on lots representing the different judgments now held by the city, it is said that the city's title would be established and the matter gotten into such shape that the city will be able to realize upon its assets.

The city attorney says that within the last few months assignments on lists of property were obtained by Fayette Clark, which according to common report enabled that gentleman to exact from the owners, in many instances, several times the amount of the city's claim against the property, and in most instances the owners were anxious to settle on whatever terms they could. "If this is to be done by a private party," says the city attorney, "I see no reason why the owners should not be glad to settle, if their attention were called to it by the city."

HIGH SCHOOL PICNIC.

The Class of 1900 Has Its Final Gathering.

The senior class of 1900 of the Duluth high school held a picnic Tuesday on Park Point. The object of this outing was to get the class together for the last time and enjoy the many pleasures offered by a picnic. Principal and Mrs. C. A. Smith, and Mr. Abbott chaperoned. A bountiful supper which was noticeable for the lack of spoons and abundance of bananas was served. After the repast a huge fire was built on the lake shore and those who did not seek pleasure in rowboats, gathered around this and merrily passed the time by relating such wonderful things as ghost stories and their experiences. But the dulcet symphony of "Ma Hannah Lady" lured them one by one to a pavillion where the remainder of the time was spent in dancing. It was a tired crowd that started for home and a happy one, although the thought would come that this was the last gathering of the glorious class of 1900, and that it was the breaking of the pleasant ties of friendship that had been so strong for four years. Those present were:

Misses Maude French, Myrtle Jefferey, Edith Sjoberg, Emma Black, Willietta Dolan, Jaennie Mann, Sadie Mondschine, Lizzie Merritt, Rosa Melnhardt, Louise Hopkins, Bertha Jones, Alice Lautenschlager, Tillie Goodwin, Corah Colbrath, Marie Starkson, Halvarda Stendahl, Edith Sturm, Mary Jamieson, Louise Lowe, Carrie Peterson, Miss Tyler, of Brainerd; Minnie Yager, Florence Jacques.

Maccabees' Election.

In Hunter's hall last night Granite Tent No. 52, K. O. T. M., held its semi-annual election of officers, at which the following were chosen: Charles M. Polinsky, sir knight commander; F. W. Hendee, lieutenan; commander; D. B. Rosenbitt, record keeper; Robert Krofanker, finance keeper; J. M. Robinson, physician; Andrew Johnson, chaplain; T. S. Kiely, master-at-arms; E. S. Woolfan, sergeant; L. H. Helstein, Jr., first master of the guard; N. O. Bain, second master of the guard; Louis Kassmir, sentinel; R. P. Hill, picket; and H. Faver, trustee for one year.

PEACE PREVAILS.

Fire Board Consents to Send Small Engine to West Duluth.

There was certainly a white-winged peace conference at the city hall last evening between Fire Commissioners McDowell, Abrahamson and Bagley and Aldermen Krumsieg, Cromwell and Haven. It was called for settling the West Duluth fire engine matter, and from all accounts itwas settled just as the board of fire commissioners said it would be settled long, long ago.

The board informed the aldermen that while they were of the opinion that no engine was needed at West Duluth, yet, in the interest of harmony, the board would send a small engine to hall No. 8, providing the council would appropriate the money for the additional expense from some fund other than the fire department fund. Still the board recommended to the council that no engine be sent, but that four men be added to the present company at West Duluth, which would furnish a force adequate to handle the ladders and two streams from the hydrants, which the commissioners say can throw a volume of water sufficient for any fire that may occur in West Duluth without an engine.

It is now up to the council to wind up the fight, for this is certainly an ultimatum on the part of the commissioners.

The board and the council committee also held an informal talk about removing the fire and police alarm system from the poles of the Duluth Telephone company to those of the Zenith City company. The bitter words against the fire commissioners which found expression in Monday night's council proceedings were apparently caused by misunderstanding as to the intents and purposes of the position of the board. The aldermen were told that there was no disposition on the part of the commissioners to overlook the three resolutions of the council instructing them to remove the wires, but that they were ready to move them over to the poles of the Zenith company at any time the council should designate and appropriate the money for carrying on the work. It is said that this work will require ninety days and will cost over $3000.

THE VOLUBLE MR. CURRAN.

His Mother Turns Up and Pathetically Begs For His Release.

In police court this morning, John Dunning, the house prowler and "human wardrobe," arrested by Detective Irvine last Saturday, was examined on a charge of larceny and bound over to the grand jury which meets in September. His bail was fixed at $500 and his picture was fixed in a conspicuous place in the "beauty collection" at headquarters. Dunning was examined on the complaint of Emil Bostrom, of 118½ Third avenue west, charging him with stealing a $24 suit of clothes and sundry other things on June 8. The prisoner broke down and wept large murky tears just before he was led into the court room, but the sympathy dodge didn't work. He was also recognized as the man that entered apartments in the Hammond block at West Superior last Thursday. When two women found him there and sought information as to why he was going through their bureau drawers, he assaulted them.

H. G. Curran, the ragtime vaudeville artist who was locked up yesterday noon while suffering from an overdose of loquacity, was arraigned as an ordinary drunk. All yesterday afternoon and long into the night he kept the other prisoners in convulsions of laughter with his stump speeches. He told a very pathetic tale of how he traveled across the continent "with Mark Hanna, of the East and Marcus Daly of the West," he riding on the roof of a Pullman sleeper and they occupying apartments underneath. But this morning he had sobered down considerably, and when he was taken into court he was as quiet as West Superior. The authorities from across the bay were not inclined to push the case against him for stealing a cash register, and the court imposed a 10-day sentence for drunkenness.

As the prisoner was being escorted back to jail, a woman tottering with age and heavily veiled, pushed her way in behind the judge's desk and, with tears running down both cheeks, she begged the court to suspend sentence. She said that Curran was her son, and that he was a good boy when he let drink alone, but "lately he had gone clear out of his head entirely." The woman's pitiable condition appealed to the sympathy of the court, and after consulting with the police, Curran was released.

The aged mother said that they had just come from Butte, Mon., and were expecting to visit a brother of hers in Crookston, but on arriving there found that the brother had died several months ago. They had enough money to get to Duluth, and the "boy" got to drinking. She promised to take care of him and not let him get in trouble again.

Jerald Newton and Homer Cook, two small boys, were charged with assaulting a smaller boy named Thomas Dillon and their hearings were set for tomorrow morning. Oscar Carlson forfeited $10 bail for drunkenness, and R. M. Coder, on the same charge, was locked up for ten days.

THE DELEGATES RETURN.

Duluthians Well Pleased With Federation of Labor Convention.

Early this morning the Duluth delegation returned from the eighteenth annual convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor at Red Wing. A more thoroughly pleased delegation would be hard to find. William E. McEwen was given a splendid endorsement in the shape of a unanimous re-election to the office of secretary and treasurer of the State Federation and there was not a single Duluth delegate but that received a prominent place on every special or standing committee appointed. William Tunnell of the local Meat Cutters' union was assistant secretary of the convention and the returning delegates say that Secretary McEwen made one of the most remarkable and able addresses ever delivered before the state convention.

The Duluth delegation consisted of John McMurchy, A. W. Jones, Joseph Kreager and Gordon O'Neil, representing the Federated Trades assembly; William McEwen, representing the Plumbers' union; William Tunnell, the Meat Cutters' union; H. Dumont, the 'Longshoremen's union; George W. Davis, S. M. Kiley and Edward Lowe, the Carpenters' union; William Longstreet, the Theatrical Stage Employes' union, and Clifford Higgins, the Building Trades' council and the Electrical Workers' union.

All got back except William Longstreet, who stopped off in Minneapolis for a few days. The boys gave W. E. McEwen a great send off during the convention when they learned by telegram from here that a son had been born to he and Mrs. McEwen.

In discussing the affairs of the convention the local men said that it was the largest and most successful in the history of the state labor movement. They received splendid treatment at the hands of the citizens of Red Wing, and the convention decided to go to Mankato for the next convention.

About the most important thing in the way of resolutions, according to the Duluth contingent, was one declaring for the collective ownership of all means of production and distribution. By this is meant that when industries become so centralized that they assume the form of a trust, and become a menace to the people, the government should take control and operate it in the intrest of all the people.

The convention also adopted a resolution appointing a committee to investigate the good and bad effects resulting from the action of the Colorado State Federation of Labor going into politics and nominating a state ticket.

The Democratic Primaries.

Democratic primaries were held last evening throughout the city for the selection of delegates to the county convention to be held tomorrow afternoon at the city hall. This convention will select delegates to the state convention at St. Paul, which in its turn will select delegates from Minnesota to the Kansas City convention. There were no contests last night, and the primaries were quiet.

VIRGINIA RELIEF

Total of Subscriptions to the Fund Runs More Than $3000.

THE LIST OF DONORS

Duluth has done handsomely in the way of relief for the fire sufferers at Virginia. The members of the committee who had charge of the soliciting of funds raised more than $3000. The Oliver Mining company heads the list with the very handsome donation of $500.

The list of contributions is given below. Besides these cash contributions, there were large donations of supplies, clothing, etc. Many good deeds were done which cannot be acknowledged through the newspapers because they were so many that it would be impossible to keep track of them. For instance, when the appeal for help came, the people of Woodland chartered a street car and sent a load of supplies down immediately, this being one of the first responses. It was especially valuable, for it came at a time when the committee was very much in need of just what was sent. Rev. R. A. Montgomery was responsible for much of this good work. The Lakeside and Lester Park ladies also did nobly and throughout the city generally there was a fine spirit.

N. J. Miller went to Virginia this morning and will look after the distribution of supplies there.

Of the money subscribed, all but $1500, has been paid in and this amount is due from such sources as make it certain that there will be less than $100 not collected and there may not be a cent outstanding. The list of subscriptions is as follows:

Class Banquet Held.

On Tuesday evening the class of S. S. Williamson of the First Presbyterian Sunday school gave a banquet in honor of several of the class who were going to leave the city. It was a banquet in the full sense of the word, for there was a flow of wit and wisdom, as well as a plenty of the things to satisfy the inner man. Toasts were responded to by several members of the class and altogether the occasion was one long to be remembered by the twenty-four members of the class.

THE CHANDLER MINE.

Capt. Pengilly Denies Rumor It Will Be Closed.

Ely, Minn., June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A rumor is being circulated around town this week to the effect that the Chandler Iron company contemplate closing down its mine at this place within the near future. However, Capt. Pengilly, manager of the mine, denies the rumor, and says that shaft No. 2, which was closed down Tuesday for repairs, would be put in operation again in the very near future. The closing down of the Chandler mine would throw out of employment fully 500 men, and the town is considerably worked up over the report.

A new Catholic church is now under construction at this place, and when completed will cost about $1500. The dimensions of the structure are 50 by 113 feet, with a tower 100 feet high. The Ely Catholic parish has a membership of 2500, and this number is being rapidly increased.

ATTITUDE OF JAPAN.

Not Likely to Act Against Great Britain's Interest.

London, June 13.—In regard to the reports that Japan is about to declare war on China, it was learned by a representative of the Associated Press at the Japanese embassy today that the attitude of Japan in the Chinese crisis is to co-operate loyally with the European powers in the existing situation. Japan would not be willing to see any single power take the lead.

The murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation at Pekin is regarded as likely to lead to serious complications, but no decision has been reached by Japan as to what political measures will be necessary to meet the situation.

Relative to the reports that the Japanese minister at Pekin is pressing for the recognition of a Japanese sphere of influence to include the provinces of the Kiang, for Kien and Kaing Si, it is pointed out that Japan has already obtained a promise that the province of Fo Kien should not be alienated while Kaing Si, situated at the mouth of Yang Tse river, is in the British empire.

Japan is not likely to take a step which might be distasteful to Great Britain, whose interests in China are similar to those of Japan.

EDUCATION IN BUSINESS.

The great difficulty of higher education expended upon improper material is that it educates a man away from the rugged and hard struggle that is needed for business success, says Success. A liberal education makes one man, and spoils another. The difference is a question of character. The business world is full of prizes for the brainy man, and education will teach such a one to use his brains to the best advantage.

MAKING THE BEST OF THE PARIS FAIR

Much Grumbling Among Early Visitors at the Failure of the Wheels to Turn and Americans Turn to Sousa's Music For Consolation.

Paris, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pictorially the Paris exposition may be a sight for the gods, but to the plain sightseer, it must be confessed, there are disappointments. The advantage that the artist and the photographer who levelled his camera at the buildings in the early stages of the work of building the exposition, had over the visitor who sees it today is that the buildings are so crowded together, so hidden and almost lost in the general jumble that their individual beauty is cloaked, and those who come prepared to find that the artist has underdrawn rather than overdrawn the gorgeousness of the picture are conscious of a sense of resentment against some one. The late comers will be the best off and the best pleased, for the putting of that everlasting "finishing touch" on the exposition is still progressing after the leisurely manner in which everything is done here.

The grumblers are mostly the Americans. The Europeans, and especially the French visitors, are delighted with everything, or affect to be. Apparently they can close their eyes to the fact that all things are not ready, and unlikely soon to be, and make the most of what is. After all there is so much that is interesting that the shortcomings should not stand out with glaring prominence. What more could visitors desire than to sit and lazily watch the sluggish Seine, while listening to the music discoursed by the band of the only Sousa? It makes amends for the disappointment over the delay in starting the wheels moving at the American building. The Americans came over brimful of expectancy and pride over the wonderful showing that the machinery of the United States was to make at the exposition; they had told each other that they were going to open the eyes of the Old-World visitors to the exposition with their magnificent machinery, en route for the exposition gates at the opening they had explained to any one interested that the sight of the American machinery in motion would be the most remarkable at the fair. And they arrived to find that the bulk of the machinery was still on the cars, waiting the opportunity to be unloaded, and that the power that moved the wheels of the exposition was not in working order and would not be for some time, so that, even though the French workmen could be induced to hustle the exhibits into place by working double time, the machinery would still stand silent and motionless for want of power. Machinery that does not move, it must be confessed, is robbed of more than half its attractiveness.

The chief hardship of this backwardness falls, of course, on the visitor, whose time is limited, and who has chosen, or been obliged to select, the opening month for his or her vacation, instead of waiting for the more propitious time when the exhibits will have shaken into shape. The permanent American colony and the residents of Paris can afford to wait, and these are satisfied with everything as it stands. As they point out to the discontented ones, there is much that is finished that possesses a wealth of interest. Old Paris is worth a day's study in itself. This feature of the exposition, in which the city is seen as it appeared in that dark and uncomfortable period that is usually referred to by writers who wish to round off a sentence as the "good old days," acquires its chief attractiveness to the American from the object-lesson it affords of the discomforts of other days and the satisfaction of living in a country and in an age that boasts of all the modern improvements. The visitors from the United States delight to wander through Old Paris and congratulate themselves on being born several centuries after that variety of town had ceased to exist. The Swiss village, with its quaint chateaus and prettily designed streets, attracts thousands daily, and is a favorite redezvous for sightseers who are not particularly interested in the purely industrial features of the exposition. The "oddities" of the exposition are in fact much more in favor with the general run of visitors than the beautiful and the useful, such as sculpture and machinery. There is always a huge crowd around the Oriental idols and in the Eastern pavilions, and the admiration that is showered upon the low-roofed, pagoda-shaped structures of the Chinese quarter exceed that reserved for the splendid buildings in which are housed the exhibits of the great nations.

Many of the American visitors were present at the Chicago Fair, and it is difficult to get them to go into paroxysms of delight in which those to whom a great exposition is a new thing indulge at the sight of the buildings, and the magnitude of the fair. But the side shows are attractive to the most blase sightseer, and the fair, here has more than enough of these to satisfy the most exacting taste. There is no particular spot in which the sights of the "Midway" can be seen, as at Chicago. The features that have been named "Midway sights" ever since the days of the Chicago Fair are to be seen all the world of odd corners at the exposition. They divide the honors with the freakish "idea exhibits," the good old Eiffel tower and the Russian pavilion, which is a great favorite, and where excellent music draws large crowds. Later this will be but a small attraction, for the American exhibit will be in full swing, and Americans predict that other sights will be dimmed. It is a pity, though, that the swing could not have begun coincidently with the swinging of the exposition gates.

LITTLE SERVIA'S BIG BUILDING AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

The architect of the Servian building seems to be inspired by some of the religious monuments of his native land. The building is distinctly ecclesiastical in appearance, with one large central hall and four other spacious apartments opening into it, each surmounted by a hemispherical dome.

SAVED HER BEAUTY.

A most unique operation was performed at the Receiving hospital tonight when Dr. W. S. Porter grafted a piece of skin from her forearm on the cheek of Miss Rosie James, a pretty girl, who was recently injured in a street car accident, says an Oakland Cal., special to the San Francisco Bulletin.

The girl was a guest at a trolly party, which was returning from Berkeley. The car was full of people, and she was standing on a step at the rear end. At Twenty-eight and Grove streets another car passed them, and Miss James was struck with such force that she was thrown through the glass end of the car. She was taken to the Receiving hospital, and it was there found that her face was a mass of lacerations. All the wounds, however, healed except one in the cheek, and it was found that if this one were allowed to close it would distort her features in a frightful manner. Dr. Porter was called in and he decided to adopt heroic measures, which he claims will not destroy the contour of the pretty young woman's face.

Pursuant to his plan Dr. Porter, assisted by Drs. Stratton, Rowe, Ewer and Sanborn, this evening cut from the girl's forearm a piece of skin two and a half by four inches, leaving a small part of it attached to the arm to continue circulation. This skin was grafted on the wounded cheek, and a plaster of paris cast made for the arm to hold it in position until the skin attaches itself to the cheek. The arm will be left in the plaster cast for four days, when the piece of skin will be severed from the arm and allowed to remain permanently upon the cheek. The operation is attracting considerable attention in medical circles, and the result is eagerly awaited.

NATURAL LIGHTHOUSES.

Stromboli, one of the Lipari Island, has constantly and usefully performed the function of a lighthouse for at least 3000 years. Circular in outline, the island culminates in a conical shaped elevation due to past volcanic agency, which rises to the height of 3000 feet above sea level, and is visable over an area having a radius of more than 100 miles. During the day masses of vapor are seen issuing from a point high up the mountain side, and at night successive displays of red light, varying in duration and intensity, somewhat resemble a gigantic flashlight on the coast. The flashes last from under one to over twenty minutes, gradually fading away. This is land is referred to by several very ancient writers as the great natural Pharos of the Western Mediterranean. Now it serves the same purpose, for the constant stream of traffic passing to and from the French and Italian ports in the Gulfs of Genoa and of Lyons, through the Straits of Messina, for which Stromboli acts as a "leading" light. To such an extent is this the case that, although the other principal islands of the Lipari archipelago are marked by lighthouses, nothing of the kind is placed upon Stromboli.

—AT THE—

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH,

Friday Evening, June 15th at 8 o'clock. Assisted by local talent. Tickets 25 cents.

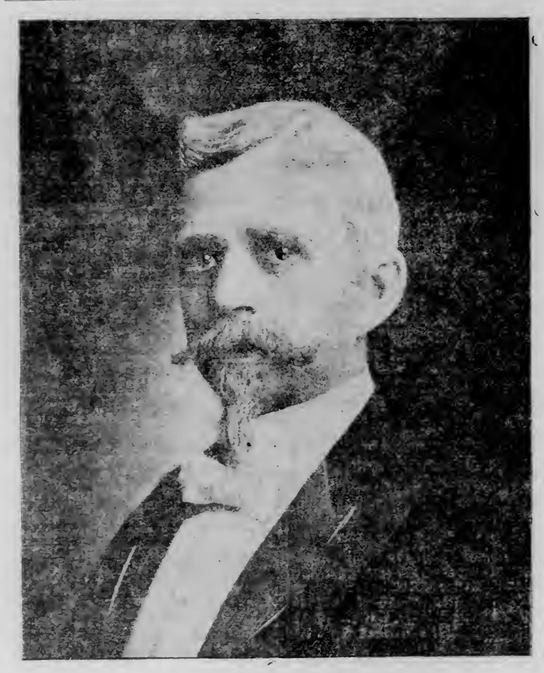
TO OPEN FRIDAY

Annual Session of Commercial Travelers' Council to Be Held Here.

TWO DAYS' PROGRAM

Local Council Arranges For the Reception of a Great Body.

On Friday the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota will convene in this city at 10 o'clock in the morning. At that time it is expected that there will be about 1500 traveling men here from the three states. The genial gentlemen who travel the Northwest will be most welcome guests, and that they will have an interesting time and no end of fun goes without saying, for where is there a class of men who can have better times than they? The annual meeting is an event which draws them all, and every one of them makes an effort to get here, and regards it as a serious disappointment if he cannot come. The wholesale houses take active interest in it too, and there is every reason to believe that it will be a success.



E. F. HOLBROOK, OF MINNEAPOLIS.
Grand Councilor, U. C. T., Minnesota-Dakotas.

J. M. DRESSER, OF ST. PAUL.
Grand Secretary, Minnesota and Dakotas.

The local council has been busy for months making preparations for the entertainment of the visitors, and has completed arrangements which will make the stay of the visitors a most pleasant one. There is reason to believe that their stay will seem to them a very short one.

The program for the two days is as follows:

FRIDAY.

10:30 a. m.—Meeting and roll call of Grand Council.

1:30 p. m.—Business session Grand Council.

2:30 to 4 p. m.—Ladies' reception Ladies of Zenith Council will tender a reception to visiting ladies at Elks' hall.

8 p. m.—Entertainment at Lyceum theater.

SATURDAY.

9 a. m.—Business session Grand Council.

12:30 a. m.—Initiation of candidates.

10 a. m.—Carriage ride for ladies.

2 p. m.—Excursion on lake.

8:30 p. m.—Ball at Armory.

The grand jurisdiction of the Minnesota-Dakotas has the largest membership of any associated with the order except the Ohio jurisdiction, numbering 2015 members. The councils and their memberships are as follows:

Zenith council No. 40, Duluth, Minn., C. W. Sutton, secretary, 107.

Saintly City council No. 50, St. Paul, J. M. Dresser, secretary, 400.

The work of preparing for the coming of this great meeting has fallen on the local council, and the members have been giving it their attention and labor for several months; in fact, they began to lay plans a year ago, when they first secured the gathering for this city. The officers of Zenith council are: Paul Reimer, senior councilor; Henry Gujer, past councilor; W. N. Donaldson, junior councilor; Charles Parker, conductor; E. M. Kelley, page; A. L. Bayless, sentinel.

The traveling men will begin to arrive tomorrow, and by tomorrow evening there will doubtless be a large crowd of them here. Friday morning will see large delegations come in also, and by Friday night almost the entire attendance will be in, and they will remain until Sunday. The time has been filled with entertainment for them, and there is reason to believe that this will be the largest convention gathering that Duluth has ever had.

GERMANY IN THE ORIENT.

Consular Agent Harris Reports on Germany's Eastern Trade.

Washington, June 13.—Until recently Germany has taken no great part in the commercial development of China, but with the acquisition of a "sphere of influence," together with industrial concessions of various kinds, German interestes in China and Japan aggregate a figure close to $80,000,000, according to Consular Agent Ernest L. Harris, at Elbenstock, in a report to the state department. "In 1898, German exports to China amounted to $10,424,000. The imports into Germany from China for the same year were $5,164,000. There are about 105 German warehouses in China of a total value of about $30,000,000, which render material assistance to German trade. These houses ship great cargoes of tea, rice and feathers to Germany, in return for machinery and iron products of every description. In Shanghai, there are German cotton and silk mills to the value of $1,000,000, and a German-Asiatic bank in that city does business with a capital of about $2,000,000. The interests of private individuals of German nationality in China are valued at $2,000,000. German capital to about $18,000,000 is invested in a great many English enterprises—the docks, shipping and insurance companies of Shanghai.

In Japan there are sixty-five German warehouses carrying on business with an aggregate capital of $5,000,000. German industrial enterprises in Japan are valued at $3,000,000, while $2,000,000, divided about evenly, has been invested in Formosa, which is ruled by Japan, and with Japan's "sphere of influence" in Korea.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Congress Acting to Suppress Their Sale.

The report of the Senate Committee on Manufactures upon the subject of food adulterations and food frauds has created a sensation in Congress and awakened great interest throughout the country.

If there could be published a list of the names of all articles of food found by the Committee to be adulterated, or made from poisonous ingredients, it would be of inestimable value to the public.

The recommendation of the Committee, that the sale of alum baking powders be prohibited by law, will make of special interest the following list of names of baking powders containing alum sold in this vicinity:

J. C. .....
K. C. ....Contain Alum.
Manf. by Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.
CALUMET ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago.
PALACE ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Palace Baking Powder Co., St. Paul.
CAMEO ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Cameo Baking Powder Co., Chicago.
BON BON
HOTEL ....Contain Alum.
Manf. by Grant Chemical Co., Chicago.
BENGAL ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Griggs, Cooper & Co., St. Paul.
ATLAS ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Reid, Murdock & Co., Chicago.
CHAPMAN'S
CHICAGO YEAST ....Contain Alum.
Manf. by Chapman & Smith Co., Chicago.
EDDY'S ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Eddy & Eddy, St. Louis.
SUPERIOR .... Contains Alum.
Manf. by Superior Baking Powder Co., St. Paul.
UNRIVALED ....Contains Alum.
Manf. by Sprague, Warner & Co., Chicago.
PUHL'S SWEET BISCUIT .....
....Contains Alum.

It is unfortunate that many manufacturers of alum baking powders, even some in the above list, falsely state that their powders do not contain alum. It is only right that consumers should have correct information as to the character of every article of food offered to them.

DULUTH'S EARLY DAYS.

Last night's meeting of the Duluth Historical and Scientific association was very interesting, in spite of the fact that the program was split in two and part of it went over to the next meeting. The part that went over was H. W. Pearson's paper on "The Oscillations of the Sea in Historic Times." This paper was to have been given last night, but Mr. Pearson was called out of the city, and Dr. Codding, the president of the association, thought is best to wait until the paper could have the benefit of its author's delivery. In passing he paid a very high compliment to Mr. Pearson as an independent and original thinker and scientist.

Judge Ensign read the first result of the inquiries he has set afoot for local history. It was a paper by Miss Henrietta C. Smith, of St. Paul, on the life of her father, James Smith, Jr., one of the builders of the St. Paul & Duluth, and therefore of the city of Duluth. The paper went entertainingly into the full history of the road, and gave some interesting side lights on the conditions of Duluth and the Northwest in those days.

At the conclusion of the reading of the paper it was unanimously decided to extend to Miss Smith the thanks of the association for her careful and interesting work, and the secretary was instructed to forward a letter conveying the expression of the association.

In the discussion that followed the paper, Proctor Knott's speech was brought out. It had nothing to do with the St. Paul & Duluth road, but it was made in opposition to a grant of land for a road from the St. Croix to Bayfield, and thence to West Superior. Judge Ensign's recollection was that the people of Duluth were opposd to the bill, and that there was a lobby from Duluth in Washington against it. What Duluth wanted was not a road to Bayfield or Superior, but a road to Duluth.

"The funny part of the Knott speech," said R. C. Mitchell, "was that it had just the opposite effect from what was intended. A Kentucky syndicate had investments in Superior, and through those associations Proctor Knott tended toward being friendly with Superior and hostile to Duluth. Then the land grant that was to benefit Superior came up, and under the impression that it was Duluth that was benefitting by it he heaped loads of sarcasm and irony upon it, and his witty speech killed the bill."

"That speech became a great bone to Duluth people, however," said Judge Ensign. "They heard of it wherever they went, and it was a source of some mortification to those who could not stand a joke. I remember not long after that that I went to an Eastern city, and I had hardly arrived before a loud-voiced individual came up. 'Is your name Ensign?' he asked. I said it was. 'Then you're from Duluth,' he continued, and then, in the presence of quite a crowd, he began to recite Proctor Knott's speech."

O. H. Simonds consented to speak briefly on some iron subject at the next meeting. Judge Ensign said that D. G. Cash, who was present, had had some experiences that should be committed to paper, and upon being pressed by the members of the society he consented to have a paper for the August meeting. It is hoped that Mr. Pearson will be present at the next meeting to give his paper on "The Oscillations of the Sea."

LIMITED DERAILED.

Leetonia, Ohio, June 13.—A broken flange on the tender of the locomotive drawing the eastbound Pennsylvania limited derailed part of the train one mile west of this city at 4 o'clock this morning. The mail clerk of one of the front cars was injured but not seriously. None of the passengers were hurt.

FINDS FOR SAMPSON

WAS IN THE FIGHT

Court Declares the New York Was Among the Vessels Engaged.

Washington, June 13.—The United States court of claims has passed upon the suit of Admiral W. T. Sampson and others under his command at Santiago for prize money on account of the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

> The court declares that Admiral Sampson was the commander-in-chief and that Commodore Schley was the commanding officer of a division or squadron thereof, on duty under the orders of Admiral Simpson.

The Spanish squadron is found by the court to have been inferior to the American force, and a bounty of $100, therefore, was awarded for every officer and man under Admiral Cervera's command.

The total amount of bounty money allowed is $166,709, of which Admiral Sampson will receive $8325, and Admiral Schley about $3000. Beside finding that Admiral Sampson was in command during the battle, the court declares that the New York was among the vessels engaged.

DAVIS TALKS.

The Senator Speaks on Our Foreign Relations at Pennsylvania University.

Philadelphia, June 13.—The feature of Alumni day at the University of Pennsylvania was an address by Senator C. K. Davis, of Minnesota, on "The Foreign Relations of the United States." He said in part:

"The foreign policy of this country has usually been of that formal character which consists in negotiating those conventions which maintain the peaceful intercourse of states. We have followed, with very few exceptions, the wise advice of Washington, not to involve ourselves in entangling alliances with European states, and to preserve our peculiar isolation from their political concerns has been the line upon which our foreign relations have been conducted. We have been too remote and our latent power has been too great to be attacked, or even made the subject of serious diplomatic aggression by European states, singly or in combination.

"As to any expansion of our dominions, it has never been asserted by the most adverse critic of our institutions that the cause of civilization and human freedom would not be thereby promoted.

"I think it can be safely said that they who once threatened intervention between the United States and Spain abandoned that desire very quickly after the momentous events of Manilla and Santiago, and will never again entertain the design of a similar intrusion under any circumstances that we can now imagine.

"I believe that these victories have done more to assure the peace of the world than all of the alliances and international concerts which have been effected during the last fifty years."

With regard to the partition of China, Senator Davis said the United States would command the greatest part of the commerce with the Chinese Orient.

MRS. MONTFORT'S VISIT.

A company of St. Paul women, members of the St. Paul Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, accompanied Mrs. D. A. Montfort to Duluth yesterday. She was recently appointed state regent of tht order and her visit here is one of inspection. She also desires to get acquainted with her fellow workers. Those who accompanied her were: Mesdames, J. B. Beals, J. C. Hill, E. R. Sanford, Bacheler, H. W. Woods, M. W. Fay and Miss Carpenter. Mrs. Edward H. Gheen, of Washington, was also here.

They attended a metting of Daughters of Liberty Chapter yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Ensign, 504 East Second street. A very interesting paper was read by Mrs. Dutton in regard to Miss Dolly Madison. Two vocal selections were rendered by Miss McLaren.

Mrs Montfort gave a little informal talk. She spoke of her ernest desire to work for the interests of the society. The speakers remarks were warmly appreciated. Mrs. J. B. Beals also read a very interesting paper on the Washington National University which was also highly appreciated.

This afternoon Mrs. Montfort will meet the members of the Greysolon Du Lhut chapter at the home of Mrs. Winton 1509 East First street. The party will return home Thursday.

A "CHANGE" BRREAKFAST.

Getting Ready For Warm Weather.

A complete change in breakfast would, at this time of year, improve the health of anyone.

Meat, potatoes and coffee become tiresome. The system calls for a change, but what to? Hot and half cooked pastry and starchy cereals are unattractive.

Vegetables taste good but furnish too little nourishment to sustain one until the next meal, particularly if brain work is required.

A most appetizing, convenient and healthful breakfast can be made on Grape-Nuts, (a ready cooked food), a little cream or milk, some fruit, and perhaps two soft eggs.

Pint tin cup of sharply boiling water, put in two eggs, not one, nor three, cover and set off stove, serve in just nine minutes. Whites will be like cream and half digested). The Grape-Nuts food is concentrated, and but three or four teaspoons should be used at one meal, that amount furnishes full strength and nourishment up to the next.

A change from the old breakfast to one like this will refresh and invigorate the system in a surprising manner.

Marquette's Council Raises the Tax Levy---Calumet & Hecla Fire.

Marquette—The common council last night voted the annual budget, making the tax for the current year $65,000, or 20 per cent over last year. The raise is caused by a levy of $12,000 for a school board building fund to go towards rebuilding the burned high school. The aldermen have decided to get in line with the progressive cities, and will equip themselves with badges to show their police power.

The Ladies' auxiliary of the Episcopalian diocesan convention is in session here. Delegates are in attendance from all over the peninsula. Miss Emery, the national secretary, is here.

Houghton—A party that descended No. 3 shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine to investigate, has reported the air impure and some gas, but not in sufficient quantities to cause bad effects. It is believed the fire is now out, but the company is very cautious and will go slow with the investigations.

Ishpeming—Dr. E. W. Fiske, city librarian and for thirty years a resident of this county, is dead from the infirmities of old age.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—A fire at Hickson, sixteen miles south of Fargo on the C. M. & St. P. road proved disastrous to that little village. Being without fire protection there was no means of fighting the fire which continued as long as there was anything to feed upon. The Crown elevator was burned, also the depot, Western Union Telegraph office and United States Express office. The loss could not be learned, but is practically total, as little could be removed. The origin is a mystery, but it is supposed to be from the presence of tramps, who are known to have been about the building during the afternoon.

General sorrow is felt over the death of Mrs. Luger, the wife of F. Luger, a well known business man. She had been ill for a few days with an attack of pneumonia. She leaves a family of two sons and five daughters. One of the latter is Mrs. Trautman, of Wabasha, Minn.

Jamestown—Friends of Brakemen Keller and Bodley, who were arrested at Bismarck charged with an attempt to kill Johr, a Hungarian who was stealing a ride on a Northern Pacific train, claim that the men are guiltless of the crime. Keller and Bodley were released under $600 bonds. Both have resided in Jamestown for a number of years and bear good reputations. Italians working in the yards saw the men at work on freight No. 52. It is claimed, at the time that John was struck on the head.

Dickinson—The Republicans of the Thirty-first legislative district, nominated Attorney L. A. Simpson for the senate, and William McClure for the house. The convention was harmonious.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Larimore—Eleven teams in all from different parts of the state are attending the state firemen's tournament here, as follows: Wahpeton, Lisbon, Park River, Lakota, Bismarck, Grand Forks, Grafton, Mandan, Valley City, Mayville and Michigan City.

Grand Forks—The sixth annual tournament of the North Dakota States Sportsmen's association is in progress here. Following the state shoot a two-day tournament will be held, Thursday and Friday, and the combined events, lasting four days, will be the biggest thing of the kind ever held in the Northwest.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—An inch and a quarter of rain fell here last evening in less than half an hour, breaking the longest drouth period since 1891. The storm covered all of Beadle county and will freshen pastures and benefit crops. Some hail fell and a house was struck by lightning but no serious damage was done.

Miller—Prominent persons of Fort Pierre, who have been in Minnesota after cattle and who were driving them home overland, were arrested her and taken back to Clark, charged with stealing cattle. A woman was in the party.

Pierre—Governor Lee has appointed as game and fish wardens W. P. Connors, of Jefferson, for Union county, and A. N. Decker, of Howdie, for Edmunds.

THE TELEPHONE MEN.

Association Addressed By President and Discusses Papers.

Cleveland, June 13.—At the opening of today's session of the National Independent Telephone association, President Thomas delivered his annual address, after which the following papers were read and discussed: "Toll Line Traffic," J. R. Ware, Grand Rapids, Mich., general manager Citizens' Telephone company; "Telephone Development," E. L. Barber, Wauseon, Ohio, president Northwestern Telephone Construction company; "Telephone Investments," Hon. Hugh Dougherty, Bluffton, Ind., president United Telephone and Telegraph company; "Our Duty to One Another," Hon. C. W. Kline, Philadelphia, printer State Telephone and Telegraph company; "Telephone Construction," James E. Stewart, on "Telephone, Telegraph and Cable Companies."

This afternoon the ladies attending the convention will be given a tally-ho ride through the parks and boulevards of the city. This evening the delegates and visitors will be entertained at one of the summer gardens.

GAGE WILL DRAW MORE.

States What He Will Call For From Depositors.

New York, June 13.—Secretary Gage was asked, says a Washington special to the Herald, if he would continue withdrawing government funds from national depositories, and if this action meant that the money stringency had disappeared.

"These funds," said he, "will be withdrawn from the depositories in proportion to the amounts deposited until $25,000,000 has been turned into the treasury for the purpose of paying for the 2 per cent bonds which will be redeemed shortly. Yes, this is a sign that the money stringency has disappeared, but a still better one is the fact that money is plentiful in New York at 1½ per cent.

"I cannot tell whether any more than $25,000,000 will be called in. If the condition of the treasury requires it this will be done.

"No, I cannot say whether any of the special depositories will be abolished. There is one thing certain—it is not the intention of the department to take any of the money out of these depositories and place it in the vaults of the treasury where it will do no one any good. It will be left where it is if needed.

"If conditions demand, and it becomes necessary, more money will be placed in these institutions during the fall, when the movement of the crops begins, and a great deal of money is needed for that purpose."

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

President Neary and Secretary McEwan Were Re-Elected.

Red Wing, Minn., June 13.—The State Federation of Labor re-elected the old officers yesterday afternoon, as follows: President, M. G. Neary, of Minneapolis; first vice president, Miss Lenora Michaelson, of Minneapolis; second vice president, L. L. Mundahl, of Red Wing; secretary-treasurer, William E. McEwen, of Duluth.

The resolution as to seating Matt R. Sorrell of the State Liquor Dealers' Retail association as an honorary member was favorably reported by the committee to which it was referred. The resolution was finally adopted after a warm debate—89 to 4.

The series of resolutions along the line suggested by the annual address of the president were adopted. One favors the use of convict labor in the construction of cycle paths and roads, so as to remove contract labor from competing with free labor. Another favors regulating the hours of labor of mechanics and workingmen by law, and imposing a heavy fine for violation thereof.

An eight-hour law is suggested for municipal and state work. Members of the federation are requested to see that their clothing is marked with the union label. It was resolved also to support establishments hiring union men.

The committee on organization favored a more perfect organization and pushing the work everywhere. If necessary, the fund of the state federation is to be used. This matter was referred to the constitution committee. It was decided that all amendments to the constitution and other weighty matters be referred to the affiliated unions for action.

President Neary's annual address urged a number of reforms. He said that resolutions should be drafted encouraging laboring men to take a more active part in politics and see that men favoring the wage earner be elected to office. The organization of unions in the smaller cities, among them Red Wing, St. Cloud and Rochester, is meeting with success. Efforts to reduce the hours of labor have been gratifying, and the movement will result in success. Shorter hours have raised the standard and bettered the condition of labor. The 8-hour system on public works should be adopted. The question of convict labor is no nearer a solution than ever. The employment of convicts on public roads would solve the problem. The federation should demand of congress legislation against prison-made goods.

Secretary W. E. McEwen, of Duluth, in his annual report, reported that the receipts for the year were $819, of which $457 remained in the treasury. The federation was making its influence felt in all parts of the state and its prospects were bright. The Minneapolis union, with a membership of 800, was credited with being the "banner union."

Bricklayers' Union Organizer Assaulted and Dangerously Wounded In Chicago.

Chicago, June 13.—Michael R. Grady, Western organizer for the International Brick Layers' union and former secretary of the Trades' and Labor assembly, was assaulted by three men last night in front of Bricklayers' hall and left for dead on the sidewalk with a dozen gaping wounds in his face and throat.

Grady was taken to the county hospital by the police, where the attending physicians pronounced his wounds dangerous. His assailants escaped. Grady was about to enter the hall, where a meeting of the union was in progress, when he was pounced upon by the three men. It is claimed that the assault was the result of enmity between two factions in the organization.

CITIES A MENACE

Comptroller Coler, of New York, Says They Present Grave Problems.

TALKS ON POLITICS

Champaign, Ill., June 13.—Comptroller Bird S. Coler, of New York, delivered the principal address at the State university commencement exercises today and some of his statements created a sensation. He said in part:

"The great civic and political problems of this country today were born of the social conditions that exist in the cities, and there the fight for more intelligence and a higher standard of public honesty must be fought and won. No serious danger to American institutions lurks anywhere on the broad and fertile prairies of Illinois or the West, where patriotism is universal and honesty the inherent birthright of every citizen. But in the great cities of the East and West, with their teeming, struggling, restless thousands, who tasting liberty for the first time, are prone to mistake it for the intoxicating license of unreasoning freedom, there are problems that require for their just settlement the wisdom and patience of the best citizenship.

"Corruption in state and municipal government has too long been accepted in this country as a matter of course. There has been a growing tendency among men who were otherwise good citizens to shirk public duties. They wanted to keep out of politics and public life, but, in keeping out, they made room in both places for men who ought to be in jail.

"The spirit of corrupt commercialism has invaded politics and public life in this country, and in some of the larger cities the invasion has for a time overrun the government. By the spirit of commercialism in this connection, I mean that public feeling, far too prevalent in this country, that politics is a business, and that those engaged in it are entitled to make money out of it.

"The old system of stealing from the public treasury has passed away, and the safer and more profitable plan of bartering political influence for stock incorporations has succeeded.

"Bad political government may be tolerated for a time, but corrupt politics and corporate greed in combination call for prompt measures for the protection of the rights of the people. The rapid development of the vast resources of this country has been in a large measure due to legitimate combustion of capital, and the man of influence who opposes corporation without reason becomes a mere stumbling block in the path of progress.

"The time is coming, however, when the grant by a state government of a charter conveying to a corporation special powers and privileges will carry with it the right to inspect and regulate the business created or carried under that grant. This cannot be a hardship upon legitimate business, and it is no more than a proper extension of the power and duty of government.

"But in legislating to correct abuses and to better protect the rights of the people as a whole, the greatest wisdom must be exercised to prevent over-legislation. We are now the most over-governed people on earth, and I fear that much of the excess is due to the efforts of educated men who mean well but are not practical.

"What we want is less government, less politics, more honesty and more intelligence."

BILL APPROVED.

THE CREDIT MEN.

Demand Uniform Insolvency Laws and Endorse Two Bills.

Milwaukee, June 13.—The National Association of Credit Men spent the greater part of today's session in considering committee reports. A resolution offered by the committee on improvements of mercantile agencies was adopted, providing for the keeping of records of the service in a manner prescribed by the committee. The legislative committee reported a long list of resolutions, which were adopted, calling attention to the need of uniform insolvency laws and indorsing the bill now pending in congress amending the bankruptcy act, and known as the "Ray bill." A bill introduced in congress by Senator C. K. Davis to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States is also endorsed, with a slight amendment recommended to be added.

West Duluth

The conference between the fire commissioners and the council committee appointed to settle the question of a fire engine for West Duluth with them was barren of result, so far as definite action goes, but the commissioners indicated their willingness to send the small Silsby engine to West Duluth in case the council would make provision for four more men to handle it. As to the new engine, for which West Duluth has been contending, the commissioners refused flat-footedly to consent to send it to West Duluth.

The Silsby engine referred to has been in use for eight years, but it has recently been undergoing repairs, and the fire commissioners claim that it is now in first-class condition.

AS ANNIOUS AT EVER.

While the question of repaving Central avenue has not been vigorously agitated for some time past, there is no diminution of the ardor of West Duluthians in that behalf. The lull is due to the belief that it is better to wait until the question over the new charter is settled.

In case the new charter goes into effect the city will have an improvement fund of $100,000 at its disposal, which will place it on "Easy street," and no doubt is felt that the claims of West Duluth will be accorded recognition.

In case the city continues to operate under the present charter, the campaign for improvement must be again taken up; axes reground, sandbags restuffed and preparations made to fight it out on the old line.

IN RECEIVER'S HANDS.

Chicago Electric Traction Company Mortgage Foreclosed.

Chicago, June 13.—The Chicago Electric Traction company was today placed in the hands of Charles Hemmin as receiver. The petition was filed by the Manhattan Trust company of New York, and John Kean, of New Jersey, as trustees in the mortgage covering the property. The mortgage is for $850,000 and was made Jan. 2, 1899, to cover the issue of 850 gold bonds.

The company succeeded the Englewood and Chicago Electric Street railway by organization by the stockholders of that company through foreclosure proceedings. In 1895, the Englewood and Chicago line executed a mortgage securing an issue of $2,500,000 bonds. Nine hundred thousand dollars of these were issued and twenty-one and one-half miles of track constructed, together with a power station and equipment. Default was made on payment of the interest on the bonds. The mortgage was foreclosed and a reorganization into the Chicago Electric Traction company followed. The company now operates twenty-nine miles of single track between Chicago and Blue Island. Isaac L. Rice, of New York, is president and other New York men are members of the directory.

THE DOOR MAY CLOSE

Open Door Negotiations With European Powers Are Admittedly Not Conclusive.

POWERS NOT BOUND

Russia's Silence as to Port Arthur Relieves All From Obligation.

New York, June 13.—While they admit that the "open door" negotiations are not as conclusive as Secretary Hay desired, officials of the administration point out that a long step towards the preservation of American treaty rights in the sphere of influence in China have at least been taken. Secretary Hay declined to discuss doubts cast upon the success of negotiations in an article printed in the National Review, written by Robert A. Yerburgh, M. P.

A European diplomat, well informed of every stage of negotiations, thoroughly acquainted with Chinese affairs, said today that the general conclusions that are held by Mr. Yerburgh were practically those of every diplomat who has taken pains to study the notes exchanged.

That the agreement reached is not ironclad was apparent, not only to members of the diplomatic corps, but to administration officials, after the receipt of foreign governments to the American representations.

They assert that Great Britain has complied in every respect with the wishes of Secretary Hay.

"I have much pleasure in informing your excellency," Lord Salisbury's note states, "that her majesty's government will be prepared to make a declaration in the sense desired by your government in relation to the leased territory of Wei Hai Wei, and all territory in China which may hereafter be acquired by Great Britain, by lease or otherwise, and all spheres of influence now held, or which may hereafter be held by her in China, provided that a similar declaration is made by the other powers concerned."

It is this provision which is an obstacle in the way of complete success of negotiations. Russia declined to accede to this proposition advanced in England. Directly north of Wei Hai Wei, and jutting into the gulf of Pe Chi Li, is Port Arthur, now a Russian stronghold. It is believed in diplomatic circles that Lord Salisbury made his declaration respecting Wei Hai Wei for the purpose of inducing Russia to throw Port Arthur open to the world. It has been noted that no reference to Port Arthur is made in the Russian note.

A comparison of British and Russian notes will show their great dissimilarity, and neither can be regarded as binding when the proposals are so different. As Germany, France, Japan and Italy gave assurances on such a condition, it is believed that the whole fabric of the "open door" is likely to be torn away should a foreign nation think a demand made by the United States exacting and the moment propitious for it to refuse.

POWERS ARE UNITED.

Chinese Empress' Course Forces Them to Co-Operate.

New York, June 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: There is a general feeling in diplomatic circles that the European powers have been united by the dismissal of Prince Ching, and that in the purging of the Tsung Li Yamen of all its moderate men the empress dowager has gone to the Boxers, bag and baggage, and that the powers have been forced to co-operate in the restoration of order at Pekin, even if the services of Russian troops are required.

Talleyrand's "Good Europeans" have appeared upon the scene and dropped their jealousies and suspicions. A mixed force of 2000 marines will be inadequate if Pekin should be in the possession of the Boxers and if the insurrection spreads from province to province. The Russians will go in with a European man late, and probably will have as many reasons for remaining as the English have found useful and necessary in Egypt.

JAPANESE DIPLOMAT KILLED.

Chinese Empress' Guards Murder the Chancellor of Legation.

London, June 13, 5:20 a. m.—The Times in an extra edition publishes the following dispatch from Pekin, dated June 12, 2 p. m.: "The chancellor of the Japanese legation, Sugiyma Akira, while proceeding alone and unprotected on official duty, was brutally murdered by soldiers of Tung Fuh Siang, the favorite body guard of the empress, at Manigate railroad station, yesterday. The foreign reinforcements are daily expected. The present isolated position of Pekin, the destruction of property in the country and the insecurity of life are directly attributable to incapacity of the Chinese government."

LETTER FROM GOMEZ.

Greets Cuban Republicans But Ignores the Union Democrats.

Havana, June 13.—Gen. Maximo Gomez has written to the papers with respect to the use of his name by the different political parties. He says in part:

"I will say that I consider it would have been best had only one party, the National party existed until after attaining independence. As another party, the Republican, has come into existence, I greet it with cordiality. As regards the mayors of different towns, I leave it to the Cubans to exercise the right they have secured at such great cost, to search among the ranks of the disbanded army for those who have the necessary qualifications for office.

"This need not be regarded as handing over the government to the military element, as by disbanding they have lost their military character. This I suggest in all sincerity. I am too old to cherish any ambitions."

This letter has provoked general comment, as Gen. Gomez makes no allusion whatever to the Union Democratic party, ignoring that party altogether. The members of the Union Democratic party reply that although they have abstained from taking part in the present campaign, owing to the opposition shown to the party, they will hereafter prove that they can exercise a powerful influence upon Cuban affairs.

TERRY STILL CHAMPION.

McGovern Knocks Out Tommy White In Three Rounds.

New York, June 13.—Terry McGovern fully lived up to his title of featherweight champion at the Seaside Athletic club last night by knocking out Tommy White, the clever Chicago boy, in three rounds. The little champion never showed better form, and gave his opponent no rest from the sound of the gong in the opening round until the referee had counted off the fatal ten seconds. He took the stiff jabs White handed out to him with a smile and kept up his terrible drives to body and head. White's face finally took on a frightful look and he clinched repeatedly to save himself from punishment, but Terry tore away from his grasp as though White was like a baby. The crowd looked for a quick ending, but there were few present who expected the termination to come so soon. The third round was a succession of knockdowns for White. No sooner would he regain his feet than he would go down again, and after going down for the seventh time he was so far gone that it was impossible for him to get up again, although he made a game effort. The boys were to have fought twenty-five rounds at 128 pounds at the ringside. Several challenges were issued to McGovern before the bout, but it is doubtful if any who now aspire to the title would do better than White.

MET DISASTER.

British Relief Force to the Ashanti Capital Suffers Further Reverses.

Accra, Gold Coast, June 13.—Details have been received of another serious reverse to the relief column under Col. Caster and Maj. Wilkinson, a day's march north of the Prah. There were heavy casualties. The latest rumors report a further disaster to a detachment on the north bank of the Prah, which is now flooded, and where the Ashantis were found strongly entrenched. Col. Willcock's advance has been delayed by rains, which have destroyed the bridges on the Prashu road. The continued absence of news from Kumassie tends to confirm pessimistic views as to the safety of the governor and his staff. The coast towns are apprehensive of their own safety.

The British gunboat Margie, stationed at Accra, is the sole protection for the coast. Owing to the difficulty encountered in procuring carriers, the enforcement of the labor ordinance is threatened, but such a step is considered inadvisable in view of the present temper of the inhabitants and the unprotected condition of the colony. The general opinion is that the present force is inadequate to cope with the situation, and the local government apparently fails to recognize its gravity.

RUMOR OF A TRAGEDY.

Seven Persons Reported Drowned In Lake Bennett, Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., June 13.—The rumor that seven persons in one party are believed to have gone down in Lake Bennett, about two weeks ago, by the overturning scow is told in the latest Alaskan newspapers received here. The names of the victims are given as follows: W. G. Morgeau, Mrs. Playmate, Mrs. Werner, C. E. Peabody, Joe Rose, and two men whose names could not be learned, all from Skagway.

Six head of cattle and a quantity of provisions made up the cargo with which the craft was loaded. It is said the scow was too heavily loaded. A strong wind caught the craft at Big Windy, and the cattle becoming excited, overturned the craft.

THE "MESSIAH" SQUELCHED.

Indian Disturber at Walker Arrested and Trouble Over.

Walker, Minn., June 13.—There is absolutely no prospect of trouble here with the Indians. The reported wild excitement said to have been caused by the Indian messiah was not wild at all. One of the young Indians styled himself a marvelous medicine man, and recounted a wonderful vision shown him by the great white spirit. This young Indian is named Day Dug Tince. He said his vision informed him of a terrible thunder storm to come, which would destroy all white people and all Christian Indians. Capt. Mercer immediately arrested him, and told him to have another vision in which all good Indians who stayed at home would not get hurt. Day Dug being hungry, at once had the required "revelation," and the uprising was averted. Mercer's tactics averted trouble.

BIG SHORTAGE INEVITABLE.

Minneapolis, June 13.—Abundant rain within a week cannot prevent a shortage of at least 150,000,000 feet in the season's lumber cut at Minneapolis and Cloquet, according to the estimates of conservative lumbermen. If dry weather continues the shortage will be much more. The four mills at Cloquet, which usually cut more than 100,000,000 feet, have done practically nothing this season owing to inability to get logs.

The Boom company reports the river falling six to twelve inches a day. An immense drive, the rear of which is twenty miles this side of St. Cloud, is strung all along the river, with a large force of men putting forth herculean efforts to hurry the logs to the mills.

FATAL BROOKLYN FIRE.

Three Men Killed, Three Missing and Eight Injured.

New York, June 13.—Three men were killed, eight so badly burned or maimed that they are in the hospital, and three other men are missing as the result of a fire in the cooperage establishment of Paul Weidmann at North Eleventh street and Weide avenue, Williamsburg, Brooklyn, last night. The property loss is variously estimated at from $150,000 to $250,000.

The dead are: Augustus Benedict, 59 years of age, burned so badly that he died immediately after being taken from the building; John M. Lockwood, 66 years of age, died from being crushed by falling timber; unknown man, burned to death.

THEY ARE HOPEFUL

Democrats Hold to Belief Their Ticket Will Win In November.

TALK OF PATTISON

For Vice-Presidency But Is Not Strongly Supported In Pennsylvania.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 13.—(Special to The The Herald.)—I have interviewed many prominent Democrats and Populists since the election in Oregon on June 4, and while they acknowledge that they did not think that state would give as big a Republican majority as it did, they are by no means disheartened over the result so far as it bears upon the presidential and congressional elections this fall. The Democratic leaders, at least, hold to the opinion that the Democratic presidential ticket will be successful in November, notwithstanding the fact that they were a bit surprised at the outcome of the election in the "Web-foot" state. If the Democrats are successful at Kansas City in selecting a vice presidential candidate who will add to Col. Bryan's strength, they seem to feel perfectly satisfied that Republican rule will be overthrown; that Mr. Bryan will be the next president, and that the lower house during the Fifty-seventh session will be controlled by the Democrats.

There are so many reasons why the Democrats think they will be successful that it would be unwise to attempt to point all of them out at this time. The Republican administration, as is pretty generally known, has made so many mistakes that it is extremely doubtful if the voters of the country will ratify the administration's course, and, therefore, the outlook for Democratic success is considered exceptionally bright by the men who will manage the Democratic campaign this year. The Republicans are greatly worried over the exposures which have been made of Republican misrule in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and in the Philippines. All this will work to the disadvantage of the Republicans, without doubt. In addition to this, the chances for Democratic success in other directions seem certain. That the next house will be Democratic seems to be assured, and, further, that the party will make gains in the senate, as a result of the coming election, but will not be able to elect enough senators to overcome the present Republican majority in the upper branch of congress this year.

As I have pointed out herein, the vice presidential question will cut some little figure in the campaign this year, and it therefore behooves the delegates at Kansas City to make a wise choice for Col. Bryan's running mate this fall. The Democratic leaders assert that the Kansas City delegates will not take snap judgment in selecting a running mate for Col. Bryan. They propose, as a matter of fact, not to have the Kansas City convention a cut and dried affair, as will be the case at Philadelphia. If a Democratic majority in the house is secured, Congressman Richardson, of Tennessee, will succeed David B. Henderson, the present Republican incumbent, as speaker. It is unfortunate for the Democrats, however, that control of the senate can not be secured. This will work to the disadvantage of Col. Bryan and the Democratic party, for the reason that legislative measures favored by the Democrats will oft-times be defeated by the Republican senate.

Pennsylvania may present a candidate to the Kansas City convention for the vice presidency. This, at least, is the opinion of the Philadelphia Bulletin, and also of some of the leading Democrats of the Keystone state. A definite effort is being made by certain influential Pennsylvania Democrats to boom former Governor Robert E. Pattison for the Democratic nomination. For several months Mr. Pattison's name has been discussed in this connection in Pennsylvania and other states, and it is reported that during the former governor's recent visit to Chicago he received assurances that the Democrats of the Northwest would not be hostile to his candidacy. As a political foil for Bryan, Pattison is regarded in the East as especially available. While loyal to Bryan in 1896, he nevertheless retained the confidence of the gold Democrats, and there are Democratic influences at work in Philadelphia and elsewhere which believe that Pattison as Bryan's running mate would materially strengthen the ticket.

It is well known that Pattison is not averse to being a candidate. When interviewed on the subject some time ago he implied his willingness if the convention saw fit to nominate him to undertake the responsibility of the canvass. Acting under this assurance, a number of the members of the Philadelphia Democratic city committee are agitating for an endorsement of Pattison.

There is, however, some hesitation on the part of National Committeeman Guffey's immediate friends in the city committee in taking any action at this time in relation to the Pattison movement. When State Chairman Rilling was interviewed while in Philadelphia recently he mentioned a number of vice presidential possibilities, but he did not include Pattison in the list. Whether this was because of apprehension that such mention might not suit Col. Guffey's ideas, or whether it was merely an oversight, is not known. It is known, however, that if Guffey would but say the word, Pattison's friends in Philadelphia would lose no time in having him endorsed by the local organization.

Meanwhile information has reached Philadelphia that a movement is being engineered in the western part of the state to boom Guffey himself for vice president. The local impression is that this is being done without Guffey's knowledge or sanction, and that the National committeeman realizes that there are conditions that would not contribute to his success in this direction. However this may be, it is apparent that Guffey has thus far withheld his sanction of the Pattison movement. This may not mean that he is hostile to it.

Gath's Views

New York, June 9.—England has had trusts much longer than ourselves, and they seem to have given no such exasperation as amongst us. This is imputable to the free trade, which gives the English trust no original advantage.

Our corporations were first made exclusive by McKinley's high tariff, and they immediately formed themselves into trusts, probably to get the money back which Hanna had collected from them.

This is a bad state of politics, and no amount of prosperity will make it good.

Free trade always helps England out in the worst situation. It is the basic argument for suppressing the Boer republics in that they were monopolies and would not recognize the rights of unnaturalized residents. Hence England's victories are less injurious to the world than those of any other country. Her freedom of trade and denizenship modify her imperialism, as the Roman state two thousand years ago was a great improvement over the Jew, the Greek and all other petty nations it absorbed.

New York city, whatever its political government, is only a more extreme type of the advantage taking and riches getting which we perceive in the minor cities, the states and the government. The bottom idea of New York, derived from its Dutch settlers is wealth, exactly as in Holland. Both the Van Wycks are of this stock.

Nearly all modern finance had its model in Holland. There were the first banks of exchange and there John Law, the author of the modern system of credit, made his observations which precipitated the era of speculation in France, but left a durable monument in the Bank of France, which but yesterday saved the Bank of England from going to protest.

Competition is still the best amendment to the constitution.

One little sugar refiner has butted down, or forced into a truce, the great lottery wheel sugar monopoly. This sugar monopoly has exerted a vicious influence upon our congress and senate every time tariffs were to be made or unmade. It was directly charged with buying senators with tips when the Cleveland tariff was being made.

I have been astonished to hear the names of respectable men at the very top of the American senate quoted among the brokers in New York as having been used in the sugar tariff and then cheated out of their winnings on a false tip.

The sugar trust has a German origin; the Havemeyers are Germans, notwithstanding their long residence here, and sugar has long had its marts in Holland and North Germany.

Germany is full of trusts, although it aims to alleviate the burdens of the people and recently passed a high tax against the department stores.

We have finally got an inheritance tax, as we shall presently have an income tax, in operation, and Comptroller Coler has found that the lawyers got in first and charged the state a terrible commission.

Cromwell died regretting that he had not reformed the abuse of lawyers.

The silver issue is not an issue at all, after it has nominated Mr. Bryan.

Considering what human nature and example are and how McKinley uses the currency question, which he did not favor, to reelect himself, Bryan may escape harsh judgment, although the epithet of demagogue has descended upon him.

Had Bryan let his silver patent slip him many gifted statesmen of the Democratic in the West. He operates against a state, naturally Republican, which was the nearest free state witness of the attempt to put the free slavery trust over Kansas and Nebraska over forty years ago.

Boies comes from that part of Western New York on Lake Erie where the Democratic party lost its ascendancy in 1856. He is an expert politician as well as a countryside gentleman. He has been once or twice before Democratic national conventions for president.

Why such a man as that should not be facing McKinley requires an answer which must reflect upon the Democracy.

Boies lives next door to Nebraska and his apprehensions must be less acute than those of Democrats farther and farther East. Yet Boies says that the nomination of Bryan on his Mahdi platform means not only the end of Bryan, but the virtual conclusion of the Democratic party.

The South has been doing the wagging of the Northern Democratic party almost ever since the war.

It put Frank Blair on the ticket at the first convention following the war, for his revolutionary utterances when he declared that the constitutional amendments would require another rebellion.

In 1872, on account of some bucolic and beatitudinal remarks of Horace Greeley through his paper about Louisiana, the well-meaning revolt of a large part of the Republicans against militarism was subverted and Greeley with his frightful newspaper on record was compelled to be the Liberal Republican and the Democratic candidate.

At the following convention, in 1876, the Northern element of the party prevailed and Tilden, the reformed governor of New York, was nominated for president. The nomination was voluntary in the North, but a good deal in the South was bought.

Tilden became so alarmed at the pecuniary demands made upon his private fortune that he gave up the protest for president.

In 1880 a Northern soldier was nominated for President, mainly upon his record against President Grant at New Orleans, where Sheridan represented Grant.

In 1884 a man like Tilden, but with less money, attained the only Democratic success in a quarter of a century by a defection from the Republican party in several of the Northern states. He almost immediately incurred the hostility of the South, who found that more chestnuts could be pulled out of a Republican hearth than could be bullied out of Cleveland.

Harrison was elected president by the aid of the Democrats, over Cleveland. In 1892 the mugwumps went to buying votes and Mr. Bynum of Indiana says that they made the largest display of small bills ever seen in the state.

What votes did they buy if not the votes that were to be cast for Cleveland?

Those same votes were bought in 1888 with the Wanamaker money. Later developments in the postoffice department show that Indiana is not unaware of its place on the seesaw.

The worst error ever made by the South was sending Polk and other emissaries to annex the Grangers and Kansas and Nebraska. Grangerism returned to the South as Populism, and having a great part of the poor whites at its behest it threatened so many governors and congressmen that the Southern Democracy had to be organized as Poulists and they lifted Bryan over the heads of the Democratic leaders and are the authors of his renomination this summer. When Bryan is defeated again the Northern Democrats will cease to take their dictum from the Southern states and that will be the end of a national party in the presidential year.

Yet it is to be doubted whether the South is sincere now. I was at Antietam a few days ago when John W. Daniel poured into McKinley's face a eulogy which the president, with his tendency to catalepsy, took off his hat to hear. All the Southern speakers there threw butter over McKinley and yet, in fear of their constituents, they are going to nominate a candidate who can only carry the outskirts of society where men have got nothing or have had their talent in a napkin.

Why should Croker, Carroll, Hill and Smith Weed predict the annihilation of Bryan and yet send a delegation for him? It is for the coherence of organization to prevent an independent Democracy from springing up in New York.

The limit of debt of New York city has been touched and a large part of it contracted for the benefit of contractors who are the sort of men our politicians now get clear light.

Thus he has a cabinet of manikins who study how to excel each other in finding out some new greatness for his little majesty. When they have buried him in butter there is nothing else to do and the cabinet adjourns.

The social evil of New York, thanks to Parkhurst, has been spread all over the residence quarter. In nearly all the modern cities of Europe some used-up district of the town is made the sanctuary of the unhappy, but this district, in New York, has been outraged by the arrest of so many respectable women that the evil women go up to the vicinity of the big hotels near the park. Being outlaws by the police act they do not hesitate to steal, whereas in former years they were almost celebrated for honesty. Consequently in our lushlandic days we have numerous attacks by adventuresses and their friends upon the men who will not put them under pension.

I went into a store newly built in a bright little city yesterday and I said: "You were pretty lucky in getting your store up before these high trust prices."

"Yes," said he, "a drummer from Pittsburg came here yesterday and said to me: 'If you had not bought that big single glass in your store window just when you did it would have cost you 150 per cent more, for our plate glass trust paid a dividend of 150 per cent the other day.' And everything entering this store would now cost me 60 per cent more than it did just a year ago."

The great struggle in this country is to get a chance to tax people as the state used to tax them. Every sort of patent for convenience annexes itself to the local government. You are required to put in a certain kind of plumbing essentials, a certain kind of valve and be subject to building regulations which name the patent you are to apply.

A freer system of trade and less protection to monopolies can make our trusts only half as onerous. Why should the wire trust sell the foreign enemy nails at half the price it sells its countrymen? Why should tin pay a great dividend to the trust on the watered stock and let my roof leak if I will not pay the new tax?

The two political parties are advancing on parallel lines to the same result. The Populists demand government ownership of railroads, and the Republicans have allowed all of the railroads east of the Mississippi to become two systems. Where competition is impossible consolidation under the government is certain. Despotic states like Prussia have only anticipated the Populists by absorbing the railroads.

Provisions a Little Cheaper But No Change In the Cost of Living.

Washington, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consul J. C. McCook, at Dawson City, sent the following to the state department: Bennett, British Columbia, the starting place for the winter route to Dawson, is a small town of some 500 inhabitants and is the present southern terminal of the White Pass and Yukon railroad. By next August the railroad will be completed to White Horse, seventy miles nearer Dawson. In the winter season one has to spend a couple of days here in getting luggage through the custom house and in arranging for conveyance.

Prices at the best hotels are $3.50 to $4 per day, according to whether you occupy an "upper or lower bunk." At Bennett most travelers purchase horses, sleds and harness, horse sleds being much more comfortable than the small basket sleds hauled by dog teams. The price for horse, sled and harness averages $150. The can be sold at Dawson City early in the season at a profit. Some 600 horses came over the trail this winter, freighting and carrying passengers. One has to take along enough horse feed to last him during the trip, which can be made easily in ten to twelve days. I, with four others, elected to go with the Canadian Development company, which carries the mail and express matter and also carries passengers to and from Dawson at $250 each. Travelers board themselves. They are carried by horses half the way, and go by dog sleds the other half.

We started out on March 24 about midday. On account of the very warm weather during the early part of March, the snow on Lake Bennett got very soft, and the thrall was made worse by the freighter sleds, to which is attached a trailer sled, loaded heavily. These trailers cut up the regular road badly and one gets spilled out occasionally by the sled upsetting. We only went as far as Caribou Crossing that day—twenty-six miles from Bennett. On arriving at Caribou we put up for the night at the hotel, or road house. We were asked if we had our own bedding. Some of us had blankets; others fur robes. Each was allotted a bunk in a room where the bunks were in tiers three high and consisted of canvas nailed on boards. Two to three dozen are put in a room about 6 by 12 feet, without ventilation. Those not getting in early generally lie on the floor and tables. Prices for such accommodations are $6 per day. On the trail one sees all manner and styles of conveyances—the freighter with his heavy sled teams, taking merchandise to Dawson; ox sleds, dog sleds, bicycles, and sleds hauled by the owner. Some travelers have their belongings strapped on their backs. Those who haul their own sleds, when going over the lakes rig up a sail so that the wind may help them.

From Caribou the trail leads over a cut-off, shortening the distance some fifty miles. The road from Caribou to White Horse, forty-five miles, is covered in one day. In summer, beginning with next August, steamers will leave White Horse for Dawson, the run being made in a couple of days.

White Horse will in time be the center of a great copper mining district. Companies are organized to put up smelting works, and the Canadian Bank of Commerce has established a branch there. From White Horse the road passes over Lake La Barge, the trail being good to Lower La Barge, and from there is another overland cut-off to Cormacks, shortening the distance to Dawson some seventy-five miles more. From Cormacks to the next post, some twenty-five miles, the trail is over hills, and at this late season the snow has disappeared from most of the way, and one is obliged to walk. I have seen six horses hitched to an ordinary one-horse load. At Mackay's we are supplied with dogs, and from there to Dawson—some 250 miles more—one is tucked into a basket sled hauled by five or six dogs, and can keep on day and night, as relays are to be had at every post. There are English-speaking dog drivers as far as Selwyn; from there on they are French Canadians. These drivers have remarkable endurance; they run steadily along, holding on to the handles of the sled in rough places to keep it from upsetting. For forty to fifty miles at a 5-mile-an-hour gait, and have no chance to rest on the end of the sled for half an hour altogether during the whole run. On the last day we made forty-eight miles in a blinding snow storm, the trail being entirely obliterated. We made it in thirteen hours, including a one-hour stop for dinner. The trip should not be undertaken at this season; from March 1 to 10 is as late as one should come in over the ice. In the months of December, January and February the trail is always in good condition, and fast time can be made.

Dawson is beginning to present a more substantial appearance. Claims are now being prepared for sluicing; that is, for washing the gold from the large dumps of earth taken out of the claims during the winter months.

Residents are very much gratified at the excellent mail service, the mail coming and going regularly every week all through the winter; letters only, however, from the United States. Mails were brought in this winter from Bennett in seven days; next season it will take five days from Skagway.

Provisions are a little cheaper in some lines this spring. There is, however, no change in the cost of living—$100 per month in a fairly good hotel and $100 per month for a bedroom. Eggs (frozen) cost $2.50 to $3 per dozen wholesale. Oranges cost $80 per case of 110, and retail at $1 each, and apples (not very good) cost 50 cents each.

The license on saloons has been reduced from $2500 per annum to $1500. Two dollars a gallon duty is assessed on wines, liquors and beer brought into the Yukon territory.

All kinds of boats are being fitted up to convey people to Cape Nome, but as many people came into Dawson this winter as went out. There are many reliable reports as to the richness of the Koyuk section. Several parties have left here recently for the Koyuk, going over the ice to below Fort Yukon, then overland some 175 miles.

party would have exclaimed: "As we have got rid of the tail, let us get rid of the dog, as the one wags the other."

The money, property and income questions absorb all other things in a political year.

If an American were to be given only one test of his citizenship it would be how much he thought of a dollar as compared to half a dollar. Now Bryan is going to try his strength against that universal test.

The mechanic or laborer with the Bryan silver motive will find all the supplies he has to buy marked up to the gold standard and his expenses will be doubled while his pay will be halved. And he is aware that we are carrying a full cargo of silver under our gold deck and have inscribed on the sail, "Dollar for Dollar."

Any more silver than we are carrying will founder the vessel and we have yet to stand the test in some panic concerning the proportion of silver we already have.

You can therefore understand why Governor Boies, of Iowa, calls the Democracy to attention some weeks before the Kansas City convention. Such a defeat of Mr. Bryan as seems probable now will leave the Democratic party a mere confusion and Populism will then take hold of it and transform it after the method of some of the Eastern nations with their captives.

The debt of New York city ought not to be greater than the forty-three millions just embarked in an underground tunnel. The proper way to bring the upper populations down to the tip of New ork island is on elevated structures around the river fronts of the city. But this would be too cheap for our political regime.

When the Republican party come to arraign the Democratic party, New York city is always set up as the frightful example. And yet less Puritanism and more common sense could alter this state of things.

The lags of Croker's power is calling Sunday by its right name and giving a thirsty man what he wants to drink, instead of jabbering about Sabbath breaking and prescribing the appetite of one man with the bronchitis for 100,000 men with the natural thirst.

The more widely Croker opens Sunday in New York and Brooklyn, too, the more votes he will get the next election. You can frighten our people with the ice trust, but not with the Sabbath lager, the Sunday theater and the Seventh day observance.

The Republicans would give a moral backing, which they have not, by nominating Gen. Wood, of Cuba, to be vice president.

I heard a lady say at Antietam to her husband that McKinley as president had aged fifteen years in the last three years.

If he ages fifteen years more in the next three years, McKinley will be 77 years old and the vice president will become president. Then, with Wood as a happy accident, all the thieves will be shown up and sent to the penitentiary and Wood will not have the meanness to ask for a second term. He alone exposed McKinley's intimate friends in the postal department of Cuba. McKinley deserved it for having such friends.

He has little imagination and comprehension of a man's merits at a distance. He must pay the man over and exchange taffy with him in order to see him in a

DELLA FOX.

She No Longer Graves For Drugs and Is Nearly Well Already.

New York, June 13.—She is an amazzlittle bunch of vitality, this Della Fox, who is rapidly getting well once more in the Wavecrest Sanitarium over in Astoria. Once before her life was despaired of, and all the physicians who were called in to see her united in saying she couldn't pull through the night.

At that time she was worn and wasted to a shadow, and didn't seem to possess enough strength to open and close her eyes. But a few weeks afterward Della was playing a vaudeville engagement over in Boston.

The other afternoon, five days after she had broken down so completely that consulting men of medicine said she was gone this time beyond a doubt, both mentally and physically, she was walking about and receiving her friends just as though nothing had happened, and the chief sanitarium physician declared with an amazement not at all affected that she "beat out" any example of recuperative power he had ever observed.

He told Miss Fox's sister yesterday that the case was altogether remarkable, not alone in the point mentioned, but for the reason that the patient had not shown the slightest craving for stimulants or drugs of any description. He had given her a half grain of morphine during the entire first week of her stay under his charge, and that was all.

It is usual, under the conditions which led to Miss Fox's breakdown, for the sufferer to have an intense craving for both drugs and liquor, and in their absence to be utterly enervated. Miss Fox, upon her arrival in the Astoria retreat, simply began to drink milk as though she didn't desire anything else in the world, and from that she passed on to roast beef and other solids, developing an appetite greater than she had ever previously experienced.

As early as Tuesday night she was able to call up her sister over the telephone and hold an animated and entirely rational conversation with her. The next day the two girls met and walked about the lawn over in Astoria.

Somebody had sent to Miss Fox a letter containing a number of clippings from the newspapers, bearing such cheering headlines as "Della Fox in a Madhouse," thus conveying to her for the first time the intimation that her mind had been temporarily clouded. There seems always to be a kind-hearted person standing ready to cheer up those who are under the frown of fortune.

The physicians say Miss Fox will be ready to come away within two or three days, if she wishes to do so. She replies that she is quite satisfied to remain where she is for the present, and won't think of departing until she is thoroughly restored to robust health.

So, after all, it may be that her little spell of aberration was a blessing, although completely disguised, it must be admitted.

Baroness D'Herpent, Wearied of Unhappily Married Life, Devotes Her Time to the Care of Vagrant Animals.

Cared For In Voluptuous Ease In Life. | Buried In Splendid Graves When Dead.

Paris, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The loungers and gossips of the capital city have a new topic of conversation to sandwich in between the comments and criticisms in discussing the kindly eccentricities of the Baroness D'Herpent, who announces that henceforth she will devote her life to the care of dogs, cats and horses, but especially dogs. In an interview that the baroness accorded the writer she explained that the determination to care for the canines, felines and equines of Paris came to her after a long period of brooding over her own unfortunate life, which had been embittered by the hardships of living with a husband whose company was not congenial. When finally and forever she had become separated from her unsympathetic spouse, the baroness looked around to see what portion of the living world most needed the help and comfort of some one who had learned in the bitter school of persecution what it was to be helpless and alone in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation.

Wandering through the streets and parks and over the roof tops of Paris, privileges. The Parisian animals who were not born to luxury found that they owed much to the cruel husband who had made the life of the baroness so unhappy that she determined to devote the remainder of it to bringing happiness into the lives of the lowest of animals.

Elaborate as the home was, however, it was not here that the baroness allowed her philanthropic tendencies to show themselves most magnificently, but in the cemetery for the dead waifs of the street, which is one of the wonders of France. It is situated at Neuilly and is divided into sections. In one are laid at rest the dead dogs who under former conditions would have found a burial place in the Seine or the garbage grounds; another division is set apart for cats whose last song to the siren of the garden wall and tiles has been sung. Already 200 dogs have been laid at rest in this unique cemetery and nearly an equal number of cats. Each animal is "planted" separately and over its remains is erected a suitable tombstone bearing an inscription setting forth its name and virtues.

Attached to the cemetery is a corps of tricycle riders whose duty it is to patrol the streets of Paris and gather in the living and dead dogs and cats who evidently there was observed by the baroness a vast collection of animals for whom no one had any more love than for the flies that plague one in summer or the rats that make their homes in the Paris sewers. The baroness decided that here was her chosen field of philanthropy and she made arrangements at once for the disposal of her entire time and fortune in the interests of the homeless dogs and cats of Paris.

First the baroness established a home where the wanderers of the night, the dissolute and half-starved animals who had their former sweet natures soured by being made the target for innumerable missiles and the recipients of stray kicks from mischievous gamins, could be cared for and in due time coaxed back to the cross' humane fad, for it brings them handsome cheerfulness and good nature and has made them a thriving community. A new industry has been born in the home the baroness provided all the necessary medical care, nurses for sick animals and delicacies for the weaklings. It was a perfect paradise for vagrant dogs and cats and so the gardens in the vicinity have rendezvous for admission howled outside the doors by day and night, while the plants; boarding houses have been established for the use of visitors who have lost interest in life or are in need of consolation and nursing. The cargo that these men collect is taken first to the home, from whence it eventually filters through to the cemetery. Any one having a dog or cat that has outlived its usefulness and who has not the heart to kill the animal can telephone to the home and the baroness and the sick or old or infirm animal will be promptly removed by one of the tricycle corps and carefully nursed, if there is any hope of saving its life, or put out of its misery by the shortest and most humane means if its life is not worth saving.

The people who live in the vicinity of the cemetery are delighted with the baroness' humane fad, for it brings them business and has made them a thriving community. A new industry has been born in the home the baroness provided all the necessary medical care, nurses for sick animals and delicacies for dogs and cats, visitors to the cemetery bring flowers for the graves of their dead pets and so the gardens in the vicinity have become famous for the size of the roses that grow there. THEY ARE HOPEFUL

Pattison's local friends do not believe that he is, and point to the recent close personal and political relations between Pattison and Guffey as proof to the contrary.

It is stated by a leading Democratic city committeeman that the efforts to push forward the claims of the former governor will not be abandoned, and that Col. Guffey will be urged to give his aid and co-operation. Should the Philadelphia Democrats endorse Pattison for vice president, his friends believe that the entire state delegation would swing in line. They believe that they would have substantial support from many other states, and they are determined to keep the ball rolling to the best of their ability.

Out of a score or more of men mentioned frequently for Col. Bryan's running mate none of them have declined to permit the use of their names at Kansas City. The contest for the vice presidential nomination at Kansas City will therefore be fully as interesting as will the tight for the same office at the Republican convention at Philadelphia.

Information has reached this city from Philadelphia that, in view of the fact that Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio, has arranged for accommodations for himself and a party of thirty-four at the Lafayette hotel during the Republican national convention, there will be a big committee from the Buckeye state.

Daugherty was the candidate of the Foraker-Bushnell faction for governor last year and was defeated by the faction which has Senator Hanna at its head. Charles Kurtz, who was for years private secretary to Foraker, is the present member of the national committee from Ohio. He was violent in his opposition to Hanna when the latter was battling for election to the senate.

gin two years ago. The relations between Hanna and Kurtz—chairman and member of the national committee respectively—are not of the warmest nature.

Daugherty is not a delegate to the national convention, but he does not propose being left out in the cold. If the administration desires harmony in President McKinley's state, the member of the national committee for the next four years will be a man determined upon by Daugherty or the faction he represents, and which includes Foraker, Bushnell, Kurtz and others.

Hanna is relentless, and he has already placed himself in a position that will prevent him from approving a committeeman who is other than a straight out-and-out member of the administration faction in his state. Kurtz will not be the next committeeman. Even Foraker realizes that it would be the limit of folly to stand by him for re-election under existing conditions. Daugherty desires the place, and he is likely to get it, if he insists, regardless of the opposition that Senator Hanna may bring to bear. The headquarters of the Ohio delegation will be the greatest news center during the convention. Senator Hanna, as chairman of the national committee, is strong enough to have everything his own way, but it is believed that he will accede to the wishes of those who are opposed to himself and his methods. In any event, the appearance of Harry Daugherty and thirty-four of his faithful followers suggests that even the bed of Hanna and the administration is not one of roses.

The Republican and Democratic leaders in New York state are just at present laying their plans for what is conceded will be one of the liveliest campaigns in the history of this commonwealth.

The political situation in the Empire State is peculiar. While the Democrats both in the City of New York and up the state are practically united, the exposure of the ice trust in Manhattan will probably give this party considerable trouble in the coming national and state elections, notwithstanding the fact that some of the members of the trust are Republicans of prominence.

The fact is, however, that Mayor Van Wyck and his brother Augustus Van Wyck, who was the Democratic candidate against Col. Roosevelt for governor two years ago, are stockholders in the American Ice company as is also Richard Croker and many other leading Tammanyites. It is admitted in some quarters by Democratic leaders that their party will be more badly injured because of this exposure than will Republicans although one of the stockholders in this ice company is no less a person than a son of Senator Platt. Leaving the ice trust exposure out of the question, it is apparent to well-disposed politicians in the East that the contest for supremecy in New York state this year will be interesting to all the leaders in politics and they will have to tax their ingenuity to concoct schemes favorable to their tickets. Certain Republican leaders in Washington are of the opinion that it will require more than Governor Roosevelt's popularity to hold the state in line for the Republicans this fall. It will be recalled that the present governor of New York when nominated and elected two years ago had just returned from Cuba and was hailed everywhere as the most conspicuous hero in the clash between the forces of the United States and Spain on that island. He was elected by a small majority, and there is a possibility that he is not as strong as he was two years ago. The Democrats, it is said, propose to nominate a man for the governorship with an unimpeached record and this man will probably be Elliot Danforth. If Mr. Danforth should be chosen by the Democrats for the nomination he would make a campaign which would give Col. Roosevelt trouble, to say the least. There is another man talked of for the Democratic nomination, however, who, if nominated, would give the "Rough-rider" Colonel more trouble than Mr. Danforth. The gentleman referred to is Bird S. Coler, the present comptroller of New York City. While Mr. Coler may be regarded as a "new comer" in politics, he has made such a good record in his present office that the majority of the Democrats of New York, leaving the professional politicians out of the question, probbaly favor him for governor, if it is not finally decided to present his name for the vice-presidency at the Kansas City convention.

Whatever the outcome regarding the state ticket in New York, the Republican leaders admit that it is not a certainty that Col. Bryan will be unable to carry the state next November. In the event that Col. Bryan pulls more votes in New York state next November, his election will be assured. Col. Bryan's friends assert, however, that he can lose New York and still become the next president of the United States. If he can carry Michigan, Maryland, Illinois and Minnesota Maj. McKinley will be defeated. All the efforts of Maj. McKinley's friends therefore, will be directed to gaining favorable action for the Republican party, not only in New York, but in Maryland, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and West Virginia. It is not anticipated by any Democrat, it might be interesting to state ir passing, that the Democrats stand any show whatever in carrying Pennsylvania this fall.

BLOOD POISON.

Mercury AND Potash Make Wrecks, Not Cures

In some cases the external signs of Contagious Blood Poison are so slight that the victim is firmly within the grasp of the monster before the true nature of the disease is known. In other cases the blood is quickly filled with this poisonous virus and the swollen glands, mucus patches in the mouth, sores on scalp, ulcers on tongue, sore throat, eruptions on skin, copper colored splotches, and falling hair and eyebrows leave no room for doubt, as these are all unmistakable signs of Contagious Blood Poison.

Doctors still prescribe mercury and potash as the only cure for Blood Poison. These poisonous minerals never yet made a complete and permanent cure of Contagious Blood Poison. They drive the disease back into the system, cover it up for a while, but it breaks out again in worse form. These powerful minerals produce mercurial rheumatism and the most offensive sores and ulcers, causing the joints to stiffen and finger nails to drop off. Mercury and potash make wrecks, not cures, and those who have been dosed with these drugs are never after free from aches and pain.

S. S. S. acts in an entirely different manner, being a purely vegetable remedy; it forces the poison out of the system, and instead of tearing down, builds up and invigorates the general health. S. S. S. is the only antidote for this specific virus, and therefore the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. No matter in what stage or how hopeless the case may appear, even though pronounced incurable by the doctors, S. S. S. can be relied upon to make a rapid, permanent cure. S. S. S. is not a new, untried remedy; an experience of nearly fifty years has proven it a sure and unfailing cure for this disease. It is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do me no good I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large, red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass."

NEW YORK PRESS CLUB'S NEW HOME

Greatest Organization of Pen Workers In the World---A "Shirt-Sleeves" Rather Than a Dress Suit Society.

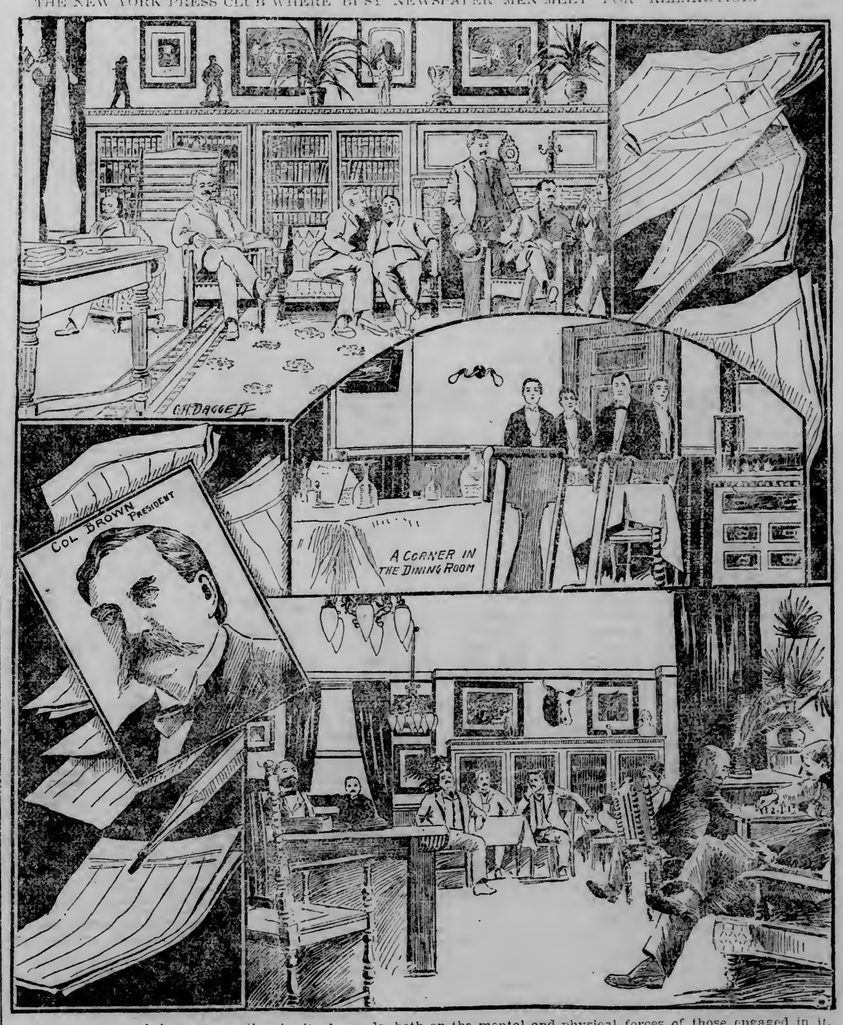
New York, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.—Congressman Cummings, a delightful after-dinner speaker of the reminiscent type, relates humorously his experiences as a member of the New York Press Club, which has now grown to be the largest and most important organization of penworkers in the world. Mr. Cummings, in the early days of the organization's history, had hard work to keep the club out of the bankruptcy court and his expedients for weathering the financial storms that every now and then threatened to throw the little society on its beam ends, are always a most entertaining feature of after dinner talks at Press Club gatherings in these brighter days. The club has just opened its fine new rooms at 112 Nassau street, New York, in the building owned by ex-Governor Levi P. Morton, and here newspaper men of the United States find a cosy headquarters when in the city.

To wander through the rooms of the New York Press club is to call to mind that many giants of journalism have passed to the unknown bourn of late. The calm eyes of Col. John Cockerell, former president of the club, look down from the wall of the picture gallery. He died in harness. Of the fourteen men who have presided over the club, five have crossed the divide. Among the surviving ex-presidents are such veteran journalists as Amos J. Cummings, John W. Keller, Joseph Howard, Jr. and George F. Williams. Thanks to the indefatigable efforts of John A. Hennessy, Col. W. L. Brown, Robert B. McIntyre, Frank Jones and other energetic members of the Press Club and the Newspaper Club of New York now foregather in one home. The two organizations amalgamated recently. A few years ago the Press Club moved up town and an effort was made, which was confessed afterwards to be ill-advised, to make the social side of club life predominate. Many newspaper men who believed that newspaper club must necessarily be more of a "shirt-sleeves" than a dress suit organization, started another club down town in a building adjacent to Newspaper Row. Both organizations prospered in a measure, but it was seen at last that the amalgamation of the two organizations presented the only safe pathway to permanent prosperity. A love feast followed a call to the members of both clubs to meet and talk matters over and the amalgamated club, known as the New York Press Club, was the outcome.

The accompanying illustration gives some slight idea of the appearance of the headquarters of the amalgamated clubs. The quarters comprise reception room, dining room, billiard room, cafe, and meeting and working rooms. At this club house all the periodicals published in the United States, daily, weekly and monthly, can be seen. One of the most valuable collection of newspaper volumes in the country are preserved in the file room, the daily papers of New York for more than thirty years being kept there.

Among the honorary and associate members of the club are such well known men as John Jacob Astor, William Waldorf Astor, Chauncey M. Depew, Levi P. Morton, Henry H. Stanley and William R. Grace, August Belmont, Henry Clews, George, Edwin and Howard Gould and Isidor Straus. The membership numbers over seven hundred and the number is increasing daily. The New York Press Club, is, in fact, the hub of the newspaper wheel of America, for journalists of every large city in the United States are included among its associate members and the club name is an open sesame to kindred organizations in all parts of the country.

THE NEW YORK PRESS CLUB WHERE BUSY NEWSPAPER MEN MEET FOR RELAXATION.



Newspaper work is most exacting in its demands, both on the mental and physical forces of those engaged in it. In the comfortably appointed rooms of the New York Press club at the dining hour may be seen the men whose efforts make the New York dailies successful. Here official dignity is dropped for the time and good fellowship reigns.

Despondent Women

After repeated and fruitless efforts to secure relief from female complaints from doctors' treatment and worthless remedies, women often become despondent. You see multitudes of them, hopeless, but determined to bear their afflictions in silence. But they are letting their discouragement bar their way to health. There are few suffering women who could not get quick and permanent relief by using a simple remedy called Wine of Cardui. The Wine is not a new and untried remedy. Its record includes a century of remarkable cures. Menstrual troubles of all sorts at their inception are easily relieved by Wine of Cardui. But if neglected they speedily become chronic and are frequently complicated with consumption or some other form of hopeless invalidism.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

is the only safe, potent and reliable remedy that may be put into the hands of the patient herself, and administered with as much success as with the aid of the most skillful physician. Are you suffering from any menstrual disorder? If so, Wine of Cardui will relieve it. Ask your druggist for a large $1 bottle. Do not take a substitute.

Hollendale, Miss., May 15, 1899.
Judging from my experience with Wine of Cardui it is a blessing to all suffering women who use it.

Plan to Stop Strikes That Worked Well.

The street car strike in St. Louis, attended by rioting and loss of life and causing heavy financial loss to the whole community, and the great strike of the building trades of Chicago naturally have turned the attention of many people to the subject of preventing these serious labor disturbances. Various plans have been suggested and it is possible that these large strikes may cause some person to evolve a feasible scheme for putting an end to them. The Boston Advertiser does not profess to outline a plan by which all strikes may be prevented, but it tells of a plan that has worked well in that city. It says: "The agreement of the Metal Trade association has put an end to the rumors of strikes in that trade, and probably will prevent much trouble in the future. On that account it is attracting a good deal of newspaper comment. Yet, as a matter of fact, there has been such an agreement in force in certain branches of the building trade in Boston for years. The employers and employes are mutually represented by a committee, which discusses all matters of interest to both. So successful has this plan been that never, since the committee was organized, has there been any danger of a strike; and, indeed, it has been necessary but once to call in the services of a referee. The more the committees have worked together, the more exact agreement there has been between the views of employers and employes, and it has been found that by avoiding all friction the building trade has been generally prosperous, as the money which would have been lost by strikes or lockouts has gone in wages and in profits, making both employers and workmen more prosperous than they could have been under a policy of mutual aggression." There is a close relation between the Boston method and the compulsory arbitration that has been put in operation in New Zealand, and which was recently discussed in these columns. In both countries the basis of agreement is a free interchange of views.

The Chinese "Boxers" and Their Battle Cry.

It is said that the Chinese "Boxers," whose uprising and murderous deeds have caused marines belonging to the various great nations to be landed in China with a view of protecting the foreigners, correspond in some degree to those Americans who comprised the Know-Nothing party that flourished in this country half a century ago. The political slogan of the latter was "America for Americans," and the battle-cry of the "Boxers" is "China for the Chinese." They are carrying on a campaign that amounts almost to an insurrection against their central government, though possibly on its behalf or through its sympathy and connivance, because of the presence in China of so many foreigners, especially missionaries. It is supposed that the empress is not very much in earnest in her attempts to suppress the "Boxers," as she is known to have but little sympathy with any of the civilizing or Christianizing work carried on by foreigners. Indeed, it is claimed that she favors the "Boxers" and punished some officials who tried to put an end to the lawless conduct of the "Boxers." Nominally, however, the government at Pekin stands opposed to the pernicious activity of the "Boxers," and pledged to their suppression and to the maintenance of treaty obligations. It is proper that the United States should take measures to protect the lives and property of American citizens residing in China, but further than that we should not go.

THE WHEAT CROP.

Being the gateway to the great Northwest, the leading spring wheat market in the country, Duluth naturally takes an especial interest in the crop outlook. It must be confessed that the prospect at present is not promising, and that there is grave danger the crop in Northern Minnesota and the Dakotas will be almost a total failure. The long-continued drought has been very damaging to the growing wheat, and while the rains during the past few days have done some good, they have been but scattered showers and altogether insufficient to repair the injury already inflicted by the lack of moisture. The best hope now is that the frequent showers will save part of the crops. It is certain, however, that even with copious rains now, the yield this year will be very much below the average.

The government report issued on Monday stated that preliminary reports on the spring wheat acreage indicated a reduction of about 567,000 acres, or 2.9 per cent. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Oregon report a reduction of 4 per cent, North Dakota and Nebraska of 5 per cent, and Iowa of 6 per cent. In South Dakota and Washington there is an increase of 1 per cent. The average condition of spring wheat on June 1 was 87.3, as compared with 91.4 on June 1, 1899, 100.9 at the corresponding date in 1898, and a 10-year average of 93. Minnesota falls 10; North Dakota, 17; South Dakota, 11, and Wisconsin 9 points below their respective 10-year averages. On the other hand, the 10-year averages are exceeded in Nebraska, Iowa, Oregon, Washington by 15, 1, 4 and 0 points respectively. It must be remembered, however, that the information on which these figures are based was sent to Washington at least one week ago, and the crop outlook has grown worse since that time.

LIFE OF A BATTLESHIP.

The San Francisco Chronicle has passed the vessels composing the British navy under review and found a considerable proportion of them of little value except for show purposes. The Chronicle bases this conclusion upon the ability of vessels to resist the penetrative power of guns now being manufactured at the Washington yard. The really serviceable period of a warship is limited to the years in which armor plate is keeping up with projectiles in the race for supremacy. Prior to 1881 armor plate was composed of wrought iron. This served its purpose until about 1890, when projectiles had made such progress that armor of greater power of resistance became necessary. There was then a period of compound armor—that is, of iron faced with steel. The projectile continued to gain penetrative power, and about 1890 was opposed by Harveyized steel. This kind of armor was crowded out of first place in a short time by armor manufactured by the Krupp process. As the Krupp armor costs the government $545 per ton, it is to be hoped that its life will be longer than that of its immediate predecessor.

Experiment have shown that at a distance of 1000 yards an American 12-inch gun will throw a shell that will penetrate 16.84 inches of Krupp armor, 21.42 inches of Harveyized armor, 33.68 inches of wrought iron armor. At 2000 yards the penetrative power of the shell is reduced by 1.16 inches; at 3000 yards about the same reduction from the 2000-yard distance. It appears from this showing that unless vessels are opposed by projectiles of about the same period, the vessel has comparatively small value at short range. A modern 12-inch gun would send a shell through any possible thickness of compound or iron armor. The 16.84 inches of Krupp ramor required to resist a 12-inch shell would be a pretty heavy load to carry, but when this thickness is doubled in the use of compound armor the percentage of buoyancy would be small if not entirely overcome.

Armor that does not resist the projectile it has to contend against is of little real value. If a shell gets through it is more likely to be destructive in the case of a heavily armored vessel than in the case of a vessel with a larger percentage of bouyacy. It would seem, therefore, that when the best modern gun is pitted against armor of a period earlier than 1890, a sea battle would be a repetition of the sinking of wooden vessels by the ironclad in the early sixties. This would reduce the efficient life of a battleship to about ten years. If it be true, as is estimated, that the soft cap adds 25 per cent to the penetrative power of the projectile, vessels completed prior to 1890 may as well be placed on the retired list.

A story was recently published in Minneapolis that Senator Lodge is at heart for ex-Senator Washburn, of Minnesota, for the vice presidential nomination, and it was even asserted that Mr. Lodge "has practically agreed to throw the vote of Massachusetts delegates in the convention for him at the right time, if an opportunity comes." As might be expected, the junior senator from Massachusetts made haste to deny this Western yarn. And now the Springfield Republican says: "Mr. Washburn is blessed with fool friends. Massachusetts will now be pretty certain to steer clear of him, in any emergency."

The Philadelphia Record says: "The good men and women who are making a crusade against the army canteen do not stop to consider who are their allies and who would be the beneficiaries of what they are attempting to accomplish. These are the unscrupulous people who kept shops for the sale of bad liquors within convenient reach of the army posts and garrisons, and who are awaiting the opportunity to resume their occupations. None knows so well as the old soldiers the practical temperance reform that has been effected by the army canteen."

It is stated that the three independent sugar refining companies which have been consolidated into a New Jersey corporation were capitalized altogether at $5,000,000. In the consolidation they will appear as possessed of a capital value of about $20,000,000. If such a thing exists as an honestly capitalized industrial combination, it has not been generally heard of up to date. But the trusts already in the field are finding out that it is vastly easier to inflate capitalizations than to earn dividends on the same.

Dispatches from London have mentioned the sudden appearance and enormous sales of pictures, buttons and little flags in connection with the recent popular demonstrations, and now British commercial pride is shocked to learn that they were imported from this country. The largest London dealer in them says Birmingham manufacturers could not furnish them at all, and in no other country were they manufactured as neatly and cheaply as in the United States. Thus America leads in small things as in great.

Judge Taft, of the Philadelphia commission immediately says, on reaching Manilla: "I am surprised that Manilla has not received news regarding the Spooner bill, a measure calculated to help us greatly in our work here." That is the bill which the administration senators abandoned two weeks ago. If he expected great help from it, the judge will be disappointed when he learns the truth. And his trials have hardly begun.

Aguinaldo has lost his government, his capital, his family, including his mother-in-law, his typewriter—both the machine and the young lady operator—his papers, public and private, and part of his clothes; and some of these fine days it is possible Aguinaldo will lose himself—that is, will be captured by some American soldier. Mark Hanna will probably order that this happen about next October.

Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, would be "ashamed of the government and ashamed of its action" if it did not execute the national pledge to withdraw from Cuba; and he went on to declare that "this is a government of honor and it is a people of honor." He is evidently not acquainted with the standards of honor that prevail with the political crowd that he is now associated with.

Japan is preparing for extensive harbor improvements, $30,000,000 to be spent on the harbor of Tokio alone, during the next ten years. On the harbor at Kobe about $12,000,000 more will be expended, and on six others from $2,700,000 to $4,200,000 each. Japan proposes and promises to be an up-to-date country, after the fashion of the most progressive nations.

The Chicago Record appears to be about ready to join the anti-Imperialists. The Philippine outlook is so sobering to it that it would have the government at Washington announce to the Islanders that our occupation is only temporary, and that we will leave them to govern themselves as soon as an efficient native government can be established.

The New York tax collectors are still after Willie Waldorf Astor, even after he has expatriated himself, seeking to compel him to pay taxes on property in that city. It is too bad that a man cannot be a multi-millionaire without being pestered about taxes.

A mayor in Iowa chases his wife and chastises her on the streets. Would a Filipino mayor, asks the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, regulate his domestic affairs in that way?

It has been suggested that the cause of the recent fire which damaged Ambassador Choate's house in London was the hot air he keeps on hand for John Bull.

Only two days more for taking the census. Help the enumerators to make their lists complete and accurate.

Admiral Dewey is enjoying himself almost as much as if he expected to be nominated for president.

If Aguinaldo's "right hand man" has been captured, surely the war must be over.

There appear to be some thorns as well as roses in the Flowery Kingdom.

The Rounder

Two men were standing in front of a Superior street grocery store this morning. A blast of warm air issued forth from the shop and smote the nostrils of the men with a mingled composite of smells in which kerosene, dried apples, coffee and other smells could be located by only a casual analysis.

"Whew!" remarked one of the men, "that is a strong reminder of drudgery! Did you ever work in a store or a shop that had a strong, distinctive smell, and if you did do you remember how it used to insult your nose on warm mornings when you were hardly awake yet, and when the heat of the day in town and the cool of the day in the green, inviting woods told you that your proper place was not in that hot, ill-smelling store? The strongest impression of my youthful career as a working member of society is of the manner in which that awful smell used to take my breath away when it met me in the morning. I never noticed it during the rest of the day, but it was simply frightful in the mornings. That was when I was getting tired of the work, anyway, and I did not stand it many mornings before I quit. My entire engagement in that grocery store was a week and a day and a half. After that last half I went home to dinner one day and did not go back. It was during school vacation and the call of the woods and hills was too strong. I had no option but to throw up that job and get out and enjoy my vacation the way I did when I was too young to take jobs in grocery vstores."

* * *

"Yes," said the other, "I can recall just that feeling of nausea and disgust at the morning smell of my regular place of work. It does not need to be a place with an distinctive a smell as a grocery store. I worked during a summer vacation in a news stand, where I had to sweep out every morning, and there was something during the latter part of that engagement in the combination of the hot sun shining on the sidewalk and in the front of the store with the smell of the dust that my broom raised and the cool water that I sprinkled on the floor with that was fairly stifling. I used to get out on the edge of the sidewalk and gasp for breath. I had no more than the average boy's fondness for the continement of school, but school life was sweet to me after that summer's work. It took me quite a while to get used to real hard work, and I would not want to bet very much that I am in love with it now."

* * *

A third man had joined the group in the meantime, and he had a new idea on smells.

"Did you ever take an ocean trip?" he asked. Without waiting for an answer he continued: "If you have you will remember that there is a strong smell of iodine about a trans-Atlantic steamer. On my first trip I was so sick that I never hoped to see dry land again. Didn't want to at one time, for I would have been very well content if I could have been permitted to jump overboard and settle my troubles that way. Well, while I was seasick the smell of iodine did not help much, and ever since that the smell, whenever I catch it, brings back that awful experience with a rush, and I experience in reminiscence all the pains and natsea of seasickness."

The Chinese Situation.

Denver Republican: Civilized nations have a right to force upon China a decent regard for the interests of foreigners, for the welfare of the world is more to be considered than the narrow pejudices and selfish aims of a power that is incapable of rising to the level of enlightenment and modern civilization.

"Lest We Forget."

Before Examination.

Spirit of mem'ry—during exam.,
Mem'ory of elusive dates
Beneath whose weight we cram and cram—
(Uphold us all ye gracious Fates!)
Elusive mem'ry! bide with us yet—
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

During Examination.

The tumult and shouting dies—
(The tumult of recess, I mean)—
Still in our brains those ringing cries
Sound loud as ever on the green,
Composure staid! be with us yet—
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

And now the questions on the board,
Dread searches of our knowledge's store;
Ah! By that fourth one we are "floored,"
The fatal fourth—no need for more—
Swift scraping mem'ry, linger yet!
For we forget—for we forget.

After Examination.

Far called, our mem'ries swept away,
Deep sunk is Hope in misery's mire;
Gone all our pomp of yesterday—
'Tis one with Nineveh and Tyre.
Ye kindly Fates, share our hard lot,
For we forgot—for we forgot.

Hearst's Costly Lesson.

San Francisco Bulletin: W. R. Hearst will soon start a newspaper in Chicago, which will be an evening instead of a morning paper. Here is evidence that this millionaire newspaper owner has learned a costly lesson. After losing between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 on his morning yellow sheet in New York, he turned to the evening field there and made an afternoon edition of the Journal sufficiently successful to offset a part of his heavy morning losses. At last Hearst sees the tendency of the times and will have no more morning papers in his. The Bulletin has clearly demonstrated in San Francisco the great success that follows the printing of news on the day it occurs, and it will not be long before the morning papers here will stand in the same relation to the public that the weeklies have done in the past.

The Record Beaten.

Denver Post: As was expected Kansas has beaten the Texas cyclone story of a girl being picked up and carried over into the next congressional district and set down uninjured. The story is that of a cow which was picketed on a rope, and which was picked up by the cyclone and carried up the length of her rope, about sixty feet, where she remained until the storm had passed, when she quietly climber down her rope and resumed her grazing as if nothing had happened.

THE OREGON ELECTION.

New York Press (Rep.): It seems to us, for instance, that we are doing a lot more crowing over the recent election in Oregon than the facts justify. For what are we congratulating ourselves about? A plurality of from 5000 to 8000 for the Republican ticket. Well, in the Oregon election for governor of two years ago the Republican candidate carried the state by a plurality of 10,500. We have carried it by as much as 15,000. If we are to draw any conclusion at all, then, from the spring election in Oregon of this year, it is that we have lost and not gained it.

Another thing: Of all the parts of this country the Pacific coast is territory which the Republican party most naturally should be expected to make heavy gains. The reason for this is obvious. The Pacific coast, more than any other part of the United States, has derived advantages and will derive still further advantages from expansion, and from that expansion in particular which reaches the Philippines. The active operations of our great army in the Philippines have been a source of enormous profit to the Pacific coast. Its shipping interests have benefited, those who have furnished supplies have "coined money," there is such a demand for labor as has not been known since the old, old days, and everywhere on the Pacific coast the occupation of the Philippines and the maintenance of our army there have made "boom times." Selfish reasons, if no other, hold the whole Pacific coast in line for expansion.

The Democrats know this. They know the reason for it. They admit it openly. They have not counted, and do not count, on electoral votes from the Pacific coast. Why should Republicans deliberately attempt to befool themselves, then, about things which are perfectly clear to their opponents? When there was every possible reason for us to expect tremendous gains in Oregon—where the Republicans made and the Democrats foolishly accepted the open issue of expansion in the state campaign—why do we throw up our hats and cry that the November national election is won because the Republicans have carried Oregon by from 5000 to 8000, when two years ago they carried it by 10,500?

Privates Cole and Ripley, two prisoners doing terms for desertion, escaped from the guard house at Fort Meade last night. Just an hour after the discovery of the escape Private Jack O'Donnell of Troop I, Eighth cavalry, unaware of the escape, where the Republican party most naturally came down the road and was ordered to halt. He probably did not hear and as he was advancing was shot dead by the sentry.

Oscar Gardner and Billy Ryan fought eighteen terrific rounds at Cleveland last night. It was the fiercest fight seen there in a long time. From the eleventh round on, Ryan had the better of the fight until he was finally knocked out by a blow on the jaw, after he had broken away from a clinch.

Lucretia Peabody Hale died at Boston yesterday in her eightieth year. She was the eldest surviving sister of Rev. Dr. Everett Hale and like him was a writer. She was deeply interested in charities and educational work.

Admiral Dewey was made a Maccabee at Grand Rapids, Mich., yesterday, the honorary degree being conferred upon him by Great Commander N. S. Boynton.

When the admiral was told that there were 147,000 members of the order in Michigan he asked humorously: "Are they all Democrats?"

The most wonderful Shoe Sale in the history of Duluth of reliable Footwear.

A YEAR'S DELAY

Garfield Avenue Viaduct Not to Be Constructed For Year.

There are many indications that local city officials to believe that work on the Garfield avenue viaduct will not be begun much before April 1, 1901. The city desires the approach to begin at Superior street, and the court's order under which the railroad companies are to build the viaduct only requires an approach from Michigan street. The delay taken by in failure in securing an option from Superior street, and this gives the railroad companies a legal loophole through which they can delay complying with the order of the court. The railroads were badly mixed up over the matter of right-of-way, and caused the delay at first. Now that the St. Paul & Duluth has been sold to the Northern Pacific, the affairs are still more complicated, and the railroad engineers say with the present demand for steel rails, the manufacturing plants down East have reduced the output of structural iron, and it will be difficult to get the material with which to build the plant this year.

Will Go to Ohio.

Peter J. Brandenberg, who was acquitted in court last Friday and ordered sent to St. Peter, will be taken to his former home at Blanchester, Ohio, at once. The judge of probate has ordered the latter allowing him to go back to Ohio, and his brother arrived here yesterday afternoon for him.

Mr. Brandenberg has been in Duluth for the past eight years and has been employed in nearly all the downtown restaurants during that time. He was always pleasant and accommodating and made many friends. Not long ago, when he announced his intention of making every person in a certain West First street apartment house get married, his friends became suspicious, and when taken before Judge Middlecoff he was quickly adjudged insane.

COPPER DEAL.

Round Lake Copper Deposit Sold to Syndicate Headed By Daly.

The Fort William, Ont., Times-Journal reports that the copper property at Round Lake, situated in a district where Duluth people are largely interested, has been sold to an American syndicate, headed by Marcus Daly, the copper king of Anaconda, Mont., for a sum said to be close to the $300,000 mark. The Times-Journal adds:

"At the time of the visit here of F. A. Folger, of Kingston, it was well understood then that negotiations for the sale of the property were well under way and when J. B. Haggin was here for a day, and personally went out to the deposit of copper and pronounced it rich beyond question, the hopes of those interested were raised. Mr. Haggin was followed by a mining expert, who made a through investigation, and gave even a stronger recommendation than did Mr. Haggin. The result of all this is that the property is sold, and a dispatch from Col. Ray to Mayor Jarvis says the the work of development will be rushed with all possible haste."

The Heinrick Concert.

The Max Heinrich concert tomorrow evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church will be one of the very finest musical treats offered Duluth music this year. Many Duluth people know him well and need no rehearsal of his oratorios, but to those who have not heard him the following from the Chicago Journal will give a fair idea of the magnificent quality of his art:

"With a technic more than adequate in its ease, judicious phrasing and wonderful enunciation, Mr. Heinrich is worthy medium for the expression of unusual poetic and dramatic power. One who wishes to hear merely sensuous beauty of sound will not care for Mr. Heinrich, for he has other and higher purposes than the mere making of musical tones. For here truly is a great artist, one of the few, endowed with poetic insight and the power of expression. When have we heard the 'Erlking' sung as he sings it? When has the spirit of the nocturne been felt as in the lively rendering of Schuman's exquisite 'Mondnacht?' It is needless to multiply references, for the program was a procession of lyric gems."

IN BAD SHAPE.

North Dakota Grain Fields Need Rain Badly According to Crop Report.

The report of the climate and crop service of the North Dakota section for the week ending June 11, confirms all the reports of damage that have been sent abroad. There has been a great shortage of rain in that state and crops have been seriously damaged, some of them so much so that it will take much rain to bring them around again. The report is as follows:

"The past has been the most unfavorable week of the season. While there have been heavy showers in some sections, especially in the southeast portion, still the drouth continues, and if damage enough was not being done by that, it was supplemented during the week by very high winds, which are reported to have occasioned a great deal of grain, followed in the northern and central portions by killing frosts. While all the reports, with few exceptions, report damage to the crop, it is generally agreed that if rain should fall in a few days, heavy rain that would soak the ground, much of the grain would be saved. Wheat is not stooling well; the straw is very short, and a great deal of it has been plowed up in the eastern part of the state, and the ground used for corn and barley. Flax has been damaged by frosts, and also by being blown out and cut out by the winds. Corn is doing fairly well in small grains of all kinds are doing fairly well, and in a very poor and critical condition. Cut worms are working in the northern portions and doing some damage. Pastures and meadows are suffering for want of rain. Gardens are backward, being parched and dried up, and the hay crop will be a very scanty one. Taken in all, the outlook at this time is very unfavorable."

The Minnesota report for the week ending Monday, states that dry weather generally continued until the 9th, when there were light to heavy local rains in the central and southern portions of the state, and light and more scattered showers in the northern portion. The heaviest rain occurred in the southeastern counties. The drought effect had been generally relieved up to the 9th, and ominous difference to the condition and the prospect. Some wheat is heading out very low, on ridges and dry ground it is practically in force, in some places what is being played under and the ground seeded. Barley is short. Clover is generally short, but some fairly good is being cut in the southern portions. Early corn is doing fairly well, but late planted has come up irregularly, and in some localities it has not yet sprouted. The outlook for flax is about the same as previously reported and the crop will be short. Pastures were becoming very short, and in some localities some hay was being fed.

Bradstreets' Statement of Changes in Available Supply.

New York, June 13.—Special telegraphic communications to Bradstreets show the following changes in available supplies compared with the last account:

Wheat, United States and Canada, east of the Rockies, decrease, 396,000 bushels, afloat for and in Europe (Liverpool Corn Trade News), decrease, 1,200,000; total supply, decrease, 1,200,000. Corn, United States and Canada, east of the Rockies, decrease 225,000. Oats, United States and Canada, east of the Rockies, decrease, 22,000.

Among the more important decreases reported and not given in the official visible supply statement are those of 435,000 bushels at Manitoba storage points, 177,000 bushels at St. Joseph, 160,000 bushels at Omaha and 65,000 bushels at East St. Louis. The principal increases are those of 490,000 bushels at Northwestern interior elevators, 250,000 bushels at Chicago private elevators and 51,000 bushels at Kingston. The aggregate stock of wheat held at Portland, Ore., and Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., decreased 152,000 bushels last week.

NEW N. W. LINE.

Madison, Wis., June 13.—A new link in the Chicago & Northwestern roads system is to be constructed from Princeton, Green Lake county, to Marshfield, Wood county. The articles of organization were filed with the secretary of state yesterday, the title of the new line being the Princeton & Northwestern, to run from a connection with the Northwestern at Princeton, 100 miles northwest through Green Lake, Marquette, Washara, Adams, Wood and Portage counties to a connection with the Omaha at or near Marshfield. The incorporators are C. and N. W. officials.

LAKE CARRIER'S COMMITTEE.

Cleveland, O., June 13.—The executive, financial, legislative and navigation committees of the Lake Carrier's association appointed a committee yesterday to take charge of the arrangements for the inspection trip up the lakes next August of the congressional rivers and harbors committee. The committee consists of W. F. Harrington, Buffalo; H. A. Hawgood, Cleveland; Capt. J. S. Durham, Chicago; David Mance, Milwaukee; A. W. Callen, Toledo; A. W. Livingston, Detroit, and A. B. Wolvin, Duluth.

A RICH REGION.

The Country Adjacent to the Big Fork River Promises Much.

St. Paul, June 13.—The forest preservation law of Minnesota makes it the duty of the chief fire warden to "investigate the extent of the forests in the state," and in pursuance of this, Gen. C. C. Andrews has just completed a trip down the whole course of the Big Fork river, regarding which he says:

"That there should be in our state a river 330 miles long, with densely wooded shores, scarcely known to the public, is a striking indication of Minnesota's yet undeveloped resources. This is the Big Fork, a stream everywhere crooked, and which, taking its rise in the Little Bow String lake, makes two great bends, one west, one east, and with a generally northern direction traverses thirty different townships before its confluence with Rainy river.

"My trip down the whole course of the Big Fork occupied from May 25 to June 5 inclusive, in all twelve days, and on account of the extreme low stage of the water—the lowest anyone remembers—involved much labor for the whole party. The average depth now is about a foot. The river has an average width of 150 feet, and assumes and maintains large proportions immediately on leaving Big Bow String lake. There are two important falls, one over Trap rock, in township 62, range 25, the other called Sturgeon falls, over granite in the southeast corner, township 155, range 25, with many rapids and two pine logs jams, which, like the falls, had to be portaged.

"The surface of the country, while generally level, is slightly undulating. Apparently the average heights of the banks is 15 feet. They are very seldom less than 10 feet, and there are places reaching an elevation of 50 feet. A mile or two back from the river on each side the surface is liable to be lower. It is noteworthy that for the entire length of the river the soil is a loam, with a strong mixture of clay and very sticky. To the agriculturist this is equivalent to saying that the soil is fertile. Indeed the exuberance of vegetation affords overwhelming proof of the soil's fertility, and not in spots, but everywhere. Along part of the banks, and especially in the upper part, are fine strips of meadow with a rank growth of red top and blue-joint grass, excellent for forage.

"The woods are simply astonishing for being so continuous and dense, and covering every acre that is not meadow. The polar predominates, both white and Balm of Gilead. Spruce, balsam, birch, cedar, ash and oak come next. I saw spruce two feet and cedar three feet in diameter. Every few miles are growth of white and Norway pine, occupying always the highest elevations. In fact, there is a wall of forest on each side of the river which in its present fresh foliage, with every shade of green intermixed, and crowned with scattered pinnacles of conifers, is most striking.

"There is a profusion of undergrowth, including the hazel and alder. The white blossoms of the high bush cranberry and the apple thorn peep through here and there, and the white flowering kinnikinick makes a beautiful border. Skimming this splendid river with a vista here and there for quite a distance, and with such a noble virgin forest on each side and flood of sunlight above, one invariably feels more than he can express of nature's majesty. The country being fertile and open to settlement, I wondered why more settlers had not come in to occupy the land.

"There are very few actual settlers. I met with not over a dozen on the public land, among whom were Messrs. Frank Brusewitz, town 150, range 25, postoffice Deer river; Mr. Willey, William Dering and Dan Campbell, at Sturgeon Falls postoffice, Big Fork, Ontario, and George Schram and brother, of township 157, range 25, postoffice Big Fork, Ont. All testified to the bountiful yield of crops. Game is fairly plenty. As many as twenty deer and two or three moose were seen on the river banks. Ducks and partridges are numerous, as also such birds as the robin and meadow lark.

"The Big Fork is a noble river, and will play an important part in Minnesota's future; but on visiting its home country and making close inquiries about its character, it is found, alas, that it has one bad habit—that of overflowing its banks, or some of its banks, once about every nine years. Its waters are sometimes fifteen feet higher than at present, which would be a drawback as to the occupancy for farming purposes, of a portion of the adjacent lands. This river connects with an important international navigable route, the Rainy river and Lake of the Woods, and it would be well to have it surveyed by the United States engineers to ascertain what improvement of its navigation would be advisable, whether the construction of dams at some of its lake outlets would be expedient for holding back its surplus waters and thereby lessening its liability to overflow, or what other improvements, if any, would promote the agricultural development of the country. The state owns a large amount of school and swamp lands in this region, the value of which would be increased if they could become available for agriculture. If there are lands which from the river's overflow will not be suitable for agriculture, they certainly can be utilized as forest reserves.

"The Minnesota bank of the Rainy river from the Big Fork to Lake of the Woods has a gradual slope, is from fifteen to twenty feet high and covered with a thick young growth of deciduous forest, principally popular. The soil is well adapted for agriculture, but scarcely any of it is yet under cultivation, on the Canadian side opposite, however, are frequent homestead settlements and an occasional village."

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS.

They Eulogize Bryan and Reaffirm the Chicago Platform.

Milwaukee, June 13.—Bryan sentiment pervaded the Democratic state convention yesterday to elect four delegates at large and to ratify the selection of twenty district delegates to the national convention at Kansas City. Not until three sessions were held did the convention complete its business at 10 o'clock last night, the afternoon and evening sessions being characterized by spirited though friendly contests.

The following is a list of delegates at large, with alternates: David S. Rose, Milwaukee; T. J. Fleming, Milwaukee; George E. Hilton, Oshkosh; George M. Bird, Madison; D. L. Plumer, Wausau; C. L. Flood, La Crosse; Louis G. Bohmricks, Kenosha; T. L. Geary, Platteville. The district delegates are as follows: First, C. T. Hodges, Monroe; R. E. Richardson, Racine; Second, J. E. Malone, Dodge county; Job Mills, Columbia county; Third, J. Montgomery Smith, Mineral; Peter C. Pfaller, Vernon county; Fourth, Frank Falk, Milwaukee; Clinton Bargham, Milwaukee; Fifth, T. E. Ryan, Waukesha; Charles Whee, Sheboygan Falls; Sixth, F. D. Hoskins, Fond du Lac; W. F. Nash, Two Rivers; Seventh, W. H. Frawley, Eau Claire; R. T. McCoy, Monroe; Eighth, J. M. Baer, Appleton; W. W. Grant, Weyauwega; Ninth, John Norman, Oconto; Julius Thielman, Lincoln county; Tenth, W. H. Stafford, Douglas county; G. C. Comer, Douglas county.

The contest on national committeeman was left to the delegation to settle at Kansas City. From opinions offered by those high in authority the indication point to the reelection of Edward C. Wall. After a session of the committee on resolutions, which lasted two and a half hours, the committee finally drafted a platform endorsing the Chicago platform, eulogizing William J. Bryan, denouncing the Republican party, opposing trusts, demanding a reduction in internal revenue taxes. The platform was adopted without a dissenting vote.

BUILDING THE PIERS

Work of Constructing the Monolithic Blocks Is Again Under Way.

ON THE FIFTH BLOCK

Molds to Be Soon Removed and Give View of Finished Piece.

The work of building the monolithic blocks which will form the superstructure of the south canal pier is under way now and is being rapidly forwarded. The accident which resulted in the death of Charles Lynn, the engineer, damaged the engine and derrick used and delayed work for a few days, but it has been repaired, and the construction of blocks has been under way since. The accident took place at the time the construction of the first block was under way. Yesterday afternoon the fourth block was nearly completed and the mold for the fifth was set. Today the fifth is being built.

None of the molds have been removed as yet, so that the appearance of the blocks can only be judged as yet. They will be taken off in a very few days. That they will present a very handsome exterior there is no doubt. They are ten feet in length, about twenty feet in width and about ten or eleven feet in height. On the top of each block there is a parapet about four feet in width and three feet above the promenade in the center of the block.

The blocks, when the molds now being built are removed, will be ten feet apart, and this space will be filled in with other blocks, the mode of construction being the same as that employed in the building of concrete sidewalks, in the center of each block there is a gallery space three feet in height, and this, of course, will continue all the way through the pier. Through this electric wires, water pipes, etc., can be run, and in case of great emergency a man could pass through to the outer end of the pier. There will be very few storms, however, when a man cannot walk out on the pier.

The construction of the blocks has been begun at what may be called the danger line, that is, at the farthest point out at which the waves will not affect work. When the weather becomes more settled, which is in July and August, the work of constructing the outer blocks and the great pier head will be carried through. The pier will be entirely completed by fall.

HEROIC RESCUE.

Park Point Officer Joe Dwyer Saves a Sweet Young Life.

For saving a bright young blondined life from a watery grave, Joe Dwyer is entitled to all the medals that life saving societies can bestow upon him. Several days ago, when Chief Crandall placed the peace and dignity of Minnesota Point under Mr. Dwyer's protection, a fair camper gently remonstrated with him, saying that she was willing to wager her new blue organdie with its lace frills, blue pique and white embroidery insertions, that the new majesty of the law couldn't run fast enough to catch a "blind pig."

Notwithstanding this gentil, feminine knocking, the Park Point policeman is an 18-karat hero, if the story given out at police headquarters today, is unadulterated.

It was one of those heavenly nights when even a telegraph pole feels frivilous and romantic. Mr. Dwyer, who is a lover of nature was sitting on the beach listening to the gentle swish of the waves, as the golden shafts of light and day faded slowly into night and twilight clouds tinged with red, stained the sky with crimson glow.—He watched the dusky eve sweep her soft gray mantle across the radiant horizon, and listened to the hushed silence as the silvery moon slowly emerged from behind the towering pines. A little white sail boat turned a dull saffron in color, as it plunged from the dimness of the waters into the golden streak that led up to the moon, and passing again into darkness, fled on silently.

Joe Dwyer was the central figure of this restful picture. He sat there refreshing himself with the damp air and the buzz of young mosquito, filling his soul full of rest and his system with malaria, when a distrubed damsel appeared.

For some reason not revealed by her, she seemed lost and took a devious way to the water's edge. As she wended her way she wept bitterly and in her own flaxon haired and fluent, little way, called many men evil names. Her hair looked as if it had been tinted with a drug preparation, but notwithstanding this the policeman felt sorry for her. He saw her approaching the water, and knowing from hearsay that the fluid was often considered harmful to such as she, he shouted aloud and tried to warn her away from danger.

With a shriek that caused heavily laden ore carriers miles out in the lake to sheer off five points from their course, the girl "fell exhausted" on the beach. ("Fell exhausted" is the proper term in describing an affair of this kind.) And as she scattered the pebbles with the toes of her dainty shoes, the officer closed his eyes, expecting every moment she would take the fatal plunge into the darksome water, with a gurgling cry for help.

But the dive was not forthcoming—probably for the reason that Chief Crandall says there are no dives on Park Point.—and when the policeman slowly opened his eyes and got so he could notice things, the peroxide tressed divinity was nervously twitching a small package done up in blue paper with yellow streaks romping through it.

The officer dashed to her rescue—(see police news reports)—and stooping over the "prostrate form"—(prostrate form is also correct)—he dashed away the contents of the package. The disturbed damsel, hastily arose and rushed wildly back into the shadows of the pines. Apparently she was not thankful at being rescued from either a moist and sticky grave in the harbor mud at the bottom of the bay and the fluid extract above, or the foolish powder, for she ran hurriedly and did not even hesitate when Mr. Dwyer threatened her with arrest.

SOME MINING DEALS.

Exploration Lease on Lands In 59-18---Roberts Makes a Sale.

Three options for the lease or purchase of the e½ of the se¼, the sw¼ of the se¼ and the se¼ of the sw¼ of section 31-59-18, have been filed, by which John G. Brown, A. M. Miller and Andrew Gowan have the right to explore the lands until Nov. 1, 1900 when they can lease for $7500 per year, which is based on 15 cents royalty for 50,000 tons annually, or they can purchase for $50,000. The parties that own the lands and their interests are as follows: Alfred Merritt, one twentieth; James A. Nichols, one-twentieth; Northern Security company, one-twenty-fifth; Eliza M. Arnold and Henry S. Ely, three-twentieths; Gilbert M. Stevenson, four twenty-fifths; Walter E. Graham, one-fortieth; Thomas Adams, one-tenth; William C. Collins, one-fortieth; the Interstate company, three-tenths, and David F. Merritt, one-tenth.

Harry Roberts, of Duluth, has sold a third interest in the Fay mine lease to Pickands, Mather & Co. Capt. Roberts, M. L. Fay and J. H. Pearce owned the lease on the property, which is located north of Virginia, and some time ago Fay and Pearce sold out for $30,000 each. Capt. Roberts declined to sell at that figure, and now he has succeeded in getting $50,000.

Mr. Baird to Leave.

Charles G. Baird, who has been manager of the Spalding hotel for a few months, left last evening for Kansas City, where he has secured a third interest in the Coates' hotel, of that city. Mr. Baird came here from that house. His departure from Duluth is rather sudden, and the announcement that he was to leave after so short a residence was unexpected. The company which purchased the Coates' house is the Interstate Hotel company, and the principal members are Mr. Baird, E. K. Crilley and L. H. Pirey, of the Hotel English, of Indianapolis.

Our Prices on Sewing Machines--

Are 40 per cent lower than you can obtain first class machines elsewhere.

The Sewing Machine is no longer to be considered in the light of a luxury but rather as an absolute necessity, and should therefore be assigned its proper place in the household, with the cook stove, etc. No housewife can cook without a stove, and time is too fleeting to waste in sewing by hand these days, when a first class, reliable sewing machine may be had at a very reasonable price, owing to improved economical methods of manufacture and sale.

Good Machines ..... $15.00 to $20.00

LANGTRY'S HORSE WINS.

Carries Off the Gold Cup at Ascot Race.

London, June 14.—At Ascot today, the Gold Cup, value 1000 sovereigns, with 5000 sovereigns in specie in addition, was won by "Mr. Jersey's" (Mrs. Langtry's) Merman, ridden by Tod Sloan. R. A. Oswald's Scintillant was second and J. G. Clarke's The Grafter, third. Six horses ran.

The gold cup was considered such a gift for the French horse Perth II, owned by M. Caillault, that he started at 4 to 1. Sloan, however, upset a sure thing with Mrs. Langtry's Merman.

The thirty-seventh new biennial stakes of 15 sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added, were won by Ried Walker's chestnut colt Coulan, by Gallinule, out of Clarion, with Sloan up. Lord Rosebery's Cateran Lad was second, and Sir E. Cassel's Solitaire, ridden by L. Reiff was third. Nine horses ran.

With Mrs. Langtry's Merman, Prince Soltykoff's Ninus led until six furlongs from home, when Scintillant and Pertes II took up the running. Entering the straight, Pertes II assumed command, but was soon afterward beaten, and Merman, drawing to the front, won in hollow fashion by two lengths. The Grafter was a bad third.

The betting just previous to the start was: Merman, 100 to 7 against; Scintillant, 100 to 7 against; The Grafter, 100 to 8 against.

The New stakes, of 10 sovereigns each, with 1000 sovereigns added, were won by the Limosa colt, Sloan in the saddle.

A FRENCHMAN WINS.

Carries Off Honors In International Automobile Race.

Paris, June 14.—The international automobile race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, from Paris to Lyons, was won by M. E. Charron, of France. Alexander Winton, of Cleveland, Ohio, participated in the contest.

Mr. Winton's machine was smashed on the road. He was first reported as arriving at Chartres with an axle damaged, and the latest news from him was that he had passed Chartreau, Dunforth, with his front wheel buckled and the tire of his hind wheel badly split.

EXPLORERS SAIL.

Danish East Greenland Expedition Starts From Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, June 14.—The Norwegian steamer Antarctic, with the Danish East Greenland expedition, commanded by Lieut. Amdrup, sailed this morning to explore the coast between Cape Brewster and Agga island.

DEWEY IS RESERVED.

Washington, June 14.—Beyond expressing his gratification with the receptions accorded him everywhere on his recent trip, Admiral Dewey, who returned to Washington last night, declined today to make any statement. He will remain at his country residence, Beauvoir, with Mrs. Dewey until June 25, when he will go to Newport.

BOTHA HAS RETIRED

The Boers Opposing Roberts Evacuate Their Position and Go Eastward.

BUT LITTLE GAINED

British Do Not Appear to Have Damaged Botha's Force Any.

London, June 14.—Lord Roberts' engagement with Gen. Botha terminated as expected by the Boer commander-in-chief retiring from his positions.

Beyond driving Botha further from the capital little seems to have been accomplished, so Lord Roberts does not mention the capture of prisoners or guns or the infliction of loss.

Perhaps the most important feature revealed by today's official dispatch is the announcement, that the army of Natal is at last in touch with Lord Roberts' troops. The accomplishment of this movement, long delayed, could considerably accelerate the pacification of the Transvaal. It is already bearing fruit is evidenced by the submission of the Wakkerstroom district to Gen. Lyttleton.

Another dispatch from Gen. Buller says Gen. Clery encountered no opposition in his march from Ingogo to Laings Nek, June 13, (Wednesday) on his way to Charlestown. The press dispatches say Charlestown was partially destroyed previous to its evacuation by the Boers but that no damage was done at Volksrust.

In the Orange River Colony, affairs seem to be returning to the same status as obtained previously to the cutting of the line of British communication.

Mr. Schreiner seems determined to adhere to his resignation of the premiership, in spite of the pressure brought to bear on him by Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner, and it is announced from Cape Town that Milner has sent for Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the former premier, who is understood to be trying to form a cabinet.

A dispatch from Cape Town says: "At the opening of parliament, Mr. Schreiner will explain that he resigned because he was unwilling to remain in office supported by the opposition, believing his influence is greater with the moderate Afrikanders when a private member than as premier by the grace of the pregressives. Nevertheless, leaders of the Afrikander extremists are said to consider Mr. Schreiner a traitor to their cause."

THE BOERS RETIRE.

Force Opposing Roberts Evacuates Position and Goes Eastward.

London, June 14, 10:35 a. m.—The war office issues the following report from Lord Roberts, under date of Pretoria, June 13, afternoon:

"The enemy evacuated their strong position during the night and have retired to the eastward. Buller's force and mine have afforded each other mutual assistance. Our occupation of Pretoria caused numbers of Boers to withdraw from Laing's Nek, and Buller's advance to Volksrust made them feel their rear would be shortly endangered."

Lord Roberts reports to the war office under date of Pretoria, June 13, 9:55 a. m., as follows: "Methuen advanced to Honingspruit yesterday and found all quiet. Kroonstad is strongly held. Methuen returned today to Rhenoster river, where the railway is being repaired. We were engaged all yesterday with Botha's army. The enemy fought with considerable determination and held our cavalry on both flanks, but Ian Hamilton, assisted by the Guards' brigade of Pole-Carew's division, pushing forward, took the hill in his front, which caused the enemy to fall back on their second position to the eastward. This they are still holding. It is slightly higher than the one we have captured. The great extent of country which has to be covered under modern conditions of warfare renders progress very slow.

"Details of the casualties have not reached me, but I understand they are moderate in numbers. The only further casualties reported to date are two officers wounded."

DEWET'S FORCE GOT AWAY.

It Is Believed to Have Escaped Practically Intact.

London, June 14, 3:50 a. m.—Military observers, noting that no mention is made by Lord Roberts of prisoners, assume that Gen. Dewet got away with his forces practically intact. Gen. Buller entered Volksrust Wednesday, passed through Charleston and encamped near Laings Nek. The tunnel was not much damaged. Both ends were blown up, but the engineers think that repairs can be affected in four days.

The advance troops of Gen. Buller saw the Boer rear guard, four miles distant, yesterday. It was estimated that 8,000 Boers were withdrawing. The townspeople at Ermelo counted fifteen guns.

Three hundred Free Staters, released from guarding Van Renans Pass, have gone to join President Steyn's commando in the eastern part of Orange river colony. Gen. Rundle has sent notice to the Free Staters that unless they surrender by June 15 their farms and other possessions will be confiscated.

President Kruger, according to a dispatch from Lourenzo Marques, keeps a locomotive with steam up attached to the car in which he concentrates the executive officers of the government, and that he intends to leave Machadodrop soon to establish the Transvaal capital at Nel Spruit, in the mountains, a fine defensive region. The state printing press is operating at Machadodrop, producing leaflets containing war news for distribution among the Boers.

It is again reported at Lourenzo Marques that the British are advancing through Swaziland. Lord Roberts, it appears, however, countermanded the order given to Strathcona's horse to land on the coast and to penetrate to the Transvaal through the Swaziland country.

Gen. Buller's casualties on June 10 have been issued by the war office. There were 26 killed, 126 wounded and two missing.

NEED THOSE CLOTHES.

British Suffer For the Garments That Dewet Destroyed.

New York, June 14.—The London Daily Express correspondent telegraphs from Machadodorp, 140 miles east of Pretoria, under date of June 10, in connection with the capture and destruction by the Boer general, Dewet, of 3000 suits of clothing ing

"The British soldiers complain much of cold. There is much suffering among them, and the hospitals are full of the sick and exausted. The sickness among the horses, too, is increasing, thousands of animals having succumbed at Kroonstad, on the road from Blomfontein to Pretoria."

SCHREINER RESIGNES.

London, June 14.—Mr. Schreiner, the Cape premier, and his colleagues resigned last evening. Sir Alfred Mjlner accepting their resignations. The London papers only recently abused Mr. Schreiner for not making war preparations. Now they are complimenting his refusal to follow the majority of the Afrkiander bund in opposition to the British military policy.

WAKKERSTROOM SUBMITS.

London, June 14.—Gen. Buller reports to the war office as follows:

"Headquarters at Laings Nek, June 14, morning: Gen. Lyttleton yesterday received the formal submission of the town and district of Wakkerstroom, which the enemy is believed to have completely evacuated."

THE ST. LOUIS STRIKE.

Regular Police Force Withdrawn From Strike Duty.

St. Louis, June 14.—All the policemen who had been on duty guarding the power houses and car sheds of the St. Louis Transit company since the strike began were ordered back to their regular beats today by Chief of Police Campbell. The 300 emergency policemen, sworn in for strike duty, will walk beats. The power houses and car sheds will now be guarded by the 2500 deputies of the posse comitatus.

Since the strike began the city has been practically without police protection, most of the officers being centered around power houses and on cars. There have been numerous hold-ups and other depredations, and many complaints have been made of the inadequate police service.

For the first time since May 8, the beginning of the strike, all the lines were being operated today without police protection.

At the conclusion of the inquest yesterday afternoon the coroner announced that he would hold Deputy Sheriff Gardner McKnight on the testimony already in.

The inquiry commenced yesterday, to determine the responsibility for the riot and shooting on Sunday, was continued today until Friday.

The inquest over the remains of Frederick Bohne, a widower, aged 65 years, who was shot and killed Sunday at 1724 North Tenth street by a deputy sheriff in the course of some trouble, resulting from an attack on a street car, was begun today. Deputy Sheriff Robert E. Marsh, who, it is charged, fired the shot to kill Bohne, could not be found and the inquest proceeded without him.

The autopsy showed that Bohne has received four bullet wounds in the head.

Adolph Calussen, who lived in the same house with Bohne, testified that the old man had been pushed through the gate by a deputy with a gun. Bohne, he said, was stooping down in the act of locking the gate when he was shot and killed. Bohne, witness said he could neither speak nor understand English. He had taken no part in the riot.

Mrs. Rusie Buschert, a neighbor, said too she saw a deputy push Bohne through the gate. Afterwards, she heard some one cry "don't shoot," and a minute later a man whom she could not identify, fired.

SCHLEY QUARANTINED.

Washington, June 14.—Admiral Schley's flagship, the Chicago, will be quarantined for ten days at Montevideo.

LEGATIONS MENACED

Guns Trained on American, British and Japanese Legations at Pekin.

WILL FIGHT GUARDS

Thirty Thousand Chinese Troops Drawn Up to Oppose Relief Force.

London, June 14.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says: The positions of the legations at Pekin is most critical.

According to this dispatch, 30,000 Chinese troops are drawn up outside the gates of the city to oppose the relief force, and guns are trained on the American, British and Japanese legations.

The American, Russian and Japanese ministers have sent, couriers to Tien Tsin asking for 2000 troops of each nationality.

Washington, June 14.—The following cablegram has been received from Admiral Kempff:

"Tong Ku, June 13.—Secretary Navy, Washington: Twenty-five hundred men are on the road to Pekin for the relief of the legations. One hundred are Americans, English and Russians in large majority; all nations represented. The viceroy at Tien Tsin gave permission to go there; railroad being repaired as force advances. Russians now sending soldiers from Port Arthur, with artillery. KEMPFF."

Tsien Tien, June 14.—Owing to the extensive damage done to the railroad line, it is now feared the international troops cannot reach Pekin before Sunday.

The Japanese cruiser Suma has arrived at Taku.

Tien Tsin, Wednesday, June 13.—The international expedition is now at Lang Fang, half way to Pekin. The troops found the station destroyed and 200 yards of the track torn up. Upon approaching the station they found the Boxers still carrying on the work of destruction, but the latter bolted into the village upon the approach of the advance party.

A shell from a 6-pounder was dropped into the village and the Boxers fled up the line. Above the station a small party was discovered engaged in tearing up the track, but a few long-range shots drove them off. The patrol returned this morning and reports that a mile and a quarter of the track has been destroyed. The expedition will remain for the present at Lang Fang.

A courier who arrived this morning from Pekin and Lang Fang brought a letter from the American legation stating that Gen. Tung Fung Tiang intends to oppose the entrance of the foreign troops into Pekin. Ten thousand troops are guarding the south gate. The courier reports that it is said upwards of 2000 Boxers are in the immediate neighborhood of Lang Fang.

Tien Tsin, June 14.—Railroad communication between this place and Admiral Seymour's international force has been cut three miles beyond Yang Tsun. Two bridges have been destroyed. It is rumored here that the Boxers are determined to burn Tien Tsin station tonight.

FIGHTING THEIR WAY.

Marines Hewing a Path Into the Chinese Capital.

New York, June 14.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: The news from Pekin is still vague. The marines are compelled to fight their way into the capital with rifles and Maxim. British marines have been in action with the Boxers in clearing the railways, but eight nations are represented on the fighting line.

There are persistent rumors that Russian troops are under orders to invade Northern China, but it is not yet clear that either England or Japan has consented to an exclusive movement by a single power. Japan will acquiesce if she be allowed to supply a large military contingent, but this is not included in the Russian zone of military operations. What Lord Salisbury's policy is nobody in diplomatic circles can make out. It is strongly suspected that he has not hit upon a policy, but is cautiously feeling his way in the dark.

The China complications will exert a direct influence upon the present fortunes of the ministers here. It is now probable that Arthur Balfour will be induced to take the foreign office when the cabinet is reconstructed. He is deeply interested in the China question, and has studied it in detail. He will probably be Lord Salisbury's successor in that office at an early day. This will leave a vacancy somewhere for Mr. Chamberlain, either in the treasury or the war office, and the leadership of the commons in any event.

EMPRESS NOT HOSTILE.

Chinese Dowager Will Not Object to Foreign Troops.

Washington, June 14.—Definite official information was received here yesterday afternoon from the foreign office of one of the most important continental powers stating that the Tsung Li Yamen had notified the minister of that power at Pekin that the dowager empress would not object to the presence of foreign troops in China's territory.

This change of front came as a distinct surprise to officials and diplomats, as all the reports up to this time had pictured the empress dowager as intensely hostile to the foreigners and as the real power behind the Boxers' anti-foreign uprising. This supposed attitude of the empress gave much concern to the authorities here and at other capitals, as it was feared it would eventuate in an open declaration by the government of China against the presence of the foreign troops.

In official Russian quarters the rumors that the empress dowager has sought a refuge at the Russian legation in Pekin are discredited and are resented as a bit of inspired intrigue designed to create the impression that Russian sympathies are with the anti-foreign element. It is pointed out Russia's course has been marked by the utmost reserve, for while it would have been possible at any time to land large forces in China, the Russian force actually landed has been comparatively insignificant, mainly for the reason that Russia desires to be wholly free from any imputation of ulterior designs.

HELENA UNAVAILABLE.

Gunboat Not In Shape to Go to Taku.

Washington, June 41.—A dispatch from Admiral Remey received at the navy department makes plain the reason why the gunboat Nashville was sent to Taku instead of the Helena, as requested by the navy department, in answer to Admiral Kempff's appeal. Admiral Remey reports that the Helena is now at the capital of the island of Panay, serving as a station ship. She is in need of two months repairs and was constantly unavailable for the required service. The Helena has been subjected to very heavy service since her departure from the United States, just before the outbreak of the Spanish war, and it is believed that her boilers are in need of renovation.

Admiral Kempff's dispatch this morning makes no mention of any undue delay in the movements of the foreign forces upon Pekin, and as he is in a position to secure the latest and most accurate news from the relief column, the officials here believe that there have been no untoward happenings. Some surprise is expressed at the strength of the column. There is a sincere regret entertained at the navy department at the comparatively small representation of the United States in this movement. But it is said that the navy has done all it can to meet the calls upon it. The intimation is very clear that if further reinforcements are for the Chinese service, recourse must be had to the United States army. On their part, however, the army officers repudiate any purpose to become involved in the situation, and it is officially declared that there is still no intention of sending any United States troops to China.

Admiral Remey also has notified the navy department of the departure yesterday from Manilla, in accordance with the department's orders, of the Solace. She carries 100 marines to Taku, to reinforce Admiral Kempff. She will proceed homeward, stopping at Guam.

STATEMENT BY BRODERICK.

He Outlines the Position In the Chinese Empire.

London, June 14.—In the house of commons today the parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, St. John Broderick, made a statement in regard to the positon in the Chinese empire:

"Her majesty's minister at Pekin," said he, "has been in constant communication with the Chinese government since the attack by Boxers on peaceful converts on May 12. Sir Claude McDonald reminded the Tsung Li Yamen (Chinese foreign office) of his unceasing warnings during the last six months of the danger of not taking adequate measures to suppress the Boxers, and an imperial decree was subsequently issued. On May 20, at 4, a meeting of the diplomatic corps was held at which a resolution was unanimously adopted calling on the Tsung Li Yamen to take more stringent measures. It was not then considered necessary to bring the international guards to Pekin, but the British marine guard at Tien Tsin, which had been under orders to leave, was detained there."

WANTS ENERGETIC ACTION.

American Asiatic Association Will Petition the President.

Washington, June 14.—John Foord, secretary of the American Asiatic association, today received the following cablegram from the Shanghai branch of the association:

"AMERICAN ASSOCIATION."

On the 7th instant the following cablegram was received by the association from its Shanghai branch:

"American lives and interests in North China are seriously imperilled. Urge government to act promtly and vigorously with adequate force."

The association, using these two cablegrams as a basis, is circulating a petition for signatures, addressed to the president, asking that this government take energetic steps to protect American lives and interests in China; also, that the United States act in concert with the other powers in this emergency.

LANG FANG A BASE.

Believed Seymour Is Using the Town as Such.

Tien Tsin, Wednesday, June 13.—It is expected that Admiral Seymour has made Lang-Fang a secondary base, and that he will advance the remaining forty miles as rapidly as possible.

It is reported that Prince Tuan (the new head of the Chinese foreign office), and Gen. Tung Fuh Siang have resigned.

Three more Russian warships have arrived at Taku.

MISSIONS ARE RAIDED.

Riot at Yun-Na-Fu, But Missionaries Safe.

Shanghai, June 14.—A dispatch from Ching Kiang says that a riot has taken place at Yun-Na-Fu. The buildings of the China Island mission were partially destroyed and those of the Roman Catholic and Bible Christian missions were utterly demolished. All the missionaries are safe.

A Russian troopship passed up the Yang Tse Wednesday, June 13. It was reported that her troops were to be landed at Hankow, but the Russian officials at Shanghai explain that the transport has merely gone to Hankow to load for Odessa, and the troops on board are time-expired men on their way home.

TROOPS START.

Hong Kong, June 14.—Four companies of the Hong Kong regiment, a mountain battery and a field battery of Asiatic artillery, with a battery of 2.5-inch guns, start for Tien Tsin tonight. The Fusiliers are expected to sail on the Terrible June 18.

HATCHING TROUBLE

IS MASSING TROOPS

Collecting Soldiers, Cannon and Military Supplies on the Pacific Coast.

Managua, Nicaragua, May 30.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—President Zelaya of Nicaragua is again concentrating a large number of troops, many cannon and a big quantity of military supplies in the departments of Chinandega and Leon, along the Pacific coast, as if in anticipation of a war with Salvador, which might commence about the middle of June or early in July. The president and his cabinet have about completed arrangements to enable them to leave the city in a few days and reside for about one month in Chinandega and Leon, the governmental departments accompanying them. But this fact, it is argued, is no reason why 2000 or more soldiers should be concentrated in those civil departments.

Many refugees have lately arrived in this country from Salvador, and the influx continues. It is hinted that probably it is intended to organize a body of Salvadoreans, procure rifles and cannon from Nicaragua, and, in conjunction with Nicaraguan soldiers, make an effort to overthrow the government of Salvador.

Such a war would involve Nicaragua, Salvador and most likely Guatemala and Costa Rica.

It is suggested that President Zelaya is getting ready to resist a possible attack from Salvador, but the influx of so many immigrants into Nicaragua from Salvador leaves the contemplated attack on the latter government.

Coffee just gathered, crop of 1899, in Nicaragua is being moved from the plantations to the sea coast with much greater rapidity than in former years. This celerity is taken to indicate a desire to leave the laborers free to be impressed into the army.

SHE IS DEAD.

Mrs. Gladstone, Widow of the English Statesman, Passes Away.

London, June 14.—Mrs. Gladstone, widow of William E. Gladstone, the English statesman, died at 5:40 p. m. today.

BISHOP WILMER DEAD.

He Was a Historic Figure of Reconstruction Times.

Bishop Wilmer was born in Alexandria, Va., March 15, 1816. He is remembered nationally for his recommendation to the clergy of his diocese to omit in prayers "For the president of the United States and all the others in authority," on the ground that only a military government existed in Alabama. This was in the reconstruction times, and for this he was subsequently by Gen. George H. Thomas, and forbidden to exercise the functions of his office, but was afterward reinstated by President Johnson.

WILL POSTPONE TARIFF.

Turkey Defers to the Representations of the Powers.

Constantinople, Wednesday, June 13.—The Porte has notified the various ambassadors that, in consequence of their representations, it will postpone for a month the application of the new tariff, and after this delay, will require certificates showing the country of origin of imported goods.

London, June 14.—The Bank of England rate of discount was today reduced to 3 per cent.

JAPAN'S CONTINGENT.

Yokohama, June 14.—Japan is about to send a mixed regiment to China. The government press declares that Japan alone could suppress the revolt, but she must first win the confidence of the powers and avoid acts likely to awaken suspicion.

IN IRON AND STEEL

The Up Grade In the Iron Trade Not Reached Yet.

BUYERS ARE WAITING

The Export Demand For Pig Iron and Steel Is Growing.

New York, June 14.—The Iron Age, in its issue today, says:

"The turning point in the iron trade has not yet been reported, notwithstanding the general reduction in prices made during the past week. Buyers are still placing contracts for merely enough to meet their present requirements, and are not disposed to anticipate the future. The consensus of opinion among leaders in the trade is that hand-to-mouth buying will continue until prices have receded to a point which is seen to be close to the cost of production at average works.

The opinion is expressed that it would be better to reach this point at once by making sharp reductions which would cut to the quick. This would accelerate the restriction of production that is necessary to bring about a substantial basis for business. As long as prices show a good margin above cost at the great majority of works, manufacturers will continue operations in the hope that they may be able to dispose of their product.

"Our blast furnace statement for June 1 illustrates these conditions. Pig iron prices have been declining, and the outlook for some time has been discouraging, yet the production of pig iron during May actually increased, as shown by the fact that furnaces in operation on June 1 represented a weekly capacity of 2526 tons in excess of the capacity of the furnaces in operation a month previous. The stocks of pig iron, excluding stocks held by steel works, increased during the month 93,603 tons. It is true that since the first of this month quite a number of furnaces had blown out, and others are to be blown out shortly. It is a question, however, whether the decrease in production will be sharp enough to cause a better condition to prevail in pig iron.

"It is important to note in this connection that large consumers of pig iron state that they are finding as much difficulty as ever in securing shipments of standard grades. They find a superabundance of other grades being offered them, but the standard brands have not been accumulating. This is particularly the case with Southern pig iron. The higher grades of Southern iron are in small supply, and even No. 3 foundry is difficult to secure. An export order for 50 tons of No. 3 foundry iron could not be filled within the past week on this account. The reports showed in the daily press last week that a reduction of $2 had been made in the price of Southern iron were untrue. The Southern situation has not yet compelled such a reduction.

"The demand from abroad for pig iron and steel is increasing. Good inquiries are being received, and considerable business has been entered within the week for forward delivery. The important announcement is made that the Tennessee Iron, Coal & Railroad company will engage in the manufacture of steel rails at their works at Ensley, Ala., and have already booked orders for 775,000 tons for delivery next year. Their rails will be made of open hearth steel.

"The reports received from our various correspondents show further declines in prices on almost the entire line of iron and steel products. Rails and structural iron shapes continue to be the exceptions. A meeting of the manufacturers of structural shapes will be held in this city on Thursday, and it is rumored that action will be taken to place prices of shapes on a basis to correspond with rates now ruling on other steel products.

"Consumers of lake ores are asking the mining companies to defer shipments until August, which will possibly throw a big movement toward the close of the season."

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

Twaddle vs. Street Railway Company Is Affirmed.

St. Paul, June 14.—The supreme court yesterday rendered a decision, signed by Judge Collins, affirming the order of Judge Bunn of the Ramsey county district court in the well known case of the state railroad and warehouse commission against the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad company, which was appealed to the supreme court by the road. The decision holds that the railroad and warehouse commission has a right to establish a fixed joint rate between roads and compel the roads to comply with its orders. In 1899, after an investigation of the joint rate between the St. Paul & Duluth road and the Minneapolis & St. Louis road for carrying hard coal shipped from Duluth to various points along the latter line, the commission established a lower joint rate. The two roads failed to agree upon a division of the new rates and the Minneapolis & St. Louis road withdrew from carrying coal on a joint rate. After a trial in the Ramsey county district court the commission obtained a writ of mandamus to compel the road to obey its order, and the road appealed the case. A feature of the opinion is a clause which holds that the carrier is entitled to an examination of the evidence taken by the commission from the beginning.

Decisions in the following cases were also rendered: In re assignment of Frank H. Page, respondent, against Selden Bacon, appellant. Order affirmed. In re Cunningham estate, E. H. Cunningham, respondent, against Ripley L. Cunningham et al, appellants. Judgment affirmed. George Twaddle, as administrator of the estate of Arthur Twaddle, deceased, respondent, against Luther Mendenhall, as receiver of the Duluth Railway company, appellant. Order affirmed. Brennan Lumber company, respondent, against Great Northern Railway company, appellant. Judgment affirmed. Judges Brown and Lewis dissented. Jennie G. Hofflin, appellant, against board of county commissioners of Hennepin county. Order affirmed.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

RAINY RIVER BRIDGE.

Minneapolis, June 14.—A board of government engineers consisting of Maj. F. E. Abbott, chief engineer of the Upper Mississippi district; Maj. Clinton B. Sears, government engineer at Duluth, and Capt. J. G. Warren, of the Milwaukee district, yesterday approved the plans of the Minnesota & Ontario Bridge company for the international bridge authorized by congress across Rainy river at the mouth of the Baubette. It will cost $300,000 and will have a 160-foot draw. The Canadian Northern Railway system, for which it is to be built, will also build a $1,000,000 steel bridge across the narrows of Rainy lake. When these are completed, its line will run from Port Arthur, Ont., to Winnipeg, partly through Minnesota.

DENIED BY MOUNT.

Indiana Governor Will Not Honor Requisition For Taylor.

Indianapolis, June 14.—Governor Mount last night declined to honor a requisition from Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, for the return to that state of William S. Taylor, who is under indictment for complicity in an alleged plot which resulted in the assination of Governor Goebel.

Governor Mount gave out a statement in which he says that he does not believe a fair and impartial trial can or will at this time be given Taylor under the present conditions in Kentucky.

"Another phase of the question that deserves to be challenged," says Governor Mount, "is the action of the general assembly in setting aside the enormous sum of $100,000 for the conviction of persons suspected of having been concerned in the killing of Mr. Goebel. That, in itself, is considered by all right thinking people, as a tempting proposition for the committing of wholesale perjury and the encouraging of moral and actual assassination. Until there is a prospect of securing justice in your courts I cannot honor the requisition."

MOST GHASTLY FIND

Made By Wisconsin Men In Deserted Indian Shack Near Wausau.

Wausau, Wis., June 14.—In a deserted Indian shack on north shore of Shishibogoma, near Minocqua, Dr. A. W. Trevitt, of Wausau; D. E. C. Egges, of St. Louis; E. T. Doman of Hotel Davidson, and Michael Olle of the Hotel Atlas, Milwaukee, made a ghastly discovery. They found the emaciated form of a human being, wasted away to a veritable skeleton, lying with his head on a block of burnt wood. His head was covered by a knit cap, his clothing torn from his limbs above the knees. His legs and arms little more than dangling bones, save that they were covered with skin and grime. All thought of his being alive vanished at first sight. Visions of a foul and dastardly crime, starved to death and every other horrible imagination took possession of their minds. Dr. Trevitt, the cooler of the quartet, picked up one of his hands, felt for the pulse and exclaimed: "My God he's alive." Dr. Eggers grasped the other hand and the feeble pulse answered his search. He said: "Merciful heavens, are we looking on the real or are we dreaming?"

There was not inside or around this miserable shack a trace of life save the human skeleton. Not a can, a plate, a cooking utensil or scrap of paper to denote that there had been a living being there for months. Nothing but a jug partly full of stale water.

"What's your diagnosis?" asked Dr. Eggers of Dr. Trevitt. "Typhoid fever," replied Trevitt.

The lake was less than seventy-five feet away. Water was procured, the fellow's lips moved, he gasped, his head was raised and some whisky poured down his throat; he swallowed, opened his eyes, in which was the death glare. More water and more whisky revived him, till half an hour later he tried to articulate, but was too weak. Not one of the party had so much as a cracker in his pocket. A consultation was held and a return to Mark Barnum's hotel at The Pines, where a party was quartered, was hastily made. Blankets were procured, a bottle of cream and a larger boat together with Mark Barnum, and the party set out for the scene of squalor and suffering.

Under the influence of liquor and a draught of cream the man revived sufficiently to stand or shake his head in answer to questions. Near the Barnum hotel is a summer cottage which Mrs. Barnum and the lady guests had prepared for the stranger and. The trip back was made in safety, and the grimy skeleton deposited in a bed, and willing hands, under the direction of Drs. Trevitt and Eggers, spent the night in humanitarian cause. In the morning the man was given more stimulants and cream. He asked for custard, which was given him, and he gained strength sufficiently to tell his story. He is an Englishman, but a few months over from the old country. His name is William Baker, of No. 3 New street, Chatham, Eng., and a son of Harry Baker.

About May 1 he was at the Flambeaux Indian reservation and was taken sick. A white man piloted him to the Indian shack, some eight miles distant, and left him, and that is the last he remembered until today. He is five feet eleven inches tall, and weighs, in health, 190 pounds. Today he does not weigh sixty pounds. His thighs can easily be spanned by one hand; his neck is like wire; his abdomen was caved in till it looked like a wash bowl.

"I could take my thumbs and fingers and circle his thigh bones and lift his form," said Dr. Trevitt. "I have been in morgues, the dissecting room and charnel houses, but in all my life I never saw so heart rending a sight."

The fellow gives every evidence of having mingled with good people. His speech is pleasant, his every answer and request emphasized with politeness. He says that when he was brought to the Indian shack he had a rifle, but none was found by the fishing party. He is improving rapidly and nothing save too much kindness can prevent his getting well.

The true story of his sufferings and how he came to be left in the woods to die will be ascertained is possible. It is unquestionably a case of typhoid fever of forty-two days' delirium and emaciation, and whether he has tasted food or even water in that time is shrouded in mystery.

THE NERVES OF WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Suffering from Overwrought Nerves.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful for the benefit derived from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I wish you to publish this testimonial that others may know the value of your medicine. I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all and was too weak to walk across the floor without aid. The disease had reached a condition where my heart was affected by it, so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."—MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Thin, Sallow and Nervous

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was thin, sallow and nervous. I had not had my menses for over a year and a half. Doctored with several physicians in town and one specialist, but did not get any better. I finally decided to try your medicine, and wrote to you. After I had taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three of Blood Purifier, my menses returned, and I feel as well and strong as I ever did, and am gaining flesh."—MISS LENA GAINES, Visalia, Tulare Co., Cal.

The door that Dante saw had this inscription over it: "Despair of hope, all ye who enter here." When man despairs of hope he drains the very dregs of despair.

There are certain forms of disease to which medical ignorance and popular superstition have given the title of "Hopeless." That very fact handicaps the sufferers from such diseases by robbing them of the courage to try to regain health. This is particularly true of lung diseases. As soon as disease fastens on the lungs, the victim sits down, makes his will, and awaits his fate. He wouldn't act that way if he were bitten by a tarantula or a rattlesnake. He'd fight then for his life. But he is under the influence of the ignorant and superstitious, that write "Despair of hope" over the door of such diseases as by neglect or unskillful treatment may end fatally in consumption.

There is a new inscription for that doorway of disease, made by rubbing out the first two words and leaving it: "Hope all ye who enter here." What! Can there be hope for the sufferer with the constant cough, flushed face, burdened breathing and emaciated body? The record says "yes." Ninety-eight out of every hundred cases in which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been used have been permantly cured. "Golden Medical Discovery" positively cures weak lungs, bronchitis, obstinate lingering cough, bleeding of the lungs and kindred ailments, which, if neglected, find a fatal ending in consumption. It contains no alcohol, whisky or other stimulant.

"Your medicine is the best I have ever taken," writes Mrs. Jennie Dingman of Vanburen, Kalkaska Co., Mich. "Last spring I had a bad cough; got so bad I had to be in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. He wanted me to get a doctor, but I told him if it was consumption they could not help me. We thought we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken one bottle the cough stopped and I have since had no signs of its returning."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the best for the bowels. Use them with the "Discovery."

KING OSCAR IN PARIS.

Chicago, June 14.—A Paris dispatch to the Record says: King Oscar's visit to the exposition is almost at an end. As the program is arranged, Thursday will be his last day in the city. The finest function of his sojourn was last night's dinner at the Elysee. The reception was very exclusive, and was pronounced as elegant as any entertainment of the second empire.

One unfortunate blunder, however, marred the evening. On the first page of the program of the after dinner theatricals, the Swedish flag and the Swedish pavillion at the exposition were represented, while the Norwegian flag and the Norwegian pavilion were ignored. The French press and public are more or less ignorant of the strained relations between Sweden and Norway, and all the papers, in their accounts of the king's arrival last week, ignored the fact that the band played the Norwegian national air, making matters all the worse by mentioning the Swedish.

A weak attempt has been made in some quarters to diminish the king's popularity by declaring that he is pro-English, and the effort has been greatly aided by the indiscretion of the English journalist who published an anglophile conversation which King Oscar supposed was private, and which has been reproduced in the French newspapers.

The Stockholm correspondent of a Paris newspaper questioned a member of the Swedish government concerning the king's utterances. "The king spoke," was the reply, "as a private gentleman. His utterances, as coming from the king, have been repudiated by the cabinet."

In telegraphing the interview, the correspondent added, on his own responsibility, the absurd comment: "It is felt here that the king ought to abdicate."

The Twentieth Century.

When a few months more shall have passed we will then stand at the very threshold of the twentieth century, and the nineteenth will be a thing of the past. It will, however, be known as the century of invention and discovery, and among some of the greatest of these we can truthfully mention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated remedy for all ailments arising from a disordered stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency, constipation and biliousness. It has been one of the greatest blessings to mankind during the past fifty years as a health builder. Many physicians recommend it. Take advice, try a bottle and be convinced, but be sure to get the genuine with a Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

ASSOCIATED PRESS ROW.

Fair Start For a Good Crop of Lawsuits.

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—In the supreme court yesterday the Chicago Inter-Ocean asked leave to be made a party defendant in the proceeding in mandamus brought by the Denver Post against the Associated Press. In its petition, the Inter-Ocean claims to be a stockholder in the Associated Press, holding eight shares of the stock of the corporation. The petition states that it is the belief of the Inter-Ocean management that this mandamus proceeding was brought with the consent of the Associated Press in order to immediately notify its members that the court will grant an order and compel the corporation to furnish the service to any paper that will pay the rate fixed. The Inter-Ocean says it does not believe the mandamus proceeding is brought in good faith, but is simply part of a scheme to get members to withdraw and join the New York organization, thus disrupting the Illinois concern. Leave to file was granted.

The New York Evening Journal yesterday filed a petition for mandamus in the supreme court to compel the Associated Press to furnish its news service to them. The petition is the same as the one filed by the Denver Post several days ago.

CHARGE AGAINST COLER.

New York Comptroller Accused of Discriminating Between Bidders.

New York, June 14—Counsel for Jacob W. Mack, of New York, has forwarded to Governor Roosevelt a copy of a charge of malfeasance in office made by Mr. Mack against Comptroller Bird S. Coler, accusing him of awarding bids for $12,688,892, advertised on July 29, 1898, to a favorite syndicate, thereby causing a large money loss to the city. Mr. Mack, in his petition, prays for the removal of the comptroller from office.

Champaign, Ill., June 14.—Bird S. Coler said last night that the attacks upon him are inspired by interests that he has opposed; that his position on the debt limit is well known, and the award spoken of was made in accordance with a decision in Judge Copen's court. The papers in the comptroller's office, Mr. Coler said, are open to inspection, and he has wired Governor Roosevelt for an immediate hearing.

HARD PRESSED.

Beleaguered Garrison at Kumassi on Half Rations and Ammunition Short.

London, June 14.—The following dispatch has been received at the colonial office from Col. Willcocks, in command of the Ashanti relief expedition:

"Prashu, June 12.—A letter has just been received from the governor of the Gold Coast (Sir F. H. Hodgson), dated Kumassi, June 4. It is as brief as possible. Following is the substance: "On several occasions unsuccessful attempts have been made to get off letters. He informs me that he inclosed a copy of another of May 4, which I have not received. Kumassi is garrisoned by 700 native troops and the command of Maj. Harris, acting commissioner and commandant of the northern territories, who has succeeded in entering the place from the north. The European and other troops are on half rations. The supplies of ammunition at Kumassi are not sufficient to allow of full measures and must be husbanded in the case of the reinforcements not arriving.

"The march for the relief of Kumassi will be met by great numbers of rebels, who have constructed stockades and put impediments in the way, such as trees. There are also stockades surrounding Kumassi, offering the rebels good shelter. The rebels have places built up in trees, and have used them to open fire from. The state of the health of Kumassi is good, but 300 persons of the native community are in a state of destitution. Immediate assistance is required. The reinforcements which have reached the Gold Coast, most of which have crossed the Prah, comprise 100 of the Lagos (Hausa) force, and fifty of the Sierra Leone frontier police, with Maxims and field guns. These are in addition to the Gold Coast constabulary and Gold Coast police. Further reinforcements, amounting to 900 men are being sent from Sierra Leone and Northern and Southern Nigeria, and will reach Cape Coast in the course of a few days."

OHIO CONVENTION.

Delegates Elected and Candidates Named By the Democrats.

Columbus, Ohio, June 14.—The Democratic state convention yesterday made the following nominations: Delegates-at-large, James Kilbourne, Abraham A. Patrick, William S. Thomas and Horace L. Chapman; alternates, M. O. Burns, John McSweeney, C. L. Brumbach and M. B. Clayburn; electors-at-large, Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood and Gen. A. J. Warner; secretary of state, H. H. McFadden; judge of the supreme court, Allen W. Smalley; dairy and food commissioner, Ballard B. Yates; school commissioner, J. D. Simpkins; members of the board of public works, Peter Y. Brown.

After a continuous session of over nine hours the convention adjourned last night. It was a slate-slashing and record-breaking convention. The McLean men said yesterday they were asking for nothing at the convention only fair dealing. They helped those who have been opposing them to the places of party distinction and responsibility.

There was a notable absence of the McLean leaders here this week and very few of those who were in the city, outside of the delegations, went to the convention hall.

It is said that Mr. McLean did not care to take any aggressive part on account of the Dewey candidacy.

J. J. HILL QUOTED.

He Makes a Reassuring Statement About Crops.

New York, June 14.—President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern says: "The alarmist rumors in regard to the wheat position of the Northwest have been rather premature. Had no rain fallen until July 1 the crop would not have been hopeless. The crop could live until that date without being totally destroyed, even if it had not received the benefit of the very general rains which fell on Sunday last. It is idle to say that the rains did not come where they were really needed. They were almost general and very beneficial. In the sections where the damage is greatest it will not amount to more than 15 per cent, and in some sections there has been none whatever. Some places will show an enormous yield. As an example of estimate I do not think that the loss can exceed 5,000,000 bushels, which, at 70 cents a bushel, would be $3,500,000, so that as far as the Great Northern is concerned the situation is not at all serious. Our country is rapidly growing up, and this year's influx of settlers into our territory breaks all records.

"Conditions in the Northwest continue all right. The business disturbances in the East have not been felt there, and will not, I think, be felt to any extent. The demand for lumber is very heavy, and the business is only limited by the capacity of the forests."

LEVYING TRIBUTE.

Washington, June 14.—The Post today publishes an article stating that the Republican congressional committee has been endeavoring to collect as a campaign contribution a part of the extra month's salary voted to the employes of congress just before adjournment. The employes were informed that any contribution would be voluntary and many of them paid no heed to the communication received, while others made only a small contribution, so that the amount collected will not exceed $1200 or $1500, instead of $10,000 or more as had been expected.

WISCONSIN MASONS.

Milwaukee, June 14.—C. C. Rogers, of Milwaukee, was elected grand master of the Masonic grand lodge of Wisconsin yesterday. He succeeds C. E. Whelan, of Madison. Other officers elected are: Deputy grand master, F. H. L. Cotton, Eau Claire; grand senior warden, E. A. Upham, Marshfield; grand junior warden, W. G. Hales, Mineral Point; grand secretary, John W. Laflin, Milwaukee; grand treasurer, J. H. Evans, Platteville; trustee for three years, David H. Wright, Madison.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Market Started Higher and Active But Broke and Ruled Irregular.

THE CABLES HIGHER

Duluth Board of Trade, June 14.—The wheat market started out active and higher this morning, but lost the advance and ruled irregular. The opening strength was due to the continued lack of rain in the wheat districts of the Northwest, more claims of serious damage in that section, higher cables and reports of injury by drought in the Black Sea region of Russia. The decline was brought about by the weather bureau's prediction of rain for Minnesota and the Dakotas. The close was 1c lower than yesterday here and 2c lower at Chicago for the July option.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 5c up, at 74⅝c, sold up to 74⅞c at 9:40, declined to 73¾c at 11:15, rose to 73¾c at 11:30, fell back to 73 at 12:03, sold at 72⅝c at 1:12 and closed at those figures, 1c below yesterday. September wheat started ¼c up at 70c, advanced to 75⅝c at 9:40, declined to 74c at 11:20, sold at 73⅝c at 12:01 and closed at 73⅝c, a net decline of 1c for the day. Cash sales were 40,000 bus at 1c under July. Corn declined 1¢. Oats, barley and rye showed no change. Cash flax was unchanged. September flax declined 2c and October flax fell off 1c. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 74⅝c; to arrive, 74⅝c; July, 74⅝c; September, 75½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 72½c; to arrive, 72½c; July, 72⅝c; September, 70⅝c. No. 2 northern, 70½c. No. 3 spring, 67¾c. Oats, 22½c. Rye, 53½c. Barley, 37-39c. Flax, cash, $1.38; in car lots, $1.75; September, $1.32; October, $1.27⅞. Corn, 37⅝c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 192; corn, 8; oats, 2; flax, 6. Receipts—Wheat, 226,551 bus; corn, 6156 bus; barley, 1820 bus; flax, 5451 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 68,858 bus; barley, 20,000 bus.

ON THE CHICAGO BOARD.

Opening Higher Throughout, a Downward Movement Following.

Chicago, June 14.—Wheat was active and irregular during the fore part of today's session. July opened ¾@⅞c over yesterday at 71¼@73c, on lack of rain during the past twenty-four hours in the Northwest, continued pessimistic crop reports from that section and higher cables. Wheat in the Black Sea region of Russia was reported suffering from drouth. The Northwest was a heavy buyer at the opening. The rally was lost, however, on the signal service prediction of rain for Minnesota and the Dakotas. July reacting to 73½c. The Price Current said the spring wheat crop had suffered a severe set back while today private advices even from the Northwest districts, where the best of recent rains have fallen, were that half the average crop was only a possibility under the best of conditions henceforth. Portions of the South reported heavy rains. Local receipts were 79 cars, 3 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 478 cars against 458 last week and 417 a year ago.

Under continued selling by longs, the market later declined to 72¾c and closed weak, July 5c under yesterday at 72⅝@73c. Rain was reported falling at Aberdeen and during the day there was a smattering of showers a degree less glooiny than recently.

The corn market opened strong in sympathy with wheat and under the expectation of a continuance of yesterday's excellent cash business, but reacted when wheat lost its bulge. Crop advices were favorable. July opened 1⅜@⅝c higher at 37 @39½c and declined to 38⅜c, where the market steadied. Local receipts were 550 cars.

The close was easy, July ⅛c lower at 38⅝c.

Oats were quiet but firm on a fair demand and no particular pressure to sell. July opened 1⅜@⅝c higher at 22@23c and sold to 22½c, later casing to 22⅜c. Receipts here were 27 cars.

Provisions were dull and featureless and the tone early rather easy. Hog receipts were liberal and the market at the yards easy. The opening was firm with wheat and corn. July pork opened 2½c higher at $11.27½ and sold off to $11.22½; July lard 2½c up at $6.57½, easing to $6.55, and July ribs 2½c improved at $6.57½, declining to $6.52½ @6.55.

Close: Wheat—June, 72½c; July, 72⅝@73c; August, 73½@73¾c. Corn—June, 38¾c; July, 38¾c; August, 39½c. Oats—June, 22⅜@22½c; July, 22⅜@23c; August, 22⅛c. Pork—June, $11.22½; July, $11.22½; September, $11.32½. Lard—June, $6.47½@6.50; July, $6.47½@6.50; September, $6.55. Ribs—June, $6.55; July, $6.55; September, $6.55@6.57½. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 75@75½c; No. 3 red, 73@73c; No. 2 hard winter, 72½c; No. 3 hard winter, 69@72½c; No. 1 northern, 73½@74½c; No. 2 northern spring, 71½@71½c; No. 3 spring, 69@72c. WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, June 14.—Profit taking has been the order of the day in wheat together with evidences of some pretty influential short selling. The change of front has been induced mainly by a manifesto issued by J. J. Hill, who claims that the damage already done in the Northwest is not more than 15 per cent. This in connection with predictions of rain in certain sections tonight or tomorrow and an effort on the part of the local people generally and Wall street in particular to secure profits on their holdings is responsible for the break from yesterday of about ⅝c and about 1½c from the top price ruling today. In summing up the general run of our advices today we find them decidedly more pessimistic regarding the prospects of the spring wheat than any we have had yet. They come from people who are posted, who are reliable and whose say on the question we are inclined to accept as more reliable than any biased opinion from sources other than actual grain people. It is natural for those who have stock interests to look at the bright side of things and we are inclined to think that an estimate of 15 per cent damage is worthy of but little consideration when other sources take such an entirely opposite and unanimous view. We beg to say that our advices regarding the crop situation come from crop experts, elevator people, millers, country elevator people, traveling men and machine men, and they tell the same story. The most optimistic estimate that we can get is from one-half to two-thirds of a crop and that is only on conditions of most abundant rains from now on. Reports from Odessa today claim that the district is threatened with blight from drouth. The situation in China is decidedly critical. This political trouble will bear a good deal of watching in connection with wheat prices.

The corn market was up early in sympathy with wheat, but too many on the selling side was productive of slight decline. There are a good many people feeling bearish on corn because of better estimates and talk of freer offerings. They will have to be considerably better to meet the cash demand now prevailing. Crop reports up to the present are favorable, but it will be a remarkable year that will have corn pass through its growing perce periods. There is much in the situation to direct purchases of corn on any decline.

The oat market has been quite sensational. The sharp rise in July due to talk of a squeeze in that option has been the feature. There was 257 cars with 250 estimated for tomorrow. It appears that a local operator has succeeded in acquiring quite a heavy line of July oats; this short has been allowed to run on a quite active lively market. Damage, however, is represented largely in the advance of September option to the July prices.

The provision market has been weak. There has been very little selling credited to packers.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over the private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce, and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 14.—The wheat market during the early part of the session ruled firm and prices advanced 1⅝c per bus over last night's close, on good buying by local bulls, as well as outsiders, owning to the weather in the Northwest and more encouraging advices from abroad. On the advance there was very heavy realizing on predictions of showers for the Northwest, and prices broke 1⅞c from the high point, and the market closed weak at the decline. There was a moderate demand for cash wheat here and the seaboard reported a very good demand there for export, and a fairly large business done on the break. Argentine shipments were reported at 1,832,000 bus. Trade was very heavy all day and a great deal of long wheat has been sold out. We look upon the decline as only a natural reaction, and think on any further break it will do to buy. The situation is as strong as ever and the crop reports from the Northwest continue very bad. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 90 cars.

The corn market after advancing ¾c per bus early, later sold off ⅝c from the high point in sympathy with the weakness in wheat, but at the decline there was a very good cash demand which caused the market to rally and close steady, ¼c lower than than last night. Country offerings were light, while there was an excellent cash demand. The seaboard reported very large business done there for export. The weather was generally favorable for the crop. Argentine shipments were reported at 904,000 bus. Trade was large all day and the undertone to the market fairly firm. We see nothing in the situation to cause any break as the cash demand is good and likely to keep so, and the country movement is decidedly smaller. We would advise buying around present prices. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 600 cars.

The oats market ruled very strong all day, in spite of the weakness in wheat. The special feature of the market was the covering by shorts, which caused the July option to advance ⅝c per bus over last night and close a fraction of ⅛c from the high point. It is said there is a large short interest in the market and we are inclined to believe it is so. Country offerings were light, while the cash demand was fairly good. The weather was generally favorable for the crop. Trade was large all day. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 250 cars.

Provisions opened firm on lighter receipts of hogs and higher grain, but soon developed into a weak market on selling attributed to Armour, Cudahy and Patten. Outsiders sold freely and the buying was almost entirely by shorts. Volume of trade was heavy. Cash trade slow, and there seems nothing encouraging to holders in the situation. Estimate, 24,000 hogs for tomorrow.

Puts, July wheat, 69¼@69⅝c.
Calls, July wheat, 72¼@73c.

BLOODY BATTLE

Colombian Rebels Lose One Thousand Men In a Recent Fight.

Washington, June 14.—Dr. Curvo Marquese, charge d'affaires of the Colombian legation, today received from Panama official bulletins giving details of the recent bloody engagement between the government troops and the revolutionists. One of the bulletins is signed by the general in command of the government troops and reads:

"I consider the revolution ended. The enemy's army, after the fight, numbered only 4000 men, and I think they cannot secure reinforcements. They have exhausted all their supply of 1,200,000 cartridges. Their loss is 1000 dead, including ten chiefs and many subordinate officers. They have 1500 wounded. These figures are furnished me by the prisoners, some of them persons of importance."

The fight occurred near Busaramanga, in the district of Palonegro and Lebrija, and the general forwarded his report from Palonegro, showing that the government forces occupied the field after the fight. The government losses are not stated.

Another official bulletin reports that the chief of the revolutionary forces, Gen. Vargas Santos, has been captured. This is confirmed in an official dispatch from Gen. Serrano to the government stating that the steamship Alica has arrived at one of the ports held by him. With a number of prisoners, including Gen. Vargas Cantos.

Altogether this seems conclusive, Dr. Cuervo Marques expressed some doubt as to whether the revolutionary chief has actually been captured.

VERMONT IN LINE.

Democrats Endorse Bryan and Reaffirm the Chicago Platform.

Montpelier, Vt., June 14.—The Democratic state convention held here today nominated a full state ticket by acclamation, endorsed Bryan for president, reaffirmed the Chicago platform and declared against the "imperial" policy of the administration and the Republican party.

Following are the nominations: Governor, John Senter, Montpelier; lieutenant governor, S. E. Harris, Bennington; secretary of state, H. O. Cummings, Richmond; state treasurer, Elisha May, St. Johnsbury; auditor, C. A. Fitzpatrick, White River Junction. Delegates-at-large: Thomas W. Maloney, Rutland; F. W. McGettrick, St. Albans; Rollins S. Childs, Brattleboro, and George Atkins, Montpelier.

AGAIN POSTPONED.

Meeting of St. Paul & Duluth Stockholders Adjourned.

St. Paul, June 14.—There was another postponement of the St. Paul & Duluth common shareholders' meeting today. The meeting now is set for June 21 at 10 o'clock. No reason for the postponement was given by the shareholders present. The meeting, however, was probably adjourned in compliance with instructions from New York. In view of the attitude of the railroad and warehouse commission, which body seems determined to prevent the consolidation, the two railroads are going carefully in order to avoid legal complications.

DEATH AT A CROSSING.

Three Women Killed By a Train In Hutchinson.

Hutchinson, Kas., June 14.—A Santa Fe freight train ran into a street car at the main street crossing today, killing three persons—Mrs. J. S. Patten, Mrs. William Burch and Mrs. George Keown. Mrs. Keown was dragged from the wreck by her husband and died in his arms. Keown was badly injured, but will recover.

TO ACT WITH VIGOR.

Commander of Relief Forces to Brook No Delay.

London, June 14.—It has been learned in official quarters that although it is expected the government at Pekin will show no further resistance as soon as it perceives the powers are determined, the commander of the international forces has been instructed to inflict a sharp lesson in the event of any resistance and not to brook any delay in reopening the gates of Pekin if he finds them closed.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Small Changes at the Opening But a Downward Movement Followed.

CLOSING WAS HEAVY

And Almost Inactive and Showed Net Losses Throughout the List.

New York, June 14.—Only a small number of orders were executed at the opening of the stock market and these reflected continued doubt and hesitation in the minds of operators. Changes did not exceed a half, excepting in the case of Hocking Valley, preferred, which rose a point on the increase of the dividend rate. The majority of stocks showed small gains. The market drifted downward from the opening. Prices were the highest except for a few stocks. Baltimore & Ohio, preferred, rose nearly a point and then lost it, and Canada Southern and Norfolk & Western, preferred, gained 1 and 1⅜ respectively. Otherwise, prices fell slightly below last night and then came to a standstill. Tennessee Coal and Metropolitan declined 1½ each. Very few stocks moved in the second hour of the session. There was declines of 1 to 1⅝ in Chicago Great Western debentures, some preferred A, and Wheeling & Lake Erie, second preferred. The slight changes otherwise were mainly downward. The bond market was steady and semi-stagnant.

Trading was practically suspended after 2 o'clock. Minneapolis & St. Louis lost 1, and American Hoop 1½. Iowa Central, preferred, rose 2. The closing was heavy and almost inactive and showed net losses throughout.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 14.—The market for cotton futures opened steady with prices 3@6 points higher on a rush of large New Orleans purchases. The bullish influences promoting the demand included strong English cables and reports of excessive rains in the central belt. Southern spot markets were firmer on increased export demand. Notwithstanding that many longs in the local market sold out on the early rise, the wants of shorts failed to diminish and prices hovered around the opening figures throughout the forenoon. Trading was very active and general.

CONFER ON RATES.

New York, June 14.—Representatives of several of the Central Traffic association roads were in session here today, Chairman Goddard presiding. The object of the meeting is to devise some way of putting a stop to the cutting of freight rates east from Chicago. The all rail routes, it is said, are suffering severely from the competition of lake and rail routes. Up to the time a recess was taken for lunch, nothing had been done beyond a general discussion of the situation.

Phillips was elected second vice-president and W. B. Logan, treasurer. Bert Holcomb, was re-elected secretary. Sanford W. Hill was elected an honorary member of the association, as a recognition of his energetic work as a member of the association for many years. Some time ago Mr. Hill sold out his business at 1928 West Superior street, and his unanimous election to an honorary membership by the association shows that he retires with the respect and friendship of his former associates.

It was decided that the grocers of the city should be given an opportunity to assist the Virginia fire sufferers, and Secretary Holcomb was instructed to circulate a petition with this end in view. He will start out on this work tomorrow morning and it is expected the scheme will net the suffers at Virginia, quite a little in the way of substantial relief.

The grocers determined not to hold an annual picnic this year, but instead all the members of the association will close their stores all day on the Fourth of July, giving their employes a full holiday.

A movement was also started to close all grocery stores at 7 o'clock every evening except Saturday, and to close up tight on Sunday. In some of the suburban districts and in a few instances West End and down town, stores have been catering to a Sunday trade lately.

FIRST TO COME.

Crookston, Grand Forks and Fargo Traveling Men Will Arrive Tonight.

The first delegations to the United Commercial Travelers' grand council, which meets here tomorrow morning and will be in session for two days, will arrive here this evening at 6:43 o'clock, on the Eastern Minnesota railway. On this train will come the Crookston, Grand Forks and Fargo councils. Word was received this morning they are coming in large numbers. Crookston alone will send fifty men, and will have a brass band along. Grand Forks, also, will have a band.

Later trains in the evening will bring other delegations. Tomorrow the excursion on the Northern Pacific railroad from Wahpeton, etc., will bring in many more.

The opening session will be held in Elks hall unless that place should prove to be too small, when an adjournment will be taken to the Armory. The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Hugo, and will be responded to by Hon. Mooney. Addresses will also be made by Dr. Forbes, F. A. Patrick, E. L. Millar and Robert F. Fitzgerald.

At 2:30 o'clock there will be a reception at the hall, given by the ladies of Zenith council, and in the evening, at 8 o'clock, a concert will be given at the Lyceum, under the direction of J. H. Flaaten. The following is the program:

March—"Bride Elect" ..... Sousa
Crookston and Duluth City Bands, T. Oliver Riggs, Director.
Selection from "Robin Hood," ...DeKoven
Crookston Band, T. Oliver Riggs, Director.

Welcome to the Commercial Travelers.

The people of Duluth extend a hearty greeting to the commercial travelers of Minnesota and the Dakotas, who are now gathering here by the hundreds for the annual session of the grand council of their organization, and to the ladies who accompany them a special welcome is given. The Herald feels assured, from an inspection of the program arranged for the entertainment of the visitors during their stay in Duluth, that they will have an enjoyable time and be glad that they came to the head of the lakes. The indications are propitious so far as weather is concerned and it may happen that "the knights of the road" will be so charmed with their experiences here that they will resolve that the grand council shall meet every year in Duluth. Certainly there will be no objections offered to such a decision, so far as Duluth is concerned.

Why Roberts Is Worshipped as a Hero.

When the incidents of the war in South Africa are passed in review it is not surprising that the British people worship Lord Roberts as a hero. Up to the time that he appeared on the field the course of events was strongly against the British side, and its army met defeat after defeat. It seemed as if the British generals had developed a wonderful capacity for blundering and that there was not one in the whole list who had any ability in the line of generalship. But when Roberts appeared on the scene, there was a change. After his assumption of command, everything went in favor of the British forces and they secured victory after victory. It will be recalled that the war really began on Oct. 20, 1899, with the battle of Dundee, followed in the same month by the battles of Elandslaagte and Ladysmith. These were practically Boer victories. By Nov. 1, Mafeking, Kimberley and Ladysmith were completely invested by the Boers. North Natal was occupied and Bechuanaland and Griqualand West were annexed by the Boers. Then began the series of engagements in November and December with the English troops under command of Methuen and Gatacre. Belmont, Graspen, Modder River, Stormburg and Magersfontein were fought, with the result that the Boers held their own in all occupied territory. Dec. 15 came the battles at the Tugela river and Spion Kop with Buller in command. Reverses came to the British army and the Boers held their own. With the beginning of the year Lord Roberts began active operations and completely turned the tide. Kimberley was relieved on Feb. 15. Twelve days afterwards Cronje's army was captured at the battle of aPardeburg. March 1 Kimberley was relieved. March 12 the Orange Free State was taken. Mafeking was relieved on March 18. Johannesburg was taken May 31, and on June 5 Roberts entered Pretoria. No wonder then that the British people applaud "Bobs" and regard him as the greatest of British generals of the present day. Six months of steady victory after three months of disaster may properly be styled a successful record. Much of this success is undoubtedly due to Lord Kitchener, who accompanied Roberts to South Africa as his chief of staff. To Kitchener, it is said, belongs the credit of getting in shape the arrangements for supplying the immense army, and without his excellent handling of the transport system the victories enumerated above would have been impossible.

ARE YOU ENUMERATED?

The census enumeration of population must be completed tomorrow night. This means that any resident of Duluth who has not been enumerated by that time will not be counted on the census rolls and the city will not get credit for his residence here. The Herald assumes that every citizen is interested in having the census of Duluth's population as complete and accurate as possible, and, therefore realizes the importance of having the name of every inhabitant of the city on the lists. The time is short in which this can be accomplished, and yet there are undoubtedly a good many people in Duluth who have not yet been reached by the enumerators. There is danger, therefore, with the date for completing the census near at hand, that many may be missed. A special effort should be made by every citizen to guard against being omitted. This can best be accomplished by reporting to room 618, Chamber of Commerce, or telephoning, new 'phone 210, old 'phone, 65.

There is no doubt that in some instances lodgers have not been reported by the lady of the house and that in other cases absent tenants of rooms and residences have not been found, although diligently searched for by the enumerators. In view of the small remuneration received by the enumerators, they can hardly be expected to run half a dozen times after the same person, and yet it can be said to the credit of the Duluth enumerators that most of them have displayed great loyalty to the city and have done all within their power to get a complete list of the residences in their districts.

There is no time to be lost now, and if you have not been enumerated or know of any person who has not been seen by the census enumerator, whether present in the city or absent on business or pleasure, you should notify the census officials without delay. Telephone at once to the addresses stated above. It is a duty which you should perform for the benefit of the community in which you live.

GROWTH OF EXTRAVAGANCE.

The recklessness which has attended our effort to be a "world power," to be half-empire and half-republic, has bred extravagance in every department of the government. In the fiscal year 1898, the year before the war expenditures began, the cost of the government was $528,735,079. In 1899 it rose to $893,231,615. In 1900 is was $674,981,022. In 1901 it is to be $709,729,477. The figures are those of the appropriation acts. The increases by items are in round numbers as follows:

Agriculture	$ 900,000
Army	91,000,000
District of Columbia	1,400,000
Legislative, executive and judicial	2,500,000
Military academy	1,800,000
Navy	32,000,000
Pensions	4,000,000
Postoffice	18,000,000
Sundry civil	12,000,000
Deficiencies	5,000,000
Permanent annual appropriations	12,700,000

The actual total increase is $180,994,398. This increase would more than pay all the pensions. It is more than enough to construct a deep waterway from the great lakes to the Atlantic. It is more than sufficient to build the Nicaragua canal. It would pay the navy expenses of 1899 three times over. It would support an army seven times as large as that we had before the Spanish war. And we have only just begun, for the house passed the Nicaragua canal bill now before the senate providing for an expenditure of $141,000,000. It postponed the river and harbor bill involving an expenditure of about $16,000,000 and the payment of $10,000,000 of outstanding claims. Adding this $170,000,000 to the grand total we have anticipated expenditures amounting to $879,729,477, and an annual increase over the appropriations for 1898 of $350,994,398. Is it not time to elect a congress and an administration that will put a stop to this extravagance, end the imperialistic appropriations and practice economy in the conduct of the government?

One section of the platform adopted by the New York Democratic state convention reads as follows: "Our plain duty is to abolish all customs duties between the United States and Porto Rico, and give her products free access to our markets." The words are quoted from President McKinley's annual message to congress.

The soulless wretches who brought on the war against the Boers demand that President Steyn shall be hanged, which reminds the St. Louis Post Dispatch that our good English friends would have hanged our own George Washington could they have captured him.

A Louisville parson, supposing Miss Gould to be present, preached an able sermon that was well calculated to draw a large contribution. Then he was disgusted to find that the good woman had attended another church.

The Topeka State Journal says: "Nearly 6,000,000 people are now on the relief lists in India, but the British parliament has yet to vote a single penny of aid. Millions for war, but not a pound for the starving."

Dispatches from Washington keep telling what the president's Chinese policy will be. It is a waste of time and space. The presidential wabblings are too uncertain to make any forecast accurate.

The enthusiasm with which the Boer envoys are everywhere received leaves no doubt as to the sympathy of the American masses with the cause of South African republicanism.

James R. Keene is still betting on Bryan and now has $25,000 up on the New York stock exchange that the Nebraska man will become president.

Senator Mason is now calling at the White House so frequently that the president may soon be sorry that he "buried the hatchet."

Are you enumerated? If not, report to room 618 Chamber of Commerce, or telephone: New 'phone, 210; old 'phone, 65.

At Graduating Time.

The graduates are going forth—
God bless them, every one!—
To run this hard and stubborn world
Just as it should be run;
But much I fear they'll find that facts
Don't always track with dreams,
And running this old earth is not
As easy as it seams.

As seniors we are prone to think
Our wisdom is complete.
We've but to ask—the world will lay
Its troubles at our feet.
But school days done and work begun,
We learn in pity or regret
The College of Experience
We have not mastered yet.

Ambition beckons on to us
And eagerly we press
Toward a distant, gleaming goal,
The Temple of Success.
It seems a pleasant journey at
The dawning of life's day;
But as we stumble on it grows
A long and weary way.

The world has garlands and applause
At graduating time;
And then forgets us the next day,
When we attempt to climb.
Life is a battle, where each one
Must seek and hold his own.
He who would rise above the crowd
Must scale the heights alone.

This is the rule of life today
As it has ever been:
The world bestows its smiles on those
Who have the strength to win.
Beneath all outward semblances
It looks for merit true.
It little cares how much you know,
But asks, what can you do?

When you have left your college halls
You're barely at the start,
For Wisdom's height is infinite
And long the ways of art.
You'll find that in the school of life
Acts count for more than dreams;
And running this old earth is not
As easy as it seems. —Denver News.

History Repeats Itself.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Why, it's old Diogenes!" cried Skinins, as the ancient philosopher, lighted lantern in hand, plodded slowly down the street.

"Hullo, Diog," cried Patroclus in bantering tones, "found that honest man yet?"

The sage stared up at them.

"Honest man!" he grumbled. "I'm not looking for an honest man. I gave that up long ago."

And he turned to hobble away.

"Then what are you looking for?" cried young Hercles.

"I'm looking for a hired girl," he growled; "ours left yesterday."

SPECIAL TRAIN.

To Carry the Minnesota Democrats to the Kansas City Convention.

St. Paul, June 14.—The Democratic state central committee has issued the following circular regarding arrangements for special rates and trains for the Kansas City convention:

The Democratic state central committee of Minnesota, anticipating the great impetus that will be given to railway travel by the date and the occasion of the national Democratic convention, appointed to be held in Kansas City on July 4, and desiring to secure for all those who wish to attend the convention the greatest possible comforts and conveniences during the proceedings of the convention as well as during the journey to and from Kansas City, has taken time by the forelock and has secured for the occasion a special, solid, vestibuled Pullman sleeper train, and has chosen the Chicago Great Western railway as the route over which the train will run to and from the convention.

This train will be a through special, and will be known as the official train, and will leave St. Paul at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday, July 3, and will arrive in Kansas City at 10:30 a. m. on July 4. The round trip to Kansas City, including standard Pullman sleepers (one to each berth), both ways, and including sleeping accommodations in Kansas City for two nights, will be $19.55, with a reduction of $3 if tourist sleepers are preferred.

Allowing then the sum of $1.50 per day for meals, the round trip to this most beautiful portion of the great West, running as it does through the most prosperous portions of the great Mississippi valley, and including the proceedings of a convention that promises to be historical in its character and effect, will cost the traveler only $25.55 with the most luxurious Pullman accommodations, and $3 less if tourist cars are preferred.

No pains will be spared by the central committee, or the railway management, in making the train bearing the Minnesota delegation and its friends, one of the most memorable of any going to Kansas City. And realizing that the contemplated conventions to be held in that city on July 4, will constitute a crystallization of all there is in American social, commercial and political life that is loyal to the republic and opposed to the empire, the committee (considering the very liberal terms secured) hopes for an enthusiastic response from the friends of the convention throughout the state.

All persons desiring to secure accommodations should remit to T. R. Kane, room 308 Globe building, St. Paul, by P. O. or express, the sum required to pay transportation, as early as June 25, in order that berths and sleepers may be properly secured.

Had a Narrow Escape.

W. A. Thompson, Jr., formerly of Duluth, had a narrow escape while sitting in a barber's chair in St. Louis a few days ago. One of the riots which have become an everyday feature of the scenes on St. Louis' streets was in progress, and some bullets from revolvers playfully discharged by somebody passed into the barber shop, one of them lodging in the woodwork of the chair he was occupying. Mr. Thompson is there engaged in overseeing the construction of the McDougall whalebacks for river purposes.

The Rounder

"I never had occasion to pride myself on my success as a humorous entertainer," said a singer the other day. "I used to try to sing comic songs and be funny, but I discovered that the funny man is born and not made, and that where the artificial funny man can't raise a smile with a witticism as keen as a Toledo blade the natural funny man can raise a roar by saying the multiplication table. When I found out that, and at the same time discovered that I belonged to the artificial class I immediately quit trying to be funny.

"There was one time, though, when I thought I had 'em coming strong. I had an audience in an uproar of laughter, and I could hardly keep from smiling at the thought of my complete success, though I had sung the same comic song before and got only a few perfunctory grins that are as painful to the would-be entertainer as a shower of cabbage heads. I was booked to sing at a church affair, and I got home just in time to dress in a hurry and reach the hall. Among other articles I had a brand new pair of shoes which I snatched out of the box and put on in a hurry. Then I made haste to the hall, humming over to myself the song that I had determined to give that night. I was there in time, and I soon found myself in the middle of the platform breaking into my solo.

"I had hardly started when I saw a ripple of grins spread over the audience like the growing circles that start from the hole made by a stone plunged in the water. This success was more than I had anticipated, especially as I had not yet reached the point of the song. When I did reach it the audience broke out into a roar of laughter, and I could hardly get through with my song. I was encored, of course, and I had hardly got off the rostrum when I had to go on again. The grins were still there, though the tumult of laughter had quieted down a trifle. As it appeared it broke out again, and I sang my encore in considerable embarrassment, owing to the fact that I was unaccustomed to so great a measure of success from my entertainments.

"I was about half through with the encore when I happened to glance down, and there I saw the cause of my abundant success. In the hurry of putting on my shoes I had forgotten to take the tag off, and it hung there beneath the bottoms of my trousers, in plain sight of the audience, bearing this legend:

Brown's Everlasting Footwear.
Formerly $3, now $1.89.

"I have no recollection of how I got through with that solo, save that I emerged from that church with a badly-shattered self-esteem and that it seems to have been performed in a sort of haze. I do know that I never sang another comic song so long as I sang in public. It would have brought up recollections that are too painful to contemplate."

* * *

One census enumerator in Duluth got the worst of a little argument with an elderly woman during his rounds. She came to the door of a house when he knocked and when he said he was the census man she said "Oh!" in a very uncompromising and chilly manner. She answered some of the questions shortly but satisfactorily, but when it came to the question of age she balked. Then the enumerator talked with her persuasively, endeavoring to show her that it was her duty to give up the required information, promising that it should go no farther, and using any other arguments he could think up. At the conclusion of his talk she seemed about to close the door in his face, and then, after pausing a moment, she said: "Did you get the age of that woman across the street?" pointing to a house diagonally across. Now the enumerator had not been there, he thought the woman needed the benefit of a good example, so he said: "Oh, yes, she gave me her age without any hesitation at all."

"Well," snapped the woman, "I'm two years younger than she is," and she slammed the door.

* * *

"This talk about women refusing to give up their ages is a good deal of rot," said the enumerator, "according to my experience. I did not have one woman refuse to tell me her age. Some of them stuttered when they told it, and some said they were sixteen when they were either 40 or had been through face-crimping experiences. Few of them could look me in the eyes and tell their ages. But not one of them refused outright."

FINE MEETING.

State Regent Mrs. D. A. Monfort Meets Greysolon Du Lhut Chapter D. A. R.

Yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William C. Weston, of 1509 East First street, a reception was tendered Mrs. D. A. Monfort, state regent of D. A. R., and the ladies who accompanied her from St. Paul, in behalf of the Greysolon Du Lhut chapter of the D. A. R. The ladies with Mrs. Monfort are: Mesdames John C. Hill, William H. Wood, Mark W. Fay, J. B. Beals, E. R. Sanford and Mrs. Carpenter, of St. Paul, and Mrs. E. H. Gheen, of Warlington. Mrs. Gheen, daughter of Mrs. D. A. Monfort, is the wife of Commander E. H. Gheen, of the United States steamer Marietta, now in the Philippines. Mrs. Beals is the daughter of the former United States senator of Minnesota, S. J. R. McMillan, and Mrs. Hill is a lineal descendant of George Washington's father. Several of these ladies responded to words of congratulation spoken to them by the Duluth members. They are all impressed very favorably with Duluth and the chapters here.

The program opened with "America," sung by all. "The Lord's Prayer" followed this after which Mrs. Barnes read a paper on Washington from the time of his appointment as commander-in-chief of the army to his inauguration as president. She gave many historical facts in connection with the American revolution and described several encounters of the troops with the British. Her paper was full of facts interesting to every true patriot, and her hearers were greatly pleased with both her paper and its delivery.

Mrs. J. B. Beals, regent of the St. Paul chapter, read a highly appreciated paper on the "Washington National University." The ladies in touch with patriotic work are more interested in this subject than they have been at any time previously, and plans to secure the means for the erection of such a building are now in progress, though definite methods for this have not as yet been decided upon. It was one of Washington's earnest desires to have such a building, Mrs. Beals said. He believed in educating American children in this country, so that foreign impressions and sentiments could not interfere with them as American citizens.

Mrs. D. A. Monfort addressed the assembly and in a few appropriate words expressed her appreciation of the hospitable receptions tendered to herself and friends by Duluth ladies, who will always have a warm place in her heart. In conclusion, she said: "And now let us hope that hereafter the utmost union and harmony will ever prevail through our ranks, and that no discord shall ever disturb our united efforts to do good."

Miss Clark, of the city kindergartens, spoke of the work done by some of the ladies in organizing societies among the young people. Two years ago the first children's society in behalf of Greysolon chapter was organized. It has fourteen members at present. They have social gatherings and also business sessions. They have contributed toward the Lafayette monument to be dedicated July 4, and to various other patriotic interests. Money, Miss Clark says, is very essential in this vicinity, for the young people must be kept busy and they have not the opportunity to visit historical places, that is open to Eastern children.

Mrs. Winton rendered a vocal number, Kipling's "Recessional," very sweetly, and pleased all with her clear, beautiful voice. Mrs. Olund also gave a vocal selection, her selection being "The Herdsman's Song," and it was greeted with enthusiasm.

After the program a social time was enjoyed by the ladies. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present besides the St. Paul visitors were: Mesdames W. A. McGonagle, Davey, Hammond, Harkison, Barnes, Clapp, Winton, J. J. C. Davis, Emil Olund, Misses Barnes and Drew.

ANOTHER OBJECT

Rockefeller Said to Be Working For Maintainence of Ore Price.

CAUSE OF THE TIE-UP

In This He Would Have Co-Operation Rather Than Opposition of Carnegie.

A story comes from Buffalo to the effect that some of the marine men there believe that Rockefeller is not tying up the boats, which he has withdrawn from the lake traffic within the past few weeks, for the purpose of forcing up the freight rates on ore, but to stiffen the price of ore at Lake Erie ports, the idea being that, if too heavy stocks of ore were accumulated on the docks at the lower lake ports the price of ore would weaken.

This same impression has been getting ground among the marine men here, and comment to this effect has been heard quite freely within a day or two. The idea is quite reasonable to most vessel men, in fact far more so than the other theory, that he is trying to force a rate of $1.25 a ton on ore to the lower lakes. That would be a difficult and very uncertain attempt to make, and the result would not be large enough in the event of success, to make it an object to hazard it, in the opinion of most vesselmen. There would be 25 cents a ton to gain. But if the amount of ore going on the docks at the lower lake ports is large enough to seriously threaten the price, there is far more than 25 cents a ton to be gained by shutting off the supply. The price of ore might suffer a heavy break if Eastern furnace men found it piling up on the docks faster than it was needed. In this movement Mr. Rockefeller would have the co-operation rather than the opposition of Mr. Carnegie, for he, being an owner of mines, would have an interest in keeping the price of ore up. He would be just that much ahead of the manufacturers who do not own their mines, for he would get his profit on the ore.

In attempting to fix the price of ore, Mr. Rockefeller is manipulating something of which he can get a monopoly. He can easily secure the co-operation of other large interests, such as the Oliver Mining company and the Minnesota Iron company, and then the market will do pretty much as they direct, within lines of reason, of ecurse. But the vessel business is something that he cannot secure a firm monopoly of. He might secure it for one year or two, but if the present is the biggest era of shipbuilding the lakes has ever seen would follow, and in a short time Mr. Rockefeller's vessel fleet would be depreciated in value tremendously. In the vessel building he would find it impossible to control the supply, and hence there is not much likelihood that he will try very seriously to monopolize it.

ARMOR PLATE TRUST'S RIVAL.

Company Near Philadelphia Will Manufacture Armor Plate.

New York, June 14.—The armor plate trust, composed of the Bethlehem and Carnegie companies, with its plants in Bethlehem and Homestead, is about to meet a serious rival. The Midvale steel works, in Nicetown, a suburb of Philadelphia, will soon be ready to proceed with the manufacture of every kind of the most improved armor plate for all classes of vessels.

For several years the Midvale company has been an extensive worker for the national government, supplying castings, shaftings, forgings and the highest grade steel work for naval construction at a cost of many thousands of dollars, and never has a complaint been made against its work.

Months ago this company contracted for special machinery and presses for armor plate making. It has a plant covering fifty-four acres, and upon it several great buildings, known as the armor plate extension, have been erected, and nearly all the machinery is in position, and as soon as the oil tempering apparatus is completed, the active making of projectile-resisting armor can go on. Should there be no contracts at once entered into for armor, the machinery can be employed readily for heavy forger work.

The company has a secret process of hardening steel plates, which it is believed will surpass the Harvey process and the Krupp works. Sample plates will be run out soon for test at the Indian Head proving grounds.

Experienced workers have been engaged for the new department, and the high reputation of the company for steel work is expected to be more than maintained.

The capacity of the plant, as extended, is almost equal to that of the Bethlehem and Homestead plants combined. The manufacture of armor by the Midvale company means millions of dollars annually for skilled steel laborers in this city.

The enterprise will not be confined to supplying armor plate to the United States, but it will enter into competition with foreign manufacturers. Russia buys outside of her own domain, armor plate worth $20,000,000. Great Britain finds it profitable to go into the open market and purchase armor worth from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 each year.

With the machinery and buildings, the company has put more than $3,000,000 in the venture.

DAVIS AGAINST WASHBURN.

Does Not Favor the Former Senator For Vice President.

New York, June 14.—A Philadelphia special to the Times says: Senator Davis, of Minnesota, who arrived early today, and who is keeping an eye on ex-Senator Washburn's boom lest it should become too strong, left no doubts in the minds of people with whom he talked as to his belief that the candidate should come from the East, or anywhere except Minnesota.

When asked regarding the candidacy of Gen. Washburn and the report sent out a few weeks ago that the Minnesota contention had indorsed the candidacy, Senator Davis replied that the action of the state convention could hardly be interpreted as an indorsement.

"A resolution was adopted, I believe," he said, "which in effect pledged the support of the state to Gen. Washburn, if at any time during the national convention his nomination should seem propitious of the best interests of party success. I do not remember the exact phraseology, but that was the gist of the resolution. The resolution referred to his candidacy was to the extent mentioned reserved."

When told that the members of the national committee already in the city had expressed a preference for Cornelius N. Bliss, Senator Davis said:

"Governor Roosevelt, should he suggest a desire to be President McKinley's running mate, could not fail of being unanimously elected, regardless of the delegation from his state. He is particularly strong in the West, where he has lived, and is well and favorably known."

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Wasiota, I. T. He writes: "Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but now her health is excellent." Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. DEFAULT HAVING OCCURRED AS to each of the five tracts of land hereinafter described, by the non-payment of principal and interest, due upon the respective mortgage debt, upon each of said tracts, in the conditions of that certain mortgage made and executed by Charles H. Clague, his wife, mortgagors, to Julian G. Schmidt, mortgagee, dated the 1st day of February, 1895, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 2nd day of March, 1895, at 8:20 o'clock a. m., in Book 128 of mortgages, on page 56, covering and conveying the following described premises situated in the said county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, to-wit:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of section twenty-five (25), (except the right-of-way of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway across the same, said right-of-way containing six and forty-four one hundredths acres), the southeast quarter (se¼) and the east half of the northeast quarter (e½ of ne¼) of section twenty-four (24), all of said land being in township fifty (50), north of range sixteen (16) west, containing three hundred ninety-three and fifty-six one hundredths acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof; which said mortgage, by the terms thereof, is a specific lien of eight hundred dollars ($800) on each of the following described tracts of the above mentioned lands, to-wit: (Tract 1), the east half or northeast quarter (e½ or ne¼) of said section twenty-four (24); (tract 2), the east half of the southeast quarter (e½ of se¼) of said section twenty-four (24); (tract 3), the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ of se¼) of said section twenty-four (24); (tract 4), the east half of the northeast quarter (e½ of ne¼) of said section twenty-five (25); (tract 5), and the west half of the northeast quarter (w½ of ne¼) of said section twenty-five (25); there is now due and claimed to be due upon the said several debts secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice, the following amounts upon the said tracts respectively, to-wit:

Upon the mortgage debt of the east half of the northeast quarter (e½ of ne¼) in the said section twenty-four (24), the sum of eight hundred dollars ($800), principal, and one hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165), interest.

Upon the mortgage debt of said east half of the southeast quarter (e½ of se¼) in said section twenty-four (24), the sum of eight hundred dollars ($800), principal, and one hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165) interest.

Upon the mortgage debt of the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ of se¼) in said section twenty-four (24), the sum of eight hundred dollars ($800) principal, and one hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165) interest.

Upon the mortgage debt of the east half of the northeast quarter (e½ of ne¼) in said section twenty-five (25), the sum of eight hundred dollars ($800) principal, and one hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165) interest.

Upon the mortgage debt of said west half of the northeast quarter (w½ of ne¼) in said section twenty-five (25), the sum of eight hundred dollars ($800) principal, and one hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165) interest.

And no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the said mortgage debts or either of them, or any part of either thereof;

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of each of the said tracts therein and hereinbefore described separately, at public vendue for cash, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, by the sheriff of said county, on the 30th day of June, 1900, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount then due on the mortgage debt of each of said tracts respectively, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, with taxes, if any, paid by the mortgagee upon each of said tracts respectively, together with the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) attorneys' fees, provided for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure; said costs and disbursements and attorneys' fees to be apportioned among said tracts, one-fifth thereof upon each; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

WILL BE ENFORCED

Duluth Street Railway Company to Enforce the Anti-Spitting Ordinance.

GIVEN INSTRUCTIONS

Conductors Directed to Call Policeman When a Passenger Refuses to Stop.

The Duluth Street Railway company has determined to stop the disgraceful practice of spitting on the car floors. An order has been issued by the company requiring the conductors to be constantly on the alert, and when they see a passenger using the floor for purposes commonly alloted a cuspidor, to warn the offender not to do it again. If the passenger persists, stop the car and call a policeman. Then the city will take charge of the prosecution under the new amendment to the health ordinance, which provides a maximum fine of $100 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days for all such offenders.

The new order, while it will receive the sincere endorsement of all good citizens, will also result in the saying of many harsh things about the personality of the company's employes, for the person that will spit on the floor is the most unreasonable individual on earth.

An incident happened on a Superior street car the other evening which, though exceptional, will illustrate what the conductors will have to contend with in enforcing this new order. A slatternly looking woman sat about the middle of the car, chewing away in dreamy contemplation like a somnolent cow. Occasionally she shattered illusions and dispelled romance by spitting on the floor. The conductor stepped forward briskly with a polite request that the deluge cease. The woman replied that he was no gentleman, or words to that effect, and then went into some personal matters concerning him alone that caused the conductor to seem rather perturbed. She refused to be pacified to any extent, and desired to know what right he had to tell her what she should do and what she should not do. She carried a folded paper in her hand and punctuated her remarks by making little swings at the conductor, which seemed to annoy him greatly. He managed by clever ducking to keep out of reach and tried to argue the matter with her, and even invited her to come around some other day and talk the matter over calmly, but she treated the proposition with contumely. She evidently intended having the matter out then and there, and demanded her rights, whatever they were. When she finished the first stretch she started in on the second with redoubled speed, and with crimson blushes mantling his cheek, the conductor gave it up and fled to the rear platform.

A woman spitting on the floor is certainly an exceptional case, yet there are many men that persistently do it, and make themselves far more ridiculous than she did.

A prominent Duluth physician today, in discussing the new anti-spitting ordinance, said that the council certainly took a decided step for better preserving the health of the city when the amended ordinance was adopted. Still he thought that while it could be enforced in regard to street cars, yet it would be very difficult when it came to preventing spitting on the sidewalks. Continuing, he said:

"I notice that women's skirts and the health of the community are two momentous questions that are disturbing public sentiment in the East. Women have a settled conviction that whatever remarks a man may make about their dresses are absurd, and I suppose that a suggestion from a man that they shorten their skirts will be sufficient excuse for drawn arms in the ranks of the fair. Presumably they would become indignantly rampant if men would endeavor to compel them to wear shorter skirts, display their well-turned insteps and shapely ankles, and incidentally leave on the sidewalks the disease germs they have been dragging into the house with them for these many years. What's more, it's a positive injury to nerve and muscle for women to drag yards of heavy cloth over mucus-splattered flagstones."

Just to create a little strife, the newspaper man repeated this interview to a Titian tressed bevey of feminine loveliness.

"The brute!" was her first exclamation, and then she proceeded very emphatically as follows:

"It ought to be done. Long skirts should be legislated out of existence, and I guess the germ-carrying idea is all right. I don't know anything about that, but I do know that dresses trailing behind women drag about ten years out of their lives. It is either a case of yards of cloth dragging us backward, or else we have to hold them up with one hand and care for the nurse, a parcel or two and an umbrella in the other. I say legislate them out of existence, but I don't like the idea of men doing it, though."

In Memoriam.

Since death has taken from us our beloved and earnest co-worker, Bro. S. C. Maxwell, so many years an honored member of our board, and at all times an active promoter of the work and interests of the church, therefore be it

Resolved, that we deeply deplore the early removal of our brother; that in his death the cause of the church has lost one of its ablest and most sincere advocates;

Resolved, that we commend his many virtues and exalted life as a true type of Christian manhood;

Resolved, that we extend to our dear sister and her family in this dark hour our truest sympathy, and commend them to Him who has promised to be more than father, companion, brother or friend;

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the church records, a copy to be sent to the family of our deceased brother, also to the Christian Standard, Christian Century and a city daily.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Lack of Rain Severely Affecting Them In That State.

The report of the South Dakota section of the weather bureau on the condition of crops in that state at the close of the week ending Monday shows the same condition of drouth that Minnesota and North Dakota reported. It is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged somewhat above the normal, with some warm afternoons and considerable brisk to high wind, mostly southerly. The nights were generally cool.

"With the exception of very local showers, mostly light, the weather has been very dry and the drouthy conditions existing last week have increased in severity. While the rains of the preceding week relieved th drouth and freshened vegetation in a number of localities, except in the extreme southeastern counties and a few scattered localities elsewhere they were not sufficient to afford permanent relief or enable the small grain and grass to well withstand the very unfavorable weather of the current week. Except in the counties and localities referred to, much wheat, oats, rye and barley have been materially injured, more especially the stool sprouts or shoots, and some correspondents in middle eastern, northeastern and Missouri valley sections think that some scattered fields of wheat, oats and spring rye have been irreparably damaged.

"In many fields wheat and oats are jointing and heading with very short straw. Considerable rye is in blossom in the southeastern counties. Many fields of small grain are weedy, and on the whole the small grain prospect is not at present encouraging for an average crop. The condition of all crops is the best in the extreme southeastern counties. Good, general rains at once would very materially brighten the prospect.

"Early corn continues to do fairly well generally and where moisture is sufficient has made good progress, but there are some fields beginning to suffer and in some northern localities some of the late planted has not yet started. In the middle and southern counties cultivation progresses well. There is considerable report of cut worms still being troublesome.

"There is considerable report of early flax being damaged by drouth in middle and northern counties, and in some fields by cut worms. Considerable late sown has not sprouted and drouth is delaying seeding of some that otherwise would have now been sown.

"While relieved to some extent by the rains of the preceding week, the grass is deteriorating and the hay prospect is not as bright as it was last week. Dry weather has prevailed over most of the range west of the Missouri river, relieved by rains in some sections which replenished water holes, but reports indicate that there is a scarcity of water at convenient distances."

HAS GIVEN AN OPTION.

Mesaba Iron Company May Dispose of Its Holdings.

Alexander Ramsey, former governor of Minnesota, was elected president of the Mesaba Iron company, and W. W. Spalding, of this city, was elected secretary and treasurer, both for the twenty-fourth time. M. B. Mills, who is also an old-timer, was re-elected vice president. The only change in the board of directors was in the election of R. C. Williams in place of George Wieland. The directors include Alexander Ramsey, M. B. Mills, W. W. Spalding, H. P. Wieland, R. C. Williams, E. F. Sutton and L. Stannard. The company holds 8000 acres on Mesaba Heights, and yesterday an option was given to a concern in which Duluth parties are interested for nine months. The price of the land is somewhat indefinitely placed at "less than $500,000." The company was incorporated in 1876, and Mr. Spalding located the property after explorations beginning in 1893.

A Boy Orator.

An entertainment will be given at the First Christian church tomorrow evening at which Cecil Ainsworth, a 10-year-old boy orator will be the principal attraction. The Miller, S. D., Stockman said of him: "This 10-year-old boy possesses wonderful self control, his impersonations are excellent, and any one might well envy his power of facial expression." The program is as follows:

Piano solo—"Scherzo," B flat minor.....Chopin
Victor Rakowsky.
"Gone With a Handsomer Man.....Will Carleton
Cecil Ainsworth.
Soprano solo—"For All Eternity".....
Miss Louise Hall.
"Martyr of Smyrna".....Shurtleff
Cecil Ainsworth.
Violin solo—Selected.....
Professor Ch. Trautvetter.
"The Country Courtship".....O'Conner
Cecil Ainsworth.

The Heinrich Concert.

Tonight the Max and Julia Heinrich concert will be given at Pilgrim church and the fame of the singers will undoubtedly secure them a large audience. Max Heinrich is well known to all Duluth musicians, having been here before, when he achieved a distinct triumph. His daughter will be heard tonight for the first time in this city. She has a fine contralto voice and has inherited the artistic and musicianly qualities of her gifted father. The Montreal Star said of her:

"Simplicity is the key-note of her art. Her voice beautifully clear and sweet, her enunciation, which is perfect in rare things, and her style are all unaffected, direct and comprehensible, which makes her singing, apart from its musical worth, something that goes direct to the heart."

Little Falls Coming.

The ball game this week will be between the Maroon Stockings and the Little Falls team. The latter will bring a delegation of rooters with the Northern Pacific excursion and interesting games are anticipated for both Saturday and Sunday. Elliott will twirl Saturday's game and Cox will serve up a few of his speedy slants on Sunday. The make-up of the teams is:

Duluth.		Little Falls.
Hartman	catcher	Smith
Cox, Elliott	pitcher	Parrell
Kline	first base	Gravel
McCarthy	second base	Walling
Shephard	short stop	Hickey
Warner	third base	Bourrada
Featherstone	left field	Newman
Lambert	center field	Carley
Hurley	right field	Sylvester

Asking For a Franchise.

The Black River Falls Water Power company, the principal owners of which are W. C. Sargent and William Burgess, of this city, is before the council of Superior asking for a franchise for the purpose of installing a system for the furnishing of power in that city. The ordinance provides that the rates charged for power shall be as follows:

One horse-power per year, $45.
Two horse-power per year, $85.
Three horse-power per year, $120.
From four to ten horse-power per year, each $27.50.
Above ten horse-power per year, $35.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Iowa, writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. And my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery which wholly cured me. Hundreds have used it on my advice and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50 cents and $1. Trial bottles free at W. A. Abbett's drug store.

Flor de Teller—a mild, sweet smoke, all Havana except the overcoat.

WASHING CROCKS AND MILK VESSELS

A great deal depends upon the care of crocks or pans in which milk is kept. They should be washed as soon as possible after being used. Rinse first with cold water, then wash thoroughly inside and out with hot water, in which enough of

has been dissolved to make a good suds. Finish by rinsing with scalding water; wipe dry and set out, with right side up, in the fresh air and sunshine, and they will be clean and sweet.

SHOW AN INCREASE.

May Earnings Statement of the Great Northern Issued.

The earnings statement for May of the Great Northern were issued yesterday. They show an increase on the part of the Eastern Railway of Minnesota. The St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba also shows a large increase, while the earnings of the Montana Central show a falling off when compared with the figures for the same month of 1899. A statement of the earnings of the road for five months also shows an increase for the Eastern, amounting to nearly $200,000. The earnings of the Montana Central for the same period show an increase also. The gross earnings of the entire system, comprising the three roads, amount to $2,230,059 for May, an increase of $269,126. The statement follows:

	1900.	1899.	Increase
St. P. M. & M.	$1,826,492	$1,694,783	$121,709
East. Minn. Ry.	357,356	177,022	180,334
Mont. Cent. Ry.	115,210	158,128	*42,918
Total for system.	$2,230,059	$2,029,937	$269,126

*Decrease.

The financial statement for the five months ending with May 31 is as follows:

	1900.	1899.	Increase
St. P. M. & M.	$8,641,804	$7,202,947	$1,441,947
East. Minn. Ry.	1,274,461	876,190	398,270
Tot'l for syst'm.	$10,684,625	$8,834,121	$1,832,504

A million dollar increase in the Manitoba lines for five months and nearly $2,000,000 gross increase for the system for the same period indicate that the end of the fiscal year will find the road with an increase in the year's earnings, as compared with 1899. The statement covering the first ten months of the year has been made up and is in the hands of the officers of the road. Controller R. I. Farrington stated yesterday that the figures would not be made public, following the usual custom of the road. One month remains until the close of the year's business, and indications are unusually promising. It is said that the decrease in May earnings on the Montana Central was due to labor troubles on that line, which, though not of a serious nature, were sufficient to interrupt the movement of traffic for a few days.

West Duluth Fire Engine.

To the Editor of The Herald:

By last evening's Herald I see that we get the new fire engine in about the same manner that a young farmer got his gold watch. While he helped pay off the mortgage on the farm and till the land and run the place in general he was the whole thing, and as whiter drew near was given a term at "city school." He would speak of some of his gentlemen friends having fine watches and wished he could carry one himself. One day his old father wrote to him the following letter and this is how he got his watch, and if you think it over this is how we got our engine:

"My Dear Son: Enclosed herewith you will find $50 by New York draft with which you will buy a good solid gold watch. I want you to get a solid gold case, because you know that none of my family carry anything cheap. Get an 8-ligin movement, seventeen jewel, nickel, stem wind and stem set movement, one that is warranted, for you have earned it, and drat my picture if you don't get it. When you come home show it to your girl Sally and tell her I gave it to you, but that you earned it yourself. But say, my son, as I come to think it over, I think I will use this $50 to buy Si Johnson's mooley cow because mother thinks that she gives fully eight quarts of milk, and a cow is valuable property now. When you come home we will talk this watch business over, so good-bye, yours." etc.

Moral: Now you see it, now you don't, unless some sawmill burns and the next day a boy may get run over by "our new engine" coming down from Duluth to put out yesterday's fire. No, we don't want anything of any use, any old thing is good enough for us, like the man says to his boy when he gives him his old suspenders and dons the new pair. No thank you, Mr. Fire Commissioners, you can keep your old wind jammer and use it to limber up your horses on and to crush mosquitos with.

HOW TO BEST SUCCEED.

Workmen Are Nearer Success on Being Careful in Little Things.

Many laboring men might save more money for a rainy day if they were more careful in little things. Observe care in buying small articles. Few of us can afford to buy something and then cast it away because we do not like it. Be right the first time. For instance, in buying a plug of tobacco, ask for gold Rope, Kingbolt, Rise and Shine and Thrasher, made by the Wilson-McCallay Tobacco company, of Middletown, Ohio. They are excellent brands, better than the ordinary. In addition to getting a superior article you will have the great satisfaction of knowing the goods are union made and not made by a trust.

All of the above brands are made of thoroughly cured, carefully prepared, superior stock. Workmen should keep the list in sight, and ask dealers for the brands named. This will be one step toward success.

WIELAND'S SHOE SALE

Hunter Block, 29 W. Superior St.

ALTGELD IS HERE

Noted Illinois Man Arrives and Will Speak at the Armory Tonight.

COMING CONVENTION

Says Platform of 1896 Will Be Reaffirmed---Speaks of Mr. Towne.

Ex-Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois arrived in the city this morning on the Omaha train at 10:30 o'clock. He was accompanied by his friend, Joseph F. Martin, of Chicago. Mr. Martin has been prominent in politics in Illinois for several years. In 1896 he ran for congress, but was defeated. He was collector of the city of Chicago for nearly two years, and resigned, and he was a member of the state board of equalization for some time.

Ex-Governor Altgeld was met at the train by Charles A. Towne, T. T. Hudson, Frank Crassweller, D. A. Petre, H. B. Moore, J. E. Davies and a number of other men prominent in the fusion ranks. He was escorted to the St. Louis hotel and has been called upon by many of the Democrats of the city today. A number of men of the opposite political persuasion have also met the noted man.

The portrait which the public has formed of ex-Governor Altgeld is probably very much different from his real appearance. In stature he is rather below the average height, his face is mild and gentle in expression, his hair and beard are tinged with gray, and his general appearance is that of a thoughtful and just man. His countenance easily indicates his German origin. He is affable and very approachable, and when interested in conversation he is found to be a very fluent talker, expressing himself clearly and strongly. His vigorous mentality is quickly apparent.

This is Mr. Altgeld's first visit to Duluth with one exception. He came up here about fifteen years ago and went to Port Arthur and vicinity on a little pleasure tour. The Duluth of today he found a much different city from the Duluth of that day.

Ex-Governor Altgeld said this morning that he would probably be at Kansas City at convention time, although not as a delegate. In reference to the platform to be adopted there, he said:

"The platform will reaffirm the Chicago platform of 1896 with emphasis, and in addition will have other planks covering questions which have since arisen. That the platform of 1896 will not be abandoned in any particular is assured by the action of the conventions in states where they have already been held. A proposition to abandon any part of it can only come from New York, Maryland or New Jersey, and would not be successful. New England will stand solidly for it, a condition rather remarkable and very gratifying. The reform forces throughout the country are in splendid shape, and there is a unity of purpose and a determination and enthusiasm which is magnificent.

"The events of the past few months have all been to the advantage of our cause. The recent exposure of the peculations of officials in Cuba is one instance of this. A few years ago all the accidents seemed to be against us, now all seem to be in our favor. We will go into this campaign strong and united."

When asked as to Mr. Towne and his candidacy for the vice presidency, ex-Governor Altgeld said: "I am a great admirer of Mr. Towne and would be very glad to see him on the ticket with Mr. Bryan, though I am not prepared to say just what his chances are."

"Do you think the question of geographical location will tell against him very strongly?" was asked.

"No, I do not," he responded. "That is something that might be raised at the time, but whoever concerns themselves about where the candidate lives three weeks after the convention? One thing that is certain is that the candidate for vice president must be a man thoroughly in sympathy with the party and its principles; a man with such ability, enthusiasm and earnestness of purpose as Mr. Bryan. If the party should see fit to select Mr. Towne they will certainly find in him that kind of a man."

Mr. Altgeld will address the people of Duluth this evening at the Armory under the auspices of the Bryan club. That the building will be filled there is no doubt, for there is certainly not a more interesting public figure in the country than ex-Governor Altgeld.

The impression has obtained among some people that the meeting is not to be free. This is wrong. Admission is free to all, and the Bryan club will be more than pleased to see all the good Republicans of the city there.

Mr. Towne's Trip.

Tomorrow night, at Morley church, Hon. C. A. Towne will continue his entertaining and instructive "Reminiscences of a European Vacation." This address will be a complete and separate lecture of itself, and the opportunity afforded is an excellent one to hear Mr. Towne in an eloquent interpretation of his recent visit across the sea. This lecture has long been advertised as a feature of the Fortnightly Lecture course, but was delayed by reason of the illness of Mr. Towne at the date originally set, and by his many pressing engagements since.

DIARRHŒA

One of New York's leading specialists said: "Over 85% of the cases of diarrhœa and bowel complaint, especially in the hot weather, could be averted if every one would pour a small quantity of DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY in each glass of water before drinking, as it kills the germs."

Mrs. Leonard B. Hill says that Mme. Patti never drinks water without putting Whiskey in it. Mme. Patti says pure Whiskey not only destroys the germ but prolongs life.

DUFFY'S is the only absolutely PURE MALT WHISKEY in the world. It contains not a drop of fusel oil. It is a germ killer and the true elixir of life. It is the only whiskey recognized by the United States Government for its medicinal qualities. It is stamped as a medicine. All other so-called "medicinal Whiskies" are only cheap imitations and are injurious, as they contain deleterious substances. Be sure you get the genuine. See that the seal over the cork is unbroken. If your druggist or grocer does not sell it, a bottle will be sent you direct, express prepaid, on receipt of $1.00. Book sent free.

DUFFY MALT WHISKEY CO., Rochester, N.Y.

It happily comes now at a time when the distinguished speaker may be heard, not only by his home people, but by excursionists already in the city.

Transfer of Pine.

A transfer of the white pine on lands in section 33-58-17 from Simon J. Murphy, of Detroit, and Temple F. Dorr, of Saginaw, to Peter L. Kimberly, of Sharon, Pa., has been filed in the office of the register of deeds. The property is described as follows: The w½ of the nw¼, the ne¼ of the sw¼, the se¼ of the ne¼, the w½ of the sw¼, the w½ of the ne¼ and the ne¼ of the se¼. The consideration is $17,000.

IN MICHIGAN.

Breitung Estate Denied a Temporary Injunction Against Pioneer Iron Company.

Marquette—In the circuit court, Judge Stone denied a temporary injunction asked by the Breitung estate to prevent the Pioneer Iron company from making further explorations upon the Breitung lands, near Negaunee, for iron ore. The judge did not want to take up the important question involved in the preliminary hearing, when the main trial is docketed for the next term and when the defendants are admittedly good for any judgment which may be got against them for damages.

This is one of the most important mining cases ever in Upper Peninsula courts, and grows out of the attempt of the Pioneer Iron company to take advantage of a lease given that corporation forty years ago to enter upon certain lands at Negaunee and mine iron ore free of charge so long as the ore is manufactured into pig iron within the limits of Marquette county. The Breitungs are innocent holders of the lands and never knew of the lease until it was brought to light about a year ago and the Pioneer company started in to exercise its right under the document.

In the same court the Breitung estate secured an order of sale against the machinery of the Davis Mining company of Negaunee for the purpose of collecting $20,000 in royalties due the Breitung estate, which is the fee owner of the property.

Houghton—At the Calumet & Hecla property six of the shafts sealed on the outbreak of the fire—Nos. 5 and 7, Hecla; 1, 5 and 6 Calumet, and the Red Jacket perpendicular—have now been opened, preparations are making to unwater the mine and the Lake Linden mills will be run full time in a day or two in all probability. No. 2 Hecla, where the outbreak of fire occurred, is still kept closed.

No. 1 shaft at the Trimountain is now down to the second level, 268 feet from the surface, the first level being 168 feet. On the the second level drifting is in progress both north and south on the lode. The north drift, which is being extended toward No. 2 shaft, is now 460 feet. At the No. 2 shaft they are cross cutting to find the lode and expect to strike it within a couple of days. The rock at No. 1 is looking fully as well as it has from the beginning.

W. R. Hopkins of Iron River claims to have a copper and silver bearing formation on his lands near Ewen. O. J. Lindwall is on the property superintending exploratory operations.

Negaunee—The new tax law, which provides that all property, real and personal, shall be taxed to its true cash value, is being taken with some allowance here. All valuations have been increased between 25 and 30 per cent over those of last year, and the total of the assessment valuation will be at least $500,000 over the last preceding one. This advance is not as large as were those made in Menominee, Escanaba or Ishpeming, and it will not place the full cash value on some Negaunee properties.

Escanaba—The planing mill of the Metropolitan Lumber company situated at Atkinson, Mich., about 75 miles from this city, was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is about $35,000 and insurance $10,000. About two months ago this company lost one of its sawmills at the same place.

Hancock—The movement toward a greater Hancock has received a setback for the time being. The county board of supervisors met at the court house and refused the petition to include Ripley, the Quincy location and some more of the surrounding territory within the Hancock village limits.

CAUGHT AT LAST

Vetline Coe Finds His Faithless Wife a Resident of Duluth.

WITH HER PARAMOUR

Mrs. Coe Quarreled With a Neighbor and That Was Her Undoing.

Radiant as a rose in June, she went fluffing down the glistening towpath that leads to police court, wearing a swagger gown, and hat that would have been a dream of ecstatic loveliness, if it hadn't closely resembled a case of convalescent hysterics. She was in the custody of an officer, and close in their wake came another officer with an excited and trembling Frenchman.

Her noticeable bouyancy of spirit and beaming happiness was in glittering contrast with her deeply surcharged expression of bitterness and gloom. Neither of them looked like disturbers, but the police say that both are entitled to honorary membership in the Order for the Promotion of Riots.

The specific charge against them was that they foolishly imagined that they were each other's affinity. They were born the whole wide world apart but had considerable thought, each of the other's being. They came to Duluth, escaping wreck, defying death, to read life's meaning in each other's eyes, contrary to the statutes of the state of Minnesota. They were not even entitled to a ceremony with orange blossoms and the muffled chimes of wedding bells, for according to the police, Mrs. Vetline Coe left her happy home, a husband and five children at Redwood Falls, Minn., when she cloped and came to Duluth with Archie Lequisire.

It was only another case of being happy till she met him. With her husband and family she lived at Redwood Falls for some years, till Archie Lequisire took up a farm near by. Then Mrs. Coe cordially detested her husband for many weary weeks. When they sat at the same table icicles formed on the chandelier and the soup froze in their plates. One night Mrs. Coe and Lequisire mysteriously disappeared. That was last September, and they have been living at 278 Third avenue East ever since. It was only last week that a woman living in the flat above the eloping couple became angry with Mrs. Coe and knowing something of the family skeleton, wrote the anxious husband at Redwood Falls. He struck town on Monday evening and went whirling madly up to the address given. Instead of going to the door of his wife's worst enemy, he rapped loudly at the Lequisire flat. He met the glittering gaze of a dark eyed lady and balking violently he backed away from the house. The elopers got out of the house and away while Mr. Coe was hunting up the police station, and since Monday night detectives have watched the house, but they did not return till this morning. They were hastily packing up their household effects when two officers dropped in on them.

The charge against them is of such a serious nature that they were not entitled to enter a plea in police court, and their examination was set for Monday morning in each case with the bail fixed at $250.

There was the usual gathering of drunks this morning including Thomas Boyle and Frank Rose, who went up for ten days. Jack Deer, Albert Wild and John Peak were allowed to go under suspended sentences. Frank Myers and Tom Jones for 5 days or $7 for disorderly conduct and Pat Boyle forfeited $5 bail.

John Cook and Jerald Newton, small boys charged with assaulting another boy named Dillon, were given a hearing and young Cook was discharged while Newton was allowed to go with a sentence suspended till Saturday when he will probably get off with the payment of nominal costs.

CONGRESSMEN GALORE.

Thick as Blackberries In the Republican Convention.

Philadelphia, June 14.—Congress will be well represented in the national convention. As chairman of the national executive committee, Senator Hanna will call the convention to order; Senator Wolcott is to be the temporary and Senator Lodge the permanent chairmen of the convention, and it is understood that Senator Foraker is to be chairman of the committee on resolutions to frame the national platform.

Among the delegates-at-large will be Senator Wolcott, Senator Shoup, Representative Cannon, Senator Fairbanks, who is to make the speech renominating President McKinley, and Senator Beveridge, Senator McComas, Representative Mudd, Senator Lodge Representative McCall, Senators Davis, Nelson, Platt, Depew, Thurston, Gallinger, Sewell, Pritchard, Hansbrough, McComber, Carter, Foraker and Representatives Grosvenor, Dick and Mondell. Senator Penrose is a delegate from one of the Pennsylvania congressional district, and representative Bingham from another, representative Lorimer, from Illinois, is one of the delegates from the districts he represents in congress. Representative Paine is a delegate from the twenty-eighth New York congressional district; Representative G. P. White from the Second North Carolina district, and Delegate D. T. Flynn from Oklahoma. Among the contestants for seats in the convention is Representative Aldrich of Alabama.

The foregoing list foots up twenty-one senators, more than two-fifths of the total Republican membership of the United States senate, eleven representatives and one delegate.

Meet In State Convention to Elect National Delegates.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 14.—The Democratic state convention to select four delegates-at-large to Kansas City convened here today. There has been a contest of considerable magnitude between the candidates for the four first places, and some bitterness has been shown, especially between the adherents of Governor Lon V. Stephens and ex-Governor William J. Stone. Among the other candidates for these places have been mentioned the names of William H. Phelps, W. C. Wetmore, Judge Morris Mann, M. E. Harber and David A. Ball.

Chairman Seibert, of the state central committee, called the convention to order at 10:20 and introduced Congressman Champ Clark, the temporary chairman. Mr. Clark made a plea for harmony, and paid a magnificent tribute to the memory of the late Richard P. Bland, saying if the Democrats won this year the victory would be due most to the influence of Bland's life than to any other. He praised the state platform adopted at teh Kansas City convention, particularly the 16 to 1 declaration.

THE DAKOTAS.

Cass County Republican Convention---Successful Railroad Test of Lignite.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Cass county Republican convention was held here to select delegates to the state nominating convention at Grand Forks and the Third judicial district convention at Hillsboro. Resolutions were adopted instructing the delegates to the former for Congressman Spalding, and those to the latter for Judge Pollock. The unit rule was adopted and everything was harmonious.

Rev. John Morley, formerly superintendent of Congregational missions in Minnesota, was formally inaugurated president of Fargo college yesterday. Rev. S. G. Smith, of the People's church, St. Paul, delivered the address at the commencement exercises at the college. Morley Paves for the East soon in the interest of the college.

Bismarck—A successful test of lignite coal was made on a Bismarck, Washburn & Great Falls engine, demonstrating that lignite coal can be used in engines with good results. The test was made by hauling sixteen cars heavily loaded up a 1 per cent grade with a standard engine fired with lignite coal. Experts state that the engine worked to 80 per cent of its capacity with the lignite.

The expense for fuel with lignite will be 15 per cent of that with ordinary coal. The coal tested came from the Satterlund mine, adjoining three-quarter sections of coal land owned by Gen. Washburn.

Oakes—The sequel to numerous robberies here developed when George Griffiths, of Harlem, undertook to dig up a plant of stolen whisky, taken form Harris' drug store.

About two months ago three stores were entered here and two safes robbed. No clue was found except that a gun taken from one of the stores afterward turned up near Eureka, where it had been sold by Ed Dittman, who stole a horse from a farmer west of town and successfully made good his escape west of the Missouri river.

Griffiths is only about 18 years of age, and for the past month has been at work with a party of Northern Pacific surveyors running the line between this place and Milnor.

Griffith told the city marshal that he would tell all he knew and it is believed there are others implicated in the burglaries who will be apprehended later.

Sheldon—Ed Altman, living ten miles south of Sheldon, was killed by lightning.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Oacoma—A case of mysterious disappearance is creating great interest in the western part of Lyman county. About two weeks ago Oscar Wilson, the mail carrier between Westoyer and Presho, hired a young man named John Henderson to carry the mail for him temporarily. Henderson arrived at Zickrlek, the first intermediate postoffice, and the mail was properly changed. This was the last heard of him. Foul play is feared.

Aberdeen—The grand lodge, A. F. & A. M. elected the following officers: Grand master, John A. Cleaver, Huron; deputy, Charles Hill, Springfield; senior warden, Frank A. Brown, Aberdeen; junior warden, Byron P. Dague, Chadwood; treasurer, John C. Bryan, Plankinton; secretary, George A. Pettigrew, Flandreau.

Sioux Falls—The supreme lodge, A. O. U. W. in session here, elected the following officers: Supreme master workman, William A. Walker, Wisconsin; supreme foreman, A. C. Hardwick, New York; supreme overseer, Webb McAugh. A memorial from the superior lodge to the supreme lodge in relation to the broadening of the lines of membership was adopted by the latter.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

A Peculiar Find.

It has become a sufficiently common occurrence to find a tarantula in a bunch of bananas to occasion little surprise to any other than the individual who makes the discovery, but this morning another kind of an animal was found in a bunch at the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company's place. The shipment of bananas was from South America and the find was a sort of lizard of a particularly snaky sort of appearance. Nobody has been found up to noon today who could tell just what it was. One man who claimed to have lived in South America said it was a very small South American black snake, and that when it grew its full size it would be three or four feet long. He claimed that it is very poisonous.

Receives Faithful Service Medal.

First Sergeant Alfred E. Broadbridge of Company A is the proud possesser of a handsomely designed medal just received from Adjt. Gen. Lambert. The medal is known in national guard circles as the "faithful service" badge and is given by the state only after ten years of continuous service in the National Guard. Sergt. Broadbridge is probably the first enlisted man in the Duluth companies entitled to this distinction though several of the commissioned officers have them. The medal is bronze with a raised model of old Fort Snelling, and the cross arms of the infantry, cavalry and artillery branches of the service.

Spencer-Hartley Marriage.

This evening the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer, and Heber L. Hartley will take place at the residence of the bride's parents. It will be a very quiet event, at which only the relatives and some of the old family friends will be present.

Another Golf Club.

A meeting was held last evening at the residence of Stephen M. Lester, 202 West Third street, to organize a golf club. The following were elected officers: President, F. J. Lauermann; vice president, Thomas F. Sheridan; secretary, William J. Barnes; treasurer, Charles H. Southworth. Lincoln Golf club was the name selected. The grounds which are located west of the Mesaba railroad between Superior and West Third streets, will be in readiness and play will begin Monday afternoon and evening next.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

The Steamer Charles R. Van Hise to Be Launched on Saturday.

FREIGHTS ARE DULL

Ore Shippers Not Pressed Hard Enough to Pay Higher Prices.

The first launching this season at the yards of the Superior Shipbuilding company, the local branch of the American Shipbuilding company, will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the new steel steamer Charles R. Van Hise, for the Bessemer Steamship company, will seek the water for the first time. It is expected that the launching will be largely attended. Capt. A. B. Wolvin, president of the local company, has extended an invitation to the members of the board of trade and their employes and families to attend, and a large number of them will go over.

The new steamer will be able to carry about 8500 gross tons on a draught of 18 feet, and her gross tonnage will be 5117 tons and her net tonnage will be 3440 tons. She will be 463 feet in length over all and 450 feet between perpendiculars, her beam will be 50 feet and her depth 29 feet 6 inches She is a single-deck bulk freight steamer, with a forecastle forward, a steel deck house forward for the accommodation of the officers, with a pilot house on top, a steel deck house amidships for the accommodations of the crew, and a steel deck house aft for the accommodation of the engines, boilers and engine casing.

She will have triple expansion engines with 20½-inch high pressure, 34-inch No. 1 intermediate H. P., 42½ No. 2 intermediate and 63-inch low pressure, with a stroke of 42. Her auxiliary engines will be independent, and she will have three Scotch boilers, 12 feet 4 inches long and 12 feet in diameter. Her propellors will be 14 feet in diameter with 16 feet pitch.

DOVES FREED AT LAUNCHING.

Chicago, June 14.—The traditional bottle of wine was supplanted by a Japanese custom at the launching of the big steel towing schooner Bryn Mawr at South Chicago Tuesday afternoon. At 2 o'clock Miss Elizabeth M. Utley, standing on the launching stage under the bow of the boat, formally named the big ship, and as the craft started down the ways she opened a cage containing four white doves, which immediately flew to the four quarters of the compass. This practice has been introduced on the lakes by the officials of the Pittsburg Steamship company (Carnegie line), to which the Bryn Mawr belongs, and will be observed with all the boats of that fleet. Miss Utley, who came from Pittsburg for the occasion, was accompanied by representatives of the line and officials of the Chicago Shipbuilding company. The Bryn Mawr was almost ready for service when launched. The masts had been stepped and steam was up in the donkey boiler, which the crew used in blowing the boat's own whistle when she floated in the slip after sliding down the ways. She has been put together in just four months from the time the keel was laid, which marks a record in lake ship construction. The maiden trip will be made June 16. The Cornell, a steamer for the same line, will be launched July 1.

WILL TAKE DECISIVE ACTION.

Developments in the freight handlers' strike at Buffalo may be expected soon. President Keefe and Secretary Barker arrived there Tuesday night for a conference with the executive committee of the International Longshoremen's union, and to take decisive action in the matter. President Keefe and other officers of the union have been on a tour of the lake ports for several weeks, and it is presumed that the sentiment of the entire union in regard to the Buffalo matter has been fully obtained. No forecast of the intention of the longshoremen is possible on account of the secrecy that has attended the various meetings with executive committees all over the lakes.

MANY GRAIN CHARTERS.

Chicago, June 14.—Yesterday was the banner day of the season in the grain charter line. Vessels to carry nearly 1,500,000 bushels of corn and 200,000 bushels of oats were placed at 2 cents, and the demands of the shippers were not all met.

TO HAVE A NEW HARBOR.

Moves that are now being made by the Lehigh Valley road at Buffalo indicate that that port is to have a new harbor. The road is quietly laying track along the edge of the lake toward the Stony Point end of the steel plant site, and will probably not stop till it gets there. It is said that the Lehigh Valley is getting ready to cut an opening from the lake to its Tifft farm canal, which it can do easily enough, as it owns all the land. Then, with one great flour warehouse there and preparations for building another, it will be well intrenched in that place.

THE FREIGHT SITUATION.

The markets are clear out of line for shipment just now, so the situation in grain freights was exceedingly dull on the Duluth board of trade this morning. Charters were reported this morning at 2½ cents, which is a backdown from the figures expected to follow Rockefeller's attempt to boost the ore rate. It was understood that liners had taken the charters at 2½ cents, and while there was no demand for tonnage and not a great deal of tonnage on the market, vesselmen are still asking 2¾ cents.

Chicago, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After yesterday's big chartering, the grain trade was quiet today. Up to noon three boats had been placed at 2 cents. That bids fair to be the rate unless there is a radical change in the situation.

Cleveland, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore shippers insist they are not being pressed hard enough as yet to pay the higher prices for which vessels are being held by brokers. Chartering is therefore very light.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS.

Convention Will Endorse Bryan and the Chicago Platform.

Louisville, Ky., June 14.—The Kentucky Democratic convention was called to order at 2 this afternoon, at Music hall, by Chairman Young. The object of the convention is to elect delegates-at-large to the Democratic National convention. No action be taken regarding the selection of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor. It is stated there will be a sharp contest for the temporary and permanent organization of today's convention between the friends of Governor Beckham and the anti-Beckham forces. It is reasonably certain that Senator Joe Blackburn, ex-Governor James B. McCleary and Hon. Louis McQuown will be three of the four delegates chosen for the state at large to the National convention. Several prominent Democrats are mentioned for the fourth place. The convention will endorse the Chicago platform, endorse Bryan for president and condemn the assassination of Goebel.

It is currently reported that Senator Blackburn will introduce a resolution, requesting Governor Beckham to call an extra session of the legislature to repeal the Goebel election law.

GEORGIA CONVENTION.

The Democrats Will Instruct Their Delegates For Bryan.

Atlanta, Ga., June 14.—The Democratic state convention was called to order at 10 o'clock this morning by Chairman Du-Bignon of the state executive committee. Four hundred delegates were present. Edward Brown, vice president of the state executive committee, was made temporary chairman. He addressed the convention briefly, after which the committees on credentials and resolutions were named and a recess taken to enable the committees time to outline the work to come before the convention.

The convention will name four delegates-at-large to Kansas City, who will be instructed for Bryan. The state ticket chosen at the primaries in May, headed by Allen D. Candler for governor, will undoubtedly be named.

DISPATCHERS WRECKED.

They Gst an Object Lesson In Railroading.

FACTS AND FICTION

Experiences of Duluth Citizens Are Easily Proven to be Facts--Outside Testimony is Apt to Favor Romance

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Duluth is true. Read it and compare evidence from Duluth along with testimony from outside places published side by side with this in the columns of this paper. Investigate still further and you will be surprised at the number of people in Duluth who re-echo what this citizen says. Reiteration of such a statement, local endorsement about the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills cannot be gainsaid or disproven. Read this case:

Mr. C. Haeknan, of 2222 Michigan street, brakeman on the Northern Pacific railroad, says: "I was troubled for years with a heavy, dull aching through the small of my back and an unnautral and irregular condition of the kidney secretions. My work is particularly trying on the back, and being frequently exposed to rough weather and doing a good deal of climbing about the cars, kept my complaint aggravated. I felt all run down, and I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and procured a box at the Duluth Drug company's store and used them. In a remarkably short time I was thoroughly relieved of the trouble. My wife was suffering from the effects of la grippe, and had a great deal of suffering from her back. She used Doan's Kidney Pills, and the results obtained were most satisfactory."

WILL USE NO TROOPS

United States Will Not Send Any Land Forces to China.

MIGHT MAKE TROUBLE

Feared That the Use of Troops Might Raise Grave Issues.

Washington, June 14.—It was said at the state department today that no request for 2000, or, in fact, for any number of troops, had been received from Minister Conger, as reported from Shanghai. As a matter of fact, the state department has not heard from Minister Conger for thirty-six hours past. As it is gathered that the European foreign offices are in precisely the same position respecting their diplomatic reports at Pekin, it is assumed at the state department that telegraphic communication between Pekin and the outside world, which for the last three days has consisted of a single line running north into Russian Manchuria, has at last been totally interrupted.

The statement that the government has not in the slightest degree changed its position respecting the inexpediency of landing United States troops in China is made with the knowledge on the part of the state department officials of the current reports that other powers interested, notably England, Russia and Spain, either have already or are about to land troops at Taku and Tien Tsin.

There seems to be a disposition to make a distinction between the use of troops and marines under existing conditions. It probably is assumed that the presence of marines on Chinese soil, indicating from their character that the landing is purely temporary, is much less apt to raise grave international issues, either with China or with the other powers represented at Taku.

Their employment, therefore, marks the extent of the force to be put into play by the United States government, according to the present determination, for whatever injury has been sustained by the United States, either through the killing of citizens or the destruction of missionary property, China will be held for heavy indemnity.

The Japanese authorities here say the Yokohama press dispatches stating that Japan is about to send a mixed regiment to China is undoubtedly correct, as it tallies with what has been expected in diplomatic quarters. Mr. Naheshima, the charge, says the ports at which warships and transports assemble are Yokosuka, Kure and Sasebo. He believes the movement will be made from Kure, the headquarters of the Fifth military division, which is only two miles from the naval port, so that no time need be lost in getting troops aboard the transports in case the movements are decided upon.

In some diplomatic quarters there is talk of a joint request by all of the parties interested on either Japan or Russia, or both of them, to land a strong force of soldiers instead of the limited number of marines now available. This, however, has not yet taken official form.

Mr. Naheshima says Japan alone would not act along such lines, unless all the powers united in a request of that character. In that event, he feels Japan could very rapidly, and singlehanded, put an end to the disorder, as she could forward a large force of soldiers capable of repairing the line to Pekin, and maintaining perfect order.

In another high diplomatic quarter, representing one of the first powers of Europe, it was stated that as Russia and Japan both had large forces of soldiers near China, it might be expedient for the powers to ask them to each send an equal number of soldiers. This, it was stated, would create a balance between Russia and Japan, relieving both of them from the suspicion of dispatching a large military force for ulterior ends.

CREDIT MEN'S MEETING.

Adopt Resolutions and Elect Officers of the Association.

Milwaukee, June 14.—The closing day's sessions of the National Association of Credit men were mainly devoted to committee reports and the election of officers. A. C. Fister, of Denver, delivered an able address on "Co-operation and Good Fellowship." The committee on credit department methods reported resolutions which were adopted, urging a thorough investigation of every application for credit, as to the business practices of the applicant in the line of taking inventory and fire insurance. Plans of reciprocal reporting as followed by Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sioux City Credit Men's associations were also endorsed.

The report of the investigation and prosecution committee providing for a fund of $10,000 to carry on the work of the investigation and prosecution bureau of the National Association of Credit Men was carried.

John Field, of Philadelphia was re-elected president and Fred W. Standart, of Denver, was re-elected vice-president.

The new board of directors elected is as follows: John R. Ainsley, Boston, Mass.; A. C. Case, Pittsburg, Pa.; J. T. Jenkins, Nashville, Tenn.; Thomas Todd, Baltimore, Md.; E. A. Young, St. Paul; C. S. Foster, New Orleans, La.; R. G. McMechen, Toledo, Ohio; James G. Cannon, New York; W. H. Tyler, Kansas City, Mo.; O. C. Hansen, Milwaukee. The directors re-elected W. A. Prendergast, of New York, secretary, and T. H. Green, of Sioux City, Iowa, treasurer.

ARE DISMAYED.

Sand Bagging Methods of Republican Committee on Contests Causes Alarm.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The contesting delegations to the Republican national convention are very much disturbed over the action of the national committee last night in refusing the Alabama men a place on the temporary roll of the convention. They express the fear that they may not be able to obtain seats in the convention, as in the rush of proceedings the committee of credentials may not wish to take up very much time in examining into the merits of the case. Many of the contesting delegation are today importuning members of the committee to decide their cases one way or another in order that the states may have full representation in the preliminaries of the convention.

The action of the committee in the Alabama case is said to have been largely inspired by a desire to discourage contests, as it makes little difference this year which way the decision goes, and the committee thinks it would be a very good time to inaugurate a reform.

One member of the committee has suggested that the various contesting delegations should be made to agree among themselves or be refused admission to the convention, but the feeling displayed in many of these factional fights makes such a course highly improbable.

While there may be some discussion of the resolutions introduced by Mr. Payne yesterday requesting the president to investigate the interference of federal office holders in Alabama politics, that is all that is likely to come of it. In discussing the subject today Senator Hanna remarked that there was enough investigation going on now and he saw no necessity for bringing the president into the matter of the selection of delegates. Other members of the committee are of the same opinion and they doubt the propriety of adopting such a resolution.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The sub-committee appointed last night to attempt at harmonizing the different contesting delegations from Delaware met here previous to the Republican national committee but adjourned without having reached a conclusion. The purpose was to persuade both factions to make concessions but so far they have been unable to secure any promises to that end from the Dupont delegation, styled "The Regular Republicans." They decline to accept Mr. Addicks but have asked for further time. Mr. Addicks was before the sub-committee at the morning meeting and professed himself willing to accept any reasonable compromise.

It was 11:30 o'clock when the full committee assembled. The Delaware care was temporarily passed over and the contest from the first Georgia district taken up. The contestants in this case were Joseph F. Doyle and R. R. Wright, and the contestees, J. H. Deveaux and W. O. Leaken. The contest grew out of several claims on J. R. Delegata and L. M. Peasant to the district chairmanship. The committee decided in favor of the Deveaux delegation.

The contest from the District of Columbia was settled in favor of J. E. Jones and W. C. Chase. They were the contestees, presenting credentials showing they had received a majority of the votes cast. The contestants were Dr. Reyburn and George W. Lee, a colored preacher. Dr. Reyburn made an argument in his own and Mr. Lee's behalf, asserting that the ballot boxes were stuffed and that Chase had certified his own election. No argument was made on the other side.

Louisiana was taken up after the disposition of the District of Columbia contest. There are three sets of contesting delegations from the state at large, known as the Wimberly, Warmouth and Herwig factions. The committee recessed at 1:30 until 3 o'clock. The Louisiana cases probably will occupy all the afternoon.

DEMOCRATS.

Large Attendance of Delegates at the St. Louis County Convention.

The Democratic county convention at the city hall this afternoon opened very quietly. The attendance of delegates was large. Eveleth, Biwabik, Hibbing, Tower, Ely and Virginia were represented among the outside towns. Among the outsiders were: J. D. Murphy, T. J. Walsh, W. H. Champaign and William Herrald, of Tower; J. B. Connors, J. P. Leibel, Bryan O'Rourke and S. Lekde, of Hibbing; H. Van Blacrom and A. Bedford, of Ely; J. W. Crockett and William Moore, of Biwabik.

Early in the afternoon there were rumors that there might be a contest over the choice of a man to recommend as a delegate-at-large to Kansas City. T. T. Hudson had been supposed to be the man who would get the endorsement, but a movement to bring out C. O. Baldwin was strong when the convention opened.

Roger S. Powell called the convention to order. P. J. Neff nominated Berlah Magoffin for chairman. J. D. Murphy was suggested for secretary, but said he would rather not act, and B. F. Anderson was chosen.

W. R. Spencer moved that the chair appoint a committee of seven on credentials, and this being carried, the chair named Frank Crassweller, J. D. Murphy, of Tower; James A. Brady, Morris Thomas and J. B. Connors, of Hibbing.

While the committee was out P. J. Neff addressed the convention by invitation. His remarks were greeted with much applause.

Henry Truelsen also spoke and was strong in his expression of the hope that Charles A. Towne would be selected as the candidate for the vice presidency.

RESIGNATION EXPECTED.

Governor of British Columbia Expected to Step Out.

Victoria, B. C., June 14.—Announcement is momentarily expected that Governor McInnis has resigned. It is thought that he will do so before the end of the week. Premier Martin returned from Vancouver last evening but had nothing to say for publication. His friends hint that he will resign immediately after the opposition caucus at Vancouver has chosen a leader.

TELEPHONE ASSOCIATION.

Cleveland, June 14.—The Independent Telephone association of America elected the following officers: President, James M. Thomas; first vice president, H. C. Sheffield, Columbia, Pa.; second vice president, C. E. Stinson, Rochester, N. Y.; third vice president, H. E. Teachout, Des Moines, Iowa; secretary and treasurer, S. P. PAYNE PUTS IT BY.

Philadelphia, June 14.—Henry C. Payne, member of the national Republican committee from Wisconsin, today sent the following dispatch to the chairman of the Wisconsin delegation:

"I am not a candidate for vice president or any other office. I hope our delegation will unanimously support Governor Schofield."

This was in answer to a lettter which Mr. Payne had received, and which had suggested that the Wisconsin delegation would present Mr. Payne's name if he would permit.

West Duluth

The work of putting the rolling mill at the car works in shape is nearing completion, and it is expected that the mill will be ready to operate by the end of the first week in July at the latest. The furnaces will be finished by Saturday night if all goes well. There is a force of about fifteen men at work.

The work remaining to be done consists in part of fixing the stack and turning the rollers.

LOFGREN SELLS OUT.

A. Lofgren has disposed of his drug business to M. L. Otlander, of Milwaukee, and the latter took possession yesterday. Mr. Lofgren will go to his old home, near Sauk Center, for a rest of several weeks, after which he will return to West Duluth.

There is a "persistent rumor" to the effect that Mr. Lofgren will drop his hook into the political pond and angle for the Republican nomination for auditor.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

It has been suggested to the Fourth of July committee that the parade march through Superior street in view of the fact that there will be no celebration in Duluth. The matter will be considered by the committee at its meeting, a few days hence, to make final arrangements.

J. M. Lauermann is putting a new front in his shoe store.

E. J. Luther, of Grand Rapids, Minn., is visiting in West Duluth.

F. G. Coffeen has resigned his position as superintendent of the Malleable Iron works, and will go to Chicago, where he will probably make his home.

C. J. Houch, who has been acting as foreman, will hereafter act in the capacity of general superintendent also.

C. E. Lovelace, of Minneapolis, is now making his headquarters in West Duluth, and may remain here permanently.

TEN LIVES ARE LOST

Another Tenement House Fire Horror Added to New York's Record.

A FRIGHTFUL SCENE

Victims, Pursued By Flames, Dash Themselves From the Upper Stories.

New York, June 15.—Ten lives were lost and seven people badly injured during a fire which almost totally destroyed a tenement house at 34 Jackson street, early today.

The official list of the dead is:

William Cotter, 40 years.
Mrs. Kate Cotter, 38.
Joseph Cotter, 12.
Kate Cotter, 9.
John Cotter, 3.
William Cotter, 1.
Louis Marion, 40.
Mary Marion, 37.
Elsie Marion, 6.
Mamie Cotter, 13.

The injured: Mamie Marion, 18 years old; Margaret Marion, 14; Frank Marion, 12; ——— Marion (girl), 2; a boy baby, 10 months, supposed to be of Mulhearn family; Patrick Burns, 33; unknwn boy, 17.

It is stated that Burns cannot recover. The others suffered from inhaling smoke and are in a serious condition.

The fire appears to have started in the rear of the hallway, on the second floor. It had gained headway before the people in the house were awakened to their peril. The Cotter family lived on the fourth floor.

Patrick Burns was awakened by smoke, and he gave the alarm to the others in Miss Mary Jordan's apartments, where he boarded. All escaped except Burns, who was severely injured by the flames.

Policeman Knowles, after assisting the Hartigan family to escape from the third floor of the building, mounted one flight higher. Flames shot out of the windows and set fire to his coat, but he continued to climb the fire escape. He heard screams coming from the Mulhearn apartments and, locating them, assisted the dazed people down the fire escapes.

When Officer Knowles reached the Marion apartment, a confusion of flame and smoke burst into his face. In the midst of it all, with nightgown ablaze and their hair blazing, four of the children were tearing about the room shrieking in terrible agony. Mrs. Marion was huddled near the window. With her bare arms wrapped about her baby, she was gasping for air.

Three rushes were made into the flames by the terrified woman, and Margery, Frank and Mamie were brought to Knowles after he had taken the baby. The blisters and scars were swelling on hands and arms, but he conquered his agony and continued his work on the floor by finally carrying the fainting form of the courageous mother down the fire escape.

When the fire department reached the Marion family, three of them were dead on the floor and the others unconscious.

In the Cotter rooms were found Mrs. Cotter, while a few feet away lay the body of Mr. Cotter, with a dead child under him. In other parts of the rooms were found the remaining members of the family. Only two of them, Mamie and George, the latter 4 months old, were alive.

Policeman Peter Purfield reached the top of the first flight of stairs when Patrick Burns, a boarder, with his nightshirt blazing, jumped over the banisters and fell in a heap at the bottom of the stairs. Purfield carried him to the street and tore his blazing garments from him. Burns was blackened all over by the fire and was delirious. He sank down on the sidewalk from pain and exhaustion.

Officer Purfield made his way to the rear of the hallway, on the first floor, and was about to go into the yard when Marion jumped from the fifth floor and fell lifeless at his feet. Mamie Cotter died at the hospital.

The loss is about $7000.

BRYAN AT MINOCQUA.

Arrives With His Party at Col. Wetmore's Place.

Minocqua, Wis., June 15.—W. J. Bryan, with Colonel W. C. Wetmore and party, arrived here yesterday, where a few days will be spent at Colonel Wetmore's fishing resort.

The trip was made without any startling events to chronicle. Mr. Bryan made a few short speeches from the platform of his car while passing through the Wisconsin valley, which part of the run was made during the day. He was greeted by fair sized crowds at every stop.

A LEGATION BURNED.

Japanese Legation at Tien Tsin Is Destroyed.

London, June 15.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says an unconfirmed report has reached there from Tien Tsin to the effect that a foreign legation has been burned and that a minister has been killed. The names, it is added, are withheld pending a confirmation of the report.

Later reports from Tien Tsin confirm the news of the burning of the Japanese legation, but the rumor that a minister has been murdered is not confirmed.

Fifteen hundred Russians with four guns have arrived outside of Pekin. This makes 4,000 Russians who have landed.

FOUR INJURED.

Columbus, Ohio, June 15.—Four people were severely injured in a rear end collision between two electric cars returning from Minerva Park. The injured: William H. Devere, S. E. Morris, W. Powell, John Herr. Crow bars had to be used to pry the cars apart to release Devere. The cause of the collision has not been determined.

PEACE IS IN SIGHT

The St. Louis Striking Street Car Men Vote to Arbitrate.

IS WORK OF GOMPERS

Action Brought About Through the Federation of Labor President.

St. Louis, June 15.—By a practically unanimous vote the local union of street railway employes of the Transit company out on strike decided today to submit the matter of reinstatement of the employes to arbitration. By the same vote the executive committee of the union was empowered to negotiate with the company and make a final settlement without referring the matter back to the union. This action was brought about through the influence of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who arrived in St. Louis last night and was present at the mass meeting which was held at the West End Coliseum today.

St. Louis, June 15.—There is now scarcely apparent indication that a strike exists on the lines of the St. Louis Transit company. With the exception of small knots of deputy sheriffs on guard at the numerous car sheds and power houses of the company, everything is ostensibly tranquil. Cars on all the divisions are running with the same regularity as prior to the strike.

Officers of the Transit company state that during the past two weeks they have received applications for reinstatement from several hundred of the strikers, and that 100 motormen and conductors from out of town have recently arrived. According to the officers, regular schedules, day and night, will now be maintained on all the divisions of the system.

As evidence, however, that the strike has not entirely subsided, an attempt was made during the night to blow up a mail car in the vicinity of Broadway and North Market street. The car ran over a bomb on the track and the explosion aroused the entire neighborhood. George Schniesser, aged 21, was arrested by special police officers, who claim they saw him place the explosive on the track.

The strike began thirty-eight days ago, and, it is estimated, has cost the taxpayers of St. Louis more than $250,000 for protection alone, not taking into account the heavy loss sustained by the merchants and citizens generally, as well as the loss suffered by the Transit company and by the strikers themselves.

At 10 o'clock today the striking employes of the Transit company from all parts of the city gathered at the West End Coliseum to attend a meeting called by their leaders to act on a proposition looking to the termination of the strike. It is understood that the negotiations which resulted in the calling of today's meeting have been progressing quietly for the past three days. According to a member of the executive committee, which prepared the proposition, that committee and the grievance committee of the local union have both unanimously approved it.

The coroner's inquest in the killing of Edward Thomas and George Rine, and the inquiring into the wounding of Edward Burkhardt, Oscar Marvin and John White, street car strikers who were shot by special deputy sheriffs near the posse barracks on Washington avenue, Sunday afternoon, was resumed today.

The first witness, H. L. Stanton, of Chicago, a guest at the Hotel Berlin, said: "I was within thirty feet of the shooting when it began. I heard several pistol shots fired. I could not tell who fired them. There were some deputies in the group who had revolvers. I saw no revolvers in the hands of the strikers. I saw several strikers board the car on the rear platform. I could not identify any of the men who shot."

Joseph Albert, employed at the St. Louis law school, was within fifteen feet of the man who was shot. He testified that he saw a man in a street railway uniform fall on the track after the first shot was fired. He thought about forty shots were fired, but saw no weapons in the hands of the uniformed men.

U. S. Grant, a wagon maker, told of the shooting, and when asked if he could identify any man who fired a shot, picked out Deputy Sheriff McKnight. He said: "I am not positive, but he looks very much like the man."

F. Blaisdell, painter, testified: "I was passing the barracks. Three men ran from the building. One of the deputies grabbed a man in the parade line and pulled him over to the car track. Other deputies ran up and the uniformed man was shot down. I saw no rocks thrown. I did not see any demonstration by the men in line before the shooting.

CUSTARD PIE PASTRY.

Mix one scant cup of sifted pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon each of salt and baking powder, and cut or chop into it one rounding tablespoon each of butter and lard. Mix into stiff ball with ice-cold water. Toss out on floured board, pat flat and one-half inch thick, roll out till one-half inch larger than the plate, which should be deep, of granite, or thin earthenware, and floured, not greased. Fold the extra paste under the edge and flute it lightly. If the oven does not bake well on the bottom, bake the crust alone just enough to dry out the surface, and then add the custard.

Are You Counted?

Census Headquarters, room 618, Chamber of Commerce, will remain open until 10 o'clock tonight. New 'phone 210, old 'phone 65. SEE THAT YOUR FRIENDS ARE COUNTED.

A. O. U. W. GRAND LODGE.

The Election of Grand Lodge Officers Is Concluded.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—The supreme lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen yesterday concluded the election of officers, the following being elected: Supreme guide, C. R. Matson, of Chicago; supreme watchman, A. B. Jones, of Wilmington, Del.; supreme medical examiner, Dr. D. H. Shields, of Hannibal, Mo.; trustees, Thomas Liggett, of Montreal, Can.; Ed. Danforth, of San Francisco; A. E. Bleach, of Columbus, O.

Past Supreme Master Workman A. W. Walker, of Illinois, and Past Supreme Master Workman William H. Jordan, of California, were appointed to fill vacancies on the board of arbitration.

OBSERVERS' WORK LOST.

Northwestern University Sun Eclipse Photographs Are Failures.

Chicago, June 15.—The Chronicle says: Professor Henry Crew of the chair of physics of the Northwestern university sorrowfully announces that all the photographs he had taken of the eclipse of the sun had been under-exposed and were valueless. His pictures were obtained at the United States naval observatory in Griffin, Ga., where he was assisted by J. C. Stephenal, instructor of physics in Northwestern university. The failure to secure good photographs is explained by the brief time, only twenty seconds, available for the line of work to which the two men planned to depote their attentions.

WISCONSIN JURIST DEAD.

Judge Johnson, of Milwaukee County, Succumbs to Apoplexy.

Milwaukee, June 15.—Judge Daniel H. Johnson, of the circuit court of Milwaukee county, died today from a stroke of apoplexy, aged 76. Judge Johnson had been on the circuit bench since 1887, prior to which time he was city attorney. He was well known throughout the state. He was a native of Canada.

YIELDS TO BRITISH

Klerksdorp Is Surrendered to a Party Sent By Hunter.

AN IMPORTANT POINT

A Railroad Terminus and Gives Roberts a Good Strategic Point.

London, June 15, 11:15 a. m.—The war office issues the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Pretoria Residency, June 14, 10:40 p. m.—Klerksdorp surrendred on June 9 to an armed party sent on by Hunter.

"Kitchener reports that the Boers attacked a reconstruction train early this morning a few miles north of Rhenoster river. He sent out mounted troops and drove off the enemy before they could do damage. One man was killed and eleven wounded, including two officers.

"A messenger from Klerksdorp reports that Cronje, who commanded there, determined to surrender as soon as he knew for certain that Pretoria was in our possession. His example has been copied by many in the neighborhood. The court house is now said to be be full of arms."

By the peaceful occupation of Klerksdorp, announced by Lord Roberts, the British have gained a strategic position of some importance, as the town is not only the terminus of another railroad to Johannesburg, but it is within easy reach of the Kroonstad-Vierfonteln railroad.

The Cronje who surrendered the place is a son of the famous general. The son was prominent during the siege of Mafeking.

Apart from the fact that Lord Roberts' dispatch comes direct from Pretoria, showing the telegraph line is open, the only other point of interest is the fact that the Boers, whom Gen. Methuen was reported to have so utterly routed, have sufficiently recuperated to attack a reconstruction train.

A dispatch from Kimberley reports the capture of the well known pugilist, "Jim" Holloway, who was an adjutant in the Boer army, and who blew up the bridge at Fourteen Streams. Holloway was among a body of federals captured in the western part of the Transvaal.

It is feared at Cape Town that the parliamentary deadlock will lead to a temporary suspension of the constitution, and there is much anxiety in regard to the possible outcome of such a grave step.

Sir John Gordon is experiencing much difficulty in forming a cabinet, Mr. Schreiner persisting in his refusal to support a ministry dominated by Cecil Rhodes, on account of personal antipathies. Mr. Primrose-Innes and Solomon are not inclined to accept subordinate positions in a government composed of nominees for the South African league.

If Mr. Schreiner is dissatisfied with the personnel and pledges of the new ministry, the latter will be unable to pass imperial measures, and a dangerous deadlock will ensue, which may lead to a grave constitutional crisis.

FIVE MEN PERISHED

BURIED BY IRON ORE

Which Was Loosened By the Force of the Dynamite Blast.

Biwabik, Minn., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The worst fatal disaster ever known in the mining regions of Northern Minnesota occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at the Hale mine, situated about a mile and a half in a northeastern direction from this village, when five laborers were hurled into eternity by an explosion of dynamite. The mine is operated on the milling system, large holes, called chutes, being cut from the surface through to the tunnels below, along which the small ore cars are run. The workmen were preparing to make another of these chutes to convey the ore to the tunnel, and had placed a large charge of dynamite and giant powder in the cavities prepared by the drilling which had been done before.

They then retired but a short distance into the tunnel running below the intended chute, expecting the explosive to remove the earth above the tunnel, but instead of doing this, the charge loosened a large mass of ore, comprising the roof of the tunnel, causing the body of ore to fall directly where the laborers were gathered, burying the entire party.

The appalling accident became known almost immediately and a large force of laborers, comprising the entire night crew at the mine, organized a rescue party. By 7:30 all the bodies were recovered, although the wreckage was only partially removed. When recovered, the bodies all were cold, death having resulted almost instantaneously. The bodies were terribly mutilated, especially about the head and the upper extremities. So badly were the faces mutilated that they could not be recognized by the rescue party.

Stretchers were improvised and the bodies were carried to the Biwabik Hardware company's morgue, where they were viewed by large crowds of curious people. Deputy Coroner Poole, of Eveleth, was notified and immediately convened a jury which met at 2 o'clock yesterday. The jury, after considering the testimony, completely exonerated the company from all blame, not blaming anyone for the accident. The names of the laborers are on the company's records but were not made public. Of the five men two were Austrians, two were Finns and one was a Swede. All were single men, two of them boarding at Pulcher's boarding house on Main street. One of the Finns was but a boy 18 years of age, who had only been in town a short time. Efforts are being made by the local authorities to locate and communicate with the relatives of the unfortunate man. The crew had but one more hour to work, when they were to be relieved by the day crew.

Another version of the accident is that another crew set off the charge of dynamite, not knowing that the men were in the tunnel. If nothing is heard from relatives, the remains of the five men will be interred Saturday afternoon at the Lakeside cemetery. This is the fourth fatal accident of the season which has been open for only three months, in which nine laborers have met horrible deaths. The accident is quite similar to the accident that occurred at the Canton mine here five years ago when three men were buried alive in a cave-in.

HAWAIIAN POLITICS.

The Natives Decide to Organize an Independent Party.

Victoria, B. C., June 15.—News by the steamship Warrimoo from Honolulu is to the effect that the native Hawaiians have decided to organize an independent party to oppose the Republicans and Democrats.

FIRE AT TIFFIN.

Tiffin, Ohio, June 15.—Fire destroyed the plant of the Tiffin Bent Works and Lumber company today. The flames originated in the boiler room. Loss, $80,000; insurance, $36,000.

RAISIN COMBINE.

Fresno, Cal., June 14.—IncSe last Saturday, when the new regime of the Raisin Growers' association began, contracts representing 2500 acres have been signed. It is said one-fifth balance to control, with nineteen days to secure the remainder.

USES OF STRAW.

Straw is put to strange uses in Japan. Most of the horses are shod with straw. Even the clumsiest of cart horses wear straw shoes. In their case the shoes are tied around the ankles with straw rope, and are made of the ordinary rice straw, braided so that they form a sole for the foot about half an inch thick. These soles cost about a half penny per pair, and when they are worn out they are thrown away. Every cart has a stock of fresh new shoes tied to the horse or to the front of the cart, and in Japan it was formerly the custom to measure distance largely by the number of horseshoes it took to cover the distance. So many horseshoes made a day's journey, and the average shoe lasted for about eight miles of travel.

BRITAIN'S IMPORTANT VEGETABLE

If asked what was the most important event in the history of British vegetables, most people would say the bringing over of the potato from its home in America. They would be wrong. The introduction of the turnip—that is, of the Swedish variety—was of much greater value, says the Washington Star. Until Britain got the field turnip people had to live during the winter chiefly on salted meat. And severe winters were dreaded on account of the terrible mortality among sheep, which were then left out at pasture all through the cold weather. The growing of swedes changed all that by providing cheap and wholesome food for stock when penned up. Turnips, like so many other vegetables, came from Holland about 1690.

WELCOME TRAVELERS

Knights of the Grip of Whole Northwest Guests of Duluth.

Open Session at Armory and First Business Session Later.

Bright blue skies, clear, cool and invigorating weather, and the warmth and boundlessness of Duluth's hospitality predict much for the success of the seventh annual session of the grand council of Minnesota and Dakota commercial travelers, and the many hundred excursionists that will be in the city today and tomorrow.

Duluth guests began arrving early last evening, and fully 1200 came in on the St. Paul & Duluth, Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads, and this number was considerably augmented by the arrivals on the regular trains this morning and the Northern Pacific excursion this afternoon from Wahpeton and intermediate points. At 2 o'clock this afternoon it was estimated that between 2000 and 2500 strangers were in the city, and there was some talk of keeping the census bureau open a day longer.

By 7:30 last evening the hotel accommodations were taxed to the utmost. However, the crowd was handled with convenience and dispatch, and by 9 o'clock, after securing accomodations, the visitors were out on the streets taking in the town, and if there is a jollier crowd on earth than a convention of traveling men, it has never enjoyed the honor and distinction of Duluth's hospitality. The local Zenith council No. 49, United Commercial Travelers, and the Elks and other fraternal organizations got hold of the delegates and gave them a sprightly time. They even showed them Lake Superior.

With the visitors came two very fine bands. One is from Grand Forks and the other from Crookston. The Duluth City band met the trains, and after the excitement attending the welcome had died away, the two visiting bands went out on a serenading tour. The Herald was included in the itinerary and warmly appreciated the compliment.

The Grand Forks band, which accompanies the delegation from that city, is a very fine musical organization of twenty-four pieces, and has made a great hit with the visitors and with the Duluth people as well. Duluth is a fine judge of bands, having had what is considered the finest band in the Northwest for years, and was quick to recognize the excellence of the Grand Forks organization. Last evening the band serenaded different places on Superior street, among them the Spalding, St. Louis and others. The Herald also received a call from the boys and was treated to a few fine selections. Professor W. W. Hall is the accomplished director, and Col. Brown is the imposing drum major.

The Grand Forks men are royal good fellows and they like Duluth. All the way down on the train yesterday they were singing a song composed for the occasion, and after their arrival they gave it freely to the Duluthians. The last paragraph creates especial enthusiasm whenever it is sung. The song is as follows, being known as "Sixty-Four's Ditty," because of Grand Forks council, No. 64:

(By W. W. HALL).

Where you from my jolly brother,
Grand Forks, Grand Forks,
Where's your sister and your mother,
Grand Forks, Grand Forks,
Wife and sweetheart came along,
For to help us sing our song,
And to keep us from all wrong, as U. C. T's.

Chorus—
U. C. T's, we're a jolly lot,
U. C. T's, Johnny on the spot,
From Grand Forks happy as can be
Sixty-four, sixty-four, U. C. T.

What's the number of your council?
Six-four, Six-four,
What's the lodge that takes a tumble?
Six-four, Six-four,
When Duluth invites us down,
For to see a roll-hot town,
And to do the thing up brown, as U. C. T's.

Chorus—

What's that town across the river?
Don't know, don't know,
Sell they lonies for your liver?
Don't know, don't know,
West Superior's in the swim,
But it ain't her time to win,
When Duluth puts up her "tin," for U. C. T's.

Chorus—

The Crookston band will take part in the concert at the Lyceum this evening. It is a fine organization and is meeting with much praise whenever heard. This afternoon it very generously serenaded a number of business houses, among them The Herald office, and received much applause from all who heard it.

At 10 o'clock this morning the visiting commercial travelers and ladies were given a rousing reception in the Armory. A. H. Overman, chairman of the committee on arrangements, presided, and during the intermissions between speeches of welcome and congratulation, a colored quartet stationed in the gallery sang ragtime songs.

The speakers of the occasion were Mayor Hugo, F. A. Patrick, Harry Mooney, Robert Fitzgerald, E. L. Millar, and Dr. Forbes delivered the invocation.

Mayor Hugo delivered the address of welcome, and he said:

"During a recent trip South I saw a picture that attracted my attention, not only for its artistic merit, but because it so well expressed a sentiment. It was placed at the head of a short flight of stairs, which led to the dining room in a hotel. To the left of the picture was a group of armed and plumed knights on their horses, the leader on foot, his lance held by a squire. On the right was an old English castle, with its embattled walls, outside which was the moat, and across that the drawbridge lowered. On the drawbridge was a group of persons, the noble proprietor ahead; close behind him some ladies, and behind them the serfs and attendants. The leader of the knights is advancing towards the group on the drawbridge, who meet him with hands extended. It is a striking scene of good will and hospitality in bygone centuries. If that picture were painted with the characteristics of the customs of today, instead of the group of armed men on the left would be the commercial traveler, with his grip and order book in one hand and his best girl on the other. The strength of a thousand horses would be boiled down and concentrated in one, which would pull them all along at a speed and in a condition of comfort of which the group in the old picture could never have dreamed. Instead of the walled and embattled castle there would be business houses, elegant homes and manufacturing establishments. Instead of the moat to prevent the entrance of the stranger, there would be a canal to facilitate ingress and egress. The chains of the drawbridge would be rusted off so that the door would be always open and the passage clear. Instead of the noble, holding his position by force of arms or through the accident of birth, surrounded by serfs and slaves, there would be a man of the people, selected by his peers to represent them, who would say, as I do now, in behalf of the citizens of the city of Duluth, Knights and Ladies of the Grip, thou are well-come and welcome.

"We are proud of those of your association whom we know, and we want to know more of their kind and more about you. We want you to know us and more about us. We want you to be able to say that you are familiar with the people who live in the place where the East ends and the West begins. That you are familiar with the city in which are the greatest abundance of the mineral and the vegetable products of the country, the iron ore, the lumber, the grain for the millions; the city where we can trade those things at our doors for the staple articles of the East with less expenditure of energy or money than in any other market in the world. Where the greatest loads on trains are transferred to the largest vessels on fresh water on the globe; where, in fact, the water runs both north and south, so interested has nature been in providing for the commerce of the future metropolis, and present emporium of the West and North. When you have seen those things, then look well at the kind of men who are here to make the best use possible of these natural advantages, and when you have become acquainted with them, as I hope you will be, I am much mistaken if you do not want to join in with us and hurrah for Duluth.

"It was suggested that you should be presented with the keys of the city, but I thought that would not be necessary, as the city has been wide open for so long that we experience great difficulty in locking it up, even when we do not have company, and it also occurred to me that if a key was necessary to enable you to get what you wanted, you are a different breed of commercial travelers from any I have ever met before.

"I have been asked to state to you that our water system is now in such a condition as to give the purest water you can hope to get on this earth, but I could not see the importance of using up your time by that unnecessary statement, for those I have met this morning have informed me that they were in the condition of one of their brethren of this association who was never known to take any chances on anything. Once when away from home his mother-in-law died, and he received a telegram from his wife, saying: 'Mother is dead! Shall we bury, embalm or cremate?' to which he replied: 'All three! Take no chances!'

"I hope you will enjoy a very pleasant visit, and anything the city administration can do to assist will be done, because we are glad you are here. The committees will spare no pains to make your visit an enjoyable one. You are in the hands of your friends, and if the committee neglects the ladies in any way, just notify the city hall. Again I welcome you all."

F. A. Patrick, manager of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, was the second speaker. He said:

"The wholesale houses of Duluth most cordially join in the welcome which has been extended to you through our honorable mayor. We feel tha twe can appreciate, as perhaps no other class of citizens can, the merits of the commercial traveler. Others can hardly appreciate as we can the tremendous influence exerted by your membership, as you go in and out among the people. Others can hardly appreciate so well the quality of the men required to do such work justice. The courage, the grit, the energy, the intelligence, the judgment, the endurance required to be a successful commercial traveler—and, gentlemen, as perhaps the best exemplars of the true American spirit of everlasting hustle, we greet you.

"It is a pleasure to see the evidences of friendship and goodwill existing throughout your membership. It is a pleasure to see that you realize that the keenest of competition is not incompatible with the strongest of friendships. When one sees the ever-increasing tendency of men to get together in such organizations as this, and through these organizations to cultivate friendships and faith in one another, one wonders whether that dream of the future, the brotherhood of man, is so far off from realization after all.

"Gentlemen, you come for this meeting to a city which, comparatively speaking, is young in the lines you represent. Our wholesale houses have worked against considerable odds in times past, and for a long time advantages which were rightfully ours on account of geographical location, were denied us. Most of that is now past, however, and our travelers go out well equipped for the struggles for business.

"The Duluth houses are proud of their representatives, and know that, as a rule, they are equal to emergencies, and we feel that on this occasion they will not disappoint us or you. Many of you from other cities meet Duluth salesmen often enough to know them well. Others from more distant points are not so well acquainted. May those that know them well know them better before this meeting is over, and may you all form many friendships in Duluth during the meeting. Gentlemen, once more we greet you and bid you welcome."

"The charter members and organizers of this council of United Commercial Travelers went far down the ladder of the alphabet to get the unused and neglected initial letter of the name we have upheld and honored through the past eventful years. But like everything else that is touched by this order of Unity, Charity and Temperance, that little 'Z' has been brought up, uplifted, and made the honored letter, and stands for Zenith, the best, the top, the heights of achievement or aspiration. Thus again: 'The stone that was rejected by the builders was made the head of the corner.' For the chief glory of Zenith council is that through her this movement was spread in the Northwest, and whatever the honors she may lose to her enterprising sister councils, that of seniority always remains like a two-spot, and ceants for the holder.

"I have had my turn at the wheel and my sentiments toward Zenith council have not been empty nor bare of works, and the struggle of this initial council of this grand jurisdiction represents, no doubt, that made by each of the several councils of Minnesota and the Dakotas—one of labor and self-sacrificing devotion on the part of at least a few in each field.

"Zenith council has had her ups and she has had her downs, but there is nothing, perhaps, in her experience that does not characterize any movement for the uplifting of mankind, and I may safely say that every labor of love has been amply repaid by social and fraternal benefits, and every dollar expended has yielded in substantial returns, or in peace of mind, enough to make the original investment look small and insignificant.

"Zenith council has not yet reached the sublime heights of achivement that her name indicates, but is working in that direction, and hopes to accomplish much in the future."

"I have said but little; I would like to say more; I could have made a speech about Aguinaldo or any other live issue of unknown characteristics where the keen eye of knowledge was not set in criticism over my statement of facts. I could have thrown a glamor of sentiment around his fleeing footsteps while his coat-tail fluttered in the ocean breeze and his gaunt figure cast an ominous shadow across the Orient's open door.

"I wished to respond to that ever living toast, 'The Ladies,' but a spirit of jealousy on the part of the members of the council has shut the door to that privilege. Another may rise feebly in his place, but all that may be said of compliment or of honor will not more than half express what I sincerely feel and might have said."

Robert Fitzgerald, president of the Duluth Shoe company, was the next speaker. He said in part: "It affords me great pleasure as an old traveling man and as a jobber of the city of Duluth to join in bidding you welcome. Last night I met a few of the men with whom I traveled in the early '70s, and we got to swapping experiences and reminiscences. It took nearly all night to do it—(laughter)—and about 4 o'clock this morning—(more laughter)—if you could have heard some of the things we were saying to each other about those early experiences, you would have said they were fairy tales—but they were true. Why, I remember one morning in 1876 I left Winnipeg and my first stop was 600 miles away. I rode all day with the thermometer 70 degrees below zero, and yet I am here to tell it. (Prolonged laughter.) No writer can produce history of Northwestern states without mentioning the names of some of the members of this organization way back in the pioneer days. Then we were called the forerunners of civilization—and I would like to have seen the fellow that could catch us—now you are called the angels of commerce, but in those days we didn't have wings. No, we had much slower traveling, and it was all we could do to reach Fargo or Grand Forks for Sunday service—the service came high, but we had the price. (Laughter.)

"In closing I can only say that the jobbers of Duluth are at your service, and I promise you that we will take care of your ladies."

E. L. Millar, publisher of the "Head of the Lakes" was the next speaker, and made one of the most brilliant efforts of the morning. He said in part: "I thank the chairman for the honor of this hour, and to the commercial travelers I join with the 72,854 men, women and children of Duluth in bidding you welcome. You notice I said 72,854, that is the population of Duluth as shown by the census of 1900 completed this morning. We one and all bid you and your wife, who is your sweetheart, and your sweetheart, who may be your wife, a whole-souled and regular hot-old-time welcome to the 'Zenith City.'

"Figuratively speaking, Mayor Hugo has presented you with the keys of the city; Mr. Patrick has called the number of your room; Mr. Mooney has taken your call for 7:30, and Mr. Fitzgerald has taken your valise. Now there is nothing for me to do but to send up a little nightcap with imported ginger ale. (Much amusement.)

"The speakers that preceded me all talked of land; I propose to talk about water, a subject of which I am profoundly ignorant, and of which, no doubt, many of my hearers have but very vague ideas. (Laughter.)

"I believe in the destiny of Duluth as I believe in the God that gave the city its wild and wondrous setting. Our city is the clearest diamond in all the circlet of brilliant gems around the great lakes, and she is the fairest jewel that rests on the bosom of the great and flourishing Northwest. Some day in her sun-kissed and rock-ribbed harbor will float the flags of all nations, and as she is the seat of the picturesque, so she will be the center of the commercial and industrial development of the great West."

The speaker then discussed at length and with statistics the wondrous tonnage over Lake Superior each year, the improvements of Duluth harbor and the city's railroad, manufacturing and commercial possibilities. In closing he made a great hit with the gathering by saying:

"The highest compliment I can offer in honor of the people of Duluth is that while you are here our gentlemen will do like the ladies—carry their pocketbooks in their hands and love in their hearts."

After the reception the roll call of the grand council was held and the first session took place.

ONE CENT ADVANCE

Wheat Started Out Lower But Advanced on Good Buying Orders.

THE CABLES WEAK

General Rains In Part of the Dakotas But Sparse Elsewhere.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 15.—The wheat market was active during the early part of today's session, starting lower but advancing on good buying. The opening decline was due to rains in the Northwest and weakness in the Liverpool market. However, it was stated while the rains were fairly general in South Dakota and the southern part of North Dakota, they were light and scattered throughout the rest of the American Northwest and Manitoba, from which sections the crop advices were of a gloomy character. This caused prices to rise after which the market ruled steady, firming up again after noon and closing 1¼c lower than yesterday here and 1¼@1⅝c higher at Chicago for the July option.

There was a fair amount of trading on the Duluth board, July wheat opened ⅝c off at 72⅜c, sold up steadily to 73⅝c at 11:40 and advanced to 74c at 1:01, closing at those figures, 1¼c higher than yesterday. September started ¼c lower at 73⅜c, sold up to 74⅝c at 12, touched 74⅞c at 1:06, and closed at 74⅞c, a net gain of 1¼c for the day. Cash sale were 40,000 bus at ¼c under July. It is estimated Duluth's wheat stocks will show an increase of 400,000 bus this week. Corn advanced ¼c. Oats, barley and rye were unchanged. Cash flax was the same as yesterday. September flax was ¾c up and October flax advanced 1c. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 75⅞c; to arrive, 75⅝c; July, 75⅝c; September, 76¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 73⅝c; to arrive, 73½c; July, 74c; September, 74⅝c. No. 2 northern, 71⅝c. No. 3 spring, 69c. Oats, 23@23½c. Rye, 52½c. Barley, 37@39c. Flax, cash, $1.30 in car lots, and $1.75 in broken lots; September, $1.32½; October, $1.28½. Corn, 38½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 155; oats, 1; rye, 1; barley, 1; flax, 23. Receipts—Wheat, 192,315; corn, 6420; oats, 1182; rye, 1767; flax, 10,000. Shipments—Wheat, 71,000; oats, 1767.

THE CHICAGO BOARD.

Cereals Open Easier, But Rally--- Provisions Firm.

Chicago, June 15.—The wheat market was again active the first part of today's session. July opened 3@3½c down, at 72⅜@72⅝c, because of rains in the Northwest and weak Liverpool cables. Rains were reported fairly general in South Dakota and the southern portion of North Dakota, but they were sparse in Minnesota and Manitoba. Southern Kansas, Southern Illinois and Nebraska, where rain is not wanted at present, also reported rains. The Southwest was a seller here early. But the Northwest came in buying orders along with gloomy crop advices and July following the op ning, advanced under this pressure to 73¾. Locals were good purchasers. At the top, trade became more quiet, but the market held steady for some time. Local receipts were 507 cars, 38 contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 458 cars against 459 last week and 660 a year ago.

After a period of comparative quiet the market again became more active and showed renewed strength on the almost unanimous reports of rain in the Northwest. The reporter of the board of statisticians, after an investigation in the Dakotas and Minnesota, wired that the crop would not be over 100,000,000 bus under excellent climatic conditions. July near the end of the session sold up to 74⅝c and closed strong, 2½c over yesterday at 74c.

Corn was fairly active. The market opened easy, July a shade depressed at 38@38⅛c, but the rain and cool weather in West together with a good demand and small country acceptance caused a rally which carried July to 38⅞@39c. Receipts here were 508 cars.

The close was firm, July ¼c higher at 38⅝c.

Oats opened easy, July ⅛c lower at 22⅝c, in sympathy with wheat and on profit taking by yesterday's buyers, but rallied late, helped by the strength developed by wheat and corn, and by a good demand of its own. July early touching 23¼c. Receipts here were 355 cars.

The provisions market was active and firm, helped by light hog receipts and a firm market at the yards. Packers were good buyers, principally of lard and ribs. July opened 2½@5c over yesterday, at $11.25@11.27½, and sold up to $11.32½. July lard began the session with 5@7½ up at $6.55, and touched $6.60, and July ribs opened 5c higher at $6.57½, selling to $6.62½.

Close: Wheat, June, 73½c; July, 74c; August, 71⅝c. Corn, June, 38⅝c; July, 38⅞c; August, 39¼c. Oats, June, 22⅝c; July, 22⅜@⅝c; August, 24c. Pork, June, $11.22½@11.25; July, $11.22½@11.25; September, $11.45. Lard, June, $6.52½; July, $6.52½; September, $6.60; October, $6.60; November, $6.60. Ribs, June, $6.55; July, $6.55; September, $6.60. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 73@74c; No. 3 red, 73@74c; No. 2 hard winter, 71@72c; No. 3 hard winter, 66@72; No. 1 northern spring, 73@74c; No. 2 northern spring, 71@73c; No. 3 spring, 66@72c. Corn, No. 2, 39c; No. 3, 22½@38½c. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.30; Southwestern, $1.30; September, $1.33⅝; October, $1.28@1.29. Rye, 55¼@⅝c. Barley, 37@41c. Timothy, $2.75. Clover, $7.75@8.00.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over the private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce, and 207 Board of Trade

Chicago, June 15.—The wheat market after being weak owing to rains in the Northwest later became very strong on active buying by local bulls, although sold out a few days ago. There was also heavy buying for outside account and prices sharply advanced 1¾c per bus from the low point and the market closed strong within ⅛c of the highest point for the day. The foreign markets were lower in sympathy with our weak close. Liverpool closed ⅞c lower. Continental markets were also lower. There was moderate demand for cash wheat by local millers but the sharp advance in the market checked export business both here and at the seaboard. Crop reports received today from the Northwest were the worst yet. In fact they were sensational. A good many fields are being plowed up and rains are generally conceded to be too late to do any good. There is no question but that the crop in the Northwest is fully 50 per cent short of last year. This crop in Manitoba has suffered and is very short. Complaints received today from Illinois, Indiana and Tennessee of excessive rains just at harvest time. Trade has been very heavy all day and the undertone to the market strong. It is certainly a bull market and in our opinion has come to stay. A good many people who were loath to believe the damage reports have at last been converted and were good buyers early today. The situation is very strong and will result in higher prices. The market will get reaction after sharp advances and we advise our friends to take the opportunity of buying on all weak spots. Estimated receipts tomorrow 50 cars.

Trade in corn was rather light today and the market after opening easier in sympathy with wheat later rallied ½c per bus on good cash demand and light country offerings, closing firm, ¾c higher than last night. Liverpool reported their market as ½c lower in sympathy with out weak close. The seaboard reported a good export demand today and large business done. Advices from the country indicate a sharp falling off in the corn movement and later look for our receipts to be smaller. We regard the situation as strong and look for higher prices. Estimated receipts tomorrow 70 cars.

The oat market followed the course of corn, after opening easier later advanced ½c per bus on covering by shorts, closing firm ¼c higher than last night. There was a fairly large deal and good buying for out side account. Country offerings moderate, but cash demand was rather quiet. Estimated receipts, 270 cars.

Provisions opened strong on lighter run of hogs and advanced very sharply on buying by outsiders on the theory that a reaction was due, but at the advance the brokers for several important longs sold freely and the full advance was quickly lost. The fact is we are piling up stocks, and cash demand is not equal to the supply. It is estimated stock ribs have increased 3,000,000 in two weeks, and lard 17,000. Estimated hogs for tomorrow, 15,000.

Ptts, July wheat, 71@71⅜c.
Calls, July wheat, 73¾@74⅛c.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, June 15.—The reinstatement of lines put out yesterday has been the feature in the wheat pit this morning with the result that prices have advanced nearly 1c over yesterday's close and 1½c over the lowest point of today. Reports of rain through South Dakota and the south half of North Dakota opened the market early off about ½c but the buying on a large scale and the pressure in the selling there was absorbent market soon took care of. The wheat market this morning again demonstrated its recuperative power from all breaks and it looks as though a large percentage of the selling indulged in yesterday was reinstated today. Weather reports continue to be sensationally bullish. Taking the most conservative view and making allowances for any possible, but as we view it improbably exaggeration on the part of parties from whom we are receiving these advices, we must admit that the situation as regards to spring wheat crop is sensationally gloomy. We do not believe it will be possible for wheat values to be held down and that it will show reactive ability from all selling pressure manipulative or otherwise that will only tend to strengthen its position. As the market becomes more healthy after such selling as was in evidence yesterday. The action of the foreigners this time is of no consequence. He may hold off from buying our grain under the impression that this talk is a case of American bluff and unreliable, but we believe he will be forced to come in and that at prices considerably beyond those now prevailing. We see only one side to the market and that is the buying.

The corn market has been quiet. Prices shade lower than yesterday. The market was principally weak with the decline and lower cables at Liverpool off ½d, but reacted and made quite a nice advance. Speculation, however, is very small and outside interest is lacking. Just at present, speculation is centered in wheat, and the local crowd is indifferent or inclined to be bearish on corn, which makes a small market with quiet action, but the underlying sources of strength in corn are as far from being noticed as ever.

The oat market has been firm. There was a good deal more of West buying of September, evidently on the ground of damage to the hay crop. There is some little talk of a heavy line being held by certain operators, but we find there are some exaggeration.

The provision market opened quite strong, up under good commission house buying, but the packers met the advance with heavy selling orders productive of a loss to what advance had been secured. The market is without particular feature and does not show evidences of very much strength. Selling by packers has been too heavy to meet the speculative demand.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Trading on the New York Exchange Dull and Weakness Shown.

CLOSING WAS WEAK

General Market Was Soft and Net Losses Throughout the List.

New York, June 15.—The movement of prices was irregular and confused at the opening of the stock market. Even stocks in the same group were not consistent in their movement. Very few stocks were traded in at all and changes were small all around. Prices showed no disposition to get far from last night's close. There was some firmness in Sugar, but it yielded to realizing, and Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred rallied over a point from yesterday's weakness. There were losses of almost a point in Federal Steel, Tennessee Coal and Minneapolis & St. Louis. Sugar was advanced in the second hour more than a point above last night and Erie preferred fell off as much. The general market was almost immovable. Bonds were dull and no changes of importance occurred.

Northern Pacific hung around 56, during the last hour and the general market was soft, but inactive. The closing was dull and weak at net losses.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 15.—The market for cotton futures opened steady in tone with prices 2 to 5 points higher, and continued to advance for a time after the call on account of buying and a singular absence of sellers here. The dominating bull influences were strong English cables and bad crop reports. Europe cabled large buying orders for the August, September and January contracts, which held their positions relatively firm all the forenoon. The New Orleans bull clique failed to take any active part in early operations.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 9 1-16c; middling gulf, 9 5-16c; sales, 23 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady: June, $8.06; July, $8.20; August, $8.40; September, $8.72; October, $7.73; November, $7.60; December, $7.58; January, $7.60; February, $7.62; March, $7.64; April, $7.66; May, $7.68.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: No improvement was apparent in the trade, everything else but the toppy horses were slow and around the lowest mark in prices. In spite of the large number of horses for sale, enabling a buyer to pick any kind of horse he wanted at a dull season price, not many sales consummated. Demand on mules had a noticeable relax, with few buyers looking for that kind of stock. Prices dropped $10 a head in consequence.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF FORESTERS!

All members of the order are notified to meet at Columbia hall, 29th avenue west and Superior street, at 9:45 a. m. Sunday morning, and from there march in a body to attend divine services at the Second Presbyterian church. Fifteenth avenue west and Superior street, it being the Twenty-sixth anniversary of the order. Visiting members welcome.

THE COMMITTEE.

West Duluth

It is the feeling in West Duluth that it will be given a place on the Republican ticket to be nominated June 21, and as A. Lofgren is the only candidate from West Duluth for nomination, so far as known at this writing, it is not a very difficult problem to figure out that he will be the representative. Mr. Lofgren is actively pushing his canvass for the nomination for register of deeds, not auditor, as stated yesterday, and expresses himself as being very confident of success.

The three other candidates for the place who have come out thus far, Robert McKinley, G. Bergquist and C. A. Peterson, are all from downtown.

IS A GOOD ENGINE.

The Silsby fire engine that the commissioners have expressed themselves willing to send to West Duluth in case the council makes provision for four more men to man it, is, while a small machine as compared with the new engine that West Duluth did not get, of sufficient size to throw a stream the height of a 5-story building. Its capacity is rated at 800 gallons per minute, but Chief Black places it about 700. It throws two 1¼-inch streams.

The new engine has a capacity of 1000 gallons per minute and throws three 1¼-inch or four 1-inch streams.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Filiatrault are entertaining the following members of the Chookston excursion party that came to this city yesterday: Mr. and Mrs. Felix Fourget and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. Brosseau, Mr. Cramb and daughter and L. H. Filiatrault.

The lawn social held by the Asbury M. E. church Epworth league at the home of Miss Gertrude Mallory last evening was well attended and was a highly enjoyable affair.

Victoria Laurien, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Laurien, of Fifty-ninth avenue and Raleigh street, died yesterday of measles. The funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at Oneota cemetery.

Moses Mark and Moses will leave for Virginia Monday to engage in the furniture business there.

The Epworth league of the Asbury M. E. church will give a lawn social at the home of Miss Gertie Mallory this evening.

SOUTHERN PHALANX

Every State In the South Expected to Give a Democratic Majority.

LACK OF INTEREST

In the Republican Convention at Philadelphia Is Worrying the Leaders.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A tremendous effort will be made by the Democrats to have a solid South in November. It is the expectation of Col. Bryan and his closest political associates that every state south of the so-called Mason and Dixie line will cast its electoral vote for the Democratic national ticket in the senate of the United States.

There are only three states in doubt and these are Maryland, Kentucky and Tennessee. All the other states in this southern phalanx are regarded as certain to elect Bryan electors next November. Nothwithstanding the fact that former Senator Gorman, of Maryland, is not regarded as entirely favorable to Col. Bryan and the issues he will forward in this campaign, it is not believed that Maryland will swing out of the Democratic column this fall. Kentucky, in view of the disturbances growing out of the last state election, will not only, at least Democratic leaders so believe, give Col. Bryan an excellent majority, but will also take the state ticket in November.

It is not certain about Tennessee, but the administration leaders seem to be convinced that as the state is naturally Democratic, it will elect Democratic presidential electors this fall. It is further believed that the state ticket nominated by the Democrats will be successful. West Virginia is surely gained for Bryan in this campaign.

There are some Southern congressional districts represented in this congress by Republicans. The plan of the Democratic congressional committee is already outlined to recapture these districts, and if they are successful, as now seems possible, the South will be solid in every particular against the Republicans when the ballots are counted after the national election next November. In the event that the Democrats have not overestimated their strength in the south and in other directions, there is no reason for any one to fear that the next president of the United States will not be William Jennings Bryan. The next speaker of the house of representatives will be Representative Richardson, of Tennessee. This will leave the Democrats in control of the administrative branch of the government after March 4. It will also give them control of the lower house. It is not possible for the Democrats to secure control of the senate in this campaign. Therefore all the policies outlined for the betterment of the government and of the people can not possibly be put through until the Republicans lose their grasp in the upper branch of the national congress. All this, however, may be brought about within the next four years. At least, the Democratis leaders hope that such a result may be accomplished between this date and March 4, 1905.

* * *

President McKinley and his Republican lieutenants have been considerably worried, during the past few days, on account of the reports received from Philadelphia that the attendance at the national convention would be so slight that little, if any, enthusiasm would be aroused for the presidential ticket in this campaign. At one time, the president and Senator Hanna thought it would be an easy matter to bring a large crowd of Republican shouters to Philadelphia because of the apparent tangle the party is in over the selection of a vice-presidential candidate.

It has been pretty generally well established that McKinley will be nominated by acclamation, that the Republican platform will have been written ready for submission at Philadelphia, and that really McKinley's running mate would be selected in advance in this city. It has given the gathering at Philadelphia the appearance of a cut and dried affair, and therefore has made it plain to the average voter that the whole convention would be without interest to any visitor and that it would not pay the sight-seer to journey any distance to watch the proceedings of the convention, the work of which had really been done in advance of its assembling.

In order to overcome the lack of interest in Philadelphia, it is stated upon excellent authority, that a few days ago a request or demand was sent from Washington, to federal office holders in nearly every state of the Union to visit Philadelphia in order to convince the people that there was more interest in the nomination of Maj. McKinley in the selection of his running mate and in the adoption of a platform upon which the Republicans will make their campaign this year. A good many delegates to the Philadelphia convention are now holding federal offices, but, of course, it would be impossible to have all of these gentlemen in attendance as either delegates or alternates. They have been advised to make it convenient for them to visit Philadelphia, not in an official capacity, but in order to give the people of Philadelphia, by having a large attendance, a chance to get back a portion of the $100,000 that has been expended in getting the convention held in the Quarker City. Without doubt, hundreds of these visitors from the nearby states at least, will gather at Philadelphia, and will assemble in the convention hall with administration claqueurs so that the convention will take on the appearance of unbounded enthusiasm for Maj. McKinley, for the man selected to run with him, and for the great issues put forward, upon which the Republicans hope to gain the presidency in November.

* * *

The situation at Kansas City is somewhat different. There is, without doubt, more interest displayed in the candidacy of William Jennings Bryan than in the effort of William McKinley to succeed himself as president of the United States. Further than this, the Republicans are in and the Democrats are out. This, of course, refers to offices, purely and simple. Those who go to Kansas City, go in one respect because they have great admiration for the man who will be given the presidential nomination there. They go, further, in hope that if he is elected, the federal officials under the McKinley administration will be all turned out when Bryan is elected, and that some of them will get good offices under the government. Taking everything into consideration, at this time, the convention at Philadelphia will be less interesting to the people of the country than the one held at Kansas City. The enthusiasm in Philadelphia will be artificial, while it will be spontaneous, without doubt, in Kansas City.

"During the extraordinary session of the general council of this colony," says J. Lamb Doty, at Tahiti, in a report to the state department, "which was convened a short time ago for the purpose, a contract was awarded to the Oceanic Steamship Company, of San Francisco, for the establishment of a steamship line between Tahiti and San Francisco for the transportation of mails, passengers and freight. The essential features of the contract are as follows: For the annual sum of $30,000 to be paid by the Tahiti government, and exemption from port charges, the Oceanic Steamship company is to operate an American steamship of about 3000 tons gross register, performing eleven round trips per annum at an average speed of not less than thirteen and a half knots. The contract is awarded for a period of five years from the first voyage, which is to be made not later than Nov. 1, 1900, and earlier if possible.

"It is the purpose of this company to use a first-class passenger steamship and to make the service attractive in all particulars; and it is anticipated that this will become a favorite route of travel, when the charm of the climate and scenery of Tahiti become known. The inauguration of this line will give great impetus to United States trade with Tahiti, and, in general, with other islands of Eastern Polynesia. The Pacific coast of the United States will be particularly benefited, as perishable goods—such as fruits, vegetables and meats—which are now received exclusively from New Zealand, will then come from San Francisco.

"For over thirty-four years a regular monthly sailing vessel service has been maintained between Tahiti and San Francisco. This direct means of communication developed a trade insignificant at first, but amounting some ten years ago to over 50 per cent of the entire business of this colony. Since then the proportion of trade has remained about the same, notwithstanding the establishment of the steam line to New Zealand and the fact that the sailing vessels are entirely inadequate as a means of transportation between this port and San Francisco. It may be predicted that if the Oceanic Steamship company continues in this business for five years, the trade between the United States and Tahiti will not only experience a great extension, but that the proportion of value will increase from 50 to 75 per cent. The Union Steamship company (British), of New Zealand, which now operates a steamer between Tahiti and Auckland, has for some time past desired to extend its service through to San Francisco; and, indeed, just at present it has a proposition before the local government offering to perform the service for an annual subsidy of $50,000."

Joseph I. Brittain, United States consul at Nantes, writes to the state department:

"Eugene Harrang, of No. 1 Place du Commerce, Nantes, France, wishes to be placed in direct correspondence with American dealers in certain lines of goods. He wishes to obtain prices on 'sapin blanc,' or white pine. This wood is used in the manufacture of wood pulp. Last year the mills at Nantes, the largest in France, consumed 52,000,000 pounds of pulp made from Norwegian pine. The wood is cut from trees having a diameter of not less than four inches, usually larger, but too small for good lumber. It is cut in lengths of forty-four inches. The gentleman also wishes to correspond with parties exporting stave timber, used in the manufacture of casks. He wishes to negotiate for the purchase of cannel coal and a good quality of steam coal, such as George's Creek or New River. The cannel coal is used for manufacturing gas.

"Eugene Harrang is an energetic and prominent broker, and wishes to deal only with leading exporters or producers. He does not wish to deal through houses in London, Hamburg or elsewhere. The city of Nantes has a population of more than 200,000 and the consular district several million. The shipbuilding and other industries of Nantes and St. Nazaire are very important. Within the past two months would-be purchasers of American products here have been informed they could buy cargo lots through houses in Spain or England. Nantes dealers wish to deal directly with American firms and have all goods sold to them in a way that will cut off the profits of middlemen.

"American dealers who understand what export trade means are entering this market with large quantities of goods, and others may be equally successful if they adopt as sound business methods. Recently I was shown a price list of American lumber which was obtained through a United States export association. The price list was not only written in English, which the French could not understand, but it was so abbreviated that I doubt whether one American business man in a thousand could understand it, unless he were an expert lumberman. It was almost equal to a cable code. The dealer said he could not do anything unless the letters were written in a manner that would at least enable him to have them translated."

IMPENDING PARTITION OF CHINA

Collier's Weekly of this week contains the following article by William W. Rockhill, director of the bureau of American republics and former secretary of legation at Pekin:

The instability of present conditions in Eastern Asia, the well-known jealousies which animate the various powers interested in that part of the world, and their desire to strengthen themselves, without, however, precipitating a general disruption of the Chinese empire, out of which it would be difficult to foretell which power would emerge the most benefited, are sufficient reasons for the great interest which is now being taken in the anti-foreign riots in the northeastern part of China. So long as foreigners are not directly affected by these riots and the only sufferers are Chinese subjects, it may well be that the treaty powers will not find any means of actively intervening; but should the lives of foreigners be taken and their immediate interests suffer, the present riots may prove the spark which will bring about the cataclysm which every one has been fearing for the past few years in Chinese affairs.

In October of last year news came to us that in the northeastern corner of the province of Shantung and in the adjacent province of Chihli two secret societies had been organized by the Chinese, with the avowed intention of expelling foreigners and extirpating the Christian religion. The societies were called "I ho ch'uan"—literally "Fist of Righteous Harmony," but now known to us as the "Boxers"—and the other the "Big Sword Society," in Chinese, "Ta tao hui." The originators of these societies, realizing, from the experience of anti-foreign rioters in China during the past ten years, that the murder of foreigners and the destruction of their property could not effect the object they had in view, seem to have determined that the only method of arresting the growth of Christianity and of driving foreigners out of the country was to persecute the native converts and oblige them to abandon their faith and deter others from joining it. By these means it was hoped the foreigner would leave China and the Chinese to themselves.

Christianity to nine-tenths of the Chinese is the source of all the present troubles to the empire. It was to avenge the death of Christian missionaries that part of the province of Shantung, where the "Boxers" seem to have first organized, was seized by Germany; France had seized territory in Southern China as a punishment for the murder of one of her missionaries, and throughout the empire endless executions have taken place for attacks made on foreign teachers of Christianity. So it is that the belief has grown up among the people, as well as among the official class and the gentry of the country, that not only the integrity of China, but its very existance as a nation, depends on the eradication of Christianity.

It is doubtless due to the declared policy of these two secret societies, the "Boxers" and the "Big Sword," not to directly attack foreigners or destroy their property that they were able to secure the sympathy, I might say nearly the active co-operation, of many of the local authorities in the provinces of Shantung and Chihli, and, later on, even in Pekin; their declared object to the average Chinaman was distinctly a patriotic one. The policy that they proposed pursuing was not bad on paper, the native converts can only be protected to a limited extent by the treaty powers under the general provisions of our treaties with China. "Any persons," says article 29 of our treaty of 1858, "citizens of the United States or Chinese converts, who, according to these tenets, peaceably teach and practice the principles of Christianity, shall in no case be interfered with or molested." How far under the above provisions this government or that of any other country would be willing to go to secure redress or indemnification for a Chinese subject it is useless here to surmise. It is doubtful, however, whether the representations tending to that end would receive much consideration from the Chinese government. Notwithstanding this, the above provision of our treaty has led the Chinese Christians to believe that they are practically independent of the government of their country; that in all cases of trouble, whether private feuds or when charged with some offense by the officials, they can appeal through the foreign missionary to his legation in Pekin, and thus escape the punishment usually meted out to Chinese.

In case of the Roman Catholics, the Christians in many cases have been organized into communities, from which all non-Christians were excluded, and the priest has been not only the spiritual guide, but also the temporal ruler. When they had paid their taxes to China, they had discharged the only duty they owed to their country. The priest protected them against all exactions of the provincial authorities, and argued their case in person before prefects and governors.

Although the foreign Protestant missionaries have not heretofore as strenuously defended before the local authorities the fights and privileges of their flocks as have the Catholics, nevertheless they have done so sufficiently to make all their Christians feel that they were upheld by some one or more foreign power, and that they could successfully resist the petty exactions and vexations common from time immemorial to all Asiatic governments.

This will help explain why the anti-foreign feeling is so general in China, and why the present riots have been allowed to spread unopposed to the very gates of Pekin.

The Chinese have seen in the "Boxers" acts of brigandage an experiment—a new policy to effect an end dear to all of them; and the government has doubtless thought that the movement might be allowed to take its course, as it might possibly have a restraining effect on the spread of Christianity, and as it had the additional advantage of not offering any valid ground to the foreign powers to intervene for the protection of their nationals, and under this pretext wrench from China land or valuable concessions. In this we find the explanation of the fact that practically nothing has been done since the commencement of the trouble by either the provincial or the metropolitan authorities to suppress the brigands, except in the single case when a small band of them murdered an English missionary, Mr. Brooks, when the culprits were promptly captured and executed, and their acts disavowed by the leaders of the "Boxers."

As in all past cases of anti-foreign riots, imperial decrees have been promulgated ordering the governors of the provinces to suppress the movement, and the governors, in turn, have issued their proclamations, which have been posted broadcast in every town and village, admonishing the people to obey the emperor's commands. In the present case the governor of Shantung issued two months ago a long proclamation in verse, which was posted in every village, where teachers were to explain to the people its meaning whenever there was a fair or market. Copies of his proclamation were distributed in all the schools of the cities and villages, and the pupils ordered to recite or chant it aloud, "so that it may be made known in the hamlets and villages, and the women and children made to understand it. Thus the people will be enabled to be roused to the display of their natural goodness, and see that they should not believe in or follow this corrupt and evil society, and also not disobey the imperial decree. Those who have already joined the society should fear to bring calamity on themselves, and those who have not joined it will take warning from the example of the others."

Speaking of the societies against which the proclamation is aimed, the governor says: "Their object is the practice of sorcery. Supernatural manifestations are not worth relying on. These societies put out notices summoning pupils to join them. They teach them that a magic spell will come to them, and that they can call the spirits, and thus be enabled to escape the fire of guns and cannon, and that they can become proof against weapons of war. But in point of fact they are a treacherous and crafty set of people, and these societies were formed for the sole purpose of gathering in money. Outlaws from abroad have seized the opportunity to join them."

Some of these outlaws have been captured and beheaded, and others imprisoned, and with this the officials have been content to rest, and the brigands have moved a little further on and renewed their outrages. Not once, however, has any large body of troops been called out, or any attempt made to crush the movement, nor is there any reason to believe that any attempt would be made until the government is forced to by pressure from without. In this case, as in every other in which foreign interests are directly or indirectly concerned, the Chinese government will only move when coerced to do so. It is, therefore, highly probable that in the present case, now that detachments of troops have been landed from the various foreign ships of war lying off Taku and sent to Pekin, and the Chinese government made to understand that the powers consider any prolongation of the rioting dangerous to all foreigners and foreign interests, that the Pekin government will awake from its lethargy, that some of the large bodies of well-drilled troops which it maintains near the capital will be put in the field, and the "Boxer" movement soon be put an end to.

The Chinese government at the present day is as well able to deal with an insurrection within its borders as at any time within the last fifty years, and evidence of this is found in the summary manner in which it dealt with the Mohammedan insurrection which four or five years ago spread over the greater part of Northwestern China. It is only in cases of anti-foreign riots that the Chinese government becomes unable to act. This is fresh proof, if such were necessary, that pressure by the foreign powers on Chian is, and will remain, absolutely necessary for securing to us the rights which we have acquired in the country. The pressure must be in every case so strong that China cannot escape the strict and honest performance of all her duties. If such a course can be pursued for a term of years, it is believed that a new era for foreigners may dawn in China; if not, new guarantees will, without a doubt, promptly be required by the powers, and there is little doubt that these guarantees will be in the nature of fresh cessions of territory, possibly even the occupation of some important city in the empire.

It is not believed, however, that at the present time any of the great powers wish to see the disruption of the Chinese empire; all are alike interested, on the contrary, in the maintenance of its independence and its integrity; all will undoubtedly strive in the long run to maintain it. But the effect on the reigning dynasty of the numerous humiliations imposed on it by the foreigners in the nature of cession of territory, payment of indemnities, degradation of officials, and similar blows to its prestige in the eyes of the people, may ultimately bring about internal commotions of such size and character that the present dynasty may be overthrown. In the present movement, however, no such danger may be apprehended. The "Boxer" outrages are similar, though on a larger scale, to those of the "Vegetarians" in the province of Fukien in 1885, and to those in Szchuan and other provinces in the same year. The day China wishes to put an end to such outbreaks she can do so without any difficulty. It is for the treaty powers to force her to take the necessary step before these riotings have assumed such proportions and become so frequent as to threaten the life of the empire.

DEWEY IS RESIGNED

Says He Is Thankful He Is Not Wanted For President.

TALKS ABOUT CHINA

Believes Open Ports For American Commerce Will Result From Conflict.

New York, June 15.—The Herald's Washington correspondent sends a report of an interview with Admiral Dewey, in which he is represented as confessing that his presidential prospects are not good. He said:

"Some time ago the leaders, or those whom we have always regarded as leaders, asked me if I would allow my name to be used in connection with the presidency. After thinking this proposition over several weeks, I said 'Yes,' and accordingly announced that if the people wanted me to serve in that capacity I would gladly do so.

"But I thank God they do not appear to want me."

"In these days the people do not select the president. The choice is now made by a few political leaders, who put their heads together and fix up their slate before the convention assembles."

Admiral Dewey recalled that in former days it was customary for the candidate before a national convention receiving the next highest number of votes to the successful man to receive the nomination for vice-president, and that meant succession to the presidency if the party continued in power. This led the admiral to the qustion of whether he would accept the nomination for vice-president. He said some of his very best friends had urged him to make a formal announcement that he would not accept second place on the ticket with Mr. Bryan. This he declined to do, on the ground that the nomination has not been tendered him.

Admiral Dewey is entirely familiar with the situation in China. When asked what was likely to be the outcome of complications in China, the admiral shook his head as if uncertain about venturing an opinion.

"The situation in China," he said, "I regard as a very serious one—very serious indeed. I can only see but one outcome as a result of the conflict now in progress in China, and that is the adoption of the American policy in favor of open ports for American commerce on equal terms with all other commercial nations of the world. It must come to that eventually, and it is fortunate that we are in a position to say to the nations of Europe: 'We are in this deal, gentlemen.'

"This would not have been possible," continued the admiral, "had it not been for the result of the Spanish war. It seems that God is with us in making it possible to have at the moment, the largest army of men and the most formidable fleet of ships right on the spot to enforce our rights and see that American interests are protected. Not only have we an army of over 50,000 trained soldiers at the very gate of the Orient, but we are the only nation that has gunboats on the Yang Tse Khang river. It seems like a special dispensation of providence for us to have two of our gunboats which are capable of navigating these waters on the spot undergoing minor repairs.

"Why," exclaimed the admiral, "in many parts of China the Chinese are taking American flour in preference to rice and all kinds of American products find a ready market throughout the empire. Our commerce is increasing wonderfully all the time, and now that we have the Philippines we are right at the very door of this rich field of commerce."

Then you sincerely believe in the retention of the Philippines? the admiral was asked.

"Most assuredly I do," was the prompt reply. "Had it not been for our acquisition of these islands, it would not have been possible to having the fighting force in those waters today, and we would have been ignored in the deliberations now daily held by the representatives of the great nations of Europe to relieve China, the same as we were of the smaller countries of South America."

JAPAN'S NAVAL PROGRAM.

Will Begin Extensive Construction of Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

Victoria, B. C., June 15.—From Japan comes news that in view of the proposed immense augmentation of the naval forces of other powers, the Japanese naval authorities are about to enter upon a new naval program. As only 5,000,000 yen will be yearly devoted to the navy, men like Admiral Inouye recommend the construction of torpedo boat destroyers. This class of boats cost about 500,000 yen, so that thirty destroyers can be built for the price of one battleship.

It is anticipated that the new program will authorize the construction of torpedo boat destroyers only.

THE DEADLY CAN.

Work of the Kerosene Oil Can In Texas.

Houston, Tex., June 15.—The Post today prints a list of fifteen women and children who have been burned to death as the rsult of kerosene oil cans. In every case except one the person was attempting to kindle a fire with kerosene. The other case was peculiar. Miss Simms, living near Seaton, struck a match, the head of which flew while blazing on an oil can. The flame was communicated to the kerosene, an explosion followed, and the young woman was fatally burned. The statement is made that since Jan. 1 no less than 45 persons have been burned to death in Texas as the result of kerosene can explosions.

REFORM IN STRIKES.

Abolition of Sympathetic Strikes Being Considered In Chicago.

Chicago, June 15.—Sympathetic strikes are to be a thing of the past if a plan of arbitration can be agreed upon by the building trades unions and the associations affiliated with the Building Contractors' council. A declaration to this effect will come today from the delegates who have charge of the joint conference with the contractors on Tuesday and Wednesday, and who were in secret caucus all of yesterday debating a plan of settlement on the labor trouble. It was agreed by the delegates that the demand for the abolition of the sympathetic strike was one which could be granted without detriment to the cause of labor and a committee was called to prepare a resolution which would give formal expression to this sentiment. A sub-committee was formed to draft a communication to the Building Contractors' council on the same subject.

The sub-committee will send to the Building Contractors' council today a general statement of the position of the delegates on the sympathetic strike question. It will declare, as near as can be learned, that the sympathetic strike should be abolished. At the same time, the sub-committee will reaffirm the determination of the union labor to preserve the Building Trades council.

The arbitration to be drawn up provides for an arbitration board, also a board of appeals, which shall act speedily and adjust every difference promptly as it arises. Pending the finding of the board, work shall continue uninterruptedly. In this way, strikers and lockouts will be elliminated and in no case will building be delayed.

THE DAKOTAS.

Larimore Tournament Contests---New Tack By Enforcement League.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Larimore—The following prizes were awarded at the state firemen's tournament here: Best appearing company in line, Lakota first prize, Valley City second prize; best complete general fire department, Larimore first prize. The prize is one Dewey hose expander, donated by the Fabric Fire Hose company, of New York. The judges were William Simpson, Mandan; Arthur Bassett, Fargo; George A. Bissell, Larimore; J. R. French, Wahpeton; W. W. Heffron, Tower City. In the association hook and ladder race, Wahpeton took first prize, Fargo second prize. Association hose race, seven entries, Dickinson first, Grafton second, Northwood, third prize. Hook and ladder hub and hub, nine entries, Fargo first, Grafton second, Michigan City third. Hook and ladder, Fargo first, Wahpeton second.

Grand Forks—It is rumored that the Enforcement league is to institute proceedings against the city and county druggists, also all other counties of the state, similar and parallel to the Grafton affair, which has forced the druggists to surrender permits and bond. The league will bring suit on the bond, and if successful the bondsmen will be called upon to turn over $1000.

Jamestown—District Veterinarian Moore vaccinated a herd of cattle being cared for by John Spisla on the ranch north of this city. A number of the cattle in the herd had died and the vaccination of the remainder was performed so that the disease might be prevented from spreading. The cases are the only ones reported in the county this season. Ranchmen are looking after suspected cases closely, and few sheep or cattle afflicted with any disease can pass without inspection.

Ranges in the central portion of the state have plenty of grass for stock at the present time, but it is feared there will be a shortage of grass later in the season. Hay is likely to be scarce this year, as the meadows, usually covered with water in the spring, have been dry.

Pierre—The stockmen on the range expect to market their product earlier than in former years. This is based on the fact that the dry weather will "cure" the grass more rapidly than in wet seasons, and the beef will harden sooner on the dry grass than on feed that is green. Unless heavy rains come along this month, it is not improbable that the shipments will commence in July and August.

Aberdeen—The grand chapter, Eastern Star, has elected Mrs. Truman, of Brookings, grand conductress and Mrs. Smith, of Mitchell, associate grand conductress. The chapter adopted a new constitution and by-laws and adjourned. The grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons, elected high priest, M. G. Carlisle, DeSmet; deputy, S. J. Moore, Mitchell; king, Ed S. Ames, Hot Springs; scribe, S. H. Jumper, Aberdeen; treasurer, B. C. Jacobs, Lennox; secretary, George A. Pettigrew, Flandreau. The new grand master, J. A. Cleaver, of Huron, made the following appointments: Lecturer, B. F. Ives, St. Lawrence; deputy lecturer, Ed S. Ames, of Hot Springs; chaplain, Rev. N. A. Swickard, of Aberdeen; senior deacon, T. B. Roberts, of Armour; junior deacon, F. B. Williams, of Hurley; marshal, Charles A. Ray, of Bridgewater; steward, John Bell, of Spearfish; junior steward, Frank Turner, of Faulkton; sword bearer, D. S. Cable, of Wilmot; pursuivant, H. A. Mason, of Bowdle; tyler, Frank Kunerth, of Sioux Falls; committee on correspondence, S. A. Brown, of Sioux Falls; historian, L. G. Levoy, of Webster.

The next meeting of the grand bodies will be held at Sioux Falls.

Charge Griscom Is Poking the Porte Up Again.

Constantinople, Thursday, June 14.—The United States legation has not yet received a reply to the note regarding the indemnity question handed to the porte on May 21, and Lloyd C. Griscom, United States charge d'affairs, is making verbal representations to the government, and pressing for a solution of the matter.

MRS. FREMONT HURT.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 15.—Mrs. Jennie Benton Fremont, widow of Gen. John C. Fremont, has met with a severe accident. In leaving the dinner table she slipped and fell, fracturing her hip. Mrs. Fremont is 79 years old and her recovery will consequently be slow.

OPTIMISM IS BOGUS

The Hopefulness That Is Created By Roberts' Dispatches Is Artificial.

EXPOSED TO RAIDS

Dewet and Botha Both In Shape to Harass the British.

New York, June 15.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: The optimism induced by Gen. Roberts' dispatches is artificial. Gen. Methuen's success in restoring communication with Pretoria has not altered the fact that the Free State raiders have taken over 1000 prisoners at Lindley and Roodeval and retreated with them and their guns, and that the raids may be repeated.

Dewet's commandoes have not been dispersed, and whatever precautions may be taken, there will be danger of another raid, since the railway cannot be absolutely protected by infantry battalions nor by artillery trained all along the line from Bloemfontein to Pretoria.

The conquest of the northeastern section of the Free State has not yet been effected, and operations by the series of columns from Hielbron, Lindley, Senekal and Ficksburg are rendered difficult by the transport problem.

Gen. Buller has cleared Laing's Nek and Gen. Lyttleton has received the submission of the Wakkerstrom district, but the Boer army has not been captured. It has retired with all its guns and supplies and will fight again in the mountainous district remote from the railway. Botha's army has also withdrawn from the positions which it held for two days against Lord Roberts' forces east of Pretoria, but it has not been dispersed, nor have the British taken either guns or prisoners.

Boer commandoes at Ermelo and Middleburg are mutually helpful and can be concentrated in the Lydenberg district, and Dewet's commandoes can co-operate with them effectively in the Free State.

The most encouraging feature of yesterday's news for the British side was evidence that the damage done to Laing's Nek tunnel and the section of railway north of Kroonstad was not serious, and that both lines of communication would be in working order in a few days.

With unimpeded supplies for two large armies operating in the Transvaal, there ought not to be any long halt toward Lydenberg, either from the west or from the south, and the resistance of Dewet's raiders ought to be speedily overcome by the British forces under Rundle, with help from Buller.

Military men assert that Gen. Metsuen will be left in command of the forces along the railway from Kroonstad to the Vaal, and that Gen. Hunter's division, after reaching Johannesburg, will be sent to Heidelberg and will open the railway to Standerton.

Eventually Dewet's forces must be dispersed before there can be an invasion of the Lydenberg district, and Gen. Kitchener is likely to remain at Kroonstad until the campaign in the Free State has been again set in order.

There have been many stories about bad feeling and lack of co-operation between Roberts and Kitchener, but these are not well founded. Gen. Kitchener, as chief of staff, works incessantly and is Roberts' trusted lieutenant, and probably is managing the details of the transport. Kitchener is not liked in the army on account of his brusque manners, but Lord Roberts knows how to get on with him as well as with everybody else.

EIGHT MINERS KILLED.

Gas Explosion In a Canmore, Alberta, Coal Mine.

Canmore, Alberta, June 15.—A terrible gas explosion occurred in Canmore coal mines Wednesday afternoon, resulting in the instant death of eight men and the injury of several others. The names of the known dead are: Prosper Daye, Amand Regarda, Tony Rolins, Jr., Peter Caufield; four other foreigners, whose names are not yet known.

The cause of the explosion is supposed to have been due to the carelessness of one of the miners in opening his safety lamp in violation of the rules, in a portion of the mine where to do so was dangerous in the extreme. This miner is believed to be one of the unidentified victims.

FOOD CURE.

Results In Change of Diet Are Wonderful.

"Good food, properly selected, will, in my opinion, cure almost any ordinary disease. I want to tell you my experience and of my recovery by the selection of the proper diet. I am a business woman, very closely confined indoors, with considerable care and anxiety. Some time ago I had a severe case of the grippe, and after recovering from it, had a serious time following, as many people do.

"I was unable to get well until I changed my diet, leaving off Mocha and Java coffee and using the Postum Food Coffee in its place, and taking up Grape-Nuts breakfast food. This winter I have given both a fair and continued trial and the results are superb. I am restored to perfect health and strength, and as you claim, I have a "reserve force," bodily and mentally, that carries me through many hard places.

"I cannot praise the food too much, for it will, if used steadily, cure all disturbances of the system caused by the congestions lagrippe is answerable for. A dish that contains the most powerful rebuilding elements can be made as follows: Hot milk brought to a boil, break in two fresh eggs and as soon as the eggs set, pour the boiling milk and eggs over some Grape Nuts in a soup dish. No breakfast of meat can be so good.

"I use Grape Nuts in this way every morning, and have no sense of lack of food all day. I have kept well and remarkably free from colds all winter, which I attribute to a fine condition of health, brought about by the use of the famous food and of Postum Food Coffee." (Grape-Nuts are perfectly cooked at factory and are usually served cold, with a little cream or milk.) Mrs. C. S. Woodward, 24 Grenada St., St. Augustine, Fla.

IN MICHIGAN.

S. P. Ely, of Marquette, Dead ---Marquette County Republican Convention.

Marquette—Samuel P. Ely, who was from 1858 to 1882 heavily interested in mines and railroad ventures in the upper peninsula, and who was one of the leading residents of this section of the state, died in Paris yesterday, aged 75. A cablegram announcing the fact was sent to Hon. Peter White. His remains will probably be brought here for burial beside those of his wife, who, like himself, died in Paris while there on a visit. Mr. Ely came here as the representative of Boston interests in Marquette county iron mills and railroads. He was a great promoter, among others of his ventures being the organization of the Minnesota Iron company. The town of Ely, Minn., was named for him. At the time of his death he was interested in the Spanish-American Iron company, which owns mines near Santiago, Cuba.

The Marquette county Republican convention here yesterday endorsed Hon. Gad Smith as member of congress and pledged him support. He was permitted to name the delegation to the congressional convention but no instructions were given.

The following delegates were elected:

State convention—George A. Newett, George Hayden, H. O. Young, W. H. Johnston, C. G. Gridley, Joseph H. Winters, N. M. Kauffman, Fred Braastad, Walter Fitch, John R. Gordon.

Congressional convention—Walter Fitch, F. O. Clark, M. M. Duncan, T. M. Wells, George Hayden, J. H. Rough, M. J. Sherwood, C. J. Byrne, John Carlson and John D. Mangun.

Senatorial convention—John Jones, William Peters, Thomas Martin, W. H. Johnston, George McDonald, Capt. Richard Roberts, William Allen, J. R. Van Evera, D. W. Powell, J. H. Hudson.

Michigamme—The Cleveland-Cliffs men who are employed at the Webster mine getting it ready for a resumption of operations have been hustling things of late. The machinery is now in working order and some mining is being done in a drift. A small quantity of ore has been hoisted with a bucket, but this method of raising it will be abondoned as soon as the skip road is finished. Head Carpenter J. S. Mennie now has some men at work building the skip road.

The survey of the railroad track to the mine, coming over from the track leading to the Imperial, has been finished, and the grading will soon be under way. There is about a quarter of a mile of track to put in. A new bridge was recently built over the river near there to carry the track.

By the time the preparatory work is completed the mine will be in fairly good shape, as there are a number of men working in the bottom making ready for the prosecution of active mining. The Webster ore is a yellow hematite, very similar to the Imperial.

Houghton—Sinking in No. 2 shaft at the Winona is now going on towards the fifth level and it is stated that that shaft is looking better than at any time since it was sunk below the first fifty feet. When this shaft was started it was exceedingly rich in copper for the first fifty feet, but then ran into leaner ground.

The work of unwatering the Red Jacket shaft is now in progress and the immense tanks which were constructed at the Hecla blacksmith shop are being worked for all there is in it. The shaft is being unwatered at the rate of something like 1,728,000 gallons per day.

The mine is now open with the exception of Nos. 3 and 2 shafts at the Hecla branch.

We just mention Chancellor, 10 cent cigars, and Corona, 5-cent cigars, lest you forget.

DULUTH MAN ESCAPES.

John Cameron Says Good-Bye to the State Reformatory.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 15.—John C. Cameron, an inmate of the reformatory, employed as night fireman in the engine room, escaped during Tuesday night by scaling the fence. He was received nine months ago from Duluth. His is the first escape since Superintendent Randall took charge of the institution.

INCREASE IN SALARY.

Eight Clerks In Duluth Postoffice Get Higher Pay.

Washington, June 15.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath has made public the annual re-classification of clerks in the postoffices of the country.

The postoffices in Minnesota and the Dakotas share well in the promotions made. An increase of $100 each is allowed thirty-four clerks in the St. Paul office, and two additional laborers at $50 each are allowed the office. Eighty clerks in the Minnesota offices get an increase in salary of $100 a year, and a similar increase is given eight clerks in Duluth, three in Mankato, four in Owatonna, two in St. Cloud, one each in Fergus Falls and Stillwater, four in Fargo, N. D., three in Grand Forks, one in Jamestown, two in Deadwood, S. D., three in Sioux Falls, and one each in Lead and Watertown.

RIDPATH'S CONDITION CRITICAL.

New York, June 15.—At a late hour last night the physicians at the Presbyterian hospital said there had been no improvement in the preceding twenty-four hours in the condition of John Clark Ridpath, the historian, who has for several weeks been a patient there. Mr. Ridpath is suffering from typhoid pneumonia. His condition is critical.

GOVERNOR GEER WEDS.

Oregon's Executive Is United to an Astoria Girl.

Astoria, Ore., June 15.—The marriage of Theodore Thurston Geer, governor of Oregon, to Miss Isabelle Trullinger, daughter of J. C. Trullinger, of this city, occurred at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Henry Marcotte officiating. Besides relatives, there were present members of the governor's staff and prominent state officials of Oregon and Washington. Governor Geer and his bride left in a special car for Puget Sound and British Columbia, where they will spend a week.

HUNTINGTON INTERESTS IN.

H. E. Huntington Made a Southern Pacific Vice President.

San Francisco, June 15.—Information has been received at Southern Pacific headquarters that H. E. Huntington has been made first vice president, taking the place of Searle's representative, Gen. Thomas Hubbard.

By the purchase of the Searle, or more properly speaking, the Hopkins-Searle stock, Collis P. Huntington acquires the last holdings of the original interests in the Central and Southern Pacific combination. The price paid is not known but is estimated at over $8,000,000. Huntington is said to hold 1,200,000 shares.

St. Paul-Minneapolis and Return Via Eastern Minnesota Railway $4.30.

Rate of one fare for the round trip, account Democratic State Convention. Tickets on sale June 19th and 20th. Ticket office 432 West Superior street and Union Depot.

THRESHES THEM OUT

The Republican National Committee Labors Over Convention Contests.

TROUBLES ARE AIRED

Contestants Harangue the Committee and Considerable Rancor Crops Out.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The Republican national committee assembled at 11:50 today, Mr. Fessenden again taking the chair. The contest over the delegation-at-large from Tennessee was immediately taken up, R. S. Sharp, chairman of the state legislative committee, being recognized to speak for the contestants bearing the name of Pension Commissioner Evans.

Mr. Sharp contended on behalf of the contestants that they were prevented from participating in the state convention which chose delegates, and that the whole trouble originated in the state committee which issued the call. He claimed that the call designated a date for holding county conventions, stating that where conventions had not been regularly held delegates should be elected on the day named. He also said that previous to the call conventions had been held in twenty-two counties, in eighteen of which instructions had been given for Evans. Contests ensued and at the conclusion a sufficient number of Brownlow delegates thus chosen secured control of the temporary organization. As a consequence the Evans people held another convention.

Mr. Sharp complained of the action of the state committee as arbitrary and tyrannical, declaring that never, previous to this time, had the state organization attempted to name the time or place of county conventions.

"Never," he said, "has the state executive committee attempted to pass on the rights of county delegates to possess a voice in the state convention, or to pass on contests or to make up a temporary roll of contested or uncontested delegates."

He also charged Mr. Brownlow with securing his elevation to the state chairmanship by unfair means, and said that after seizing the place, he had managed the campaign, bringing upon the party the severest defeat it had ever suffered. When the time came for the holding of county conventions, looking to the selection of delegates to the national convention, he asserted that the Brownlow followers attempted to reverse the practice of thirty years and to turn the state committee into a machine, the state convention departing from all precedents.

The contest between the two factions was reviewed throughout. In the state convention the credentials comanitee had denied Evans a seat in the convention hall. After this the Evans me retired ad held a convention of their own, which they claimed was strictly in accordance with the customs of the Republican party. He asserted that Mr. Brownlow had attempted to perpetuate himself in power "through the medium of a willing and subservient committee appointed by himself." He asserted that so long as Brownlow should remain at the head of affairs there would be two organizations, because of Brownlow's ambition.

Brownlow and his followers were represented by Congressman Gibson and George M. Henderson.

"Our convention was the regular convention," said Mr. Gibson. "It was held at the place designated, and was legally opened and regularly conducted, whereas the bolting convention was held at a different place, was illegally opened and irregularly conducted."

He also asserted that the Brownlow, or regular convention, was composed of a majority of the uncontested delegates, whereas the Evans' convention consisted "almost" wholly of contesting delegates and their Nashville sympathizers."

He also asserted that even if all the Evans' contestants had been seated, they would have fallen short of a majority in the state convention.

Mr. Evans then spoke in behalf of his own delegation, pleading earnestly for the recognition of his followers. He said he was with the Republican party, and that he wanted no factions. He had gone to Nashville for the purpose of advocating harmony, only to find himself, for the first time in his life, refused admission to a Republican convention. He was not able to even get a seat in the gallery. It was not accurate in detail, and criticized the methods of Mr. Brownlow preliminary to the state convention.

Mr. Evans was frequently interrupted by questions from members of the committee.

Mr. Brownlow followed Mr. Evans in defense of his own course, continuing that it had been regular and in the interests of the Republican party. He contradicted some of Evans' statements, saying, among other things, that he had delivered tickets to every Evans delegate who was uncontested. Speaking of the contests, he asserted that Mr. Evans was himself a party to a contest with the postmaster from his own town.

"That is false," shouted Evans, rising from his seat. Both men glared at each other for a second, and both began to talk and gesticulate rather wildly. Part of the members of the committee began to call on the sergeant-at-arms, when Mr. Brownlow ended the incident by taking his seat.

When the Tennesseeans retired, Mr. Durban of Indiana moved that each delegation be given hmalf a vote. This proposition was voted down almost unanimously. A motion to seat the Brownlow delegation was then carried without a dissenting voice and the committee took a recess until 2:30 p. m.

The Brownlow delegates from the state at large were thus given places on the temporary role. They are Henry R. Gibson, Foster V. Brown, George N. Tillman and James A. MacCall.

The Louisiana contest was decided in favor of theWarmoth faction yesterday afternoon, the delegates seated consisting of H. C. Warmoth, L. S. Clark, T. J. Woodward and Joseph Leblanc.

THE OPENING SESSION.

Reports of Grand Officers Presented and Committees Named.

The business session of the council held after the reception at the Armory took place at Kalamazoo hall. Grand Counselor B. F. Holbrook of Minneapolis presided. The officers of the grand council of Minnesota-Dakotas are: Grand counselor, B. F. Holbrook, of Minneapolis; grand junior counselor, T. Kleinogel, of Fargo, N. D.; grand past counselor, E. M. Estey, of St. Paul; grand secretary, J. M. Dresser, of St. Paul; grand treasurer, C. Burtch, of Sioux Falls, S. D.; grand conductor, F. X. Gravel, of Crookston; grand page, T. McCosker, of Grand Forks, N. D.; grand sentinel, E. Grant, of Minneapolis; executive council, A. H. Overman, of Duluth; J. C. McAdams, of Huron, S. D.; W. J. Sheppard, of Sioux Falls, S. D.; W. G. Jacobs, of Aberdeen, S. D.

The past grand counselors of the order are: C. W. Rice, J. F. Jordon, J. C. Palmer, H. G. Mooney, L. W. Irvine, P. C. Creenshaw.

The district deputies are: A. H. Overman, of Duluth; C. H. Hoyt, of St. Paul; J. F. Jordon, of Minneapolis; C. F. Williams, of Grand Forks; C. E. March, of Fargo; David Kahn, of Winona; R. O. Philpot, of Owatonna; Robert L. Farr, of Crookston; W. R. Earl, of Austin; H. O. Fletcher, of Sioux Falls; L. O. Hickok, of Mankato; C. E. Barrows, of Huron; W. G. Jacobs, of Aberdeen.

Of the grand officers all were present except three, Messrs. Estey, Burtch and Sheppard. Grand Past Counselor P. C. Crenshaw was selected to act in the place of Mr. Estey.

Grand Counselor Holbrook presented his annual report, and it was a very satisfactory one, showing the order to be in a flourishing conditon and advancing steadily in membership, financial condition and influence.

The report of Grand Secretary Dresser was as follows:

To the Officers and Members of the Grand Council of Minnesota-Dakotas of the Order of United Commercial Travelers of America:

Greeting: The seventh annual report submitted herewith is a summary exhibit of the business of the last fiscal year, and of the condition of the jurisdiction at the close, April 30, 1900.

One year ago at the close of our fifth fiscal year this grand jurisdiction, comprising Minnesota, North and South Dakota, had fourteen subordinate councils, with a total membership of 1572.

During the year we have added to our domain the province of Manitoba, Can., this annexation being duly granted and affirmed by the supreme council in annual session, June 23, 1899, and on July 14, 1899, Winipeg council, No. 154, was duly instituted by Grand Counselor B. F. Holbrook. This new council, making the fifteenth under our jurisdiction, is working under dispensation granted by the grand officers.

The magnificent progress we are making will be noted in the tabulated reports that follow. Of the fifteen grand jurisdictions, the Minnesota-Dakota jurisdiction stands second in size of membership, and the gain during the past year was 28 per cent. The gain of Ohio, the largest jurisdiction, during the same period was 14½ per cent, and the gain of Kansas, the third in size, was 14 per cent. Our percentage of increase is augmented largely by the Winnipeg council, with 130 members, but a comparison with our older councils demonstrates that we still lead the procession with a gain of 19 per cent.

To the membership in good standing March 31, 1899, of 1572, add:

Initiated	532
Reinstated	98
Admitted by withdrawal cards	3
Transfer cards accepted	40
Total	2245
From which deduct:
Suspended	168
Transfer cards granted	43
Withdrawn by card	7
Deceased	13
Total	230

Leaving a total membership in good standing March 31, 1900, of 2015.

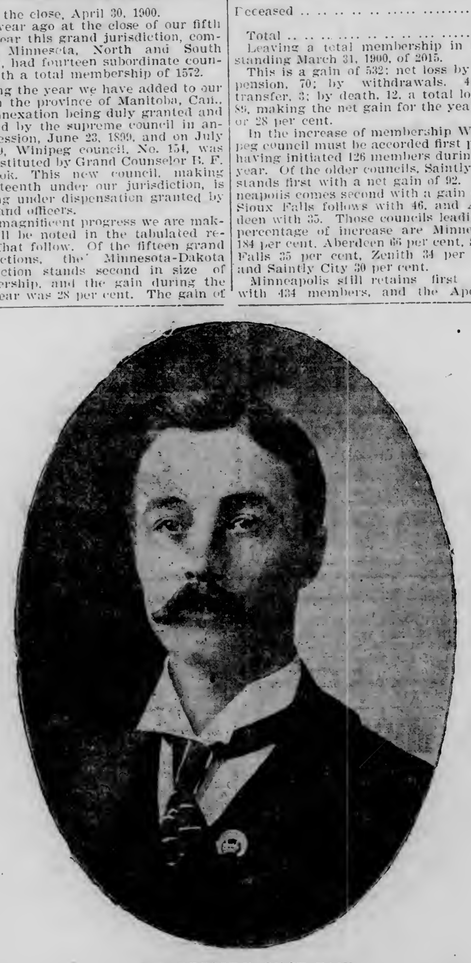
This is a gain of 532; net loss by suspension, 70; by withdrawals, 4; by transfer, 3; by death, 12, a total loss of 89, making the net gain for the year 443, or 28 per cent.

In the increase of membership Winnipeg council must be accorded first place, having initiated 126 members during the year. Of the older councils, Saintly City stands first with a net gain of 92. Minneapolis comes second with a gain of 48, Sioux Falls follows with 46, and Aberdeen with 35. Those councils leading in percentage of increase are Minnehaha 184 per cent, Aberdeen 66 per cent, Sioux Falls 35 per cent, Zenith 34 per cent, and Saintly City 30 per cent.

Minneapolis still retains first place with 434 members, and the Apostles from the Saintly City are giving the Millers a close run with an even 400. Fargo and Sioux Falls have swapped places, Sioux Falls being third with 179 members and Fargo fourth with 174.

Evidence of our substantial growth is shown that, with our largely increased membership, our suspensions were 27 less and our reinstatements 6 in excess of the preceding year. There is no council without initiations to its credit.

Our mortuary record is largely in excess of any previous year, and we are compelled to place on record twelve of our beloved brethern who have been called to that Eternal City beyond the mountain range. Two of these met death by accident. In the death of Brother David I. Hallo, Minnehaha council has lost a most worthy member. The decease of Brother E. H. Johnson strikes from our roll the name of a respected and honored brother, one of the delegates from Minneapolis at our last annual session, and a regular attendant of the U. C. T. gatherings. In the departure of these good men our order sustains a great loss.



J. M. DRESSER R. OF ST. PAUL.
Grand Secretary, Minnesota and Dakotas.

In considering our growth the past year we find much for congratulation. We have made great advancement, and knowing that earnest purpose and endeavor never can go backwards we have courage to press on, trusting that the same ratio of increase, or a better one, will be realized the coming year.

We present the financial report of the subordinate councils in complete form. As our order grows great in point of numbers, so do our finances increase in size and importance. The total cash on hand in the subordinate councils on March 31, 1900, of $8865.83, is deserving of special mention, in that it shows an excess of receipts over the disbursements of $5939.59 for the year, which is most encouraging.

In accordance with constitutional requirements, the balance in the indemnity fund should be equal to $2 per capita for that is, with our present membership of 2015, $4030. The reported balance of $3886.50 shows arrears to the amount of $143.50, the payment of same we assume to be guaranteed.

The general fund balance, the "Council's Own," of $4891.33 shows a most flourishing and prosperous condition, and proof of the stability of our councils.

All councils, with the exception of Winona and Crookston, report largely increased balance sheets. Notable among these are the St. Paul and Minneapolis councils, who, respectively, have $1200 and $1400 invested in interest bearing securities. They hav eset good examples, let others follow.

In the department of claims we find the calls on the supreme council treasury unusually heavy. During the year this jurisdiction has received $20,801.51 in payment of indemnities and $994 has been expended in the care of the widows and orphans of our deceased members, neither of which amounts represent the expenditures of individual councils in their many acts of charity.

The members of this jurisdiction have received the past year in the payment of claims $3945.51 more than they have subscribed towards the maintenance of this department.

Out of a total of four accidental deaths in the order at large, this jurisdiction alone sustained half, or a loss of two, the ruthless hand of death dealing with us most harshly.

With the exception of Aberdeen and Winnipeg, all councils have presented gains.

This detailed report being self-explanatory, comments are unnecessary. An increase of business is to be noted. During the year the grand office sold supplies to the amount of $164.73 at a profit of $40.38.

We would recommend that at this session provision be made for the adoption of by-laws, and in this connection we would suggest that laws be made placing the subordinate council with its relation to the grand council on the same basis that exists between an individual member and his council. This would empower the grand council with authority to enforce the prompt payments of monies due, the collection of which at the present time is a drag on the grand council. The appointment of district deputies one year ago has proved most beneficial, and we believe that they should be continued.

The past year has been an eventful one for our order, and the progress we have made should be most gratifying to each and every member.

As we stand at the threshold of a new year, let us make anew our obligations, and as we have steadily risen in greatness and importance, so we will continue until we have within the folds all the best element of our profession.

Accompanying Mr. Dresser's report were detailed statements of the membership of the different grand jurisdictions, of the financial condition of all of the councils in this jurisdiction, and a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the grand council. The reports were very comprehensive and very satisfactory to all members.

The report of Grand Treasurer Murtch was read by F. E. Noble, of St. Paul, chairman of the auditing committee.

The following committees were appointed:

Credentials: J. A. Macpharcson, of Grand Forks; J. M. Yoder, of Fargo; T. B. Mackenzie, of Winona.

Auditing: F. E. Noble, of St. Paul; C. F. Williams, of Grand Forks; David Kahn, of Winona.

State of order: Cyrus Beal, of Minneapolis; C. R. Earl, of Austin; G. W. Rodgers, of St. Paul.

Charters and dispensations: L. H. Filiatrault, of Crookston; A. W. Almore, of Minneapolis; B. F. Buckley, of Owatonna.

All reports were referred to the committee on state of the order.

A telegram was received from C. W. Rice, of New York, past grand counselor of this jurisdiction. It read as follows:

> Fraternal greetings and best wishes for a pleasant and profitable session.

A very pleasant feature of the meeting this morning was the presentation to A. H. Hoverman of a beautiful badge for having secured the greatest number of members for Zenith council in a membership contest. The badge was presented by Grand Counselor Holbrook on behalf of Zenith council.

Mr. Overman acknowledged the gift with a few remarks of appreciation and gratification.

This afternoon the council again convened at 1:30 o'clock and will continue its business. There are several more committees to be appoited.

THE CONCERT TONIGHT.

Program to Be Given at Lyceum By Bands and Soloists.

Tonight's program at the Lyceum theater for the benefit of the visitors is an excellent one, and there are some notable numbers. Mr. Farr, of Minneapolis, who will sing, is a tenor of some note, and he was added to the program last night. The program follows:

TOMORROW'S PROGRAM.

Initiation of Candidates, Grand Parade, Boat Ride and Ball.

Tomorrow the proceedings will open with the business session at 9 o'clock.

At 10:30 o'clock there will be an initiation of candidates for admission to the order. This will take place at Elks hall and all councils are urged to have their candidates ready promptly on time.

At 10 o'clock there will be a carriage drive around the city and over the boulevard for the ladies.

At 1 o'clock there will be a grand parade and this will prove one of the biggest things of the kind ever seen in Duluth. The members of Zenith council have supplied themselves with suits of red, white and blue hunting, with white yachting caps, Chinese umbrellas and little lunch baskets. The lunch baskets are a hit at the Minneapolis boys, who will show up in the line with large pasteboard grips. The Crookston boys will have linen dusters and will carry parasols. The Grank Forks boys will be attired in maroon, and they will make a good showing. The St. Paul men may be known by their white fedoras with purple bands. In short, every delegation will be out in distinct costumes, and the entire display will be novel and interesting. There will be no lack of music, for there will be three bands in line, Crookston, Grand Forks and Duluth bands will take part. The line will form at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street, at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

After the parade, at 2 o'clock or thereabouts there will be an excursion on the lake for the visitors. The boat will leave the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Elmer E. Stewart Found Near New Normal Site, Writhing In Agony.

DOSE OF MORPHINE

Has Been Despondent For Some Time---Death Expected Any Minute.

Like a terrific shock from a cloudless sky came the news this afternoon that Elmer E. Stewart had attempted suicide. Writhing in pain he was found shortly after 11 o'clock this morning in the bushes near Woodland avenue, near the new Normal school building. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, and at 3 o'clock this afternoon death was expected at any moment.

For several weeks past Stewart has been in ill health and of late very despondent. Yesterday morning he left his home at 209 South Sixteenth avenue East to go to work. He did not go to the office, and his friends and business associates were much alarmed about him. No information was received as to his whereabouts till the news of his probably successful attempt at suicide reached them this afternoon.

Mr. Stewart is a maried man and has four children. He has lived in Duluth for ten years and was exceedingly well known. For some time past he has been manager of the cigar house of George T. Manager of the cigar house of George T. street.

His closest friends are at an utter loss to account for his rash act, but say that his recent sickness had probably unbalanced his mind.

At a late hour this afternoon nothing could be learned of the attempted suicide further than that Mr. Stewart took a very large dose of morphine.

OPENS STRONG.

First Excursion Comes In Over Northern Pacific With Two Thousand People.

The first excursion of the season arrived this afternoon over the Northern Pacific, bringing over 2000 people to the head of the lakes. Some of the visitors, about one-third, got off the trains at Superior, and will be in Duluth later. There were three sections, the first arriving at 2:10 o'clock and the other two following about fifteen minutes apart. The excursionists came over the Black Hills division of the Northern Pacific, starting at Wahpeton, N. D., and including people from Breckinridge, Wadena, Brainerd, Staples, Wyoming and other places. The visitors immediately spread over the city, taking in the sights and amusing themselves according to their desires.

TOO HOT A MIXTURE.

John Peterson Gets Some Warm Stuff on the Bowery.

John Peterson enlivened the Bowery last night by drinking various brands of foolishness. His friends claim that the bartender sprang a new refreshment on him and at the same time worked him, if he valued his peace of mind and moral character not to drink more than two. Peterson then tried one, called for another and imbibed two more. After the fourth he rushed out on the street, executed several whoops, tried to climb on the roof of a passing car and did a barbaric war dance, and when found at 3 o'clock this morning he was trying to force an entrance into the chamber of horrors.

He recovered consciousness in police court this morning only to discover that he was shy $46 in cash, a bank book certifying that he had $1200 on deposit in the Imperial Bank of Canada at Rat Portage, and a certificate of deposit for $100 in the First National bank of this city.

He was penitent and after proving beyond a doubt that he had lost the all that he claimed, the police secured a suspended sentence for him. Peterson was greatly agitated over his loss, and promised a liberal reward to any person that would return his belongings.

In police court he denied very emphatically that he was drunk, and claimed that he was simply setting in front of his boarding house on Lake avenue when a policeman came along and arrested him. However the police records show that he was arrested on the Bowery at 3 a. m. and that he was creating considerable turmoil.

SUSTAINED THE DEMURRER.

Otho Winters' Suit Gets First Knock Out In Court.

Judge Ensign has sustained a demurrer to the complaint of Otho A. Winters, who sued the city of Duluth for $8000 damages for personal injuries alleged to have been received at the Lakewood pumping station. The demurrer was on the ground that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, but the specific objection was that Winters had failed to notify the city of his injury and his claim for damages within the time required by law. The plaintiff claimed that he was under no obligation to do this, on the ground that the law requiring it isunconstitutional, and also because the city is sued in its proprietary capacity and not in its governmental capacity. Judge Ensign holds that the notice was necessary, and that failing to make it, he cannot proceed with his suit.

Makes Some Collections.

Sheriff Sargent has turned over to the county treasurer $2676.32, the result of his collections of the delinquent personal property taxes of 1899. Those taxes that are not yet paid have gone to the clerk of district court for the entry of judgment, after which citations will be issued on those that seem worth pushing, when they will again go to the sheriff. On these citations he will seize property and sell it to satisfy the county's claim.

Oden Can Be Had.

Capt. M. J. Ryan of the ferry boat Estelle telephoned The Herald this afternoon that the barge Oden would be at the disposal of the commercial travelers' committee with which to attend the launching at West Superior tomorrow afternoon. The Oden will hold quite a crowd and Capt. Ryan desires to meet the arrangement committee tomorrow morning.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

The protection of carpets in summer, even in rooms in constant use, requires care. The sly, elusive moth even then will burrow in edges and corners. The nuns of a hospital convent have found that common fine salt sprinkled around these places will effectually discourage the marauders, says Good Housekeeping. Turpentine is disagreeable and naptha dangerous, but salt unexceptionable. The nuns declare that woolens, feather pillows, hair cushions and such material attracting articles are made invulnerable to the attacks of these pests by the free use of salt.

An insect poison is made by adding to one pint of proof spirit two ounces of camphor, four ounces of spirits of turpentine, and one ounce of corrosive sublimate. Take care of handling or inhaling the latter poison, mix thoroughly and apply with a small brush or feather to every suspected corner or crevice. Old greasy paper should be removed from the shelves in closets and the cracks, old rags and rubbish burned and the space under an inclosed kitchen sink made as clean as a china closet.

Suggestions for summer use may be multiplied. For instance, where flies will slip inside the screen door whenever it is opened, they may be discouraged by inviting them to partake of the following potion: Mix together one tablespoonful of cream with the same quality of black pepper powdered and one tablesoonful of brown sugar. Darken the room save one window, in which set the saucer containing these ingredients.

Cockroaches are driven away by mixing pulverized plaster of paris with double its quantity of cracked wheat or oatmeal and a little sugar.

USEFUL HINTS.

Articles made of brass may be kept bright and free from tarnish if you will cover them with a thin coat of varnish made of colorless shellac and alcohol, which may be procured at any drug store. Any strong unpleasant smell will keep away moths, so if you don't like the smell of camphor, mix together equal parts of pounded cloves, cinnamon, orrisroot, or any other pungent spices. Fill little muslin bags with the mixture, and store them among your clothes.

A new wrinkle for your patent leather shoes. Clean them with French harness polish, which you can buy at any saddler's or harness maker's. Rub it on lightly, then polish with a piece of soft woolly cloth. Besides making them shine beautifully, this prevents them from cracking.

CHAMP CLARK.

"Champ Clark has little, if any, blood kin, as the word is in his congressional district," says a writer in Ainslee's Magazine, "but a vast number of political and social friends who are close as blood could make them. Most of the Democrats of the nine counties claim a speaking acquaintance with him. Most of them have entertained him at one time or another. He has stopped at their gates, dined at their tables, slept for a night in their best spare bedrooms. He has talked politics with the fathers, encouraged and strengthened the political views of the sons.

"Among his chief adherents you find men who have sacrificed not only time and labor, but hard-earned money, in the cause of their political idol. In almost every case, they expect nothing and receive nothing. Their reward is the triumph of their affections and prejudices.

"'I went to my brother Morg,' said one of Clark's supporters, in describing the latter's first congressional fight, 'and begged him to let up on Clark. It doesn't make any difference to you.' I said. 'Why do you help my enemies?' You know his enemies are my enemies. For God's sake, turn once now and help me.'

"'Did he?' I asked.

"'Yes, he did.'

"'And why did you make such a fight for the man?'

"'I liked him. He's my friend. He is a friend of all my friends.'"

We won't allow our competitors to knock us out on prices, "quality considered."

In our Men's and Boys' clothing department we are always busy. Our fancy worsteds, clay serges and plain woolens, can't be beat.

Ladies' Clothing Dept.—Ladies, if you need a tailor-made suit, silk waist or underskirt, now is your chance, as we are closing out our spring and summer line at astonishingly low prices. All clothing sold for cash or $1.00 per week. Call and see us.

MARINE NEWS.

Chicago, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Rockefeller ships are on the market today for grain cargoes—the Frank Rockefeller and barge 130. Every move of the Rockefeller people is being watched with the keenest interest. Edwin S. Miller, who has charge of the lake interests of the Carnegie Steel company and is located at Cleveland, has been here looking over the field in grain freights, and their influence upon the grain rates on Lake Superior. He found the market in such condition that, if he attempted to break it by placing two of his big ships at a reduction, the charters would not carry the market with them. He would be simply donating the drop to the shippers. He therefore pulled out the traces and sent his boats to Lake Superior, where they are badly needed to carry the Carnegie ore.

LIGHT FOR KENOSHA PIER.

Chicago, June 15.—Notice is given by the lighthouse board that owing to the widening of the entrance to Kenosha harbor and the reconstruction of the north pier, the fixed red lantern light on the outer end of the pier will be discontinued. The red light in the tower near the outer end of the pier will remain in its present position on detached part of the pier until the completion of the north pier, when the light and its towers will be established on the extreme outer end of the new pier.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by John Swenson, widower, mortgagor, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date January first (1st), 1895, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on January twenty-fourth (24th), 1895, at 4:33 o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on page six hundred twenty-two (622); which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said William E. Lucas to Mary M. Nicholas, by an instrument of assignment, bearing date January twenty-fifth (25th), 1895, and which was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office on January thirtieth (30th), 1895, at 3:15 o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred seven (107) of mortgages, on page one hundred ninety-eight (198), and thereafter, the undersigned was duly appointed, and qualified, as committee of the person and estate of said Mary M. Nicholas, and a duly certified copy of the order of appointment has been recorded in the office of said register of deeds; such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage, with interest thereon from January 1st, 1900, less the sum of $20 paid thereon;

And whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of dollars, principal, interest and exchange;

And whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), fifteen (15), sixteen (16), seventeen (17), eighteen (18), nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-one (21), twenty-two (22), twenty-three (23), twenty-four (24) and twenty-five (25), in block nine (9); also all of lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), fifteen (15), sixteen (16), seventeen (17) and eighteen (18), in block thirteen (13); also all of lots numbered thirty-seven (37), thirty-eight (38), thirty-nine (39), forty (40) and forty-one (41), in block ten (10); also all of lots numbered one (1), two (2) and three (3), in block twelve (12), all in Ironton, Fourth Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file of record in the office of the register of deeds, in and for the said St. Louis County; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the thirty-first (31st) day of July, A. D. 1900, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated June 14th, 1900.

PHILIP N. NICHOLAS, Committee of the person and estate of Mary M. Nicholas.

FRANCIS W. SULLIVAN, Attorney.

A Well Defined Purpose

underlies the doing of this Great Store. It is the possession of that purpose that makes this store great—and this greatness consists in not only being unlike other stores, but in doing things differently and better. This course has left us without comparable competition—landed us out in the open of enlarged opportunity—enlarged the responsibility to our patrons, by whose co-operation the emancipation from old ways has been made possible. Large opperations along the lines of trustworthy merchandise bring the bargains we offer. We are not in competition with storekeepers who gather TRASH to trumpet as unusual values. We cannot match the qualities of goods they sell simply because our cheapest merchandise usually commences about where their best quality ends. We do not want to be distributors of Dissatisfaction. But it is only the unsafe in quality that is left unmatched by this store. Masterful buying for the supplying of our patrons brings more interesting prices on goods of absolute merit than are to be found anywhere else in this broad land.

We are going to take $25,000 cash out of the stocks of this store between now and July 4

The retiring of Mr. Adolph Nathan as a Special Partner of the firm of M. S. Burrows, and the readjustment of the partner's interests, must be settled by that date and the money is going to come out of the stocks and come out QUICK. Every Department in the house is overloaded, so we won't mince matters—simply take the bull by the horns—rip things up the back—so to speak—slash and cut prices all along the line, to attain our object.

Commencing Tomorrow, Saturday, we offer the people of Duluth one of the grandest Bargain-Giving Sales of strictly High-Grade Men's and Boys' Suits, Overcoats, Hats, Furnishings, Shoes, Trunks and Valises, that has ever been attempted in Duluth.

Read the prices—Get your money ready quick—Come early.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE ISSUES OF THE DAY

Ex-Gov. Altgeld Speaks to a Large Audience at the Armory.

Discusses Decline of Republican Party and Denounces Imperialism.

The Armory was packed last night when ex-Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois addressed a Duluth audience for the first time. Every seat was filled and there were many people standing around the side aisles. On the platform were a number of local Democrats, including Charles A. Towne, the president of the Bryan club for the occasion, and Bert Fesler, the everyday president of the club. When the speaker of the evening came into the hall, shortly after 8 o'clock, there was a burst of applause, which swelled in volume and force as Mr. Towne appeared just behind him.

Bert Fesler introduced Mr. Towne very briefly as the temporary chairman of the club for the evening, after which Mr. Towne made a short speech introducing Mr. Altgeld. When Mr. Towne rose he was greeted by loud and long-continued applause.

MR. TOWNE'S REMARKS.

"I congratulate this club," said Mr. Towne, "on this magnificent audience. The campaign has not yet opened, but this evidence of your great interest in the vast political questions before the American people for settlement today is an earnest that you will bring to the consideration of these questions the kind of investigation and interest that presages the proper settlement of the questions. This is a fast age. The closing years of the century are witnessing the culmination of tremendous social, industrial and political movements. The century has been more remarkable for them than for anything else. It now seems as if the movement were to be accelerated at the close of the century. We are now engaged in struggling with questions we did not dream of a few years ago. A proper settlement of these demands honesty of purpose, the highest patriotism, and all the intellectual power we possess.

"We are fortunate tonight in having to present some of these questions a man who has been more misrepresented, and more misunderstood, than any other in the history of the United States. (Applause.) He is a man whom the people are coming to know more and more and to appreciate as they know him, and whose name when the final record is made of the roll of honor of men who have contributed to the salvation of the United States in her hour of peril may, like that of Abou ben Adhim, head all the rest. He is a man of great ability, of untiring patience, and of courage to do his duty as he sees it in spite of determent. (Applause.) He appeals to the patriotism, reason and judgment of the American citizenship of today. That kind of citizenship we have here tonight to listen to what he has to say."

GOVERNOR ALTGELD SPEAKS

As Mr. Altgeld rose to take his place on the platform he was greeted by prolonged applause, in the midst of which he stood quietly, modestly, patiently waiting for his chance to speak. At first his utterance is slow, deliberate, with pauses between every phrase and often for greater emphasis, between every word. As he goes on he loses something of this deliberation, but even in his most stirring passages he never departs from it altogether. An air of patient suffering about his eyes gives an idea of slowness, but this is soon worn off. His talk is calm, logical and convincing, and it comes at times with the quiet, steady force of a trip-hammer. He said last night:

What is the duty of Democrats today? We are at the threshold of a new age—we are standing in the morning of a new time. Two centuries ago the world made fight for freedom of religion. One century ago it fought for political freedom. Today it is aspiring to industrial, economic and financial freedom. The institutions of one age are but the crystalization and the tangible results of the theories and doctrines that were promulgated in a prior age.

Early in this century the world became absorbed with the thought of material development, the aspiration of man was to manufacture—to build cities—and to extend commerce. Gradually all institutions were shaped with reference to these ends. Out of these ideas came the fierce and corrupt commercialism which is now passing its zenith.

While it marks a certain stage in the development of the world and tends to make man self-reliant, it has reached a point where it is destroying character and undermining free institutions. Instead of resting on the principles of eternal justice, it was based on absolute selfishness. Give as little as possible and get as much as possible was its code of morals. Under this code it was legitimate for the crafty and the strong to devour the substance of the simple and the weak. Bargain and sale was the inscription upon its banner—and it applied to men and to mules—to character and to cotton, to laws and to land. Mammon was god and the benediction was money. The world is now reaping the harvest of this corrupt commercialism and is disappointed. Those who fail are crushed, and those who succeed are destroyed. The weak break down and the strong rot down. The millionaire is the little dried up rusty kernel found in the great nut, that promised so much. Instead of a noble manhood and womanhood we are having a harvest of millionaires and they are sad failures. The scrumble for self shrivels the soul and destroys the body. Not only do the great fortunes melt away, but the men who gather them and the families that have them to the second and third generation rot down with a kind of moral leprosy. This leprosy is creeping into all our institutions and destroying the government. We are slowly discovering that getting something for nothing not only destroys the man who gets it, but rots down his family. We have patterned after England. Early in our history we studied the English philosophers and talked about the rights of man and out of it came the republic. But after the civil war Hamiltonism began to prevail ,and we began to follow the aristocratic and ruling classes of England. Hamilton was the antipod of Lincoln. Lincoln believed in the people, he believed in the principles of Jefferson. Lincoln wanted a government of, for and by the people. Hamilton did not believe in the people. He wanted the government like the English to take care of the rich, and for thirty-five years our government has devoted all of its energies to this purpose. We have gone mad on Hamiltonism.

We have broken our backs trying to help the rich. For this base purpose we are impoverishing our children and destroying our institutions.

BACK TO LINCOLN'S DOCTRINES.

We must get back to the doctrines of Lincoln—back to the principles of Jefferson—back to the rights of men.

One of the methods of exploitations was a tariff. Here was a growing active nation—with a population rapidly increasing—to levy toll on the needs of such a nation was a means of rapid enrichment. For this purpose campaign funds were raised—elections were debauched, and when this was not sufficient, congressmen were bought.

The hand of toll was taxed to make fortunes for the few. Great wrongs seek a cloak of respectability, and the protection of American labor was the hypocritical cloak that covered this great injustice.

Under this system the protected manufacturer built castles in Scotland, but the moment the mills shut down, the American laborer and his children had to beg bread.

A year ago a United States senator who certainly knew better, told an American audience that whenever we had high tariff, our country had good times and the laborer was happy, and when we had low tariff, we had panics and soup houses. I will not discuss the tariff, but will notice this historical reference.

The present tariff began as a war measure, but the manufacturers found that it kept out foreign goods and gave them a monopoly of the home market thus enabling them to charge arbitrary prices for their goods, while at the same time they were permitted to import European pauper labor by the shipload, and thus could keep down wages.

Finding it profitable they maintained a lobby at Washington to influence, and when necessary, debauch congress.

Instead of reduction of the tariff after the war, they managed to get it increased year by year until it finally was nearly twice as high as in war times.

But times kept getting worse, prices kept falling, until in 1873, the panic came. With the highest tariff on record up to that time, business was paralyzed and the land was covered with soup houses.

After the panic of '73 the tariff was constantly raised. Yet in 1885 prices were falling, and the conditions were so bad that the Republican national convention felt that something must be done, adopted as its war cry: More tariff!

Mr. Harrison was elected on this platform—the McKinley law was passed, giving us the highest tariff ever known, that law was in force until the middle of 1894.

We had a Republican congress and a Republican president and the highest tariff ever known, yet prices kept falling—times got worse, until in the spring of 1893 the panic came, and with the McKinley law in full force, the land was covered with soup houses. American financial policy and American labor had established our independence, and we boasted of our freedom.

But the debt created during the civil war gave England her opportunity, and through the aid of Republican politicians, she had so manipulated this debt as to make our country a tribute-paying colony of Great Britain.

We have paid at that debt for thirty-five years. Besides paying enough in interest to have wiped it out several times, we have reduced the principal to less than half of what it originally was, and yet today it will take more of American products to pay what is left of that debt than it would have taken to have paid it all at the close of the war.

During the war our government sold its bonds for 60 and 70 cents, and sometimes got paper money for them.

England got control of most of these bonds and after the war was over and there was no longer any question about the credit of the government, the bond-holders under various dishonest pretexts got legislations which enhanced the value of these bonds by providing that they should be paid in coin—that is gold or silver—and the last winter they got a law passed providing that these same bonds should be paid in gold.

Not only did England hold most of the government bonds, but she held the great majority of the billions on billions of state, city, county, railroad and other corporation bonds and mortgages. The interest on this vast indebtedness had to be paid with American products, with American sweat and American blood.

A CRIME AGAINST AMERICA.

We were a great debtor and a great producing nation. Manifestly justice required a governmental policy which would maintain the price of products and of property, and which would not increase the burden of the debts. Under these circumstances to make the dollar dear and hard to get, was a crime against America.

On the other hand as the English bondholders received every year almost limitless sums of American money in payment of interest—they would profit by making the dollar dear so that it would buy as much property as possible.

At the close of the war we were on a paper basis—consisting of government paper and national bank paper—according to the treasury tables, there were nearly $2,000,000,000 in circulation. Business had adopted itself to this condition—prices were on this basis and debts were contracted on this basis. A bushel of wheat sold for upwards of $2 and other products in proportion, and we never had such activity and such prosperity in this country as we had then.

But the bond-holders got the government to contract the paper money and issue interest-bearing bonds instead—until by 1870 the volume of money in our country was reduced to about one-half the amount that it was at the close of the war. Prices fell accordingly—a bushel of wheat sold for a little over $1 and other products in proportion, while debts, taxes and fixed charges remained the same.

Debtors were ruined—the purchasing power of the products was destroyed, the country broke down and we had the panic of '73.

We were now on a coin basis—of gold and silver. Not content with this, the bond-holding classes resolved to reduce the world's volume of money so as to make the dollar still dearer. They got out government which was controlled by Republican politicians to lead the way in striking down by law one of the money metals of the world. During a few years the world's volume of money was in this way reduced about one-half, while debts—taxes and fixed charges remained the same, and the population increased so as to require more instead of less money.

Prices fell in proportion—a bushel of wheat sold for 50 cents and other products in proportion. Debtors were again ruined—the purchasing power of producers was destroyed—the country broke down, and we had the panic of '93 which landed us on a gold basis.

Years ago when an Englishman got out a thousand dollar American bond or mortgage and cut off the coupons for one year's interest, say $50, this $50 would buy him forty to fifty bushels of wheat, or a proportionate amount of other American products. Now when he cuts the coupons off of the same bond, the $50 will buy one hundred bushels of wheat or a proportionate amount of other American products.

This shows how Republican politicians have legislated for the Englishman at the expense of America.

Four years ago we demanded a reversal of this policy and the restoration of bimetalism by America.

With characteristic hypocrisy, the Republican leaders said this was right but we must get England's consent. Think of it. England has given us her policy—through it she was devouring our substance, and yet we were told that we must get her consent before we changed our own policy.

We said that we would not wait for the consent of any nation on earth, that America could run her own affairs.

We appealed to the American people—we fought the greatest campaign ever waged on this continent.

We triumphed in the form of reason and intelligence—we won in the arena of patriotism—but we were borne down by corruption, by bribery by fraud and crime.

This year we are going to fight the battel over, and we will keep on fighting it over until justice shall prevail and this great wrong be righted.

After the campaign of '96 a number of accidents conspired to help the advocates of a gold standard.

There was a terrible drought on three of the world's great continents. It destroyed not only the crops, but the herds and the flocks. At the same time we had great crops here, and we were called on to feed the world.

Then there were great gold discoveries and new processes for mining gold—then came the activity of a war.

All these causes swelled the volume of money in our country. According to the treasury reports many hundreds of million were added to our circulating medium. This gave us increased activity and a limited prosperity.

It demonstrated that our theory was correct. It did temporarily what we propose to make permanent by restoring bimetalism.

You cannot found a permanent prosperity on accident, nor on the calamity of other people's. Already we are relapsing—already the signals of distress are flying. We propose to establish a permanent prosperity, and make not only ourselves but other people happy.

The platform which the Republican convention of 1896 adopted at St. Louis was first submitted to J. Pierpont Morgan, the agent of the Rothschilds, for his approval.

ALL NOW IN GOLD.

This year the American agents of the Rothschilds and other bondholders got our government to again legislate in their favor. Everything is now to be paid in gold.

The greenbacks are to be retired, the interest-bearing debt is to be increased, the dollar is to be made still dearer. Instead of having the government issue paper money directly, it is to be issued by private corporations, and we are to have a mighty money trust standing behind and furthering all other trusts.

Although many of our bonds were bought with paper, and all could be paid in silver, they are now all to be paid in gold without giving the American people any new consideration for the increased burden.

You recall that Grover Cleveland issued bonds to maintain the gold reserve; on one occasion he sold a batch of about six-ty millions. He sent a message to congress asking permission to make them payable in gold, and stated that he could get about fifteen million dollars more for them if they were payable in gold than he could if they were simply payable in coin like the other bonds, but congress refused to give the permission. Therefore they were made payable in coin, and he sold them for about fifteen millions less than they would have brought if they were payable in gold. Yet these bonds were payable in gold. The holders of this small batch will get fifteen millions of dollars for nothing, while the holders of all the United States bonds will get hundreds of millions without giving the American people one cent additional consideration.

But this is comparatively a small matter by establishing the gold standard all the interest as well as principle on the billions and billions of other American debts—such as farm and city mortgages, railroad and other corporation debts, and state, county and municipal debts that must be paid with American products are almost doubled, because these products must now be sold on a low gold standard basis, so that this legislation vastly increases the amount of American toil—American sweat and American products that must be given every year to English bondholders without giving us one cent worth of consideration.

Even this is but a small part of the great wrong. For the establishment of the gold standard permanently lowers the average price level of American products, and inasmuch as the debts, taxes and fixed charges are not lowered, it reduces the purchasing power of the American people and thus arrests our growth and development.

It lowers the social status of the American producer and places him on a level with the serfs of Europe.

Years ago our wonderful home market absorbed nearly everything we could make—not 5 per cent of all our business was with foreign nations. Now this home market has been almost destroyed because our producing people are no longer able to buy, and we are marauding over the earth with gun in hand, trying to find a market for goods that we formerly consumed at home.

It would be a thousand times better for us to pay the expense of British armies, to pay the expense of the British fleets—to pay the bills of British snobbery in office and retain our financial and industrial freedom, than to be politically free and be made the financial and industrial serfs of the British monetary classes.

Let me say there were Republicans who protested against the criminal course of their party—men who were not willing to betray American interests for the sake of individual preferment, they strove to free their party from the corrupting control of the foreign monetary power, and when in 1896 their party abjectly surrendered to that power, when it ceased to be a moral force in the name of Lincoln and became a criminal instrument in the slimy hands of Mark Hanna—they left it.

It required heroism of the highest order to cut loose from the associations of a life-time—from all that made the past dear or the future promising. But there walked out of the St. Louis convention a band of men who will go into history as the great patriots of this age.

Prominent among these was a young man who stood high in the councils of his party—who was recognized as one of the most brilliant orators and statesmen of our time—a man for whom the highest honors that his party could bestow were within reach, a man who could not be cowed—cajoled or corrupted—a man who threw away a career—who gave up honors and preferment in order to be true to his noble manhood and his honest convictions.

That man is the distinguished citizen of your marvelous city.

So long as Duluth shall develop men of the character and the courage of Charles A. Towne, nothing can arrest her imperial career.

TRUSTS.

During the last few years we have seen the development of industrial, commercial and transportation combinations called trusts, whereby all, or nearly all of the men engaged in any particular line combine and place the business under one management are thus able to arbitrarily fix the price of labor and raw material on the one hand, and the price which the public must pay on the other hand.

By thus combining they destroy compe-

LATEST PARIS GOWNS

Mrs. Potter Palmer Dazzles the Parisians With Her Toilettes and Introduces New Modes to French Society.

PINK IS SEASON'S COLOR.

Paris, June 6.—The spring dresses worn at the races, in Paris, at the vernissage, at the Salon, in the Bois de Boulogne and at the theaters have many novel features; so many, in fact, that one despairs of ever describing any of them, so great is the whirl of mind which they produce.

Next to the year 1889, when fashions were so complex that everything was trimmed with a bow or a flounce, the year 1900 will hold the record of the century in complicated materials and trimmings. And not only are these mixed in an unusual degree, but colors are combined in strange ways, until the show window of a fashionable shop resembles a rainbow in hue.

In justice to the styles it may be said that they are pretty. The trying habit back; the very difficult fitted hips and the narrow knees are all abandoned for a sweeping skirt rather wide and quite long. In these new skirts there is a suggestion of a return of the crinoline, or at least of a return to the round skirt which may, before the first of the year, be a thing that is again in vogue.

We have, indeed, the round skirt now. I am describing a dress worn by Mrs. Potter Palmer a few days ago. It was a standard blue foulard, figured with many fancy stampings, all in geometric designs. Circles, squares and triangles in cream covered its blue surface.

The skirt, the couturiere who made it informed the writer, was cut perfectly round, slightly longer in the back than in the front. The fulness from the waist to the hips was confined by many rows of shirring which were placed so close to

AN ARTISTIC RECEPTION GOWN.

This exquisite creation is made of white silk gauze figured in a large conventional pattern in palest green. It is mounted on a transparency of green chiffon on satin. The corsage is draped in the most graceful way over a lattice work of green satin ribbon, which also forms the close fitting sleeves. A trail of manse clematis with leaves and tendrils carried from the breast and across the front of the gown affords a charming note of contrasting color.

waist was of the white embroidery to match the yoke. The sleeves were of tulle shirred over a white taffeta foundation."

The letter concludes: "You can imagine the pretty soft coolness of such a gown and the sensation it made in a wilderness of color."

A brilliant touch of color is given these rather sombre gowns by the stock which is of bright blue or green, or even of scarlet. For the making of these stocks the newest colors are used, the fair pale shades of green and the startling greenish blues being very popular. In reds, geranium leads at present, its ripe brilliancy making it a favorite, as it gives to costumes the one touch they may lack.

FANCY STITCHING.

The combinations in materials grow more numerous, instead of fewer. The tailor-made gown has gone from simplicity to complicity and you see gowns of satin cloth trimmed with silver appliqué; and tailor-made costumes of cashmere decorated with designs in velvet. These designs are applied freely to yoke and sleeves and are put upon the skirt in panels; they are also used for trimming the bare spaces in the skirt where the ruffle is put on in scallops.

In its beauty of stitching, the tailor-made gown still reigns alone and supreme. Stitchings are numerous and complicated and are put on in all sorts of ways. Stitching has become a profession, or rather a regular occupation; and there are seamstresses who devote all their time to it. The handsomest tailor gowns are given into their hands and, with careful fingers, they guide the machine along the outlines of the seams in a way that marks the tailor-made dress and gives it a distinction of its own.

such other that they made a yoke which was almost a trimming for the skirt. Below this shirred yoke the skirt flared a little and was trimmed around the foot with many ruffles, put on in curved shape, some draped high; and others extending to the foot of the skirt.

MRS. PALMER'S DRESS.

The waist had a shirred yoke and the tops of the sleeves were shirred. This gave a rather pretty and decidedly juvenile appearance to the waist, though the front was brought down in a long point in the middle of the belt. A broad girdle of artichoke green satin confined the waist. The hat was a marvel in green and pink, the two colors being cunningly mingled as in a flower garden.

Mrs. Edwin Gould, who has been creating something of a sensation over here for her youth, her good looks and her elegant gowns, and who was recently presented at court, wore a few days ago a dress which attracted attention. It was in black and white those two most desirable colors from a modiste's standpoint. "Give me black and white and I can do anything," said a fashionable dressmaker the other day, running her hands through a chiffon flounce of black, and caressingly draping it over a white satin skirt.

Mrs. Gould's dress, as worn in London and described by a girl correspondent in a letter to an artist friend in Paris, was all in black and white.

"The skirt," said the letter, "was a black silk tulle, very shiny and as thin as a spider web. It was cut round and was shirred at the waist line until it was exactly the same fulness all the way around. It was made over a skirt of white taffeta with a ruffle of embroidery. The skirt had a yoke of white taffeta, embroidered in silver.

"The waist was of black tulle with a yoke of embroidered taffeta set over a vest of tulle. The lower part of the

Nor are the seams the only parts that are stitched. The tailor-made dresses are threaded along the hem with handsome flowers in stitched designs. The most expert stitchers use the natural colors and the result is a border of flowers in stitched design, along the hem of the skirt, and upon the waist. Heavy silk is used for stitching, but no attempt is made at embroidery or other fancy stitch. A rapid stitcher will complete a tailor-made gown in three days and the result will be extremely neat.

A decided combination in materials is afforded by the new methods of using jet, steel, and gun metal as yokes. Entire yokes are made of these materials, sewed upon a foundation in tiny pieces, in such a way as to cover the yoke completely. This is worn over a dress of thin substance, even over tulle and other transparencies, and thus the armor becomes a part of the transparent waist.

THE SINGLE ROSE.

The single rose has appeared as a fashionable trimming. Many are the hats of tan colored and corn colored straw and of straw in its natural shades that are trimmed with tulle, put around the crown in the form of a big soft roll that completely hides the crown. At one side there is a big nodding rose of pink or red or white standing high upon its stalk with a leaf or two.

The rose is used upon the back of the stock and it is also seen upon the belt and on the parasol. Four large handsome roses of silk or velvet are used for this purpose and often you will find them scented with a powder which is concealed in their stalk.

Large bows of new ribbon are used in connection with these roses. The ribbon is of satin brocade with velvet flowers in their natural colors. In silk ribbons you see flowers of cashmere set in and very natural they look with their dull hues; all ribbons are elaborately

A REVIVAL OF AN OLD FASHION.

Among the other revivals of quaint and half forgotten styles, the garland for the hair has appeared. These are worn with evening gowns, and are made of fruit, foliage or flowers, whichever is most becoming and best suited to the costume it is to accompany.

brocaded and there are few materials that are not mingled in with the silk and satin groundwork of the ribbon.

A LACE NOVELTY.

Another novelty of the season is the lace braid which is used for trimming many waists. It looks like lace, but is much coarser and is generally in the form of an insertion. It comes in cotton and silk of all colors. It is of renaissance pattern and is used for sewing upon the waist between rows of tucks. This lace braid reminds you, in some patterns, a little of the old-fashioned torchon which in its day enjoyed such a popularity.

Among the transparent materials that are new this season is a crash so coarse that the lining is visible. Threads of the crash are drawn and ribbons run through. In this way a neat shirring is made for the yoke. Ecru colored crash, over a lining of pink, is very pretty, especially when work with a sash and stock of pink and an ecru hat with a nodding pink rose.

The functions of pink have been increased this season by the many new shades. Many of these have familiar names, like the Lawson pink of a couple of seasons ago. The Dewey pink is a very pale pink; while the Empire pink is rather deep. Brunettes can aspire to all these shades, unless it be the deepest of them, but the blonde must be careful. It takes very little to make a fair complexion muddy by the side of a ripe pink. Better choose the fair shades, even though they fade a little during the summer.

The plain colors will not rule this fall; it is to be a brocade season; and the brocades will cunningly mingle velvet and silk, lace and cotton, until the prettiest of results are obtained.

Substitute for Sport.

Startling Innovation In School Methods Tried With Success In England—Boys Making Roads and Building Embankments.

London, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—An innovation in scholastic training that has caused the liveliest discussion here has just made its appearance in a public school that numbers many American and Canadian boys among its members. The institution is known as Claymore and is one of the schools that are distinctly modern in character and methods. The buildings are not overgrown with ivy and inscribed with the initials of countless personages, more or less distinguished, who were gathered to their fathers centuries ago. But despite this shyness in the matter of traditions and of ancient architectural points of interest, the school is more talked of today than any institute of learning in the United Kingdom.

The innovation referred to above consists of setting the boys to do manual work, teaching them in fact to labor as navvies, bricklayers, hod-carriers, road-makers and at other perspiration-provoking avocations. The natives of the locality are treated one day to the spectacle of the boys taking their walks abroad two by two wearing the conventional chimney-pot hat, Eton jacket and immaculate broad white collar of the typical public school boy in this country, and the next to the sight of the same boys in every variety of unidress uniform, sweating away with pick and shovel and wheelbarrow, digging, pounding, burrowing and hauling, all with a set plan in view. The boys are under the supervision of regular instructors, who teach them how to handle the spade and pick after the most approved fashion of the skilled navvy, how to build embankments, make drains, dig trenches and construct roads.

The principal of the school in which this experiment is being tried, Alexander Devine, is very careful to point out that their academy not unknown to fame, where the spelling of w-i-n-d-o-w was the prelude to cleaning the same, does not furnish an example to be followed, and the young gentlemen of Claysmore school are not expected to have sympathy with the hewers of wood and the drawers of water. The intention is to strengthen the muscles of the youth while at the same time giving the boys instruction in a line that may some day be useful to them and cannot in any case be as wasteful as sport, which is mere playing at work.

Moreover, it is pointed out, the short-sighted boy and the delicate lad cannot play at cricket or football and so continue to be delicate for want of exercise, while every boy can learn to drive a nail or handle a spade. The headmaster who has adopted this bold innovation believes that true manual training is rough, out-door work, the tastes of primitive man, of the colonist and the explorer. Any school with a few acres of ground, will provide infinite scope for manual work of the kind that he recommends. There are swimming ponds to be dug, trees to be felled, roads to be built and so forth without end. To be noble the work ought to be constructive and for the benefit of the community. The boy who wishes to avoid manual work is just the boy who needs it most.

To the credit of the boys and the system, it should be stated, however, that few shirk the work they are called upon to do since the introduction of this system into Claysmore. Many seem to regard it as a welcome respite from the drudgery of lessons, and when the word is given for the school to adjourn to the dirt heap, the scholars troop out with whoops of delight and dig and delve with all the enthusiasm of gutter children making mud pies.

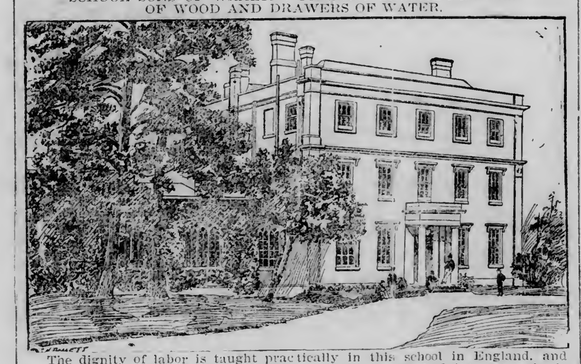
Of the practical results of the work the head master says: "No exercise is more health-giving. Physical training derived not wholly from games, but in a reasonable proportion from useful labor, gives a sounder physique than the mere alternation of study with games. We all know the danger of muscular strain, the 'athlete's heart,' that attend excessive devotion to athletic sports. There is nothing of this, of course, in quiet, steady, open-air work."

But the physical benefits are the least important. There are unlooked for effects on the mental faculties on the one hand. No rest from brain work is so complete as that afforded by steady mechanical exercise. On the other, the mentally lazy boy is also nearly always lazy in respect to out-door work, though he may strive at games. Here laziness cannot pass muster. The cloven hoof is at once detached, and when the physical laziness is corrected, you have gone a long way towards removing its mental counterpart. Unimaginative boys often have their faculties quickened by the touch of reality that manual labor gives. Boys who cannot be made to see the simplest truth of geometry may readily find them in practical measurement. And boys whose mental processes are apt to be slovenly, receive a wholesome correction from the enforced accuracy of actual work.

"But the moral effects of manual labor are the noblest and most far-reaching of its benefits. St. Benedict's ordinance might have been written for schools: 'Idleness is an enemy of the soul, the brethren ought to be employed at certain hours of the day in laboring with their hands.' A thousand years have not taught us a better exorcism for evil passions. 'It is idle to attempt to catalogue the benefits that spring from manual toil. Habits of resource and self-reliance; completion of work begun; achievements won by patient effort over material obstacles; all have an enduring effect in the formation of character. These things are not to be won by pursuing a stereotyped athletic curriculum."

It looks therefore as though the famous statement "England's victories are won on her football field" will, some day have to be changed to, "Britain's battles are won on her dirt-heaps."

SCIONS OF WEALTHY HOUSES TAUGHT TO WIELD A SHOVEL—IN THIS SCHOOL SONS OF WEALTHY PARENTS BECOME HEWERS OF WOOD AND DRAWERS OF WATER.



The dignity of labor is taught practically in this school in England, and some educators are in favor of introducing the same method into our schools here. The boys are taught to handle pick and shovel as well as books and writing materials.

BOYS OF ARISTOCRATIC ENGLAND LEARN LESSONS OF REAL DEMOCRACY.

Sons of wealthy parents don rough work-a-day attire, and side by side with a peasant's son they have to perform tasks which seem to be menial. To remove the idea that any work is menial and to inculcate the belief that all labor is honorable is the object of the instruction.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

Go to the Limit In Excluding Liquor Dealers.

St. Paul, June 15.—The Odd Fellows in the grand lodge discussed the liquor question yesterday and went to the extreme limit in excluding liquor dealers of every kind and description.

The contest was precipitated over a report of the judiciary committee. The grand master had ruled in several instances that the rule excluding liquor dealers, bartenders and professional gamblers from membership in the order applied to agents for breweries or liquor houses, hotel keepers who have bars in their hotels, and even druggists who sell liquor. The judiciary committee disputed these decisions on the ground that they were in conflict with the common law of the order, as presented by the sovereign grand lodge. The grand lodge in turn reversed the committee and sustained the grand master, so that agents, druggists and hotel keepers who sell liquor in any form are excluded from membership in the order in this state.

William McGregor, of Minneapolis, was elected grand warden on the first ballot. The home directors chosen are: D. W. Stinson, of Austin, in place of Jacob Newsalt, of Owatonna, term expired; T. W. Hugo, of Duluth, re-elected; Mrs. Kelsey, the Rebekahs, vice Mrs. H. C. C. Hotaling, of Mapleton; A. W. Norton, of Northfield, vice C. W. Budd, of Montevideo. Director Budd resigned because his wife is a member of the board and he did not believe that two members of the same family should continue as members.

The Rebekah assembly elected officers today. Mrs. Mary Anderson, of Rochester, was advanced from vice-president to the president's chair; Mrs. Kelsey, the retiring president, was recommended for a place on the home directory, to which she was elected by the grand lodge. Mrs. Mary Johnson, of Appleton, was chosen vice-president; Mrs. Maggie Easton, of Warren, warden; Mrs. Eunice Melville, of Minneapolis, re-elected secretary; Mrs. Bertha Lever, Minneapolis, treasurer.

HAVE A BIG JOB.

United Powers in China Will Be Kept Busy.

London, June 15, 4:20 a. m.—Observers at Shanghai and Tien Tsin think there is a great deal more trouble ahead for the concert of powers than merely reinforcing Pekin with 200 men. Serious disturbances are taking place at Yung Nan Fu and Meng Tze, as well as at other points at a considerable distance from the capital. The whole Chinese empire seems to be in a ferment. The intentions of the empress dowager are still conveyed with a balance of testimony of the side of a determination to expel the appropriators of a part of her country or to lose her dynasty in the attempt.

It is stated of her that on Monday, following the murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation, she was roused to a sense of danger and went personally to the Yung Ting gate of Pekin, where she advised the rioters to disperse. But she took no steps to apply force and the appearance of things is more threatening than before.

While Admiral Seymour, with the international relief column, is forcing his way to Pekin, several of the powers are arranging largely to reinforce their details at Tien Tsin. Germany sending 2,500 men, Great Britain sent 600 from Hong Kong yesterday and 400 will go Sunday. Italy has ordered 1000 to hold themselves in readiness. Russia, according to a St. Petersburg dispatch of Wednesday, has decided to bring her force at Tien Tsin up to 6000. Thus the combined forces at Tien Tsin will probably be about 10,000 men.

The Times publishes the following dispatch from Tien Tsin, via Shanghai, June 14: "A serious engagement has occurred between the international column and the Mohammedan troops of Gen. Tung Fuh Siang, near Pekin. Byron Brennan, British consul at Shanghai, who is now in London, says that these Mohammedans are armed with machine guns and repeating rifles."

"Pleasant Ways for Summer Days."

Is the title of the Grand Trunk railway system's new summer tourist folder which together with other descriptive literature can be had on application to J. H. Burgis, city passenger and ticket agent, 219 Clark street, corner Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

tion, and have the public at their mercy.

We find that every manufactured article that is of prime necessity to our people is controlled by a trust and has been arbitrarily advanced in price from 25 to over 100 per cent.

MARKED UP BY TRUSTS.

While the price level of our farm products have been lowered by the monetary legislation, the price of everything the farmers have to buy has been marked up by the trusts.

It is claimed that the tariff is the mother of trusts and to a certain extent that is so. Tariff builds a wall around a country and keeps foreign goods out—then those inside the wall combine they have a monopoly. Tear down that wall and those inside will have to compete with foreign goods and the monopoly will be at an end.

Again it has been shown by the highest authority that railroad discrimination builds up many trusts and crushes thousands of small dealers.

For twenty years we have legislated against this practice. Have created state and national boards, fixed penalties and all that. Now it seems that these are all failures and this fact is driving many of our most conservative people to demanding governmental ownership of railroads.

It is unquestionably true that special privilege—in the way of tariff laws—franchises—charters and other special legislation is at the bottom of nearly all the objectionable combinations in this country.

It is also true that from this source, from the attempt to get and to maintain special privilege, comes the food of corruption and debauchery that is destroying our institutions.

I will not discuss remedies—perhaps no complete remedy can be devised in advance.

As the trust is a development so it may be that a remedy will be a matter of development. But whatever the remedy is, it is clear that it is going to require intense earnestness and a determined effort to deal with the trusts.

It is also admitted on all hands that it is going to require legislation. The government will have to act.

This being the question which of the two great parties as they are controlled today will be the most likely to make an honest and determined effort to deal with this question.

Looking over the field we find that all of the men connected with trusts supported McKinley in '96.

At present there is an ice trust scandal involving some so-called Democrats in New York, but they are all Mark Hanna Democrats. On all occasions Hanna acts as the defender of the trusts. Already some of the Republican leaders are boasting they will collect from the trusts a campaign fund of $25,000,000 with which to begin the campaign, and afterwards will act as much more as they need.

So far as I know there is not a trust in America that wants Bryan elected. Is there any man here so simple as to believe that if Mark Hanna should succeed in electing McKinley with trust money that there will be any effective legislation on this subject. That is the aspect of this question which confronts the American people.

GREAT CAREER.

For over a third of a century our country has been one of the greatest world powers on this globe. No other country has wielded such an influence for good. Not through our armies, or our fleets, because we had none—not through material wealth or display of brute force, but through our high ideals—our high standards of justice, and the principles of liberty and human rights that we represented.

We stood for the doctrines of equality—and for government by the consent of the governed. Our declaration of independence had become the gospel of a new civilization for mankind.

Our example enclosed and to a degree changed the institutions not only of Europe but of the world. Under every sun and on every continent men sought to pattern after us. All that makes the nineteenth century glorious has its roots in our high ideals.

Now this glorious career is to be overthrown—we are to step down from our high estate and get on to the low plains of brute force and enter into a scramble with the imperialistic—the despotic nations of the earth in bullying, plundering and despoiling a weaker people.

CUBA.

In the spring of 1898 the American conscience and sense of justice forced the administration against the protests of the bondholding manipulators to go to the rescue of oppressed and outraged Cuba.

Congress speaking the sentiment of the American people adopted a resolution declaring that the Cubans were and of right ought to be free and independent, that as soon as order was restored and a stable government was established, we would withdraw from the island and leave the Cubans to govern themselves.

Here we took high ground, we won the admiration of mankind—we disdained the thought of conquest or plunder and went forth the champions of liberty. But no sooner had we been declared than the classes which had opposed it, rushed in to plunder liberator and liberated. Capacity was rejected and favoritism filled the offices. We had an era of embalmed beef, embalmed contracts, embalmed ships and embalmed patriotism. The treasury was looted, the soldier was robbed and the Cubans simply changed masters.

Now the same classes are striving to prevent our nation from keeping its word. The war has been over two years yet it is evident that unless there is a change of administration our honor will be broken and the American flag will become as hated in Cuba as the Spanish flag was.

Already we have Cuban scandals, where the Spanish stole thousands the hungry American reaches for millions. A man who had helped Mark Hanna steal a senatorship in Ohio was selected by the administration to manage Cuban finances, and he has come up to the highest expectations. His management has been so able that there is little left for anybody else to manage. The Spaniard needed time, the Hannaite did not. Like Caesar he came, he saw, he conquered.

PORTO RICO.

For seven years our fathers fought to establish the principle that there shall be no taxation without representation. For one hundred and twenty-five years we have been true to that principle and all the world was moving toward it.

Now at the dictation of the trusts the American government has trampled it under foot and has actively promulgated the creed of King George.

There are nearly a million of inhabitants in Porto Rico. They are a peaceable, industrious, intelligent and law abiding people, who had carried on commerce with all the world.

In 1898 they welcomed our army, they cheered our flag, and they strewed flowers on the path of Gen. Miles, who issued a proclamation in which he told them of the principles of our government, that they should be citizens of our country and enjoy all the blessings of our flag. These people believed us, trusted us, yet for two years we cut them off from the world and brought them to starvation.

The president sent a message to congress stating that it was our plain duty to treat them as citizens and let them trade free with our country, and every honest Republican in America said Amen.

Then Mr. Oxnard a sugar trust magnate rushed to Washington and forced congress to change its policy and forced the president to eat his words. He forced congress to pass and forced the president to sign a bill which treats the Porto Ricans not as citizens but as subjects and compels them to pay tariff taxes in trading with us.

To use Tom Reed's contemptuous language "the idea of making the Porto Ricans three-quarter citizens is certainly novel." Look at the spectacle, one trust-magnate compels the American government to violate every principle that underlies our institutions, and a mantle into the mind every principle of justice.

Search history, read the annals of man and in no land, under no sun and among no people will you find a parallel. The genius of man has never conceived and the pencil of man has never painted such a spectacle.

One trust magnate seizes the American government by the throat with one hand, he clutches a Republican congressman with the other, he clutches a vacillating president and he chokes them till their tongues lap from their mouths, he chokes them until they deny their origin, until they swallow their words—until they betray their country.

If one trust vulture can thus handle a Republican administration, what do you suppose will happen when the trusts all clap their wings?

Yet my friends in spite of this fearful object lesson, in spite of this humiliating example, there are men in this country who are so lost to truth, who are so dead to shame that they will insult the intelligence of the American people by telling them that if they will only re-elect McKinley the Republican leaders will restrain the trusts.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Long before we declared war against Spain in April, the Filipinos had been fighting for their independence.

We treated them as allies and asked their co-operation against Spain. Their patriots and their generals and other officials now on file at Washington, show that some of these officials assured them that we would help them establish their independence.

But let us assume that this was not so. It is admitted they did all the fighting that was done on the land in the Philippine Islands. They had an army of about 30,000 men—we had a small garrison at Manilla—they defeated and captured all the Spanish forces on the islands, and they surrounded Manilla and made the escape of the Spanish impossible.

It required no promise from us—they read our history and the resolution of congress relating to Cuba. They had a right to assume that we would be true to our principles, and over and above all this they had and have the same right to their independence that we have, and that all people have.

Dewey sunk the Spanish fleet on May 1, 1898, and the administration talked of having him come away and leaving the Philipines to carry on the work which they had begun themselves; then the administration concluded to keep one island as a naval station and it consulted Dewey as to which was the most desirable, and he recommended Luzon. Then the English ambassador called at the White House and urged McKinley to keep all of the islands and to go into the colonial business with England.

You remember the administration papers told us in great head lines that England loved us so much that she insisted we should keep all of the islands.

It has since developed that at that time Germany was trying to buy the islands of Spain—England did not want Germany for a neighbor in the South seas, because she could not dictate German policy as she could dictate American policy, and could not manipulate German statesmen as she could American politicians. If she could not have the islands herself, then she wanted them held by a country which she could control.

Then there was a concerted move by the corrupt commercial interests that sank special privileges and fatten on exploiting them, to have the government keep the islands.

These forces controlled the administration and English diplomacy drummed. Early in the summer of 1898, the administration deliberately entered on a policy of deception. Instead of providence and destiny, it was the British ambassador and the trusts that controlled.

The Philippine government applied to McKinley repeatedly for a declaration of policy. It asked whether the Philippine people were to be treated the same as the Cubans, but the president simply gave them fine platitudes and avoided giving an answer.

When the peace commission met in Paris the administration demanded of Spain the whole of the Philippine islands, and finally agreed to pay $2 a head for the people. Providence neither furnished the money nor endorsed the paper.

The Philippine government had sent a representative to Paris to look after the interests of 10,000,000 people. But the doors of the commission were slammed in his face, not by destiny, which is always polite, nor by providence, who is kind, but by the McKinley administration, which had become intoxicated.

Meantime the Philippine government and the Philippine army made itself master of the whole of the Philippine islands, except Manilla, which was held by us.

At the time the treaty was signed in December we held a territory about fifteen miles square and the entire remainder of the archipelago was in the possession and control of the Philippine government and Philippine army, with the exception of the town of Iloilo, which they captured one week later.

So that when Spain signed the treaty she had nothing left to sell us. The land was in possession of the inhabitants to whom it belonged. Her quit claim deed was not worth recording.

But suppose she had been in absolute possession she could not sell us her people—a government can only sell property and agree not to interfere—it can not sell human souls.

Therefore, the treaty could give us no rights over those people.

What then are our legal rights in the Philippines? We have simply the rights of conquerors; simply such rights as brute force can give us. We have the same right to send an army to Germany or France and subjugate those people that we have to send one to the Philippine islands.

As a matter of fact the administration did not rely on the treaty. The treaty was not ratified by our senate until Feb. 6, 1899, and not by the Spanish hosts till later, and it did not go into force, and could convey no rights whatever until ratified.

Yet on Dec. 21, 1898, six weeks before the treaty could give any rights, President McKinley issued his famous order commanding Gen. Otis to extend the military government of Manilla to the whole of the islands. Telling the Filipino people that they must accept American tax collectors instead of their own, whom they had appointed to take the place of the Spanish, and that they must recognize American sovereignty over their country or be shot down. He said to them that they had simply changed masters, that formerly they were subjects of Spain, and now of the United States; it is safe to say that providence would have waited until the treaty was ratified.

But so intoxicated was McKinley with the idea of joining hands with England in a career of imperialism, that he did not even wait for the treaty to be ratified.

That order could not be executed without war. It could not be executed without destroying the victorious Philippine army of over 30,000 men, and the now well established Philippine government.

The war with Spain was over. Here was an order to begin a new war. A war begun not by congress as the constitution requires, but by the president. A war against a people who had done us no harm who had fought all the battles that were fought on the islands, a war on allies whom we had tried to deceive and now proposed to shoot down.

Do you wonder that the Filipino people despise us?

The Spanish treaty was ratified by the senate on Feb. 6, 1899, and the administration got the senate to adopt a resolution declaring that the Philippine islands should not become an integral part of the republic, and that the inhabitants of said islands should not become citizens of this republic. On the same day Senator Bacon offered a resolution which declared that whenever the Filipinos established a stable government, which in the judgment of our government, was worthy of recognition, (we to be the judges) that then we would withdraw from the islands on such terms as might be just (for example let them pay us back our money and do whatever else might be just). But this resolution was defeated. Senator Hanna marshalled all the forces of the administration against it, and when the vote was taken it was a tie—and the late Vice President Hobart cast the deciding vote against it.

Here the Filipino people were told first that they could never have or share the blessings of our institutions, and second that no matter how good a government they might establish, that we never would withdraw, and that they never could have their independence.

My friends, if they establish a government which in our judgment is a good government, are they not entitled to their independence just as much as we are to ours?

Here the administration showed its true purpose. Why indulge in cant and hypocracy about providence and destiny after our dishonest scheming has been exposed.

INTENDED TO DECEIVE.

You see it is not a question of expansion. The talk about expansion is misleading. The intended issue before us is simply and solely a question of imperialism.

When we got Louisiana—when we got Florida—when we got Texas—when we got New Mexico, the treaties in each case provided the territory should become an integral part of the republic, and that the inhabitants should be citizens of this republic, and they did not object.

This was expansion—this was growth—this was development. It was extending the principles of the Declaration of Independence to more people—it was an extension of free institutions.

Let me say that I believe in growth—I believe that our institutions will develop along constitutional lines, until with the consent of the government from the frozen seas of the North to the warm currents of the South, there will be one great free people.

But no such question is presented to the American people now. The sole question now is, shall we change the principles of our government?

There are but two systems of government known to man—government by brute force and government by the consent of the governed.

The first is as old as the ages and has covered the earth with misery since the dawn of time. It is the relic of darkness and savagery.

The second is our system—a little over a century old and has done more for the elevation of man in that hundred years than the other system did in the thousands that had gone before.

Now we are asked to give up the new and go back to the old. We are going to govern people against their will—we are going to have subjects.

It was once said that this country could not remain part slave and part free—neither can it long remain part subject and part citizen.

Lincoln once said that no man is good enough to govern another, and that a people that refuses to give freedom to others can not long retain it themself.

No greater truth was ever uttered. The question therefore involves not simply the liberty of the Filipinos but the liberty of the American people.

This is why so many of the great men of the land are raising such a cry of alarm.

This is why ex-Senator Boutwell, ex-Senator Edmunds, John Sherman, Tom Reed, ex-President Harrison, ex-Senator Henderson and thousands of men who helped to found the Republican party and made it invincible, are now denouncing and now denouncing the course of the administration as destructive of American institutions.

The Republican party was born of the humanities and when guided by the great Lincoln it stood for human rights, strange as it may seem to you there was a time when the Republican party was dedicated the Declaration of Independence. But it has gone over to the opposite pole. From Lincoln and liberty it has slid down to Hanna and hunger.

CONCLUDING FOR MR. TOWNE.

In conclusion the speaker told the story of how some members of the party, after pleading against such a violation of the principles of the party as the platform of 1896, left the convention and the party. Continuing he said: "It required remarkable heroism to cut loose as these men did. It required a spirit of self-sacrifice to turn away from the associations of years past. The men who did it will go down in history as among the greatest patriots of the country. Prominent among them was a young man already a great statesman and high in the councils of his party. He gave up position and honors that he might be true to his convictions. That man was a distinguished citizen of your city. (Loud and continued applause.) So long as Duluth contains men of the character and self-sacrifice of Charles A. Towne, so long will you continue on your great and imperial career."

At the conclusion of Governor Altgeld's speech Mr. Towne arose and bespoke attention. The crowd, which had started out, stopped and listened.

"Friends," said Mr. Towne, "let us give three cheers for the Declaration of Independence and for government for, by and of the people."

The cheers were given with a will, and the rafters of the Armory never quivered under such a volume of sound as went up in honor of the most cherished institutions of the republic.

DEMOCRATS CONVENE

Large Attendance of Delegates at the St. Louis County Convention.

A LONG DISCUSSION

On Mode of Selecting Delegation to St. Paul---The List Chosen.

The Democratic county convention at the city hall yesterday afternoon opened quietly. The attendance of delegates was large. Eveleth, Biwabik, Hibbing, Tower, Ely and Virginia were represented among the outside towns. Among the outsiders were: J. D. Murphy, T. J. Walsh, W. H. Champaign and William Bierraid, of Tower; J. B. Connors, J. P. Leibel, Bryan O'Rourke and S. Lekde, of Hibbing; H. Van Blacrom and A. Bedford, of Ely; J. W. Crockett and William Moore, of Biwabik.

Early in the afternoon there were rumors that there might be a contest over the choice of a man to recommend as a delegate-at-large to Kansas City. T. T. Hudson had been supposed to be the man who would get the endorsement, but a movement to bring out C. O. Baldwin was strong when the convention opened.

Roger S. Powell called the convention to order. P. J. Neff nominated Beriah Magoffin for chairman. J. D. Murphy was suggested for secretary, but said he would rather not act, and B. F. Anderson was chosen.

W. R. Spencer moved that the chair appoint a committee of seven on credentials, and this being carried, the chair named Frank Crassweller, J. D. Murphy, of Tower; James A. Brady, Morris Thomas and J. B. Connors, of Hibbing.

While the committee was out P. J. Neff addressed the convention by invitation. His remarks were greeted with much applause.

Henry Truelsen also spoke and was strong in his expression of the hope that Charles A. Towne would be selected as the candidate for the vice presidency.

John E. Davies also made an eloquent speech that was received with much enthusiasm.

The committee on credentials made its report, showing no contests.

The temporary organization was made permanent.

The following committee of five on resolutions was named: Henry Truelsen, George Chester, J. H. Gerlich, W. R. Spencer, Leroy Koons, P. J. Neff.

There were several motions for the appointment of a committee to select delegates to the state convention.

Frank Crassweller moved an amendment to all that the chairman and secretary be empowered to certify to the State convention the names of fifty-two delegates who shall be selected by Charles A. Towne. This Mr. Crassweller explained to be intended as a compliment to Mr. Towne, who is a candidate for the vice presidency. He thought as all were in accord with Mr. Towne it would be a fine compliment to allow him to select such men as would do him most good. It would be all right to let the delegates so chosen select a delegate-at-large.

J. E. Davies endorsed this, emphasizing the fact that the delegation could be well depended on to support the right men for delegate-at-large.

W. R. Spencer argued that it was unnecessary to do this, for every man is with Mr. Towne. Why is this done? he asked. If Mr. Towne wants it, he was willing, but he did not think this was so. Mr. Towne wants his nomination at Kansas City to come as a spontaneous expression and not anything obtained by manipulation such as this might be construed to be. He favored proceeding along regular lines.

Mr. Crassweller said that he was acting independently of everyone. Mr. Towne knew nothing of it, and he had merely presented it as a course complimentary to Mr. Towne.

W. R. Spencer said that the move would mean that a couple of other gentlemen would make up a list and take it to Mr. Towne. Of course he could not do anything but approve it and it would go. He argued again that the convention should select its delegates in regular order.

J. E. Davies argued in support of Mr. Crassweller's motion.

J. D. Murphy spoke in favor of a regular selection of delegates as provided for in the call.

P. J. Neff said that this is a Democratic convention and that it is not time to introduce Republican methods of running conventions. He thought Mr. Towne had been done an injustice and placed in an embarrassing situation by the people trying to have the course proposed by Mr. Crassweller adopted.

F. L. Ryan moved that the amendment be laid on the table. This was carried by a very large majority.

After much talk and efforts on the part of delegates to all talk at once, it was decided to appoint a committee consisting of eight from Duluth and four from outside to select fifty-two delegates to the state convention. The committee named consisted of: John D. Brady, W. R. Spencer, A. J. Taylor, P. J. Neff, F. L. Ryan, David Nelson, J. B. Dunphy, David Sang, John D. Murphy, of Tower; H. Van Bearoem, of Ely; J. P. Siebel, of Hibbing; M. Russell, of Proctorknott.

Ex-Governor Altgeld was introduced amid great cheers and made a short address. He said he felt an interest in the Northwestern people, having campaigned among them, and he had been impressed with their industry and their patriotism. They are the people laying the foundation of empires. The Northwestern people are producers whose products sell in the open market. The people are therefore interested in the value of the dollar and the value of the man. The government has been un-American for thirty years; its policy dictated by foreign interests. The people will sooner or later turn to a policy dictated by Americans for Americans.

The day of smooth politics, when the best politician was he who could fool the most people, is passing. The American people today are calling for earnest men; men who stand for justice, who will die for right. No party can do anything for this country except an honest, upright party with definite principles. The day is ripe for something like a Cromwellian spirit in this country. If four years ago you had been told we would be called on to defend the Declaration of Independence you would have said the men who told you so were crazy, yet we have seen this administration trample it under foot. Its papers have said it is made up of glittering generalities. Think of that! Those principles that for 125 years have been the foundation on which we have built our government.

Offices are not great except as men by their character make them great. He urged the selection of good men for office. Men of heroism are needed, but he emphasized also that there is heroism in private life as elevating and commendable as that of people in high places.

The delegates to the state convention recommended were as follows: C. O. Baldwin, T. T. Hudson, B. Magoffin, F. L. Ryan, R. C. Mitchell, Morris Thomas, Bert Fesler, C. J. Towne, D. H. Costello, W. R. Spencer, Henry Truelsen, Leonidas Merritt, J. E. Davies, P. J. Walsh, S. Lekve, Bryan O'Rourke, A. J. Frantz, A. C. Weiss, H. E. Webster, W. H. Carey, Harris Bennett, P. J. Mulligan, D. D. Murray, G. N. LaVaque, G. F. Chester, H. S. Mills, H. G. Davis, W. E. Curren, O. W. Nelson, S. C. Murphy, James Brady, P. McDonnell, P. J. Neff, J. H. D. Gerlich, A. W. E. McEwen, S. H. Moer, M. A. Petre, M. L. Fay, John Costin, Jr., J. D. Brady, L. C. Harris, Theodore Hollister, J. B. Dunphy, M. F. Kelleher, E. A. Lindgren, D. D. Crowley, J. A. Mannheim, J. H. Robb, B. F. Anderson, G. L. Spangler, J. C. Carey, J. R. Randall.

A resolution introduced by David Sang was passed instructing the delegation to vote as a unit on all questions.

Charles A. Towne was called upon for a speech just as he was leaving the hall with Mr. Altgeld, and he responded in a talk of about ten minutes. He congratulated the convention on the fine attendance and also upon the opportunity it had had of hearing ex-Governor Altgeld. He spoke in very high terms of him, and said that association with him had made him familiar with the high qualities of the very much misrepresented public man. He knew him to be a man of high ideals, of steadfast purpose, willing to sacrifice anything for the right, but conceding nothing that would embarrass his principles or be in opposition to his sense of justice and honor. In reference to himself he said that he would not permit the use of his name as a candidate for vice-president except in the belief that he might be able to do some good for the Democratic party and its allies in this campaign.

New and unheard of questions are before the people in this campaign, said Mr. Towne. The assignment of the United States has been embroiled in war by a president who has not yet even received the official sanction of his party. Four years ago fifteen men could not have been found in all Minnesota who would have believed that the president of the United States would declare and conduct war against a foreign people even before the ratification of the treaty which gave us dominion over them, and for the purpose of subjugating them against their wills. In reference to the South African republic he spoke feelingly. He said that he was not at the recention to the Boer envoys in St. Paul. He could not but have felt pain at a manifest invasion of human liberty when his own government was doing the same thing toward the Philippine people that the British are doing to the South African patriots. But he did believe that the true sentiment of the American people is found in the policy of the McKinley government. He believed that the spirit of the declaration of independence still lives and that the people will uphold it when the opportunity offers.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The resolutions adopted were as follows:

The Democrats of St. Louis county, in convention assembled, reaffirm their belief in the fundamental doctrines of Democracy, and in the principles of the national platform adopted at Chicago in 1896 as a wise and authoritative statement of those doctrines.

We recognize William Jennings Bryan as the leader of the political forces in this country opposed to the present drift of the government as controlled by selfish interests, and we declare our absolute confidence in his honesty, courage, ability and patriotism. We congratulate the country that his inflexible purpose and strict adherence to principle stand in such hopeful contrast to the vacillation, uncertainty, weakness and subservience to dictation by cruel and powerful influences, manifested by the present chief executive.

We believe in the principle of bimetallism, and we demand the re-coining of the mints of the United States to the free and unrestricted coinage of both silver and gold at the existing legal ratio; the immediate increase in the volume of silver coin and silver certificates to be substituted, dollar for dollar, for the bank notes issued by private corporations under the special privileges granted by the law of March 14, 1900, and prior national banking laws, the remaining portion of the bank notes to be replaced with a paper currency issued by the government itself, the volume thereof to be so controlled under rules laid down by congress, as to maintain at all times a stable money market and a stable price level; all forms of money and currency to be kept on a parity, and all gold and silver coins and certificates and government currency to be a lawful tender for all debts public and private, except where otherwise specified in existing contracts, it being unlawful thenceforth to contract for the payment of any special form of money.

We favor the passage of a law for the graduated taxation of incomes, and a constitutional amendment for the purpose if necessary.

We demand the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

We favor the extension of the principles of the initiative and referendum and of the public ownership of natural monopolies.

We demand the enforcement of existing laws against trusts and combinations of capital for the arbitrary control of industry and trade, and the enactment of whatever additional legislation is necessary to insure the healthful play of competition in all great branches of business.

We demand the repeal of the so-called war taxes as being vexatious to the conduct of business, oppressive upon many industries, and productive of more money than is needed for the economical conduct of the government, thus constituting an encouragement to extravagance and corruption.

We believe that the principles of the Declaration of Independence lie at the very foundation of this government, and that, as our history progresses, instead of endeavoring to curtail the operation and meaning of that great charter of human liberties, it should be the constant ambition of the government and the people to approximate nearer and nearer to a complete realization of that high ideal.

We sympathize, as heretofore the American people have always done throughout our history, with the efforts of nations fighting for the right of self-government, and we extend our sincerest sympathy to those unfortunate republics of South Africa that for the past several months have been, with a heroism unsurpassed in the annals of the world, opposing the love of liberty to the lust of conquest and sustaining the cause of republican government against the greed of an empire which is restrained by no considerations of right or justice. If freedom must find a grave in South Africa it is our earnest hope and prayer that it may have a re-birth in the United States of America.

We demand the honest performance by this government of its promise, now more than two years old, to the people of Cuba that they should be given independence and self-government when we should have expelled the Spanish power and have pacified that island.

We denounce the present administration as one whose inconsistencies, abuses of power, betrayals of American principles and scandalous misgovernment, have rightfully forfeited the trust and confidence of the American people. We denounce it for betraying the cause of international bimetallism which in its platform of 1896 it solemnly promised to promote; for its open and notorious partnership with trusts and combines, as manifested by refusals upon the part of the attorney general and his subordinates to enforce existing laws, and the failure, with a majority in both houses of congress for the past two years, to enact any further legislation in this direction; for its breach of faith to the people of Cuba; for its cold indifference in the presence of the unprovoked onslaught of Great Britain upon the liberties of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State; for its open co-operation, if not indeed actual alliance with the British empire, for its change of a war for the liberation of Cuba into a war for the conquest and subjugation of the Philippine islands; for its practice of criminal extravagance under the hypocritical pretense of "benevolent assimilation;" for its broken promises to Porto Rico which the government welcomed to all the privileges and immunities of the United States but which the administration has loaded with the burdens and the ignominy of a vassal; for the shameful scandals in the conduct of the war with Spain and in the subsequent maladministration of the islands acquired in that war, as shown by the investigation under which Gen. Eagan was dismissed; by the disbursement of vast sums of money in army and naval contracts through favoritism and collusion; and by the postal and revenue frauds in those islands which are today affording the people of the United States an object lesson of what irresponsible and despotic government means when mistakenly attempted under republican institutions; and for unparalleled extravagance in the conduct of the government whereby the appropriations for the fiscal year 1901, without counting the $131,000,000 credited to the "war with Spain," which was expended nearly a year and a half ago, amounted to $56,000,000 in excess of our expenditures during the fiscal year 1898, before the Spanish war broke out, and without considering the many millions which everybody knows must next year be appropriated to supply a deficit created by the cowardice of the administration in not daring to confess the full extent of its extravagance.

We deprecate the present tendency of the Republican party toward the establishment of militarism in the United States and the transformation of this republic into an imperial system forcing its authority upon unwilling peoples and ruling subject nations against their consent. We declare that this nation cannot endure part free and part vassal, that the constitution of the United States must go wherever the flag of the republic is permanently planted; and it is our abiding conviction the American people will never deliberately approve a surrender of the fundamental doctrines of this government and the immortal principles of the Declaration of Independence.

We heartily endorse our noble fellow townsman the Hon. Charles A. Towne as the Democratic candidate for vice president of the United States and instruct our delegates to the state convention at Minneapolis to use their best efforts in the selection of delegates to the national Democratic convention at Kansas City to secure his nomination.

We favor the passage of laws that will give to the people of the United States a postal savings bank, where savings can be deposited with safety and where the funds will not be used against the wills of the wage earners.

Under the present method of selection of the state central committee each county is to have a member, and George F. Chester was recommended as the man for St. Louis county.

The appointment of a county committee of the usual number was authorized.

The convention then adjourned.

RHEUMATISM

Distorts Muscles, Shatters Nerves, Stiffens Joints.

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, acquired or inherited, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 121 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a Rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

ALL FOR BRYAN.

The California, Missouri, Kentucky, Georgia Delegates Instructed For Him.

Chicago, June 15.—By the action of the Democratic state conventions in California, Missouri, Kentucky, Georgia and Vermont yesterday, William J. Bryan is assured of the nomination for president on the Democratic ticket. The instructions given delegates by those five states carry Mr. Bryan's vote, it is believed, considerably over the two-thirds necessary to nomination.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 15.—The Democratic convention last night elected thirty-four delegates to the national convention at Kansas City and instructed them for William J. Bryan for president. The resolutions endorse the St. ouis world's fair, condemn the influence of trusts and corporations in political matters, and pledge the party to fight these on all occasions.

The following delegates-at-large were elected: Ex-Governor W. J. Stone, Governor Lon V. Stephens, David H. Ball and W. H. Phelps. The delegates were instructed to vote for the re-election of National Committeeman W. J. Stone.

Sacramento, Cal., June 15.—The Democratic state convention, in session here yesterday, adopted resolutions affirming the Chicago platform, favoring an amendment to the federal constitution to require the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people; demanding a similar amendment providing for an income tax; extending sympathy to the South African republics, condemning imperialism, condemning the Porto Rican tariff, affirming that the constitution follows the flag; favoring the abolition of all unnecessary war taxes, condemning trusts, and favoring the passage of laws for the exclusion of all Asiatic laborers.

Mr. Bryan received the enthusiastic endorsement of the convention and the delegates were instructed by it to use their best honorable means to secure his nomination.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—The Democratic state convention here yesterday adopted resolutions reaffirming the Chicago platform and instructing the twenty-six delegates from Kentucky to cast their votes for Bryan and to vote as a unit on all questions. The following delegates-at-large were elected: Senator Blackburn, ex-Governor James B. McCreary, Thomas McQuown, Charles B. Poynt, James P. Gregory, William S. Pryor, N. W. Utley and C. W. Bransford.

Atlanta, Ga., June 15.—Georgia's delegation to the Kansas City convention, which was chosen in the state Democratic convention here yesterday was instructed to cast its vote for William J. Bryan. The following are the delegates from the state at large: R. Wright, of Augusta; J. I. Spalding, of Atlanta; Wylie B. Jones, of Athens, and Lewis F. Garrd, of Columbus. The Chicago platform was endorsed. A complete state ticket was nominated headed by Allen W. Candler for governor.

The New Schedule.

If you are going East or South of Chicago look over new schedules on Pennsylvania Short Lines. Train service over this route has been improved and increased. New trains have been put on, including The New York Fast Line, a vestibule train leaving Chicago Union Station 12:30 noon. If unable to secure folders of the local ticket agents in the West, write H. R. Dering, A. G. P. Agt., 248 South Clark st., Chicago, for one.

SHERIFF'S EXECUTION SALE.—

Under and by virtue of an execution issued out of and under the seal of the district court of the state of Minnesota, in and for the Eleventh Judicial district and county of St. Louis, upon a judgment duly rendered in the municipal court of the city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of July, 1890, in an action therein, wherein John H. Cameron was plaintiff and Eugene A. Brindos was defendant in favor of said plaintiff and against said defendant for the sum of forty-five and 78-100 dollars, a transcript of which said judgment was thereafter and upon the 16th day of July, 1890, duly filed and docketed in the office of the clerk of said district court in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, which said judgment was by an instrument in writing dated February 1st, 1888, and filed in the office of the clerk of said district court on March 3d, 1899, duly assigned by the said John H. Cameron to Edward Donnelly, which said execution has to me as sheriff of said St. Louis County, been duly directed and delivered I have levied upon and will sell at public auction to the highest cash bidder, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county of St. Louis, on Saturday, the 14th day of July, 1900, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, all right, title and interest that above named judgment debtor had in and to the real estate hereinafter described on the 15th day of July, 1890, that being the date of rendition of said judgment, the description of the property being as follows, to-wit: All of lot two (2), in section thirty (30), in township fifty-one (51) north, of range fifteen (15) west, except the east two hundred and eight (208) feet of said lot two (2), all in St. Louis County, Minnesota.

Why Stop the Cuban Frauds Inquiry?

It is a fact which is deserving of special note that the investigation of Cuban rascalities has apparently been stopped with the adjournment of congress. Of course there is the senate committee on insular affairs, charged with an inquiry into all acts pertaining to the administration of Cuba by American officials, but, as the Denver Post remarks, no one expects that these grave and reverend senators will spend the heated term in the tropics, no matter what aspect the rascality may have assumed. They will wait until the heat is less oppressive and then proceed with their accustomed leisure. But there are others charged with investigating. There is Bristow, who has already spent several weeks looking into the postal affairs of the island and trying to find out how much, if anything, Neely of Indiana left behind when he departed. Bristow has become oppressively silent. And there is Gen. Wood, who was instructed to conduct a thorough investigation into the various charges of bribery and corruption brought in against army officers who had control of civil affairs. Gen. Wood has also retired in silence. It appears, indeed, as if the administration would be successful in the predicted attempt to suppress everything that might throw a shadow upon its government of the island, and which could be used against it during the impending campaign. The administration must regard the people as extremely indifferent to honor if its idea is that by suppressing an investigation or the results of it the people will forget all about it. And then there is Neely himself, that highest example of our civilization, who was sent to Cuba by his friend, Perry Heath, to teach the natives how a government should be run. Nobody seems to be in a hurry to bring him to trial. And what of Rathbone, the friend of Mark Hanna? Is he going to be rewarded for his management of Cuban postal affairs, or what is to be done with him? Since Rathbone caused a flutter in high official circles that if he went down there would be others who would go down with him, there has been strange inactivity at Washington regarding his case.

Two Vastly Different Kinds of Trusts.

In answer to the question, "Is not the labor trust as oppressive as any other trust?" The New York Journal points out the difference, from its point of view, as follows: "On the plains it sometimes happens that a troop of ravenous wolves surround a herd of buffalo, among which are many calves. The herd bunches closely together for protection, with horns to the foe. Here we have two trusts—offensive and defensive. One is an offensive combination of greed, the other a defensive combination of distress. Is it not right to thin out the wolves with a legislative shotgun, and let the buffalo go in peace? There is a vast difference in the money-power of ten men with a million dollars each, and a million men with ten dollars each. Ten millionaires band together to kill competition, corner products, reduce wages and restrict supply. A million men oppressed by the ten organize for the maintenance of the right of every laboring man to a fair share of the wealth he creates. The labor trust does not—nay, cannot—purchase congressmen, dictate to courts, command nominations to public offices or plunder producers. Labor's time is thoroughly occupied in self-defense. We have given here a few of the differences between the offensive trust of capital and the defensive trust of labor. They are as far apart in principle and in practice as night and day. There is no harm in any trust that has nothing more than muscle and mechanical skill for its foundation. Such trusts should not be confounded with the criminal trusts. Neither should they be legislated against."

THE TROUBLE IN CHINA.

The story that Kwang Su, the emperor of China, has proposed to the powers that the empress dowager, his aunt, be deposed from the authority she has assumed of being the head of the government, and that he will repress the murderous "Boxers," recalls the beginning of the trouble at present existing in China. The emperor prepared the way to his deposition two years ago by a sudden surrender to the influence of liberal ideas, yielding to the persuasion of a group of intelligent and patriotic Chinamen, who understood that something must be done to preserve the empire from decay, he startled the diplomatic world by issuing nine edicts whose enforcement would more or less rapidly have revolutionized the political administration of the Chinese empier. These edicts proposed to abolish the competitive examination by means of which for more than 500 years official appointments have been made, and which, as the subjects upon which candidates ar examined are confined to the Chinese classics, constitute the greatest obstacle to the adoption in China of new ideas.

To establish and endow a Pekin university.

To turn the temples into schools.

To provide for the translation into Chinese of western literary and scientific works.

To institute a patent office.

To secure the protection of Christians from persecution.

To convert the reform newspaper into the official organ of the government.

To suppress superfluous offices.

To enable young Manchus to go abroad and study foreign languages.

The reformers, with the characteristic zeal of converts, made the fatal mistake of trying to do too much all at once, and their indiscretion furnished the dowager empress with her opportunity. She was able to count with confidence upon the support of the great mandarins, of men like Li Hung Chang, who had attained to wealth and power under the old regime and who had no desire for change, and the vigorous measures which she promptly took to undo the emperor's well meant but hopelessly impractical procedure attracted no effective opposition. The edicts were revoked, four of the reforming mandarins were beheaded, while others only escaped the same fate by flight, and the emperor was constrained to declare that owing to his physical infirmities, he felt himself to be unequal to carry on the task of government unassisted, and that he had accordingly invited the dowager empress to resume her former functions of regent. Then Kwang Su disappeared into the innermost recesses of the Forbidden City, and Psi An reigned in his stead.

Last October dispatches from Pekin announced that the wretched Kwang Su had discovered that, even with the assistance of a regent who relieved him of all responsibility, the task of being emperor was too great for his strength, and that he had accordingly abdicated the throne in favor of Pu Chun, son of Prince Tuan, and grandson of the former Emperor Hsien Feng.

Had Kwang Su remained on the throne it is improbable that the affairs of China would have been in their present condition. It is apparent that the "Boxers" who have set out to drive foreigners from the country, have the encouragement and protection of the dowager empress. It is notable in this connection that Russians do not appear to be suffering with the rest. There even seems to be ground for suspicion that the czar may be in sympathy with the "Boxers" and the empress, although his troops are now acting in concert with the marines dispatched by the other nations to protect their legations at Pekin.

ALL PLEDGES BROKEN.

The Mankato Free Press, criticising the speech delivered by the chairman of the Wisconsin Democratic state convention, says: "Facts are something this young man does not seem to think are necessary when dealing in politics. Were he to deal in truth, he would be unable to find one pledge or promise made by the Republicans in 1896 that has been broken. Rarely, indeed, has a party's promises been kept as faithfully as have those made by the Republicans when they returned to power."

The postmaster-editor of the Republican organ at Mankato would have been wise had he refrained from drawing attention to the utter failure of the Republicans to keep the promises made in the St. Louis platform of 1896, inasmuch as rarely has a party so completely repudiated its platform as has the party now in control of congress and the White House. Of all the pledges made in that platform but one has really been fulfilled in its entirety and for itself alone. The war and attending circumstances have forced a partial fulfillment of others, but even these have been carried out in a way to react to the detriment of the party. Briefly stated, the promises made in the St. Louis platform of 1896, and which that platform declared "by these principles we will abide, and these policies we will put into execution," were as follows:

1. Promote protection.
2. Renew and extend reciprocal relations.
3. Protect domestic sugar production.
4. Build up merchant marine by discriminating duties.
5. Maintain sound money and secure free silver by international agreement.
6. Take care of veterans and scold the pension bureau.
7. Construct an American canal across Nicaragua and protect American interests in Turkey.
8. Restore peace and order to Cuba.
9. Extend the navy.
10. Exclude immigrants who cannot read and write.
11. Extend the civil service.
12. Free ballot to every citizen.
13. Stop lynchings.
14. Establish national board of labor arbitration.
15. Pass a free homesteads bill.
16. Admit territories at early day.
17. Promote temperance and rights of women.

Of all these seventeen promises made, but one has been carried out in its entirety, and as it was understood when the platform was made. That one was the fifteenth on the list. A free homestead bill has been passed. Of the other sixteen, not one has been carried out as it was intended.

Of protection there has been plenty, but much of it has not been of the sort the people desired. One of these measures was the Dingley tariff bill. It "protected" classes which needed no protection, and has injured those which did really need it. The only other tariff feature of importance has been to impose a protective tariff against Porto Rico, which is our own territory and a part of ourselves. They cannot be proud of that, for it has President McKinley's own message against it, and therefore the Mankato paper cannot "point with pride" to any of the party's tariff achievements since 1896.

On the matter of reciprocity as formulated by James G. Blaine, it has still less of accomplishment to show. At the expense of much time, money and talk, treaties were arranged with France and some of the British West Indies. These are now all pigeonholed in the senate committee on foreign relations and are apparently doomed to ultimate defeat by the very party which was pledged to pass them. There is certainly not much to be proud of in this.

Of sugar protection little need be said. With the acquiring of the Hawaiian and Philippine islands, and Cuba and Porto Rico, the doom of the cane sugar planters of the South and the growing beet sugar industry of other states seems to have been sealed. No Republican has yet been bold enough to deny this, nor with the trust in power will the people benefit by the destruction of these industries.

The promises for a merchant marine revival to be brought about by return to the early American policy of discriminating duties for the American merchant marine has not been carried out. Such a policy would rudely revoke in an irregular manner treaties with thirty odd powers, to the great embarrassment of all concerned. Instead of this, the Fifty-sixth congress made up a bill to extend bounties to shipbuilders and shipowners, and which seemed to so many Republicans to be expensive, unequal and useless to build up the merchant marine that neither house of congress has ventured to bring the bill to a vote.

The less Republicans say about their money plank the better. They have fastened a gold standard upon the country and abandoned all effort to secure the coinage of silver.

Nothing of importance has been done for the veteran, and the pension bureau has not been improved. A Nicaragua canal bill passed in the house has been held up in the senate, and the McKinley administration is pledged against it. Turkey recently told this same administration to mind its own business, and nothing has been done. Instead of restoring "peace and order" in Cuba, the Republican party has practically enslaved its people, and has shown them mismanagement and governmental corruption to a degree which makes many of them openly wish they were once again under Spanish rule. Not a pledge kept in all these.

The war has forced an extension of the navy along the lines laid down by William C. Whitney, a Democrat. Democrats commanded the fleets, and Democrats have been foremost in providing for new vessels. It is hard to see where the Republican party can claim glory in this plank.

Immigration of those who cannot read or write is not yet forbidden, not does it seem likely to be. The civil service has not been extended to any good degree or for the betterment of the service. On the contrary, President McKinley, soon after assuming office, issued an order that undid practically all that had hitherto been accomplished in the direction of civil service reform. The doors were thrown wide open for the Republican spoilsmen, and Hanna and the other bosses filled the offices with their political workers.

Free ballot is denied to our citizens in Porto Rico and elsewhere. Lynchings have not been stopped. No board of national arbitration has been established. We have still territory, and much of it, without state rights, and temperance has not been promoted or the rights of women extended one iota.

In view of these facts, it requires considerable nerve on the part of the Mankato postmaster-editor to assert that the Republican party has kept all its promises and to criticise a man who spoke the truth about its utter disregard of platform pledges, unparalleled in the political history of this country.

A recent German gibe respecting the nationality of the queen of England leads the London Chronicle to comment on the curious fact that there is not a reigning sovereign in Europe whose family is of the nation over which he rules. The Hapsburgs of Austria are Swiss; the king of Belgium is a Saxe-Coburg; the king of Denmark is a Holsteiner; the young king of Spain is an Austro-Bourbon; the king of Italy is a Savoyard; the founder of the ruling house of Sweden was a country attorney at Pau 125 years ago; the king of Greece is a Holsteiner; the rulers of Britain are of course Hanoverian; the Hohenzollerns of Germany are partly Bavarian and partly Swiss, and the reigning house of Russia is German, its name Holstein-Gottrop.

It has happened rarely that any man or woman has sought interment in the sea. But that was the choice of the talented daughter of Charles Kingsley, who has just died in South Africa. A dispatch from Cape Town says: "The funeral of Mary Kingsley, which took place here today, was impressive. It was attended by naval and military officers and civilians, and also by representatives of the Boer prisoners, in nursing whom she contracted the fatal fever. At her special request her body was buried at sea. It was carried several miles off Cape Point by a torpedo boat and consigned to the sea."

Any who are curious as to the fate of Roland B. Molineux, the New York clubman convicted of murder on what seemed to the general public inconclusive evidence, will like to know that his case will not be reviewed by the court of appeals until the October term. Molineux is in good condition of body and mind at Sing Sing, and entirely confident of final vindication.

Perhaps no one was more thankful for the timely relief of Kimberley than Mrs. L. J. Hopson, the American woman who recently returned from her long confinement. Her 3-years' tourist's ticket expired last week, and, thanks to "Bobs," she was just able to get home within the time limit.

The Boston Transcript thinks that the members of the Connecticut board of pardons, who have refused to commute the death sentence of a 16-year-old boy, must be ticketed through to immortal bliss, if the theology of Rev. Silliman Blagden, who calls for the guillotine in our public squares is sound.

Concordia, Kas., graduates are disciples of the realistic. They have changed the old class motto, "Beyond the Alps lies thine Italy,' to "Beyond this lies the washtub and sawbuck."

The Detroit News suggests that both parties might escape a little personal issue embarrassment in the campaign by having Mr. Hanna pair with the Van Wyck boys.

This is the last day for taking the census. Have you been enumerated? If not, promptly notify the census officials. It is a duty you owe to Duluth.

A Chicago man went with his wife to a millinery store. She bought a hat. He dropped dead. Of course there is a moral in this story. What is it?

A Nebraska banker was buncoed out of $13,000 by bold brick operators, the other day. "Uncle Rube" is not the only sucker that bites.

The newspapers that printed editorials on "the end of the Boer war" will feel now—that they were a little premature.

Perhaps these frequent conferences with the president mean that Billy Mason is to be the candidate for vice president?

Delaware expects the largest peach crop in many years. The political crop will be plentiful, as usual.

Chicago has decided that her population is exactly 2,046,912, but the census figures may be different.

Gen. Buller is still quite a distance from that dinner. He may reach it by next Christmas.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the ice question in New York is decidedly hot.

You owe the town you live in something. Help on the census.

What's the matter with Duluth as a health resort?

Have you been counted? If not, why not?

Pittsburg Chronicle: "How old are you?" the census enumerator proceeded, in his question asking.

"I won't tell you!"

She was very decided about it, too.

"O, well, never mind," the enumerator went on, with the air of a man who had given up the struggle, "in what year were you born?"

"In 1833."

Chicago Post: "Ithank heaven," said the successful man of affairs, "that I had some hardships when I was a boy."

"You think they served to develop your character and make you the success you have been in after life, I suppose?"

"Well, I don't know about that," was the reply, "but they have given me something to boast about at old settlers' reunions."

The River of Hope.

There is a Royal River that doth roll
Through Youth's green vale, while life is young and fair,
And o'er its crystal waves the happy soul
Steers her bright course, while all the summer air
Is rich with fragrant incense—and the whole
Of Nature's voices blend in praise and prayer;
The sunshine smiles, the birds rejoice in song,
The river sparkles as it rolls along.

But far beyond youth's vale, Life's desert plain
Stretches its dreary vistas to the eye,
Where sandstorms sweep, and tempests howl amain,
And even the rocks and valleys parching cry
For one cool drop of water; but in vain—
And every living thing must shrink and die—
And 'neath this burning death Hope's kingly river
Fainter and fainter sinks, and disappears for ever.

—ALEXANDER GLENNIE in the Boston Transcript.

Our Real Position.

Sidney Brooks in Harper's Weekly: It is perhaps regretable that England should have been completely misled as to the real opinion of the United States on the Boer war. The natural ignorance that prevails throughout England of America, if not quite as great as it was before the Venezuelan squabble, is still formidable enough and in this case the correspondents of the English press have rather added to it than otherwise. That England expects the United States to repay the good turn done her in 1898 and throw all her moral weight against the Boers is certain; but it is hardly less certain that the United States has done no such thing. The British, however, are still under the delusion that the vast majority of Americans approved of the war from the start, and have been with them in sympathy ever since. As a matter of fact it would probably be nearer the mark to say that there were scarcely any Americans who did not believe that the war could and should have been avoided, and that those who ranged themselves on the British side, when the war had actually opened, did so in a lukewarm and somewhat reluctant fashion, less on the specific merits of the British case than in the general interests of civilization.

Thanks Due.

Washington Times: It was announced, through a channel connected with the administration, that at the urgent request of the president, Mr. Hanna would retain the chairmanship of the Republican national committee during the presidential campaign of 1900. If the report be true, Mr. McKinley is entitled to the sincere thanks of all good Democrats.

Where Neely Missed It.

Indianapolis Sentinel: The mistake Neely made was in not staying in Indiana. Governor Mount would have considered it a bounden duty to God and man not to allow a good Indiana Republican to be taken to a place like Cuba, where he could not get justice.

Not Till After the Election.

Indianapolis Sentinel: In justice to himself Senator Fairbanks ought to explain the exact circumstances of writing that letter indorsing Pirate Neely.

A Bachelor's Reflections.

New York Press: Some girls who talk a lot about what they would do if men tried to kiss them, couldn't get a mosquito bite.

If a man knows a woman as well as he ought to before he proposes to her, he generally won't want to.

Every girl under 20 is dreadfully proud of the way little babies come to her when she holds out her hands to them.

The best Christian in the world feels like a sneak when he tries to teach his little child that it ought to love God better than it does its mother.

After one woman has called on another woman she dosn't like, each of them thinks of some mean thing she intended to say, only she forgot it.

Chance For More Trouble.

New York Evening Post: We do not apprehend that Mr. McKinley, with the Philippine wolf on his hands, which he would be so glad to let go if he dared, will clutch a Chinese dragon to add to his embarrassments.

Hale Commended.

Philadelphia North American: Senator Hale is more to be commended for obeying the promptings of his heart to speak out from his seat in the senate his admiration of the Boers in their fight for independence than if he sat in silence.

What Holds Him Back.

Washington Times: Mr. McKinley might not be afraid of Russia alone; but of Russia, combined with powerful anti-British sentiment among the American people, he might be.

Maybe Mark Could Tell.

Memphis Commercial-Appeal: Will somebody please explain why Mr. Rathbone, of Ohio, has not been arrested?

Must Run the Elevator.

Nebraska State Journal: No man in congress has more ups and downs than Joe Cannon of Illinois.

Did Mr. Cramp Contract?

Omaha World-Herald: It's up to Mr. Cramp to explain about that little matter of $500,000.

The Official Stenographer.

New York Evening Post: McKinley will never be a director; he is the man who is dictated to.

FIGHT IN SMART SET

Fierce Social War Rages Between Mrs. John Hay and Mrs. Hill.

AIM TO BE LEADERS

Wife of Assistant Secretary of State Has Better of Contest.

Washington, June 15.—Washington is stirred by a social war. Mrs. John Hay, wife of the secretary of state, and her partisans are arrayed against Mrs. David Jayne Hill, wife of the first assistant secretary, and her friends. The diplomatic corps has taken sides.

Mrs. Hay and Mrs. Hill do not even exchange official calls. Back of it all is said to be the determination of Dr. David Jayne Hill to become secretary of state in the event of the re-election of President McKinley. So far those in a position to speak with authority award the palm of victory to Mrs. Hill.

As wife of the secretary of state, since the death of Vice President Hobart, Mrs. Hay has occupied a social position next to that of the first lady in the land. Mrs. McKinley is an invalid, and most of the duty of entertaining falls on the ladies of the cabinet. For a time official prestige easily gave the lead to Mrs. Hay, who, with feminine spirit, cared nothing about the matter apparently until one arose to dispute her claims.

Some said that the disturbing element was with Mrs. Hitchcock, the pretty and accomplished wife of the secretary of the interior. Those in the inner circle soon began to perceive, however, that the real rivalry lay between Mrs. Hay and Mrs. Hill. This rivalry has now become so pronounced that the two women do not speak as they pass by.

Washington society has had few secretaries of state, and never an assistant secretary, who entertained as elaborately as Dr. and Mrs. Hill. Scarcely a week during the season passed that Dr. and Mrs. Hill did not spread their festive board at least two or three times.

Their guests have been the cabinet officers and their wives, the ambassadors and other prominent diplomatic representatives, and senators and representatives in congress whose names are powers politically and otherwise. They have introduced a delightful novelty into Washington life, the salon, and here the Ambassadors and the great literary lights have gathered and enjoyed themselves many afternoons in the week.

Mrs. Hay, as the wife of the Secretary of State, did not approve of the social activity of the wife of a minor official. At first she quietly ignored the growing popularity of Mrs. Hill. Then Mrs. Hay, it is said, conveyed to Mrs. Hill an intimation that such activity in social affairs is not becoming in the wife of a man who is merely an assistant secretary. Mrs. Hill sweetly ignored the hint, and continued giving dinners, receptions, and teas, at which the wittiest and most distinguished men and women of Washington appeared.

Previous to the daring innovations of the assistant secretary and his wife, the stately Mrs. Hay had not taken kindly to Washington society in its broad sense. She was not the woman to precede over a political-literary salon. She had reigned in a smaller circle long before the days of officialdom.

The daughter of the millionaire railroad magnate of Cleveland, Ohio, Amasa Stone, and one of the heiresses of his immense fortune, Mrs. Hay has been used to luxury and culture from her earliest years. Her husband has always been the center of an admiring coterie here and in Ohio, but it was a select circle, not the throng which public office brings.

It has been said of Mrs. Hay that she absolutely dreaded the public receptions which the wives of the cabinet officers must hold, and that the fact of having a horde of strangers infesting her drawing rooms was painful in the extreme.

Her home is by far the most pretentious occupied by any of the president's official family, and her facilities for entertaining were unequaled. But Mrs. Hay did not open her doors, as society thought obligatory. She performed all her duties with punctiliousness, but she did nothing else.

This course was somewhat criticised during Mrs. Hobart's regime, but there was entertainment enough and to spare during the regime of the hospitable vice president.

But afterward Mrs. Hay assumed the leadership of the state department set, and trouble began.

"I go to the secretary of state's when it is my duty. I go to the assistant secretary's immediately afterward, because I believe that the performance of the duty should be rewarded." One of the continental diplomats made use of this bon mot in explaining his frequent appearance at the Hill salon.

It reached the ears of Mrs. Hay, and thus fuel was added to the flame by the ambassadorial corps itself, supposed, above all others, to keep the semblance of peace. Mrs. Hill's Tuesday afternoon had come to be the envy of Washington entertainers. Her drawing rooms were crowded, and bright literary men and women and talented musicians provided a fund of entertainment.

Mrs. Hill herself proved an inimitable hostess. She is a good linguist, well informed, and could converse intelligently with foreign diplomats in their native tongues. They thronged her house. The women, many of whom Mrs. Hay had alienated in one way or another, followed suit, and Mrs. Hill's supremacy became very real, if unacknowledged.

Among the strong partisans of Mrs. Hill is Mrs. Cushman K. Davis, wife of the Minnesota senator, who occupies the high position of chairman of the committee on foreign relations. Mrs. Hay had ignored Mrs. Davis, and Senator Davis has never been an admirer of Secretary Hay. Accordingly, when the opportunity presented itself, Mrs. Davis proceeded to humble Mrs. Hay. Other women saw opportunities of getting even by supporting the ambitious wife of the assistant secretary, and attached themselves to her camp.

Meantime Mrs. Hay prepared to meet her adversary on her own ground. She decided to entertain elaborately at Friday afternoon receptions, and all old-guardism was invited to come in. She asked a score of bright, young women to assist her own pretty daughters in entertaining the celebrities.

Like all society, ashington society is ericus, and it likes a contest. Besides, the diplomatic corps must do its duty. So on the first Friday afternoon the wittiest and the most distinguished men and women of Washington appeared.

Previous to the daring innovations of the assistant secretary and his wife, the stately Mrs. Hay had not taken kindly to Washington society in its broad sense. She was not the woman to preside over a political-literary salon. She had reigned in a smaller circle long before the days of officialdom.

THE MILLERS' ASSOCIATION.

Discusses Interstate Commerce Law and Elects Officers.

Chicago, June 15.—The fight for a more effective interstate commerce law was the overshadowing topic at the annual convention of the Millers' National association of the United States yesterday. A tone of bitterness towards the railroads cropped out during the sessions, and the millers declared that the export flour trade of the country was being wiped out as a result of the discriminating differentials now in effect, and which permit the shipment of grain to foreign points for milling cheaper than American flour for export.

The principal action in this direction taken by the convention was the adoption of a resolution providing that, together with other national organizations interested in government regulation of commerce, an effort should be made to have both political parties insert a plank in their platforms for the coming campaign, pledging them to secure legislation to the end of securing equality to all in the use of the transportation facilities of the country and preventing the upbuilding of industrial and commercial monopolies by means of differential rates and rebates extended to large and powerful corporations by common carriers.

It was decided that the association should issue to its members in the future a label guaranteeing the purity of the product sold under it and carry with it an offer of a reward for conviction of its misuse.

Approval was given by the convention to the efforts being made by the National Business League to secure the reorganization of the consular service. It was decided to accept the invitation of the Association of French Millers to join that body in a world's congress of millers to be held at Paris during August. Charles T. Ballard, of Louisville, and John Ismerel, of Pinkneyville, Ill., were named as delegates. The representation of the association may be increased later.

A resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a special committee to elaborate a scheme of reorganization of the flour milling interests of the country so that the national organization shall be on a federal basis with all state, interstate and national organizations of millers as subsidiary bodies.

At the close of the convention the newly elected board of trustees met and elected the following officers and board of managers for the ensuing year: President, F. H. Madgeburg, Milwaukee; first vice-president, Charles T. Ballard, Louisville; second vice-president, F. E. Kauffman, St. Louis; third vice-president, H. W. Davis, Rochester; treasurer, William M. Rowe, Grand Rapids; secretary, Frank Barry, Milwaukee.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

Increase of Twenty Million In Exports For May.

Washington, June 15.—The monthly statement of the imports and exports of the United States issued by the bureau of statistics shows that during the month of May, 1900, the imports of merchandise amounted to $71,555,861, of which nearly $31,000,000 was free of duty. This is an increase in dutiable merchandise as compared with May, 1899, of over $2,000,000.

The exports of domestic merchandise during last May aggregated $111,296,825, an increase of $20,000,000. The gold imports during May amounted to $3,706,161, and the exports $12,209,596. In May, 1899, the imports of gold were $2,461,498, an increase of $750,000. The silver exports were $6,066,058, an increase over May, 1899, of $1,630,000.

THE SCHOOL CLOSES.

Commencement Exercise of St. Thomas School Are Held.

The commencement exercises of the cathedral school were held last evening in the Association hall, which was crowded with the friends and relatives of the pupils. The recitations were as follows: "Little Boy's Speech," by James Hubbard; "Some Little Leaves," by Ethel Carpenter; "Exile of Erin," by Joseph Maginnis; "The Reason Why," by Annie Fitzgerald; "The Angels of Buena Vista," by Lillian Fitzgerald. All of these numbers were well delivered and were received by a very appreciative audience, as was also a class recitation, "Ship of State." The chorus songs were also very fine. They were: "Greeting Glee," "I'm Ashamed to Look My Dolly in the Eye," by junior girls; "Behind the Door," by junior boys; motion song, "The Flag," by small boys. A ruler drill by the boys of the second department; "Washer Maids," by girls of the second department; a day drill by the junior girls and a wand drill by the girls of the intermediate department pleased all.

A song, "Eggs for Your Breakfast in the Morning," in which the small boys gave very boyish crows in imitation of the fowls, called forth bursts of laughter from the people. A club drill by boys was well appreciated. A motion song by little girls, "The Flowers," was well received, and a song by the senior boys, "The Old-Fashioned Bonnet Mother Wore," was exceedingly good. A comic quartet entitled "We All Have a Very Bad Cold," was amusing. Those taking part entered into the spirit of the affair with a large amount of sneezing and coughing, which was very amusing. They were: Misses Agnes Poirier, Josephine Lana, Catherine Hughes, Mary Lana. A drama entitled "The Thief of Time" was enacted by the following cast:

School boys—

John Roy.....Master Raymond Meagher
Charles Cheerful .....Elmer McDevitt
Ralph Ready .....James Hanna
Mr. Hanks (a deaf gentleman).....
.....Bernard Pierce
John Clod (a countryman..Frank McLeod
Tom Filum (a laborer)..Thomas Fitzgerald

It was well received.

The valedictory was well delivered in rhyme by Charles Young. A Washington drill by small armed boys, attired in the costumes of Washinton's day was a very unique and interesting number. The last number on the long program was a beautiful farewell chorus by the seniors.

A short address was given by Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, D.D. He said that the children in this entertainment could teach the theatrical people a lesson through their promptness in coming on the stage. He spoke of the excellent branches of education employed by the nineteenth century people, and stated that the children who, under the sisters' supervision, had taken part in the club drills, etc., would be armed in the future, through their strengthened muscles, against consumption. He spoke of the characters of the children, and stated that they were thriving under the influence given them, and were truthful and obedient to their parents and all with whom they came in contact. He stated that on visiting country places and perceiving through what a brief space of time the children were sent to school, he was deeply pained. He spoke of a Scotchwoman who taught on a small salary, and who made the remark: "It's but little they gi' me, an' it's but little I gi' 'em." After this followed the distribution of medals, certificates and premiums. The medals were awarded as follows:

The "gold medal" for amiable and polite deportment, scholarship and general progress, awarded to Master James Hanna.

The "gold medal" for amiable and polite department, scholarship and general progress, awarded to Miss Lillian Fitzgerald.

SAYS HE ROBBED HER.

Chorus Girl Has Duluth Man Arrested In New York.

The New York Telegraph of Monday says:

"William Higgins, 21 years old, was locked up in the Thirtieth street police station last night about 11 o'clock charged with larceny.

"Lizzie Taylor, who says she is a chorus girl and has just closed her season, was the complainant. She tells a story as follows: On Wednesday evening she was about to enter her room in the house at 51 West Thirty-eighth street, when Higgins approached her and in a very polite manner intimated that he had formed her acquaintance while she was traveling with a company in the West. He was well well dressed and politely spoken, so she thought it possible she had met him and forgotten the incident. He invited himself to her room with the intention of passing away an idle hour, and they sent out for some beer. They had a social time up till about midnight, when she had occasion to leave the room to answer some inquiry, leaving Higgins alone. When she returned he had disappeared and upon investigation she found $24 had gone, too.

"Last evening she met Higgins on Sixth avenue near Thirtieth street and calling Policeman McCarthy had him locked up. Higgins says he is a traveling salesman for a large firm in Duluth, and denied that he took the money. He says the reason he left the house was that he was taken with a sudden sickness and felt faint."

A GREAT STEAMER

Fine New Bessemer Steamship to Take Its Plunge Into Water.

WILL BE CHRISTENED

Miss Dorothy Olcott Is to Name It Charles R. Van Hise.

With a splash and a curling wisp of water under her starboard side, the monster new steel freight steamer of the Bessemer Steamship company will be launched at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. This launching takes place at the West Superior yards of the American Shipbuilding company. Many hundreds of out-of-town visitors, as well as Duluthians in general, will be well repaid for their trip to West Superior to see it. The new carrier, while not the largest on the lakes, is one of the most modern built and equipped vessels. She has a carrying capacity of 8000 gross tons, and to the Duluth visitors from the Dakotas and the grain growing country of the West, the launching will be of special interest when they figure out that built presumably for the ore carrying trade the big steamer can easily carry 250,000 bushels of wheat at a single cargo. This is equivalent to about nine trainloads of wheat, giving forty-six cars to the train, and every car holding 600 bushels. Allowing fifteen bushels of wheat to the acre, it would require the yield of over 16,000 acres to make the load.

Little Miss Dorothy Olcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Olcott, of this city, will christen the vessel, "Charles Richard Van Hise," as the massive steel hulk slides down the ways into the slip. The name is given in honor of Professor Charles Richard Van Hise of the university of Wisconsin, who is the author of various works on the iron bearing districts of the Lake Superior region, and also on structural geology and metamorphism.

The Van Hise is the forty-fourth vessel that has been built at the West Superior yards. Her keel was laid in November last year. She is what is known as a single deck, bulk freight steamer, and is of the same type as the Sheaton, launched last summer. Her length over all is 461 feet. Her tonnage length, or length between the perpendiculars, measuring from the planking on the side of her stem to the forward side of her stern post, is 439 feet. Across the beam she measures 50 feet, and her depth is 29 feet 6 inches. When carrying 8000 gross tons the new vessel will draw 18 feet of water. She has a double bottom, 5 feet 6 inches deep, subdivided by six bulkheads, four of which are water tight.

Forward she has a forecastle deck and a steel deck house for the accommodation of the ship's officers. The pilot house is on the forward deck house. Amidships there is another steel deck house for the accommodation of the crew, and a third deck house aft is for the accommodation of the engineers.

Equipped from stem to stern with the most modern machinery, the Van Hise will be one of the most powerful vessels in the lake traffic. She is fitted with quadruple expansion engines, the cylinders 20¼ inches high pressure, 43½ inches intermediate prssure, and 63 inches low pressure. The stroke is 42 inches. The crank shaft is of forged steel weighing eight tons. She has independent auxiliaries, one with 9-inch by 16-inch by 22-inch by 15-inch horizontal compound duplex air pump and condenser; one 8-inch by 12-inch by 6-inch by 10-inch compound horizontal duplex feed pump; one 6-inch by 5¾-inch by 6-inch horizontal compound, duplex bilge pump; one 9-inch by 4-inch by 10-inch pony feed and fire pump; one 5¼-inch by 4¾-inch by 5-inch cooler pump, all of which are the Worthington make.

There are three Scotch boilers, 13 feet 4 inches in diameter and 12 feet 3 inches long; there are three Morrison corrugated furnaces, 42 inches in diameter, and each boiler is fitted with a Learmont purifier.

The Van Hise has a single propeller fourteen feet in diameter, with a sixteen-foot pitch.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Charles P. Packer, of Chicago, ex-banker, clubman, financier and a leader in church circles in that city, has been arrested at Lake Minnetonka, near Minneapolis, on warrants charging him with obtaining money by false pretenses. Packer was former president of the defunct Park Street bank in Twenty-second street, Chicago.

The steamer City of Topeka arrived at Seattle yesterday from Skaguay. Mrs. J. Beck, Miss M. Drummond and H. Lowe brought about $70,000 between them. Other passengers had probably half as much more. There has been a great dropping in the prices of many articles in Dawson since the arrival of the first and second scow loads of provisions.

The board of visitors at West Point has completed its work and one of the board, Representative Slayden, of Texas, says the most important conclusion received by the board was unanimous resolution that the examination for entrance to the academy be raised materially so as to accord with the first year's work.

Commissioner General Powderly of the bureau of immigration yesterday ordered the deportation of thirty-one Japanese from Port Townsend, Wash., where they had landed in violation of the immigration laws.

An invitation was yesterday extended to William J. Bryan to be a guest of the Milwaukee Carnival association in Milwaukee from June 26 to 29. The invitation was signed by President Edward P. Hackett on behalf of the association and Mayor David S. Rose for the city.

THE HEINRICH CONCERT.

Delightful Program at Pilgrim Church By Two Artists.

The concert given at Pilgrim church by the Heinrichs last evening was a delight in every sense of the word. Max Heinrich is a magnificent artist, and every fiber of his being seems to teem with music. He sings as though his greatest happiness lay in singing, and his spirit is infectious, for his audience quickly feels that it is great happiness to be able to hear him. Every song to him means something, and that meaning he conveys to the audience with a wonderful talent and magnetism. The man who cannot be thrilled by this wonderful musician has a soul that is dead to the beautiful in sound, in harmony and in sentiment. He is a remarkable combination, for, while artistic to his very finger tips, he delights every class of music-lover, whether trained musician or one whose opportunities for musical education have been limited. Who is there that cannot feel a genuine enthusiasm as he sings "Gypsy John," or that cannot be touched by the magnificence of his rendition of "The Erlking?" His singing of the latter is most artistic; probably nothing that he does more certainly proclaims his masterly ability. The shading of the voice is marvellous. Young singers and many older ones, too, could learn volumes by studying Max Heinrich's singing of "The Erlking." The program was filled with gems from beginning to end. There were numbers by Richard Strauss, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Mackenzie, Gounod and others.

Mr. Heinrich accompanies himself as he sings, and this, while somewhat odd, proves to be quite delightful. His ability in that direction is almost as remarkable as in his singing, and he is a master of the art of accompaniment.

Miss Julia Heinrich received her first introduction to a Duluth audience and achieved a triumph. Much of the musicianly spirit of the father seems to have descended to the daughter. Her voice is a pure contralto, strong and sympathetic. The tones are round and full, and reserve power is there in abundance, so that as she sings there is that restful feeling that the singer is under no strain. Her songs were by Lalo, Foote and Nevin.

Mr. Heinrich and Miss Heinrich sang several duet numbers that, like their individual songs, were delightful. One of the very finest was "Awake, My Heart," by Thomas, which they sang a second time in response to an encore. The closing number, "Night Hymn at Sea," also by Thomas, was truly grand.

GRAIN MEN VICTORIOUS.

They Wipe Up the Very Earth With the Samaritans.

Yesterday afternoon the Board of Trade baseball team defeated the Modern Samaritans by a big margin at Oneota Park. The grain men played a fast clean game and completely outclassed the secret order delegation. Chapman pitched a fine game for five innings and never a Samaritan passed first base. In the sixth and seventh innings the lanky twirler of the board of trade crowd let up in his speed and it was then that the Samaritans began making their runs. The features of the game were the all-around good work of Kitchli, Barnes, Getchell and Wisted for the Board of Trade team, and Kempton, Webster and Leidel for the Samaritans.

The batting order and score by innings was as follows:

Samaritans—	Board of Trade—
Sturm .....pitcher.....	Chapman
Wilcox .....left field	Jones
Di Marco .....short stop.....	Getchell
Webster .....first base.....	Barnes
Kempton .....catcher.....	Wisted
Crosby .....third base.....	Deleuw
Leidel .....second base.....	Kitchli
Villett .....center field.....	Shipper
Smith .....right field.....	Cross

Samaritans	0 0 0 0 0 2 4 1 0—7

The Rounder

There are four boys out in the East End that are having the finest kind of a time these days. They have preempted a vacant lot on East First street that has a few trees on it, and there they have pitched a tent and made a real camp. They not only sleep there, but they cook their own meals and eat them out of tin plates. The fire is made in a hollow near the tent, and over it, in approved camp style, is a cross-stick from which hang several wire hooks to which cooking utensils are fastened. Morning, evening and noon the quartet may be seen at their meals, and it takes only half an eye to see that they are enjoying those meals more than they could all the nectar and ambrosia on the earth or off it. At night, however, is when the most fun comes in. They have a fairly large A tent, which makes commodious quarters for four boys. Not particularly early, for it would be too much like home to go to bed at 8 or 9 o'clock, they roll themselves up in their blankets and set off for Dreamland, where, thanks to the cool night air and their healthy systems, they arrive in no time at all. There is only one drawback. The camp is a little too near civilization to permit the play of imagination about Indians or anything of that kind. But there is plenty of fun to compensate for that, and the quartet is made up of the four happiest boys in town.

* * *

It may require a stretch of imagination, but it seems as though the beginning of the end of dandelions on Duluth lawns was at hand. They have been here four years or so now, and the owners of the lawns and everyone with an eye to beauty has grown weary of them. Every effort to destroy them has been futile. They refused to be rooted up, for their roots run an astonishing distance into the soil. They refused to quit when they were cut down, for it was almost impossible to catch them before their flower-heads were fertilized and some seeds had been scattered. Even if this was done on one lawn, the next one may have been permitted to do as it would, and the result was that the dandelions on the neglected lawn went to seed and the seeds flew over the lawn that had been cared for, and there produced an abundant crop a little later. There seems to a casual view to be about as many dandelions this year as there have been any year, but as a matter of fact there is a perceptible reduction in their quantity. There are places where the weeds have been plenty in past years where there are almost none now. In other places they have just come in, but they will run out there as they have elsewhere. The end of the dandelions is only a question of time.

* * *

There is a system of rotation of crops in weeds as much as there is in grains, and this is what is happening to the dandelions. They are beginning to exhaust the soil of the properties needed by them, and when the supply runs out there is nothing for them to do but quit.

There are other weeds that are getting to be nearly as common as the dandelion, though they are more backward about intruding upon decently kept lawns. The wild carrot is covering vacant lots with billows of white, the yarrow and Mayweed are beginning to blossom, and there is hardly a vacant lot in town that has not more or less thistles. The latter pest is likely to prove one of the worst possible. There are many more this year than there were last year, and the increase is easily noticeable. On East Superior street there is not a vacant lot or a neglected lawn on which there are not some thistles, and they are spreading all over town.

Why is Electric Light Best?

Because it is Healthy, Clean, Pure and Brilliant.

HEALTHY! It has no odor. Professor Thompson states one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.
CLEAN! It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.
SAFE! As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.
CHEAP! By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

ANARCHY IN PEKIN

Foreign Legations Are Destroyed and German Minister Killed.

London, June 16, 4 p. m.—A special dispatch from Hong Kong says all the Pekin legations have been destroyed and that the German minister, Baron Von Ketteler, has been killed.

New York, June 16.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from Tien Tsin says: Boxers control Tien Tsin, and the native city officials have been burned at the stake. A great panic prevails among the Chinese.

Shanghai, June 16.—Last night's advices from Tien Tsin report that large incendiary fires occurred in the eastern part of the city, where three English and three American churches were burned, besides the residences of many foreigners. Telegraphic communication is interrupted, the poles having been burned, and there is no hope of immediate repairs being made. The train conveying the relieving party with food and ammunition was obliged to return, being unable to reach Lang Fang, where detachments of foreign troops, dispatched on Sunday last, are now endeavoring to repair the line.

Shanghai, June 16.—According to information received here from foreign sources, 10,000 imperial troops, which were between Pekin and the international forces advancing on that city, have disbanded and joined the Boxers. It is asserted that the government of China does not consider itself responsible for any encounter which may take place.

The native banks at Chin-Kiang closed business yesterday, fearign trouble from the Boxers.

HIS WIFE AN AMERICAN.

Baron Von Ketteler Married to a Detroit Girl.

Detroit, Mich., June 16.—Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister to China, who is reported to have been killed in the Boxer riots in Pekin, was a son-in-law of Henry B. Ledyard, president of the Michigan Central railroad. The baron was married to Miss Ledyard in 1891. When the news was conveyed to the Ledyard home, it was their first intimation of what is said to have occurred. Members of the family stated that the baron's wife was with him in Pekin and that a cablegram had been received from them a week ago, saying all was well.

TROOPS FOR TIEN TSIN.

British Cruiser Sails With Soldiers From Hong Kong.

Hong Kong, June 16.—The British first-class cruiser Terrible, with troops, sailed for Tien Tsin this morning. Capt. Percy M. Scott, of the Terrible, previous to sailing, arranged to land a 12-pounder and other ship's guns for land service.

The British first-class armored cruiser Undaunted has suddenly been ordered north under sealed orders. She will sail immediately.

Trouble is brooding near West River. Riots have broken out at Shun-Chow, whence over 100 refugees arrived at Wu-Chow, June 12.

About 5000 rebels have assembled at Kwei-Li-Sien. Bodies of Canton troops passed through Wu-Chow, June 11, on their way to meet the rebels.

WHAT TO DO NEXT.

Question of Powers' Future Policy In China Discussed.

London, June 16.—What with the reports coming through Tien Tsin that the Boxers have massacred a number of native converts and servants of foreigners east of the city of Pekin, besides burning the Catholic cathedral at Pekin, the situation in the far East appears graver. To add to the difficulties comes the news this morning that telegraphic communication between Shanghai and Tien Tsin is totally interrupted. Consequently the prevailing uncertainty as to the facts and possibilities of the position will be accentuated.

> It is generally believed now that the position of the foreigners at Pekin is perilous, as there is but a short step from the massacre of the servants of foreigners in the East city to the killing of the foreigners themselves.

"If a massacre is averted," says the Spectator, "and the palace reduced to seeming obedience, the grand difficulty will be to decide on the next step. The powers can neither encamp permanently in Pekin nor leave until it is established that the government is prepared to respect international obligations and able to hold China together. If anarchy breaks out in China, the object of the powers is defeated. The failure or success of the present effort may involve a series of wars of which no man can see the end."

Continuing, the Spectator suggests that an egress from the present impasse must be found in the appointment by the representatives of the powers of a competent viseri, as so often has been so successfully done in other Western crises. Otherwise the odious calamity of China falling to pieces may, in a few months, be exciting the cupidity and overtaxing the capacity of all the ruling men.

Commenting upon the supposed hesitation of the United States to actively participate in the movement to suppress the Boxers, as reported in cable dispatches from Washington, the Statist says:

"No European power will misunderstand the present hesitation of the United States and jump at the conclusion that American feeling and opinion may be disregarded. The United States will undertake military operations in China as it did against Spain if the protection of its citizens requires them, or if the powers threaten to exclude American merchants from their rights in China acquired by treaty. Unless the British ministers muddle matters, Great Britain can reckon on the assistance of the United States and Japan in maintaining, even by force, the policy of the open door in China."

A cabinet meeting held today, under the presidency of Lord Salisbury, was concerned almost wholly with the situation in China.

SITUATION NO BETTER.

No Improvement Noted In Affairs In China.

New York June 16.—The Chinese situation has not improved during the last twenty-four hours, avers the London correspondent of the Tribune. Admiral Seymour, with 2300 marines, is not more than three-fourths of the distance between Tien Tsin and Pekin and the Boxers are destroying the railway in front of his force and burning bridges behind it. The excitement at Shanghai and Tien Tsin is increasing, and it is rumored that the relief column is itself in need of rescue. The foreign admirals may have miscalculated the strength of the Boxers, and it may be necessary to send a Russian military force to support the marines.

The Russian reserve of 1700 men is already on shore, with guns and horses and this can be increased by 4000 men from Port Arthur.

Englishmen, who have a confirmed habit of seeing a deep intrigue in everything Russian, are convinced that the bridges are burned and the marines isolated in order to provide the garrison at Port Arthur with a pretext for sending an army to Pekin. In this Chinese affair, it is difficult enough to find out what is on the carpet without trying to look under it.

Dispatches received here before midnight were mainly from the coast towns and there was little trustworthy intelligence from the capital. Christian refugees had swarmed into Pekin from the mission stations and the embassies and Protestant churches and buildings were barricaded. The China inland mission at Yun Nan Fu had been attacked and the insurrectionary movement was spreading from province to province. There were rumors of hard fighting but they were not confirmed with authority.

The British policy is not understood, but there is a general impression among members of parliament that a European concert will lead to Russian occupation and that Lord Salisbury will not offer objections. Russia, by making a settlement of some kind with Japan in Corea or elsewhere, will have a free hand and will not be intermferred with.

WILL SEND FORCES.

Reinforcements to Be Sent If Kempff Remains Silent.

Washington, June 16.—Not a word of news came to the state department over night from Minister Conger, who has now been cut off from communication since last Tuesday. Even the United States consuls in North China ports were silent. Admiral Kempff has not been heard of since yesterday.

> This absence of reports has given rise to grave apprehension here.

It was expected that there might be delay in hearing from Mr. Conger, but in the case of Admiral Kempff, an early report was looked for, and it is feared that the officers of the foreign fleet at Taku have been prevented from reaching the cable station there, either by the open hospitality of the Boxers or by the sinister orders of the Chinese government.

Yesterday, Admiral Kempff was called upon by direction of the president for an explicit statement of the situation and his needs. It was for him to say whether he required reinforcements and troops. If he is cut off from reply, then the government must act without waiting much longer. Of course, in that case, it would have to proceed upon the theory that additional ships, and troops, perhaps, are needed.

The element which advocates the use of troops at once is finding strong support in the apparent inability of the relief column to reach Pekin. They argue that sailors and marines are well enough in operations along the seacoast; but that they are helpless in a hostile country away from their base. It appears from the reports that with the railway destroyed and without wheel or animal transportation, the relief column is in a bad way. The country will not afford either animals or vehicles, and everything must be carried on the backs of the sailors, or drawn by coolies. The regular troops, with their quartermaster's department, would be perfectly at home in such surroundings and it is probable that this consideration will enter with others into the probable resolution of the administration to send troops to China.

The conclusion reached at the conference was that if communication with Kempff is not re-established within a reasonable time forces will be dispatched from Manilla to reinforce the American contingent. Preliminary inquiries are being made to see what can be done in the way of preparing an expedition. An inquiry as to what constituted a reasonable time failed to secure a definite answer, but the impression was conveyed that unless Kempff is heard from by Monday, troops or a naval contingent will be dispatched from Manilla.

SITUATION IN TIEN TSIN.

Foreign Settlements Protected---Boxers In the Native Town.

Berlin June 16.—A semi-official dispatch from Tien Tsin, dated June 15 (Friday) reads as follows:

"The foreign settlements here are adequately protected. Bands of Boxers have appeared in the native town. They have burned three chapels and are spreading terror among the inhabitants.

The Tsung Li Yamen (foreign office), it is added, have sanctioned the entry of foreign troops into Pekin to the number of 1200 men.

DUTCH SEND TROOPS.

A Warship With Soldiers Is Ordered to China.

The Hague, June 16.—The government has instructed the governor general of the Dutch East Indies, Herr W. Rooseboom, to dispatch a warship with troops to China.

MAY SEND A VESSEL.

Fast Boat May Go to Taku For News.

Washington, June 16.—Unless telegraphic communication with Admiral Kempff is restored speedily a fast vessel will be ordered to proceed from Manilla to Taku for news.

Secretaries Hay and Root are now in conference with the president regarding the sending of troops to China.

Secretaries Hay and Root left the White House at 1:55 p. m. They said they had received no official confirmation of the burning of the legations in Pekin. They were getting together all the data possible, they stated, and would do whatever the situation seemed to require. Both gentlemen refused to make a further statement.

Washington, June 16.—Nothing has been heard here from any official source to confirm the alarming reports of the destruction of the embassies and legations in Pekin, and in view of the fact that the government itself is not able to open communication with the scene of the trouble, the officials are inclined to doubt that private enterprise could do more. In other words, they do not believe the report.

Minister Wu, of the Chinese legation here, called at the state department this afternoon, but he declared that he was without any advice from his own government, and said that his visit to Secretary Hay had reference to a personal matter.

PROPOSITION SUBMITTED.

St. Louis Transit Company Has the Strikers' Proposal.

St. Louis, June 16.—The proposition adopted at the meeting of striking street car men yesterday, looking to a settlement of the strike, is now in the possession of the Transit company officials, and an answer is expected today. President Gompers of the National Federation of Labor, who had much to do with the adoption of the proposition, called on President Whitaker of the St. Louis Transit company today in the interests of the striking street car men, and remained in conference for some time.

The executive committee of the strikers union assembled at Walhalla hall, waiting to hear from the last proposal. The committee has plenary powers now to settle the strike at its discretion.

President Whitaker said previous to this conference that no negotiations had been entered into between his company ad the strikers.

All the street car lies were today running without the police protection.

The coroner's inquest was resumed this forenoon and will be probably be finished today.

Edward Burkhardt, one of the striking street car men who was shot Saturday last in the riot in front of the posse barracks, died today from his wounds. This makes the total number of fatalities there three.

DROPS DEAD.

Congressman J. H. Hoffecker, Representative From Delaware Joins Silent Majority.

Dover, Del., June 16.—Congressman John Henry Hoffecker, the state of Delaware's only representative in the lower branch of the national legislature and who is said to have been the only Republican upon whom both factions of the party could agree for such position, dropped dead today in Smyrna.

A FATAL COLLISION.

Six Persons Killed In an English Railroad Wreck.

London, June 16, 2:30 p. m.—A collision between an express train and a train filled with Windsor race-goers occurred at Slough. Six persons were killed and forty injured.

DEADLOCK RELIEVED

Sprigg Hopeful of Forming a Ministry For Cape Colony Soon.

BOTHA'S NEXT STAND

Is Expected to Be at Baardekop With a Reduced Force.

London, June 16.—The only South African news this morning is a telegram from Cape Town announcing that the ministerial deadlock is relieved. Sir John Gordon Sprigg hopes to have a ministry formed by Monday, and it is believed Mr. Rose-Innis will accept the portfolio.

A dispatch from Laing's nek today says Gen. Botha's next stand will be at Baardekop, but with a reduced force.

The German ambulance captured by Gen. Buller has been sent to Durban, whence it will be allowed to return to the Transvaal, via Delagoa bay.

BRITISH IN RUSTENBURG.

Lord Roberts Reports That Baden-Powell Is There.

London, June 16, 4:47 p. m.—The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts:

"Pretoria, June 16.—Rustenburg was occupied yesterday by Baden-Powell. A column starts from this place tomorrow to meet Baden-Powell and repair the telegraph between Pretoria and Rustenburg.

"Hunter is moving from Potchefestroom. His advance brigade expects to reach Johannesburg June 19."

"Buller, I hope, is at Standerton. Heidelberg will be occupied from this place shortly, and then the Orange River Colony will be completely cut off from the Transvaal.

"Baden-Powell reports that the district through which he passed is settling down satisfactorily. Over 1000 stands of arms were surrendered, and Hans Eloff and Piet Kruger, son of the president, were to make submission to him yesterday, having been previously disarmed on their farms.

"Botha's army has retired, and is believed to be at Middleburg. His rear guard was surprised and entirely routed by Ian Hamilton's mounted infantry.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Gen. Buller:

"Laing's Nek, Friday—Now that Natal is clear of the enemy, I wish to call attention to the disgraceful way in which private property was treated in the part of the colony they occupied. Their wilful and needless damage is visible everywhere, and houses, when not completely wrecked, have been desecrated with filthy ingenuity. That this has been done with the consent of the leaders is proved by the fact that while in Charlestown every house was wrecked, in Volksrust, two miles off, but in the Transvaal every house was intact."

MORE BRITISH CAPTURED.

Volunteers and Yeomanry Reported Gone With the Derbyshires.

London, June 16, 4 a. m.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in a dispatch, dated yesterday, says:

"I learn that Gen. Dewet, in addition to the Derbyshire battalion, captured two companies of the City volunteers and two companies of yeomanry, two men only escaping to tell the tale."

Maj. Gen. Baden-Powell has been appointed to the rank of lieutenant general.

Part of Christian Botha's force has halted at Paardekop, eighteen miles northwest of Volksrust. Boer parties are still near Volksrust and fire occasionally upon the British pickets.

The British government is considering whether a substantial force should not be sent to China from South Africa. It is thought unofficially that Lord Roberts could spare a brigade or two, and the necessary transports are now in South African waters. The commander of the expedition, it is said, would probably be Gen. Sir William Nicholson.

A dispatch from Lourenzo Marques, dated yesterday, says: "Persons have arrived here who have seen the preparations of the Boers, and learn that they will retire when forced through the Lydenburg district, into the Zoutpansburg region, adjoining Rhodesia and Gazaland."

The Daily Mail has a dispatch from Bloemfontein, dated Wednesday, saying: "Gen. Dewet's attack upon the railway was made after he had succeeded in luring Lord Methuen from where he had destroyed the line. Then he cleverly seized it north of Kroonstad, blew up the bridge and destroyed a long section of the line with dynamite.

THE ST. LOUIS DERBY.

A Fine Track Promised--List of the Entries.

St. Louis, June 16.—If rain does not fall, as seems probable, the $10,000 Derby will be run over a dry track. With fine weather the attendance bids fair to be the heaviest on record.

The baseball game will be called at 2 o'clock, in order not to interfere with those who wish to attend both the game and the race.

The race promises to be an excellent one and the event of the year thus far in Western turf circles. The field is a remarkably well balanced one, and there is scarcely one of the eight starters that will not have support.

Strong local interest will be attracted on account of the presence of two Missouri-bred colts in the list of starters.

The entries, weights and jockeys follow: Sam Philipps, 119, Burns; Florisear, 119 Vandusen; Doctor Cave, 110, J. Matthews; Highland Lad, 107, Crowhurst; Duke of Melbourne, 107, Stevens; Wounded Knee, 97, Dominick; Star Chamber, 97, Devin; Waldeck, 97, Woods.

The keenest interest is being taken in Wounded Knee's performance, owned by Louis Lemp and Dr. E. W. Crowley, of this city. His victory would be the most popular ever scored on a local race course. Next in local interest will be Dr. Cave.

TO SEARCH THE TRAINS

Asiatics From 'Frisco Without Health Permits Will Be Sent Back.

WHITES ARE EXEMPT

But Urged to Get Certificates In Order to Avoid Delay.

Reno, Nev., June 16.—Orders were received last evening by Federal Health Officer McQuestin, in this city, from Quarantine Health Officer Kinyoun, in San Francisco, to search all east-bound trains for passengers from San Francisco at the state line, who are to be required to show certificates signed by the United States marine officer. In the event of their failure to produce this document they are to be turned backward in their journey.

San Francisco, June 16.—All railroad and steamship companies have been notified by the federal authorities at Washington that Asiatics will not be allowed to leave California unless provided with a health certificate issued by the United States marine hospital officials here. Whites will be allowed to leave without certificates, but it is recommended that they provide themselves voluntarily with certificates to avoid possible delay. At first the order from Washington read that whites as well as Asiatics must have health certificates, but this order was modified later, exempting Caucasians.

This action has been taken to assure people in other states that every precaution is being taken in California and there is no possible danger of the spread of plague if it should exist in San Francisco.

A FULL FORCE.

Calumet & Hecla Mine Is Turning Out Two Hundred Tons Daily.

Houghton, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet & Hecla mine is today working a full force for the first time since the fire was discovered, May 27. Three shafts, the one burned and the one adjoining, also the Red Jacket vertical, which has 1000 feet of water in it, are yet idle, but places were found for all the miners, and the normal production of 200 tons of copper daily is being mined from this date.

TRAIN CRUSHED

Landslide From Mount Washington Strikes a Pennsylvania Train.

Pittsburg, June 16.—Over 100 tons of earth and rock toppled over from Mount Washington today to the Pennsylvania track as the Carnegie accommodation train was passing. Five persons were injured and fifteen or twenty others received minor injuries.

CHICAGO THE CENTER.

The Currents Setting Towards Philadelphia Converge There.

Chicago, June 16.—This city was today the center of a Western rush for the Philadelphia convention. Three large organizations identified with the Republican party in Cook county started for the Quaker city today, to say nothing of a flood of delegates and politicians from the Western states all aflutter with flags and badges, paused long enough to transfer themselves to railroads running East.

The first of the local organizations to leave the city was the Hamilton club. This club, famed for its annual dinners, started at noon over the Baltimore & Ohio, 200 strong. The members carry with them a stuffed elephant which occupies half of the baggage car. In Philadelphia they will be the guests of the Young Republicans' club. A portion of the North Dakota delegation and others from that state, together with Richard Yates, Republican nominee for governor of Illinois, and Governor Shaw of Iowa, accompanied the club.

Cook County Marching club, a marvel of silk hats and badges, to the number of 500, later in the day followed the Hamilton club over the Baltimore & Ohio. Later the Marquette club delegation, 200 strong, departed over the Wabash, occupants of a special train. This club claims the distinction of being the first to boom William McKinley for president and they also claim the honor of having brought Benjamin Harrison to the fore as a presidential candidate.

The Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Upper Nebraska delegates, with their friends, will leave here tomorrow over the Baltimore & Ohio. Nearly all expect to reach Philadelphia Monday.

Among the men who left Chicago today for the convention was George B. Schneider, who attended the first Republican convention in 1856. He attends the convention under an invitation from Senator Hanna, who set similar ivitations to the other delegates to that political gathering.

OFFICER KILLS PUGILIST.

Brooklyn Policeman Shoots Patrick Farley, Who Was Escaping.

New York, June 16.—Patrolman Cornelius, of the Brooklyn force, shot and killed Patrick Farley, a pugilist today. Farley had been arrested by the officer and was trying to escape. Farley came home drunk and beat his wife unmercifully, threatening to kill her. She escaped to the street. Several officers went to the home and after a desperate struggle arrested Farley and took him to the station house. As Officer Cornelius was about to lock up Farley, the latter sprang at Cornelius, tripped him up and ran down the street. Cornelius got up and shot him in the back, killing him instantly.

LOTS TO THINK OF

The Week Has Brought Plenty to Interest the Londoners.

BLUNDER HINTED AT

Roberts Now Criticised For Botha's Escape---A Theatrical Tempest.

London, June 16.—(Copyright, 1900, by the Associated Press.)—What with exciting news from the war that was supposed to be over in South Africa, sensational reports in regard to the war that is said to be pending in China and alarming dispatches relative to the rebellion against British rule in Ashanti, to say nothing of the gay Ascot meeting, the death of Mrs. Gladstone and the death of the duke of Wellington, the week in England has been one of considerable interest. In fact, so genuinely absorbed has the nation become in its own peculiar affairs that those other countries fall to elicit the slightest comment.

> The war, as it is learned Gen. Kelley-Kenney said to Gen. Tucker a few weeks ago, is "the rummiest I ever saw. If we," referring to the division commander, "do things wrong, we are sent home in disgrace. If we do them right, Roberts gets all the credit."

And the war is "rummier" than even Gen. Kelley-Kenney had any idea of. The spectacle presented this week of a victorious British general, in command of the greatest army this country ever put under one man, shut off from all communication with the outer world, while units of his forces, of the 700 men, were annihilated by a supposedly pacified enemy whose territory was annexed, stands almost unique in military history.

> While Lord Roberts is not blamed for these disasters, there is a strong feeling among the leading South Africans in London that he or some one blundered at Pretoria. Those who know every inch around the Transvaal capital say Lord Roberts took the most arduous side to approach it, whereas, with easier means of access, he might have gone eastward and shut off all possibility of Gen. Botha's retreat. As it is, the capture of Pretoria was an empty triumph, except for its moral effect.

What old South African campaigners are asking is: "Why did Roberts not get Botha and his men and take Pretoria afterwards, instead of occupying a deserted town and letting the Boers calmly walk away under the nose of his overwhelming force?"

Yet, while this question is frequently heard, there is such genuine admiration for Lord Roberts and belief in the efficacy of his tactics that even those who ask it are loath to criticise him until they know all the details.

The patent fallibilities of the generals fighting at the front have caused endless criticism since the war began; but scarcely any blunder in South Africa has drawn upon it so much condemnation as the recent Aldershot maneuvers, when 20,000 troops engaged in a sham battle on the hottest day of the year. The inquest upon four of the enlisted men who died from heat prostrations records the fact that the troops started early in the morning without an adequate meal, and that the forage caps they wore were utterly insufficient to protect their heads from the sun. A more damning indictment of military equipment was scarcely ever so quickly and efficaciously secured than by this simple verdict of a coroner's jury.

Besides the men who died, some 400 had to go to the hospitals. The result is that the obnoxious forage cap is likely to be done away with.

> Not only theatrical circles but the whole of London is amused and interested by the exciting controversy between the celebrated dramatist, W. S. Gilbert and Jeannette Steer, the American actress.

Just before the latter produced two of his plays at the Comedy theater last week, Mr. Gilbert retired from the stage management and in a Gilbertian letter repudiated all responsibility for the forthcoming production. The plays, however, were produced June 14, and proved most successful, but Gilbert does not feel disposed to let the matter rest and wrote Miss Steer as follows:

"Madame—I further understand that last night you materially altered the business as arranged by me and as it was played under my direction by Mrs. Kendall, Miss Anderson, Miss Rose Leclerq and, indeed, by every other lady who has played Galatea under my stage management during the last twenty-eight years. I must ask you to advance and kneel in front of Cynisca from her left, not from her right; then throw yourself on your knees in front of her, without any exclamation; to fall at Cynisca's feet, and not on any account to cross Pygmalion, or, indeed, do any business not arranged at rehearsal. If you do not comply with my wishes in these respects I will apply for an injunction to prevent your playing the piece, or otherwise, as I may be advised."

The next day Gilbert wrote again:

"I understand you interpolated several exclamations last night while Miss Repton was delivering her important speech at the end of the second act of Pygmalion and Galatea, thereby greatly impairing the effect of that speech and causing it to be indistinct and confused. As this was not done at rehearsal, I had no clue to your intention or I should have cautioned you before this. As it is I must direct your attention to the necessity of keeping silence during the delivery of the important speech in question. As, unfortunately, experience has taught me that a mere request of mine is not likely to receive much consideration at your hands, I have instructed Miss Repton how to deal with the difficulty, should it arise again. My instructions to her are to stop short at the first interruption, remain silent until the interruption ceases and then begin again. Should the interruption be repeated she is again to stop until the annoyance ceases altogether."

Miss Steer writes that the real difference of opinion resulting in Mr. Gilbert's chullition arose from quite another matter. When arranging with Mr. Gilbert for the production of the two plays, a question which he made an imperative condition was that I should engage Miss Repton, who, apparently, is his protege, for the part of Cynisca. On Wednesday evening, I requested her to wear the wig provided for the part and she curtly refused, whereupon Mr. Gilbert interceded and vehemently stated he would not allow her to disfigure herself by wearing a wig. After some emphatic expressions of opinion Mr. Gilbert left the theater."

Aside from this theatrical matters have been dull and the managers are already talking of closing.

The princess of Wales, who is a regular attendant at Covent Garden, summoned Maurice Grau Tuesday, and congratulated him on the success of the opera season.

CROKER BOOKED.

Liverpool, June 16.—The Cunard line steamer Lucania, which sails from this port today, has on her passenger list the name of Richard Croker.

It is not only beautiful women who hang over the mirror in the morning. Anxious women who are watching the wasting of their beauty, stand before the mirror and note the increasing lines etched by pain about the mouth and eyes. Thousands of such women, wrecked in body and in disposition, haggard, nervous, irritable, cross, have by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription been entirely cured, and watched with delight the progress of the cure, marked by brightening eyes, reddening cheeks, and rounding form.

Woman's general health depends largely upon the local health of the organs distinctively feminine. Irregular periods in maidenhood, followed after marriage by debilitating drains, and the common consequences of motherhood, inflammation, ulceration, and displaced organs, ruin the general health. These conditions are entirely removed by "Favorite Prescription," the body blossoms in a new beauty, and the mind is entirely freed from gloom and despondency. "Favorite Prescription" is not a stimulant, containing no alcohol or whisky.

"In October 1889 I gave birth to a baby and the treatment I received at the hands of the midwife left me with female weakness," writes Mrs. Cordelia Henson, of Coalton, Boyd Co., Ky. "I had no health to speak of for three years. I had another baby which was the third child. My health began to fail and I had three miscarriages so I found myself completely worn out. I had so many pains and aches my life was a burden to me and also to all the family, for I was nervous and cross and I could not sleep. Just after my last miscarriage (in 1896) I was taken with a severe pain in left side. Had four doctors come to see me but at last I found I was slowly dying. The doctors said I had liver, lung and uterine trouble. I was in bed for months and when I did get up I looked like a corpse walking about. I commenced to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, 'Favorite Prescription,' and 'Pellets,' and ever since then I have been a well woman. At my monthly period now, I have no pain. My cheeks are red and my face is white, but before it was as yellow as saffron."

CYCLING RECORDS SMASHED.

Brooklyn Wheelman Breaks Mile and Half Mile Records.

New York, June 16.—In a private trial at Berkeley Oval, Walter W. Smith, a young member of the Kings County Wheelmen, of Brooklyn, broke two world's amateur cycling records. Paced by a motor cycle, Smith made a half mile, with a flying start, in :45, and a mile in 1:28. This lops 4½ seconds from the former motor-paced flying start record of 1:22 2-5, made by A. W. Ross, at Washington, D. C., on November 23, 1899, and one half second from the former half mile record of 45½, made by George Fuller at San Jose, Cal., on December 3, 1899.

Calumet & Hecla to Start Soon---Notes From the Range.

Houghton—Unless the unexpected should happen and fire break out anew in No. 2 Hecla shaft, the Calumet and Hecla mine will be running fullhanded in all departments by another week.

All the shafts that were closed at the outbreak of the fire about three weeks ago have been opened with the exception of Nos. 2 and 3, Hecla. No. 2 is the shaft where the fire originated and No. 3 is the adjoining shaft where McRae met his death from suffocation while endeavoring as one of the party to close the fire doors between the two workings. The air in the shafts that have been opened has been purified by artificial means to such an extent that considerable investigation has been done beneath the surfaces. It is quite probable that no attempt at opening the last two shafts will be made for several days to come, for the fear that there may be some smoldering embers that might be fanned into a blaze before it would be possible to sufficiently clear the shafts from gas to permit of their being entered.

The Red Jacket perpendicular shaft and the workings in connection therewith filled with water very rapidly during the time it was closed, a column 1100 feet in depth standing in the shaft.

It is as yet too early to give any figures of the damage wrought by the fire. It is probable that a quarter to half a mile of No. 2 Hecla shaft will be found pretty thoroughly used up. This will not affect the production of the mine in the slightest, and as the shaft burned was one little used, the damage will never be felt by shareholders, although the fire was unquestionably responsible for the reduction of the quarterly dividend next payable, from $20 to $10.

A report has been in circulation here that the Chicago & Northwestern railway company had been negotiating for the Copper Range road, and that the Northwestern intends to build through from Watersmeet and connect with the Copper Range.

At the office of the Copper Range here, the report was denied.

Marquette—The planing mill, dry shed and three carloads of lumber belonging to the Metropolitan Lumber company at Metropolitan were destroyed by fire. The shed was filled with good lumber. The loss will be between $30,000 and $40,000. The fire started from sparks thrown by the planing mill smokestack.

The citizens of Carney are anxious to have the town incorporated. Legal steps will be taken at once and a bill will be introduced in the legislature. Carney is a growing town. Several new residences have been built of late, and a new mill is to be built there. E. P. Carney & Son have a big cedar yard there and are shipping great quantities of stock.

Republicans Admit His Nomination Would Make Minnesota Democratic.

FUSIONISTS TO WIN

In South Dakota In November According to Advices Reaching Washington.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Republican politicians of prominence from Minnesota, who have visited this city on their way to Philadelphia, express the opinion that, if Charles A. Towne is placed upon the national ticket with Col. Bryan at Kansas City, the North Star state will go Democratic this fall. The re-election of Governor Lind by the Fusionists makes it a certainty. Many of them think that the state will go against the Republicans, at least, in the election of state officers and, with Towne on the ticket with Bryan, that, Minnesota will cast her electoral vote for the Nebraskan candidate.

The only way in which the nomination of Mr. Towne could possibly be defeated would be in the selection of Gen. Washburn for the vice-presidency at the Philadelphia convention. It is now considered that this is unlikely to happen and it is quite generally believed among Democratic and Populist leaders that the nomination of Mr. Towne at Sioux Falls will be reaffirmed at Kansas City. If this is accomplished the Minnesota Republicans seem fearful that the predictions they make will most certainly be fulfilled. That they fear a loss in congressional districts in the state, is also admitted. The opinion seems to prevail that Judge Morris of the Sixth district will not be re-elected; that Eddy of the Seventh will be defeated; that Tawney, of the First, will have a hard time to pull through, but will probably be elected; McCleary, in the Second, may win, but his chances are uncertain; Heatwole is said to be doomed to defeat at the polls; Fletcher, in Minneapolis, will have to make the fight of his life in order to win; Stevens in St. Paul seems to be the only man assured of success, at the present writing.

* * *

Information coming to Washington from South Dakota is to the effect that that state is almost certain to be carried by the Fusionists next November. Adjoining, as it does, Nebraska, Col. Bryan's native state, the people of South Dakota practically regard him as one of them. The Nebraskan has many friends in South Dakota, and as that state is pivotal it will not surprise even the Republicans if it goes anti-Republican this fall. In the event that it elects Bryan electors, the Fusionist state ticket will also be successful and the legislature next winter will be controlled by the Fusionists. In such an event, the re-election, to the senate, of Richard Frank Pettigrew can not be prevented, although Senator Hanna and other foes Pettigrew has made in the Republican ranks will use their influence and send money to South Dakota to try and carry it for the Republicans, principally because they want to retire Mr. Pettigrew to private life.

General activity in all directions of ship designing will prevail during the summer and early autumn months and before congress reassembles contracts will have been awarded for the most varied and extensive program of naval construction authorized in any one year.

There is to be no delay in carrying out the increase plan, and vacations for the bureau chiefs and their assistants will necessarily be brief under the decision to push forward every detail in the work of designs. Five battleships, costing nearly $5,000,000 each; six great armored cruisers, of 14,500 tons displacement and high speed; three protected cruisers, similar in design to the Olympia, and five submarine boats represent the program that the navy department now has to dispose of and to ask bids on. Every one of these craft will be built at private yards, so that with the large number of ships already on the stocks and the vast amount of commercial business being executed, the prospects for an exceedingly busy period in the shipbuilding world are promising and bid fair to exceed in tonnage any previous record of the country. It has been decided to adhere to the policy of letting all contracts for shipbuilding to private yards rather than risk the dangers of delays and higher cost by undertaking to build them at the government yards. There is little in the present program of interest to any of the yards except those of the Cramps, that at Newport News and the Union Iron Works, at San Francisco, which under every increase plan secure some of the ships authorized. With fourteen therefore to build, the capacity of these yards will be more than taxed, and there is already some apprehension that the department may be unable to award bids for all during the present year.

However, regardless of the difficulties that may be experienced later, it is proposed to hasten the work of ship designing and to have the preliminary program cleared up by the early autumn. A partial agreement has been reached to have the two new battleships of the same size and power as those authorized last year, and for which plans have been decided upon and a circular letter prepared asking for bids. These vessels are over 14,000 tons displacement, have a speed of 18 knots and a terific battery power. They are without the superimposed turrents and have 12-inch guns as the largest caliber. The cruisers will cost as much as the battleships and are to be equal, if not superior, to the finest of their class in foreign services. Designs for these ships will be drawn and it is contemplated to duplicate them for class authorized this session. Thus six of the armored cruisers class are to be built, costing when in commission probably $20,000,000. The three protected cruisers, duplicates of the flag ship Olympia in a measure, are to be designed in order to improve upon the Olympia in many particulars, and especially to give greater battery power and steaming radius. To produce these results they will have greater displacement and perhaps be more costly vessels.

In addition to these heavy fighters there is a provision for five submarine boats to be built on the general design of the Holland and the Plunger and to cost about $170,000 each. This completes the entire program. Their cost can not be estimated, but appropriations will have to be made for at least the next three years to cover their cost.

Preliminary plans of the cruiser to be built for Turkey in the United States have been prepared, according to Admiral Pasha states that he must present the plans and specifications to the sultan.

"The cruiser will be about 330 feet long, and will have a displacement of 3500 tons, a speed of 22 knots and will be armed with a main battery of six-inch guns," he said. "There will be no difficulty about the payment to be made on the cruiser. Is not the Turkish empire with a population of 47,000,000, good for the $2,000,000 involved in the cost of the ship?"

It was suggested to the admiral that the sultan might be disinclined to pay and as an evidence to this effect reference was made to the missionary claims which America and Europe hold against the Porte.

"Are these claims lawful ones?" retorted the admiral. "If they are, why don't the powers enforce their collection? But you may know that the sultan will never submit to imposition. He has 600,000 soldiers always under arms and can summon an army of 2,000,000 in a fortnight."

Director of the Census Merriam is determined to make his clerks as comfortable as possible this summer. During the last census, when the clerks worked in close quarters, the prostrations from the heat were numerous, especially among the women clerks.

This year the clerks are in much better quarters, a majority of them being located in one large room on the ground floor, with abundance of light and ventilation, yet the director fears that there will be many fainting spells when all the clerks get to work and the real hot weather comes. To moderate the glare of the sun the glass roof has been covered with cream-colored cheesecloth shades, which can be rolled back when the sky is cloudy. One hundred and sixty of the largest "buzz-fans" will be placed in position on posts about eight feet high, in the large court. They will all be directed the same way and arranged so that the air will not strike either clerks, operators or the desks, so no papers will be blown around, but the air in the room will be kept in constant circulation.

Ventilation is absolutely necessary, as there will be from 1800 to 2000 clerks in the one room. Two of the clerks are trained nurses and one will be stationed at one end of the room and the other at the opposite end, so as to be on hand in case any of the clerks should faint. Although the director is empowered, under the law to buy almost anything from a lawn mower to a threshing machine, he can not purchase medicine, and as restoratives, such as camphor and the like, are essential in such cases, a list of the necessary drugs was prepared recently and the hat was passed around. Every one chipped in and enough was secured to purchase a fairly good medicine chest, which will doubtless be useful during the summer.

The remarkable increase in coal exportations from the United States coupled with the fact that we became in 1899 the world's largest producer of coal, gives special interest to an elaborate discussion of the world's coal product, published by the bureau of statistics of the treasury department in the April number of the Monthly Summary of Commerce and Finance. Exportations of coal from the United States in the ten months ending with April were nearly 50 per cent larger than those of the same months of the preceding fiscal year and 80 per cent larger than those of the corresponding months of 1898, while our total production for 1898 was not only the largest in our history but larger than that of any other country in the world.

For the first time the United States figures show a larger production than the British figures for the same period. The significance of this fact cannot be over-estimated. Coal is not more than ever "the material energy of a country, the universal aid, the factor in every thing we do." The relative abundance or scarcity of coal, therefore, is the truest index of a country's position among its industrial rivals. According to recent information steamers have been chartered to carry coal from America to St. Petersburg and Stockholm, as well as to Italian, French and German ports. While these exports may be due mainly to the present abnormal conditions of the British coal market, there is no doubt that in time this country will be called upon to supply an even larger part of the coal needed by foreign industrial countries, which, until recently, have been drawing upon the British output. This is the more probable since cost of production and prices of coal show a falling tendency for this country, whereas the opposite hold true to European coal-producing countries.

The rapidity with which the production of coal has increased may be appreciated when we consider the present volume of that production and reflect in how recent a time the production formed but a very small fraction of that quantity. In 1886 the total coal product of the world was 564,000,000 short tons, or 504,000,000 metric tons. Until as late a period as 1878 the world's product had never been half so great, being then only 252,000,000 metric tons, and not until 1886 had the world's production been as much as a third as large as it is at present. In 1894 the world's product was only 174,000,000 metric tons, or less than 29 per cent of that of 1899. The statistics of the world's production for still earlier periods can not be determined with any pretense of accuracy; but on the basis of the British statistics from 1854, and of estimates for earlier periods and from such statistics as are obtainable from France, Germany, Belgium and Austria-Hungary, an approximation may be made to the actual production. In 1850 the world's production of coal was about 114,000,000 metric tons, or less than one-fourth that of 1896, and much less than that of either the United States or the United Kingdom at present. Ten years earlier the world's production amounted to only about 83,000,000 metric tons, or about two-fifteenths of the present world's production, and considerably less than the present output of Pennsylvania alone. In 1840 the production was much smaller still, but about 45,000,000 metric tons, or about one-thirtieth of the present output, while during the three-quarters of a century since 1820, when the output was about 17,000,000 metric tons, the production has increased 2500 per cent.

The production is chiefly in the hands of three nations, the Americans, the British and the Germans. During the last thirty years and even earlier, the combined output of these three countries has averaged year for year about five-sixths of the world's total output. Possessing but about 10 per cent of the world's population, they have produced about 83 per cent of the mineral fuel, while the remaining 90 per cent of the world's inhabitants have produced only about 17 per cent of the coal, and even if the savage and semi-barbarous nations be disregarded, the immense preponderance of coal production in these countries must be conceded. To this group might be added Belgium, which produces and consumes more coal per capita than any other country except the United Kingdom, but for the fact of its small population, placing it in the second rank of coal-producing countries.

While the continued output of these three countries has kept pace with the production of the rest of the world, their relative position has been materially altered. In 1886 the United Kingdom produced over three times as much as either the United States or Germany, the output of these countries being approximately 52, 11½ and 16½ per cent of the world's production, respectively. By 1895 the output of the United Kingdom was still considerably greater than the combined output of the United States and Germany, their proportion of the total being 45 per cent, 20 per cent and 18 per cent respectively. The next half-decennial period witnessed a remarkable increase in the American product and a corresponding relative decrease in that of Great Britain, the respective proportions being 36, 28 and 17 per cent. This increase was maintained in the present decade and in 1899 the output of the United Kingdom was only 34 per cent, that of the United States 30 per cent, and that of Germany 19.2 per cent of the world's total output. These statistics clearly show that the United Kingdom is rapidly losing its former pre-eminence as a coal-producing power, and that while its production is increasing rapidly, its absolute increase is less than that of the United States, and its relative increase considerably less than that of either the United States or Germany. In 1885 the production of these three countries, the United Kingdom, the United States and Germany, in the order named, was 155.5 million, 51.6 million, and 36.2 million net tons; in 1895 their output was 226.4 million, 230.2 million and 132.7 million net tons respectively. The absolute increase in the British production was 110.9 million, as compared with 96.5 million for Germany and 168.6 million net tons for the United States. The proportional increase during these three decades (1885-1895) was 26.4 per cent for the United Kingdom, as compared with 266.1 per cent for Germany and 592.3 per cent for the United States.

Information has been received at the state department that the fact that the czar has ordered the suspension of the import duty on coal for use on railways of Russia until Sept. 1, 1900, has a special significance for the United States in view of the scarcity of coal, which now seems world wide, except in our country. It arouses, furthermore, an interest in the Siberian coal-mining industry, hitherto not sufficiently regarded. While some American coal has been already shipped to Japan and China, none has yet gone to Russia, and probably will not, owing to the greater demands nearer home.

Mining of all kinds in Siberia has hitherto been beset with so many difficulties as to discourage operators, native or foreign. The concession to an American—D. M. Clarkson—to mine for gold or coal on his own account, without the usual adjunct of a Russian partner, seems to point to a more liberal policy. Still, there are restrictions. Mr. Clarkson and Mr. Emery, the latter the only other American recently of Siberia—who has also been granted special privilege by imperial rescript—can not enter into combination with any existing company nor operate any but new claims, and even their work must be done under disadvantages which would be hardly tolerable to ordinary American prospectors. For example, one must have special permits from local authorities for felling trees and constructing roads, and there are certain rules to be followed when minerals other than those specified in the grant—as copper, iron, etc.—are found.

Good specimens of coal, anthracite and bituminous, are shown. There are excellent auriferous exhibits, and much small capital has been exhausted in simply discovering that there is mineral wealth. There is one coal mine at Nadishinsk about thirty-one miles from Vladivostock and only twelve miles from the Usuri railroad. The extent of this coal is about six square miles, and it is semi-anthracite, excellent quality, smokeless. It has attracted the attention of the naval bureau as available for battleships, and also for the naval works and factories at Vladivostock. When a French company tried to buy this mine, and offered 250,000 francs or $48,750, 150,000 francs or $28,950 deposit was required. The French company retired. Recently, it is said, a half interest in this mine was sold for $80,000, and it is now being managed on strictly business principles, the original owner being allowed $4000 per year to superintend the work.

There is another coal mine sixteen miles from Vladivostock and a little over two miles from the railroad, with a coal bed of about seven square miles. This coal is said to be suitable for steamships and in some respects superior to Japanese coal. The French company referred to tried to buy this mine also, but no agreement could be reached. The Frenchmen said the more anxious they were to close the deal the higher rose the price. A number of other coal mines have been recently discovered. Even before the present famine, coal was expensive in Vladivostock, and it is now worth from $6 to $10 a ton. The market is good on account of the number of steamers entering and departing. Coal is also used for heating purposes, as wood is growing scarcer every year. A Russian company owns the best paying mine at St. Olga's bay, about 112 miles from Vladivostock. Messrs. Clarkson & Co. own two good coal mines, which have been developed at much expense.

Siberia is really no field for Americans. The best chance for Americans in this country is in the line of mechanical work. A well-equipped machine shop, with competent American artisans and specialists in certain industries, would do well in Siberia; but no American without capital or special skill in his trade has any business in this country.

TO BE KEANE.

Early Appointment of Archbishop Keane as Archbishop of Dubuque Indicated.

Washington, June 16.—Advices have reached the papal legation from Rome indicating in the early appointment of Archbishop Keane, as archbishop of Dubuque. The appointment, it is said, would have been made before this, but for the antagonism of the German priests in that see, who favor the selection of Father Carroll, a professor at the Dubuque seminary, for the vacancy.

It is understood that their opposition to Bishop Keane arises on the Schroeder case.

TROUBLE IN THE KOOTENAI.

Another Strike Throughout Mining District Is Imminent.

Vancouver, B. C., June 16.—Another strike throughout the Kootenai mining district is imminent. Unless all signs fail, 2000 muckers will stop work tonight and refuse to resume on Monday morning.

J. Roderick Robertson, of Nelson, president of the South Kootenai board of trade and managing director of the British Columbia gold fields, says he would not be surprised if work was stopped in a number of the mines in a few days if the present difficulties were not settled in negotiations now under way.

The difficulty arises over a question of wages, and has been brewing for several months. In about three-quarters of the mines, the muckers, who are the principal workers under ground, are paid $2.50 to $2.60 a day. In a small minority of the mines, they get $3 a day. It is to make the $3 rule uniform in all the mines, that the strike is being organized.

BOOM FOR ELKINS.

Senator Scott Will Spring Him For Vice President.

Philadelphia, June 16.—"Don't you think it about time to launch the Elkins' vice presidential boom?" asked Senator Scott of West Virginia of a fellow member of the national committee today, and the senator continued by expressing his own opinion. "For myself," he said, "I consider the time quite ripe, and I have wired our delegation to get an Elkins' banner, string it to their car and come in with an Elkins' shout.

"I think they will do this, and probably you will see the boom well floated when they get here tomorrow. And do you know, the convention could not do better than to take my colleague in the senate for this important place. I think he would make a strong candidate and an excellent vice president."

ONE CENT ADVANCE

Wheat Started Strong, Fell Back on Selling But Advanced Again.

THE CABLES HIGHER

Duluth Board of Trade, June 16.—A strong, active and excited wheat market prevailed today. The news was all of a bullish character and despite the dumping of a large amount of long wheat on the market at the start prices advanced rapidly. The chief factor was the continued absence of rain in Minnesota and North Dakota and the unfavorable reports about the crop in the Northwest. On the other hand, heavy rains were said to have caused damage in Illinois. The cables were higher, Liverpool showing an advance of ½d, and it was claimed France will have to import 30,000,000 bus of wheat.

The market held steady and firm to the close, which was 1½c higher than yesterday's, and 2¼@2½c higher at Chicago for the July option.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 2½c up, at 74½c, sold at 74⅝c at 9:32, reacted to 74½c at 10, advanced steadily to 75½c at 11:30 and closed at 75¾c, being 1¾c higher than yesterday. September wheat started ⅝c up, at 69½c, sold up to 70¼c at 9:32, declined to 70⅛c at 10, advanced to 70¾c at 11:35, and closed at 70c, a net gain of 1¾c. Cash sales were 50,000 bus at ½c under July. Oats and barley were unchanged. Corn and rye each advanced 1½c. Cash and May flax were unchanged, September flax rose 2c, and October flax advanced 3½c.

At Chicago, July wheat opened 3½@1c higher, at 73¾@75c, dropped back to 73⅜c and rose rapidly to 75¾c.

July wheat closed at 75¾-¾c at Chicago, a net gain of 1¾@1¾c.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 451 cars, against 450 last week and 536 last year. Chicago receipts, 72 cars, 1 of contract grade. Following were the closing prices:

ON THE CHICAGO BOARD.

Meat and Provisions Strong---Corn and Oats Firm.

Chicago, June 16.—The wheat market today was broad, excited and strong. The fact that there was scarcely any rain in Minnesota or North Dakota was the main factor. Liverpool closed ½d higher and crop reports from the Northwest were very unfavorable. France, it was reported, would have to import 30,000,000 bus of wheat. Illinois claimed damages from heavy rains. July opened 75@75¼c per bus today at 75¾@¾c. There was a great deal of long wheat for sale and this forced July back to 74⅝c following the opening. On the break, the demand was redoubled and July rose rapidly to 75¾c. Local receipts were 72 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 451 cars, against 450 last week and 536 a year ago.

The demand continued unabated to the end and July rose to 75¾c. On profit-taking, the market reacted some, but closed strong, July 75@¾c over yesterday at 75⅛@¾c.

The corn market was fairly active and firm, helped principally by wheat. July opened 58@58¼c, dropped back to 57½@57⅝c and then rallied to 58½@58¾c. Receipts here were 681 cars.

The market later touched 59¼c and closed strong 1c improved at 59⅜c.

Oats were quiet but firm, shorts covering on the strength of wheat. July opened ⅛c higher at 22¾@⅞c and sold to 22⅝c. Receipts here were 256 cars.

Provisions were strong and moderately active. Hog receipts were light, the market at the yards firm and the wheat buoyancy was also a help. July pork opened 100@12½c higher at $11.35, touched $11.20 and later reacted to $11.30. July lard began the session 7½c improved at $6.60 and sold to $6.62½. July ribs opened 7½c up at $6.60 and advanced to $6.67½.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over the private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce, and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 16.—The wheat market ruled very strong today, with an active trade. After opening firm inter sold off on realizing by local longs but at the decline there was very heavy buying which absorbed all the offerings and prices sharply advanced 1¾c per bus from the low point and closed firm at a reaction of ¼c from the high point or 1½c higher than last night. Liverpool reported their market as strong, 1¾d higher in sympathy with our firm close of last night. Continental markets were firm. Reports from the Northwest were sensationally bad and even less than half a crop is now predicted. There were also several complaints of too much rain in the winter wheat belt damaging the crop. Advices from France received today were to the effect that that country would have to import 30,000,000 bus of wheat on account of the serious shortage in their own crop. The sharp advance in the market checked the cash demand both here and at the seaboard but we look upon this as only temporarily. The foreigners will have to buy and buy freely in the near future. We see nothing in the situation to change our opinion and believe in higher prices. As we have said before after sharp bulges reactions are in order caused by profit taking but on all weak spots advise our friends to buy. Estimated receipts Monday 95 cars.

The corn market ruled very strong all day in sympathy with wheat and on covering by shorts, also buying by local longs, owing to light country offerings and good cash demand closing firm, 1¢ higher. Liverpool reported their market as firm, ½d higher than yesterday. Continental markets were also firm. Advices from the country indicate that the movement is practically over, therefore receipts in the near future will drop off materially. The weather was generally favorable for the growing crop. Trade was large all day and the undertone to the market strong. The seaboard reported good demand there for export. The situation is as strong as ever and we think the market is on the eve of a good advance. Receipts Monday 700 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in oats today and the market ruled strong in sympathy with wheat and corn. There was good buying by outsiders as well as covering by shorts. Country offerings light, cash demand fairly good. We look for oats to sell higher and advise our friends to buy. Receipts Monday 300 cars.

Provisions opened firm on smaller receipts of hogs and later developed good strength and advanced materially. Packers sold steadily all day as the advance in product secures them a fair manufacturing profit. The market davances easily and while outsiders continue to load up prices are likely to work higher. Estimated 35,000 hogs Monday and 170,000 next week.

WEARES REPORT.

Chicago, June 16.—The wheat market continues to resist all pressure, from the selling side and the market today has advanced on strong buying orders from all quarters, and the continuation of serious crop news from the Northwest. The wheat market today has been but a duplicate; sudden reaction from any weak tendency and persistent climbing of prices daily over the previous close. During the week which has just closed, the board of trade has experienced business which has given an old-time look to the exchange floor. Traders from all quarters are coming into the market freely and invariably on the long side. The reports from the Northwest territories are of the most gloomy character today, as they have been right along and are backed by orders from the country people, who are in a position to realize the actual state of affairs, and are prompted by such conditions to take the buying side of wheat. Damage talk is not confined to the Northwest, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee all taking deterioration from excess of rain, while the position in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana is of the most serious character that has prevailed for many years. There is considerable talk also of foreign crops being in a bad way. London reports today that the crop in Southern Russia is less than an average. Paris cables claim that that country will require in the neighborhood of 30,000,000 bus of foreign wheat. Add these facts to the lamentable condition of things in China and the political complications which may be incident to this Chinese trouble, and you have all possibilities in themselves which the trade should take into consideration. Our foreign cutcomers continue to be skeptical regarding the reliability of our crop reports and are holding off with considerable indifference from the buying side. Undoubtedly the traditional feeling that there is considerable bluff on our part is responsible for this and we venture to say that our foreign friends will waken up one of these days to the fact that we can dictate prices and those far beyond their ideas at present. We do not consider this a market to view from the standpoint of what it may do from day to day, but consider is more an affair that will reinsure perhaps some little patience. Perhaps fair margins, and must be looked upon from a broader point of view than from daily fluctuations. Further advances will make profit-taking very attractive to many local bulls and longs, whose ideas are not too pronounced and reactionary tendencies may result, but as we view it, looking at it from all standpoints, from the question of short crops at home, short crops abroad, and speculative activity, this market should be bought on every and all declines, and it is just possible those who are looking for reactions may be disappointed, but in our opinion any way, purchases of wheat around these figures will result in very gratifying profits to the holder, and with but small risk attached.

The corn market has been active, sympathizing with wheat, but receiving encouragement also from better Liverpool markets, which show an advance of from ½@¾c. Corn has been neglected for wheat, but has relieved as much as to attract speculation. The farmer is showing no increase in inclination to market his holdings, while the demand for corn is showing remarkable continuance and increasing. Practically the only thing against prices is rather premature reports that the growing crop is in very fine condition. This is always a fact at this time of the year. Its troubles being still ahead of it. The seaboard clearances continue to be large, this with home consumption capable of taking care of what small receipts there are, and altogether we are firm believers in a bull turn in corn, perhaps not immediately, but not a great ways off. On all breaks this curtail should be bought and held, and all such purchases will very valuably reward properly.

The oat market has been strong, with prices advancing with other grains. Country offerings are light, but so also is cash demand. The oat market, in fact, some activity this week, produced mainly by the talk of the hay failure in the Northwest, and of a sligh squeeze in the July option. This latter we are inclined to think is only the temporary. The former may cut considerable figure, but a large part of its already reported in the advance gained in the September option over July.

The provision market has been firm, mostly changing in character with values showing some advance. While stocks have increased slightly during the week, they are still remarkably small.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Heavy Lines Thrown on the Market and Caused a Decline.

CLOSING WAS ACTIVE

New York, June 16.—Supporting orders were in evidence in the stock market at the opening on account of the uneasiness caused by the action of the Northern Pacific directors yesterday in reducing the rate of the dividend on the common stock. That stock sold simultaneously from 55 down to 54, compared with 56 last night. The grangers and a number of leading international stocks were most affected in sympathy, Louisville declining 1⅝. Prices here were above the London parity, the weakness in the American section there being acute. The market showed a tendency to rally after the opening. The supporting orders in the market had the effect of rather checking the pressure to sell, but there was considerable speculative liquidation and business was larger than for some time past. Stocks which have advanced on hopes of dividend increase and the grain carrying roads were the special sufferers, Northern Pacific way way 2⅜ and Chicago Northwestern 2. The steel stocks were weak, led by Tennessee Coal with a loss of 2½. A fractional rally threw the market into dullness.

After the decline had been effectually checked and the selling pressure relaxed, the liquidation was renewed and very large blocks were thrown upon the market of all leading railroad stocks, and the specialties, at declines of from 1 to 2½; Northern Pacific touched 51⅝ an extreme decline of 4⅜; Great Northern, preferred, lost 2, Minneapolis & St. Louis, 3, and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, preferred, 2½. The room operators covered on a bulletin on the destruction of the legations at Pekin, but the rallies were feeble. The realizing sales continued so heavy that the traders put out fresh short lines. The closing was active and weak at the lowest.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 16.—The market for cotton futures opened easy in tone with prices 1 to 3 points lower and further sold off later under pressure from bulls and bears, who were influenced by good weather reports, a friendly "Chronicle" statement of the week's developments in the best and disappointing orders called. After the first burst of trading, business settled down to a professional week-end statement of accounts and prices varied but little from the early decline. The foreign element took an indifferent part in the forenoon operations on the local exchange, and influential Southern interests failed to appear as traders. Much of the cotton sold on stop orders pilled up early in the week on the belief that a strong New Orleans clique was going to push July and August to 9c. The bear faction was disposed to be conservative.

Cotton spot closed dull; middling uplands, 9 1-16; middling gulf, 9 5-16; sales, 579 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; June, 8.57; July, 8.59; August, 8.33; September, $7.81; October, $7.65; November, $7.53; December, $7.51; January, $7.53; February, $7.54; March, $7.57; April, $7.59; May, $7.61.

THE HAVANA ELECTION.

Good Order Prevails---Voting Begins Fairly Brisk.

Havana, June 16.—The municipal elections began at 6 o'clock this morning. The voting for the first three hours was fairly brisk. No trouble is anticipated, but the police arrangements for preserving order at the booths are complete. The military party, headed by Gen. Maximo Gomez, is supporting the mayoralty candidacy of Estrada Mora, while the nationalist candidate is Alejandro Rodriguez.

Washington, June 16.—The war department received the following from Gen. Wood, at Havana:

"Elections in Havana progressing quietly without slightest disorder. No reports of disorder or trouble anywhere in the island thus far."

WOLCOTT FOR SCOTT.

He Declares For the Californian For Vice President.

Philadelphia, June 16.—Senator Wolcott arrived today and immediately announced himself as favorable to the candidacy of Irving Scott, of California, for the vice presidency.

"Scott's candidacy would appeal to every Western man," he said. "He is a man of great force of character and I believe his nomination would add strength to the ticket."

Mr. Wolcott said that he was not himself a candidate for a place on the ticket and would not be.

RUSKIN'S GIFT.

For his guests at Brantwood the late John Ruskin could not do enough, and he gave pleasure in such various ways, says the Puritan. During one of these visits one of his pets, an extremely pretty little girl, with the real Titian colored rippling hair (she owed a good deal to that hair), expressed a wish for a blue Liberty silk dress. The malden was at the time much enamored of Miss Kate Greenaway's costumes, there were so many of her beautiful drawings at Brantwood. The dress was instantly sent for, but when it came neither its texture nor its color pleased our host; so think Marshall and Snelgrove were bidden to send "a sky blue silk, a good one." It came, it was a good one and a local dressmaker was found to make it. According to the owner's instructions it was made with a straight, skimpy skirt and a high waist. Mr. Ruskin would not lessen the joy of the pretty wearer by a single adverse criticism, but when Miss Bluegown had tripped off to bed he exclaimed reproachfully to another girl staying in the house, "Why, the woman hasn't left her a single scrap of waist!" In fact, he greatly appreciated what nowadays we call "smart frocks," and daintily frivolous, not to say worldly, French modes found distinct favor in his eyes.

THE AGE OF ALUMINUM.

The coming age will be the age of aluminum. It is only seventy years since this wonderful metal was discovered by Woehler, and the aluminum industry, scarcely forty years old, commands already the attention of the entire world. Such rapid growth has not been recorded in the history of civilization before. Not long ago aluminum was sold at the fanciful price of $30 or $40 per pound; today it can be had in any desired amount for as many cents. What is more, the time is not far off when this price, too, will be considered fanciful, for great improvements are possible in the methods of its manufacture.

The absolutely unavoidable consequence of the advance of the aluminum industry will be the annihilation of the copper industry. They cannot exist and prosper together, and the latter is doomed beyond any hope of recovery, says Nicola Tesla in The Century Magazine. Given now it be cheaper to convey an electric current through illuminum wires than through copper wires; aluminum castings cost less, and in many domestic and other uses copper has no chance of successfully competing. A further material reduction of the price of aluminum cannot but be fatal to copper. But the progress of the former will not go on unchecked, for, as it ever happens in such cases, the larger industry will absorb the smaller one; the giant copper interests will control the pigmy aluminum interests, and the slow-pacing copper will reduce the lively gait of aluminum. This will only delay, not avoid, the impending catastrophe.

Aluminum, however, will not stop at downing copper. Before many years have passed it will be engaged in a fierce struggle with iron, and in the latter it will find a adversary not easy to conquer. The issue of the contest will largely depend on whether iron shall be indispensable in electric machinery. This the future alone can decide.

While it is impossible to tell when this industrial revolution will be consummated, there can be no doubt that the future belongs to aluminum, and that in times to come it will be the chief means of increasing human performance. It has in this respect capacities greater by far than those of any other metal. I should estimate its civilizing potency at fully one hundred times that of iron. This estimate, though it may astonish, is not at all exaggerated. First of all, we must remember that there is thirty times as much aluminum as iron in bulk available for the uses of man. This in itself offers great possibilities. Then, again, the new metal is much more easily workable, which adds to its value. In many of its properties it partakes of the character of a precious metal, which gives it additional worth. Its electric conductivity, which, for a given weight, is greater than that of any other metal, would be alone sufficient to make it one of the most important factors in future human progress. Its extreme lightness makes it far more easy to transport the objects manufactured. By virtue of this property it will revolutionize naval construction, and in facilitating transport and travel it will add enormously to the useful performance of mankind. But its greatest civilizing potency will be, I believe, in aerial travel, which is sure to be brought about by means of it. Telegraphic instruments will slowly enlighten the barbarian. Electric motors and lamps will do it more quickly, but quicker than anything else the flying machine will do it. By rendering travel ideally easy it will be the best means for unifying the heterogeneous elements of humanity.

The Gold Product of the World.

Reports from the Klondike say that the season's output of gold will amount to $20,000,000 and exceed that sum. The Nome district product may run anywhere from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000, while the Atlin district will yield a large amount. It is possible that the gold output from Alaska and the Northwest Territory for the years may reach $50,000,000. But two-thirds of that would be a large sum to come from the frozen North. Before the war broke out in South Africa, which had become the greatest gold-producing region in the world, it was estimated that the gold production of 1900 might reach $400,000,000. That war has cut down the gold production of South Africa very much, but this will be partly made up by the increase in Alaska, and while the total is likely to fall considerably below $100,000,000, it will be sufficient. And in a year or two the South African mines will be putting out more gold than ever. Then there are gold fields yet untouched—in Japan, in China, in the Philippines, in South America, in Mexico. How rich or extensive they may be we do not know, cannot even conjecture; but that there is plenty of gold for the world's standard money to be found, and that it will be found, are as certain as it is necessary to be. So there is no need to worry in the lease about this country's or the world's gold supply, though individuals will continue to be dissatisfied because they have not their share of it. But the more men there are who scatter out to the gold fields, the better will be the opportunities for those who stay at home to secure a larger share of the new gold found.

Instances of the Looting of Cuba's Treasury.

The loose manner in which the finances of Cuba were handled by the American officials is shown in a report submitted by the war department to congress at its request. The report covers the last half of the year 1899, and the department excused itself for not sending in a report for the whole year because the data relating to the first half of the year had not arrived from Cuba. Why did not the war office call for it when it was due? To show how the money in the Cuban treasury was squandered it is only necessary to point to the accounting in this report. There is, for instance, an item, "eventual expenses, $31,256." No one seems to be able to explain what is meant by these eventual expenses, no more than by "provincial deputation, $230.58." But in this manner the extraordinary expenses figure in the report to a sum total of not less than $289,673, all of which was taken out of the Cuban treasury. The expenses for civil salaries are given in the report at $3,122,052. Not a single state in the Union can show such an amount expended for salaries of state officials, and yet Cuba has a population of only about 1,500,000. These salaries alone amount to a tax of over $2 upon each inhabitant of the island. There is an item of expenditures of $566,162 under the head of "rural guard and administration," from which it would appear that $417,813 of that amount was used for salaries alone. The post director's office consumed $219,087 in salaries. That amount is for the post director and his immediate staff alone and does not include the salary of any one of the working force in the department. There is one item of $49,541 in the report for miscellaneous expenditures in the post department. Of course no one knows what that word "miscellaneous" covers or who captured the substance. This shows how the "highest examples of our civilization," sent there by the administration to teach the unsophisticated Cubans how to govern themselves, grabbed every dollar in sight and piled up an expense account for one year of not less than $14,000,000.

DULUTH'S MANY VISITORS.

Seldom, if ever, has Duluth had so many visitors at one time within her gates as at present. The streets have been filled with sightseers and the many objects of interest in and around the city have been viewed by thousands. In addition to the large number of people attending the Commercial Travelers' gathering, many hundreds have come here on other excursions. With delightful weather, that bright particular brand of which Duluth only can boast, the visitors have had a chance to thoroughly enjoy themselves, and indications point to the fact that they have been having and are now enjoying a good time.

It has been gratifying to notice that Duluth people have done much to entertain the city's guests and provide them with the opportunities to see the city's varied attractions. The program of sightseeing has been extensive and varied, and the visitors will undoubtedly return home well pleased with their experiences and long retain pleasant recollections of their visit to the head of the lakes. They can rest assured that they will always be welcome here, and that Duluth will be glad to see them at any time.

ANOTHER FLAW IN BRYAN.

The Republican press bureau is awfully worked up over the immense and still growing wealth of William J. Bryan, and is pointing to him as a plutocrat! It is stated that according to returns of the city assessor of Lincoln, Neb., Mr. Bryan will this year pay taxes on more personal property than any other man in that supposedly wealthy city. Altogether he has accumulated of worldly goods, assessable as personal property, valuables worth $4560, of which he acquired upwards of $1600 during the past year. This is certainly an immense sum to have tied up in chairs, kitchen furniture, beds, etc., when only a modest bank account and a few notes figure in his aggregate savings. Mr. Bryan should be ashamed of the story these figures tell, especially when no other inhabitant of Lincoln displays equal elegance of life or similar heavy deposits in the banks. Lincoln has always been regarded as a wealthy city, but rumor has evidently done it injustice in assuming it to be the home of many very rich men. For, in spite of its being the capital of one of the wealthiest states in the West, and itself one of the very oldest cities in that region, a comparatively young man, whose entire possessions wouldn't suffice to purchase President McKinley's precinct in Canton for McKinley, is its richest inhabitant—unless he is its most honest citizen who has accumulated any property at all.

As the Denver Post says, this probably will be the view taken by his friends—that Mr. Bryan is withholding nothing from the assessor, but in action as in word, is performing the duty of a good citizen, that he is rendering to Caesar the things that are Caesar's. In this he seems to be alone. It is not long since a gentleman of Lincoln, whose politics are violently opposed to the views held by Mr. Bryan, was reported to have spent $50,000 or $60,000 in the vain pursuit of a senatorship. The effort presumably was the ruin of this reputed millionaire, for he wasn't as rich as Bryan when the assessor last saw him. There are other reputed millionaires in Lincoln, but the fortunes of all sank at the approach of the assessor. The modest holdings of Bryan alone failed to depreciate in value.

It is suggested by the Post that it might perhaps be well for those who are so gleefully pointing to Bryan's saving of $1600 in one year as excessive, to turn their eyes eastward toward Washington, where resides a man who defeated Bryan for the presidency four years ago. Then he was under mortgage of over $100,000 to Hanna, Herrick and the remainder of the Ohio syndicate that foisted him on the country. What is his financial condition now? Has the assessor seen him?

THE CHINESE SITUATION.

The situation in China has become more serious during the past twenty-four hours. Pekin has been cut off from telegraphic communication with the outside world, and no word can be obtained as to whether the foreign legations in that city have been wiped out by the Boxers. The port of Tien Tsin is now in the absolute control of these fanatics, and murder and incendiarism are rampant. What the result may be no one can tell. It is plainly necessary that the European nations and the United States must do something at once to protect their own people, who are in the Chinese empire.

The present state of affairs might have been prevented had the other nations not been afraid of Russia. When the "Boxers" began murdering Christian missionaries and native Christians, Russia stepped forward with an available force ready for immediate service, but the other seven Christian governments that were on hand to interfere and offer to restore peace, shrieked separately: "No; let me do the pacifying." And so nothing was done to suppress the "Boxers" and restore order, and things have steadily gone from bad to worse. The dowager empress and her supporters know that the national jealousies will prevent the interference of a single power; they know that these Christian powers cannot agree upon a united interference until they have first arranged for a division of the spoils of war, and so the "Boxers" go on with their bloody work. If any missionaries are left alive in Northern China when this disturbance is over it will be due to their good luck rather than to the protection of the Christian powers. Human lives weigh as feathers when balanced against national aggrandizement. It is a better business policy to let the fanatics murder a hundred missionaries and a few hundred converts than to let Russia gain additional prestige by putting a stop to the murders. Her nine warships and 26,000 troops are not available for the enforcement of peace. This is the reasoning of these jealous powers.

The "Boxers," it is said, have a membership running into the millions, and with the secret encouragement of the authorities at Pekin, they can do awful havoc. Their outrages have so far been confined to the province of Shan Tung,, which lies south of Pekin. This province, having an area of but 56,000 square miles, has a population closely estimated at 35,000,000. As in the case of the vigilantes, organized in the lawless days of placer mining in the far West, the society of "Boxers" was originally formed with a commendable purpose. It was organized to deal with bands of native robbers, but later became an instrument of private revenge, and later still for venting the Chinese hatred against "foreign devils." Originally the "Boxers" were the Brotherhood of the Strong Sword (in Chinese Ta Too Why) and accomplished good work in the interest of law and order. Its membership is largely composed of ignorant Chinese and intriguing men, who desire the checking of foreign influences, work upon the ignorant masses with assertios that the missionaries are opposed to the veneration of ancestors, and murder Chinese children to obtain certain organs said to be used in witchcraft.

A GOVERNMENT CABLE.

It is anounced that work has been started on the cable which is to be laid across the Pacific ocean. It was required by the act of congress that the cable be built in this country. The first section to be laid will extend from some point on the Pacific coast to Honolulu, in the Hawaiian islands, and as the contract for the first installment of the cable calls for sufficient for that section to be ready for delivery by the end of September, the line to Honolulu may be in operation by the end of the present year.

As far as the line to the Orient is concerned, nothing definite has as yet been arranged. The route by way of Wake and Guam islands has been surveyed, but it is a very long route and presents material difficulties in construction. The northern route by way of Alaska, on the other hand, is much shorter and less difficult to construct and operate, and it is very probable that with the increasing development of Alaska that route may finally be selected. For the time being the Honolulu cable will answer the most pressing demands, as no wire connection with that archipelago exists, and all communication with it is restricted to the mails, whose transport requires a week from any point on the Pacific coast. Connection with the Orient is had by the cables of private corporations, but the construction of a government line to Japan, China and Manilla is regarded by many advisable, whether the possessions there are retained or not. Such a cable line should prove a paying investment.

It is worthy of special note that the cable to Honolulu will be the first cable line owned and operated by this government. If successful, it will probably lead to the construction of other lines which are equally necessary. It has frequently been pointed out that the government should have laid a cable from some point on the Florida coast to Cuba long ago, and thereby saved the immense amount of money that has been expended in tolls paid by the government to a private corporation. If governemnt ownership of cable lines should prove a success, as it doubtless will, why should not government ownership of all the telegraph lines in this country be a good thing?

Senator Hoar puts his foot heavily upon the statement from Manilla that letters from him are included in Aguinaldo's secret correspondence. The senator is thus quoted by the Boston Herald: "It is a lie, an infernal lie! And you can put as many damns in my refutation of Buencamino's statement as your conscience will permit! The only correspondence I ever had with a Filipino was while I was in London. This correspondence was confined to a request and a refusal. Some Filipinos who were living in London at the time expressed a desire to call on me. Their letter was courteous, and my answer was in the same vein. I told them that under the circumstances I did not consider that it would be proper for citizens of the two countries to indulge in any social intercourse whatsoever. I declined to receive them." Equally false was the statement that the same correspondence contains letters from Mr. Bryan. The whole story was concocted by the Republican press bureau.

The Preston Times (Rep.) reads the American Economist, the national organ of the high protected trusts, a wholesome lesson. The Times says: "The Economist would do better to lend its influence towards the combatting of trusts rather than keep up its howl for an ultra protection which in many cases is taken advantage of by these same trusts, not for the purposes of legitimate protection for our own working men against the cheap labor of Europe, but to enhance prices to the consumer. Infant industries should be protected, but when the infants have grown into porkers of large dimensions it is time that they should be made to shift for themselves. Them's our ideas on protection."

The Portland Oregonian (Rep.) says that the election results in Oregon do not show approval of the Porto Rico tariff or any other attempt to make the new possessions commercial and industrial vassals to the home country. The people of Oregon believe in free trade with Porto Rico, and they "want the same as to the Philippine islands; and they know, moreover, that if we are to hold these islands, that policy must be adopted." But free trade with the Philippines means either the abandonment of the open door to which the administration is committed, or the practical abandonment of the whole United States tariff system. This is clear enough to anybody. Which is it to be?

The New York subscription for the Dewey arch and those for the Indian famine are running a neck-and-neck race. A leading New York newspaper that appealed at least two months ago for money for the starving in India has not received $3000, and it circulates among the richest people of the city. As for the Dewey arch, there is now no interest in it at all, and the scheme for perpetuating it is flat.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says the Republican party is "a party that does things." Quite true, remarks the Omaha World-Herald. It violated a solemn national pledge to Cuba, deserted the Declaration of Independence to wage a war of conquest in the Philippines, appropriate $1,500,000,000 during the last session of congress and passed the Porto Rican tariff bill.

The place where the war ships now are, at the mouth of the Pei-ho river in China, saw the battle between the Chinese forts and the British and American squadrons back in the late '50s. "Blood is thicker than water" has come to be a common phrase. Commodore Tattnall of the United States navy used it on that occasion when he decided to save the British from probable destruction.

An Omaha editor says that finer summer resorts than the highlands of Nebraska do not exist. Evidently the ignorant man has never been out of Nebraska and has never even heard of Duluth.

Perhaps Judge Taft and his peace commission would have their labors greatly lightened if they would read some of the orations by the graduates and learn the proper mode of procedure.

A Brooklyn man was fatally injured by falling down stairs with a bucket of coal. This should prove a warning to women against risking their husbands' lives.

What's the matter with this ticket for the Republicans: For president, William McKinley, of Ohio; for vice president, William E. Mason, of Illinois.

In Arkansas they fine women $50 for wearing stuffed birds on their hats. And yet some people have thought that Arkansas is only half civilized.

An Eastern paper says it has cost the graduating class at Yale $1,250,000 to take the four years' course. Considerable of this is for "sundries."

There is much talk about the Tammany ice trust in New York, but there are nearly as many Republicans as Tammany men in the combine.

Dr. Talmage is going to Norway to see the midnight sun. He could find lots of sons after midnight by remaining at home.

Col. Bacon, of New York, says that Roosevelt was "a quitter and a peacock in Cuba." And Bacon is a Republican.

Smythe—Duplicate birthday presents. That is to say—twins.

SOME TRUTHS IN HOMESPUN.

Be wise and envy not the man
Attired however spick and span,
True greatness empty fripperies but scorns,
Silk hats may serve alone to dress
A noddle full of emptiness,
And patent leathers hide a wealth of corns.

No garments, fine they be, yet can
Make lady or make gentleman;
No garb, how poor it may be, can ever hide
The mark of true nobility.
Nor velvet cloak, but we may see
The boor, once its rich folds are dropped aside.

No lady yet was made with lace
Or silk, for Nature leaves a trace
That every artifice is vain to hide,
The lady is, in calico,
Not less the gentlewoman, though
She had no mark of gentleness beside.

The practiced-oft deception thin
By asses in a lion's skin
In some unthinking bray with ease we read,
A vulture, be he decked and dressed
With plumes from any eagle's crest
Betrays in seeking carrion, his breed.

Count no man your superior,
Whatever his exterior,
Appearance of true worth is not a rule,
The jester's cap and jingling bells
Full many a gem of wisdom tells,
And wisdom's mortarboard may deck a fool.

A King, by right and nature grown,
Is King without a crown or thorne,
Simplicity but marks his kingliness,
No crown or thorne or signet ring,
Can make a knave seem more a King,
The purple only makes him seem the less.

The boor, of any style or ilk,
Is but the greater boor in silk,
The garb but marks the more his borlishness;
No person ever yet that rose
Above himself by help of clothes,
The manner makes the man, and not the dress.

A Bachelor's Reflections.

New York Press: There never was a man who had softening of the brain that didn't think he was in love.

There is something in being a poet or a woman that makes them hate to kill a mouse.

Every man, at some time in his life, has treated some one woman so badly he ought to be scalped.

There ought to be a society to punish men who wear chin whiskers by making them presents of diamond studs.

Love after marriage is about as much like it was before as the colored vegetables you see in the seed catalogues are like the ones you raise in your own back yard.

As to Prosperity.

Waverly Tribune: Two New York farmers were recently interviewed as to their views on prosperity under McKinley's administration. Said one of them: "We farmers are not any better off than we were. What we sell brings no higher prices; while the things we have to buy cost more. I bought ten pounds of nails yesterday, and I had to pay 50 cents more than they used to cost before there was a nail trust." "There may be prosperity for the trusts," said the other, "but I am not getting any of it. In fact, I'm worse off than I was, for the trust has shut up a factory here, for which I used to drive a team." The farmers of the Northwest, if questioned about McKinley prosperity, will give similar replies, and so will the laboring men.

Another Polite Hint.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Assuming that there is no reason for the popular distrust of Senator Hanna, it is sufficient to know that that distrust exists. Senator Hanna could be a formidable factor in Mr. McKinley's re-election without personally conducting the campaign.

The Real Question.

Philadelphia Press: Philadelhia announces that it is ready for the Republican convention. That is not particularly important. Is the Hon. Mark Hanna ready? That is the real question.

Mere Wart In Comparison.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: If all the stories of stealing that went on under Director Rathbone's nose are true, Cyrano de Bergerac can no longer claim distinction for his proboscis.

Mrs. Pinkham

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience — experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for 20 years, day after day and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success — think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

If you are ill get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once—then write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

The Best Things to Eat

Are made with Royal Baking Powder —bread, biscuit, cake, rolls, muffins, crusts, and all the various pastries requiring a leavening or raising agent.

Risen with Royal Baking Powder, all these foods are superlatively light, sweet, tender, delicious and wholesome.

Royal Baking Powder is the greatest of time and labor savers to the pastry cook. Besides, it economizes flour, butter and eggs, and, best of all, makes the food more digestible and healthful.

There are many imitation baking powders, sold cheap, which contain alum. Housekeepers must avoid these. Alum is a poison, and its use in food is condemned by all physicians.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 100 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

The Rounder

The following slightly sacrilegious and highly disrespectful document is being handed about the city, and is said to be the work of a Minneapolis man. It purports to be a letter from Bob Ingersoll, written in the interestingly torrid climate of Hades to a friend on earth, and it is as follows:

Banks of the Styx, Sheol, Aug. 3.—I will endeavor to write you the letter I promised before leaving New York. Sam Jones inadvertently told the truth, for, just as he predicted and as I secretly expected, I am in Hades. Came straight through without a stop. I am sitting on a hot cinder writing this letter on a piece of slate gouged from the ceiling with my trident. A "trident," you know, is one of those funny-looking little pitchforks like Neptune used to carry about with him at the seaside. Everybody has one, and it makes a fellow think he's at a Populist convention.

When I was on earth I didn't believe in hell, for I had traveled in Kansas, and didn't think there could be two places so much alike. But I hadn't been here half a day until I believed in it a whole lot. It is much more genuine and realistic than I anticipated, but I think I'll like it when I get acclimated. Just now my feet are blistered from walking on the hot pavements, and I am dabbling them in the Styx to cool them off. I was talking to Moses a while ago, and he says they will soon get calloused and then I'll be all hunkydory. He has read my "Mistakes of Moses," and laughingly admitted that he had made a good many when he was new to the business. He is a jovial old cuss, and I rather like him. Told me on the dead—everything is "on the dead" here—that he didn't write the Pentateuch, but knows who did.

There are lots of people here, and strangers arrive daily. But I would not advise you to come down before fall or winter—and even then you needn't bring any thing but a light summer suit. You won't need an overcoat or umbrella or skates, but you might bring along a palm leaf fan or two. For an "imaginary," "mythical," "figurative," "allegorical," "unorthodox" hell, this is about the hottest one I ever got into.

But, say? I got here just in time to strike a snap. Henry Ward Beecher had just been retired on account of age, and Mephistopheles appointed me to succeed him as boss of the Minneapolis, Chicago and New York colonies, the largest ones here. I have a lovely new trident, with cute little spear-point businesses on the tines, and the devil has promised to get me a long, red tail and a pair of horns, like his, when he goes to the city next week. He seems to have taken a fancy to me.

There are ministers here of every denomination, and several camp meetings are in progress down the river. Horace Greeley introduced me to Spurgeon and old Peter Cartwright last night. We had a pleasant little lark together. They expect Talmage to join them before long. I have also shaken hands with Tom Paine and Voltaire, and find them very pleasant gentlemen. Said they had watched my career for some time, and were expecting me daily. Ben Franklin called on me this morning. He is wearing his hair short now, and doesn't look so much like Queen Liliuokalani as he used to. I never could tell their pictures apart.

Of course the trust is here "biggern'n a chipmunk." Solomon and Brigham Young have all the women cornered, and the politicians are organizing to defeat the present administration and elect a new devil. They want me to make the nominating speech. You know I nominated Blaine for president once, and did it up in shape. Don't know who will be the nominee. Jay Gould is running well on account of his money, and Judas Iscariot and Ananias are quite popular.

Well, I must close. We need rain the worst kind. Crops are almost a failure. If you're ever down this way, drop in. Yours truly, BOB INGERSOLL.

P. S.—A soda water fountain that you could draw Kentucky Taylor whisky from would pay big down here.

FINE DONATION.

Mrs. P. J. Kerst Presents Old St. Mary's Hospital to Sisters For Children's Home.

Mrs. P. J. Kerst, the mother of the Mother Superior of the Benedictine Sisterhood here, is the generous donor whose gift will enable the Catholic charities of the city to have added to them a Catholic children's home. The property is the St. Anne's home in the old St. Mary's hospital building in the West End, which is being refitted and which will be ready for occupancy July 1. The sisters of the diocese will have charge of it. Mrs. Kerst purchased the property from the Benedictine fathers of St. John's university.

The home will be opened to orphaned children, though none under 2 years will be admitted and children of divorced persons will not be accepted. The children will be kept until they are old enough to care for themselves, unless sooner adopted into good families. The children will be taught habits of thrift and industry, and later it may develop into an industrial school. The home will accommodate 150 children. As Mrs. Kerst has given the home to the sisers there will be no rent, and the expense of keeping the children will be about $5 per month, which the sisters anticipate no difficulty in raising. A committee will be appointed to take charge of receiving inmates, and none will be admitted until July 1.

ST. ANTHONY'S SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises Delight Large Audience at Turner Hall.

The commencement exercises of the pupils of St. Anthony's school were held last evening at Turner hall, which was filled with interested spectators. All points in the program were fine, especially the chorus singing which was clear and sweet beyond the ordinary. One of these action chorus songs where the little boys appeared in the garb of shoemakers and imitated the various proceedings in the production of a shoe, was very pleasing. Another in which the little girls gave an action song "Beautiful Violets" was duly appreciated, as was also another "The Farmer," in which the children were rustically arrayed. A tambourine drill was very fine. The boys of the intermediate room gave a dumb bell drill which pleased the spectators. The recitations were all fine. They were: "Die alte Waschfrau" by Miss Mary Mueller, "A Little Boy's Lecture" by Willie Tobin, "Des Beuernknaben Bescherbung Dei Stadt" by Stephen Zettel. The dialogues were exceptionally fine, the participants showed a great deal of skill in performing their parts. In the dialogue "Die Strenge Erzieherin" those who took part were: Margaret Murtinger, Emma Sabrowski, Ida Schlender, Mary Mueller, Rosie Hitzelberger.

In the drama "Das Verkehrte Luschen" the characters were taken by Mary Mueller, Anna Mausolf, Lena Mergener, Frances Tobin, Emma Sabrowski, Katie Markowski, Bertha Rappenegger. In the second act the song "I'd a Letter from Papa Today," by Annie Roth, excited a great deal of enthusiasm. Little Miss Annie has a fine voice and executed her part with skill and gracefulness. The song in act one "A Soldier I Would Be," by Otis R. White, was appreciated.

Missionary Meeting.

On Thursday, June 21, at St. Paul's church, will occur the fourth annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the district of Duluth. The morning session will open with holy communion at 9 and sermon by Bishop Morrison. There will be a business meeting and noonday prayer. In the afternoon the program will be as follows:

President's address .....
Reports of standing committee.....
Reports from the Indian field.....
Archdeacon Appleby.
Papers on different branches of missionary work .....
Address by Miss Emery, the general secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary.
Closing address .....
Bishop Morrison.

The presence of Miss Emery at this meeting will be of the greatest interest to all women working for missions. Her intimate knowledge, her great experience and her enthusiasm will give to all she may say great helpfulness and weight.

DULUTH'S SOCIETY

THE BIG SLEEVE.

This thing of hugh dimension
Has declared it her intention
To navigate our city o'er and o'er.
Till ladies all shall name her
And in sweet whispers claim her
As they have done in months gone by before.
She taunts her small-sleeved sister
And says she'd raise a blister
On any arm she fancied that she'd dare.
She calls her names so horrid,
It blanches her quite florid
And oftentimes she fades right out with care.
But don't you heed her whispers,
Or her idle talk of blisters,
You ladies with fair judgment of your own.
Keep Miss Tight-Sleeve a-reigning,
For Big Sleeve's only feigning
Her airs till she has once usurped the throne.
Then vainly you'll be strutting
Around and cutting, cutting
This monster with her promises so sweet,
Until transformed you've brought her
To fit the form of daughter,
Who now has one whole suit from her so neat.
And then you'll take the sister
That might have raised the blister,
Anr sew her in the armholes once again.
Old friends are sometimes handy
And this one is a dandy,
So take advice and let her ever reign.

The season of pleasure has fairly begun. This week has been replete with weddings and the constant come and go of tourists and excursionists, who find June a very pleasant month to repulse home and business cares and enjoy an outing. The suburbs—Lester and Woodland especially—present picturesque sights lately, and the numbers of persons who manage to take a day off to picnic at these places proves that Duluth's citizens are a nature-loving class. People are saying that June this year would be an ideal month if only more rain would come—in the night, of course, so as not to spoil enjoyment, and if only the wind would cease blowing, which leads one to restore faith in the old rhyme which says:

"Man's a fool.
When it's hot he wants it cool;
When it's cool he wants it hot.
Always grumbling o'er his lot."

A prominent physician of Duluth says he hopes our ladies will hereafter not indulge in as many parties or indoor amusements as they were addicted to doing several years ago, when times were flourishing, for since woman has taken an interest in golfing, bicycling, etc., her health has increased. The fanciful appetite has given place to one of tremendous capacity, and the pale, sallow complexion to rosy bloom.

In Minneapolis a novel personality in the line of womankind has appeared. The upper set have been quite taken up with her new fangled ideas, which are certainly odd, for she constantly strives to increase the measurement of her waist, which is now twenty-eight inches in circumference. She affirms that women are growing sensible, and by the use of certain statistics she seeks to prove that in fifty years to come the average measurment of the ladies waists will be 27½ inches. She is a very prepossessingindividual herself and has a sweet air that completely captivates members of her own sex. July 18 she will come to Duluth and contemplates giving lessons in physical culture.

A multitude of people flocked to Park Point Sunday and enjoyed the band concert as usual. The Flaaten benefit concert Sunday was all that could be desired. It took place at the Armory and those who attended were unusually delighted with the exceptionally fine program rendered.

Wednesday evening was ladies' night at the Kitchi Gammi club. The party was very informal and the guests present enjoyed themselves thoroughly, more especially perhaps considering that this is the first social funnction the club has indulged in for a long while. The sitting room has undergone wonderful changes lately and has been fitted out with rich tapestries which give it a true oriental air. Dancing was indulged in. Those present were:

The associate alumni of the Duluth High School held its first annual banquet at Mrs. Webster's, Monday evening. The banquet table was surrounded by about forty members. It was very prettily decorated with carnations and roses. Pofessor R. E. Denfeld acted as toastmaster.

Robert P. Shannon responded to the first toast, "Our Majority."He told the historical side of the alumni, and spoke of the hardships it underwent in order to keep in existence. In 1879 the first graduating exercises were held in the High school, two girls receiving diplomas.

The second toast was "The Faculty." Professor Smith responded to it in a few well chosen, appropriate words. He was acquainted with but few of the members present, on account of having been in Duluth so short a while, but he expressed a wish to meet them all later on. He spoke of the faculty as being one of the most important elements of the High school. It is the duty of teachers to, aside from being good instructors, give such examples in their everyday lives to the pupils who attend the school that they will wish to study in the future as well as in the present the higher and more beautiful things of life. This he stated, the teachers have striven faithfully to do. He finds them conscientious and thrifty in their work and interests in behalf of the pupils. To the faculty falls the lot of keeping the school up to its present high standard, and defending it against those who are clamoring for the abolition of higher education.

Richard Close responded to the toast, "Athletics," and Miss Barnes gave some heartfelt congratulations to "the school and the college."

Miss Gracee Sanborn, of St. Paul, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William H. Sanborn, was married Tuesday evening in that city to Charles George Hartin. Miss Sanborn has been one of the most frequent visitors of the St. Paul young ladies to Duluth and has always been very popular with the young people here. Miss Dickinson, of Duluth, was a guest at the wedding and the festivities previous to it. The St. Paul Globe said of the wedding:

"The marriage of Miss Grace Sanborn, eldest daughter of Judge and Mrs. W. H. Sanborn, to Charles George Hartin was solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride on Virginia avenue. Rev. Alexander McGregor of the Park Congregational church read the marriage service. On account of the recent death of a relative of the bride only relatives and near friends witnessed the ceremony. The rooms were prettily decorated with palms, American Beauty roses, June roses and peonies. The ceremony was performed in the main parlor before a large window, which was draped with smilax. Several immense palms formed a bower for the bridal party.

"Henry Sanborn, the bride's small brother, preceded the bridal party. He carried a white satin pillow. The two little flower girls, Rachel Sanborn and Helen Sanders, gowned in fluffy white frocks and carrying flowers, followed the pillow bearer. The maid of honor was Miss Marion Sanborn, the bride's sister. The groom and his best man, Jules Denegre, entered from the hall and met the bride and her attendants in the parlor. The ushers were Charles Clapp, of Omaha; Howard Wheeler and Bruce Sanborn. Judge Sanborn, the bride's father, gave her away. During the ceremony a quartet sang the bridal chorus from 'Lohengrin.'

The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with point lace and chiffon. The long veil was fastened with sprays of orange blossoms. A bouquet of orchids was carried.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception. Judge and Mrs. Sanborn received with the bridal party. Mrs. J. B. Sanborn and Mrs. E. P. Sanborn served punch. Seibert's orchestra played.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartin left last evening on a wedding trip. They will be at home after July 15 at the Aberdeen.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Miss Dickenson, of Duluth; Miss Kelly, of Omaha; Miss Wales, of Minneapolis; Charles Clapp, of Omaha; Rae Welch, of Omaha; C. E. Wales, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. John McLean, of Milford, N. H.

The "toast" which the senior class of the high school, held this year at Park point Tuesday was certainly a very enjoyable affair. The chaperons were Principal Smith and Mr. Abbott. A bountiful supper was served. Row boats in abundance were used and a number of the pupils gathered around a fire built on the lake shore and told stories. Later on in the evening they went to the pavilion and danced. The members of the class only were present and the happy scene was darkened a trifle by the thought that after four years of high school companionship this was the last gathering.

* * *

Mrs. Frank Blodgett and daughter left the city Tuesday morning for Gunnison, Cal., to spend the summer with friends. Before returning they will visit Buena Vista Boulder, Denver and Milwaukee.

* * *

The clerks of Silberstein & Bondy's will have a picnic Wednesday.

* * *

Mrs. Arthur Little, formerly Miss Adelaide Sawyer, of Duluth, perhaps better known by her stage title, Adelaide Thurston, after an absence of five years from Duluth, has returned, and is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Harry S. Sawyer, of Fifty-ninth avenue west and Wasecca street. The majority of Duluth people are familiar with the career of this bright young woman, who, since her last appearance in Duluth, has won a high place in theatrical circles.

Mrs. Little arrived in Duluth Wednesday morning, and will stay here until the first of August, when she will go to New York to study for her opening with Sarah Cowle Lemoyne. She is to be the leading lady in a new play, entitled, "Love the Greatest Thing in the World," which will have its first night at the Wallack theater. Others of the company are Mr. Lemoyne, Wilton Lackaye, Robert Edeson and Catherine Grey.

Mrs. Little has some exquisite costumes being prepared for this production. The first scenes will see her in a beautiful gown of white. In the second act she wears a bright rose-colored fabric. In the third act she appears in a calling gown, and in the fourth will wear a gorgeous opera cloak and a dress which will excell all others in the affair.

Mrs. Little speaks of her success in a very modest way.

* * *

"Some girls," she affirms, "could play one little insignificant part for seasons and never advance, but on my first appearance in the Alabama company I was taken up and given something higher."

Since she first left Duluth she has taken the parts of Bossie in "A Texas Steer," Kittie Ives in "The Wife," Bess in "Charity Ball," Dora in "Men and Women," Mary Standish in "Peake," Phyllis in "Jill" and Sissy in "What Happened to Jones." Then she followed Maud Adams' footsteps in "The Little Minister," and was in this as in all else a great success. Three years she has been a leading woman and for two a star, an exceptionally brilliant career in so short a time.

Mrs. Little had planned to go abroad this season, but ill health compelled her to return home to her mother for a rest. "We all come home to our mothers, you know, when we are in trouble," she said.

* * *

Thursday evening Miss Emma Meining and Dr. Samuel H. Boyer were married at the home of the bride's mother, No. 217 Second avenue east. Dr. Cleland of the First Presbyterian church officiated. COFFEE DISEASES.

Minister and Young Lady Affected.

Ministers sometimes find they suffer from the effects of bad habits as well as ordinary people. Rev. Mr. ——, of Athens, N. Y., had become greatly emaciated from coffee drinking, which produced stomach trouble and all of the effects of overwork or poor nourishment.

He quit the coffee and began drinking Postum Cereal Food Coffee.

His health began to improve and he now weighs 151 pounds, an increase of 15 pounds over his former weight. This improvement in health and strength is shown to be due to the use of Postum Food Coffee by the fact that when he for an experiment—he begins to lose flesh and get back into his old condition.

A young lady who writes about the case says that she was formerly suffering greatly from "those twin diseases," dyspepsia and nervousness. "I knew that both of the diseases had their origin in the use of coffee, and while I was fully aware of its injurious effects upon my system, I was not willing to give it up, for I did not know of anything to take its place.

"Tea, I knew, was also injurious, and as for cocoa, it lacked the 'snap and go' which can alone satisfy a coffee drinker's taste. About two years ago I purchased my first box of Postum Food Coffee and quit the use of coffee. I made Postum according to directions and found I had a drink not only equal to coffee, but far superior to it in many ways. Since that time I have used it constantly and find my general health very much improved, and the 'twin diseases' gone. I also send you the names of Rev. and Mrs. ——, of Athens, N. Y., who have been greatly helped by the use of Postum Food Coffee in the place of ordinary coffee."

"Keep to Your Place and Your Place will Keep You."

Without good health we cannot keep situations nor enjoy life. Most troubles originate in impure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood rich and pure, and thus promotes good health, which will help you "keep your place."

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

A GALLANT SOLDIER.

Suffered from Indigestion and Catarrhal Biliousness. Cured by Peruna.

Colonel George A. Armes, U. S. A., (Retired.)

Major George Armes, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, D. C., has one of the most interesting and romantic histories, which, briefly stated, is as follows: At the age of 15 he was wounded while guiding a Union raid. At 18 he was congratulated publicly by Lincoln, and at 20 was made brevet major for gallantry. At 22 he stampeded a horde of Indians. At 23 was brevetted lieutenant colonel. At the age of 25 he became a victim of official persecution. At the age of 50 he was a millionaire through his success in the real estate business in the city of Washington, D. C. At the age of 55 he heads an expedition to the Transvaal. In a recent letter written to the Peruna Medicine company, Columbus, Ohio, he says:

"Peruna cured me of indigestion and biliousness and I continued to take it and have found it an excellent tonic."

George A. Armes, U. S. A.

Major Liddell.

Maj. J. M. Liddell, major of the Fifth immunes, recently ordered to the Philippines, and well known in Mississippi, writes: "I have used Peruna for years and I know of no better medicine on the market. It should be used in every household. As a cure for catarrh I know of nothing better."

Catarrh of the stomach causes a condition known as dyspepsia or indigestion. It usually results from catarrh in the throat, but sometimes occurs in people who have never had catarrh elsewhere. The symptoms of dyspepsia are liver complaint, biliousness, sour stomach, water-brash, bloating after eating, constipation, piles, and, in many cases, low spirits, dizzy head, sympathetic heart palpitation, pain, indigestion, and looseness of the bowels. Peruna is a specific for catarrh of the stomach.

Many people think that catarrh is confined to the head, and perhaps occasional cases of catarrh of the stomach. This is very far from being the case. Every organ, duct and opening of the body is lined with mucous membrane and is liable to catarrh or inflammation. One man has catarrh of the eyes; another catarrh of the bronchial tubes; another catarrh of the kidneys; another catarrh of the bladder.

A remedy to cure catarrh of these different organs must be a remedy that acts directly on the mucous membranes lining those organs. It must be an internal systematic remedy. It is claimed for Peruna that it cures catarrh wherever located.

A book on catarrhal diseases, written by Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, will be sent free to any address by the Peruna Medicine company, Columbus, Ohio.

THE GRAND PARADE

The Commercial Travelers Turn Out a Large Body of Men.

Boulevard Drive for Ladies and Lake Excursion--Ball at Armory.

The second day of the stay of the United Commercial Travelers in Duluth was as beautiful as the first. The lowering clouds of the morning, which inspiring a fear of rain, passed away and the warm sunshine gladdened everyone. The city was crowded last night, but room of some kind was made for all, and everybody was taken care of. The excursion which came in during the afternoon yesterday brought about 2000 people and a large number of traveling men.

The business sessions of the grand council were practically concluded last evening. This morning there was an initiation of candidates into the order and fourteen were put through the ceremonies. Past Grand Councilor B. F. Holbrook presided and the work was done by a picked team. It was done entirely without ritual and was the finest work ever done at any grand council.

The session of the grand council has been a particularly pleasing one to the members of the order. Past Grand Councilor Holbrook said today at noon that it was the best session the council has ever had. The entertainment given the guests has been very handsome, the attendance has been fine, the interest displayed by the members has been gratifying, and altogether it has been a record-breaking session. The traveling men will have a warm spot in their hearts for Duluth ever after.

At 10:30 o'clock the ladies who are visiting here with the commercial travelers were taken for a ride over the boulevard, given by the members of Zenith council for them. The morning was an ideal one for such a drive and the ladies were delighted with the trip and were enthusiastic in their expressions of admiration for Duluth's superb drive.

The procession of carriages that left the front of the Spalding and St. Louis hotels made a very formidable array. There were tallyhos, buckboards, hacks and every style of carriage, and the line stretched out for a distance of three or four blocks.

GREAT PARADE TAKES PLACE.

Visiting and City Traveling Men In Uniform Make Fine Showing.

The public has had the pleasure of seeing a good deal of the well-dressed and gentlemanly visitors of the U. C. T. on the streets ever since the first band arrived Thursday night, but the real spectacle, when the united body gave the public a treat by appearing in a parade, took place this afternoon. As the lack of custom provides shall be the case with all parades, of whatever kind and in whatever place, the start was a little late, but not more so than usual, and the crowds that gathered along the streets through which the parade was to pass had plenty to occupy themselves with to prevent the time from handing heavy on their hands.

The crowd had foretastes of what was coming as members of the different councils passed along in their parade regalia, and each succeeding arrival was cheered encouragingly as he passed. The parade formed at the post-office corner and marched east on First street, and then west on Superior street to the Spalding. All along the line of march the crowds had gathered for in advance of necessary time, and the expectations that had been keyed up by a long wait were not a bit disappointed, for the parade was a great success in every respect. The line was a large one, and it contained a lot of fine-looking fellows, with costumes ingeniously and sometimes ludicrously prepared.

At the head of the parade came a platoon of police, ensuring a clear way for the line. The officers of the grand council rode next in a brake, followed by the City Band, of Duluth. The St. Paul council followed, attired in linen dusters and white fedoras and carrying large sample cases, with the letters "U. T. C." prominently displayed. The St. Paul line was a large one, and so was that of Minneapolis, which followed next, distinguished by cute little parasols of various colors, held aloft to shade the delicate complexions of the Minneapolis drummers from the burning rays of the sun. One strapping drummer carried a very small boy on his shoulders, and the boy held the parasol over his patron's head. Another held a small colored boy by the hand, marching him along as a mascot.

Next came the Grand Forks band, headed by its drum major, followed by the Grand Forks contingent, dressed in large-figured calico overcoats, with Japanese umbrellas aloft. This was the most elaborate outfit in line, and it met with great success along the route.

The South Dakota contingent, from Sioux Falls, Huron and Aberdeen, wore linen dusters, white yachting caps and bore more of those little parasols over their heads. The South Dakota people came here without uniforms, but largely through the efforts of Dick Woods, of Sioux Falls, arrangements were hurriedly made to secure an outfit, and the result was a complete success.

The Crookston band headed the Crookston contingent, which was attired in linen suits, including hats, and carried large umbrellas, each dividing into sections of striking colors, so that the effect of the blend of red, white, blue, yellow and other startling colors was vociferous in the extreme.

Duluth came next in red, white and blue swallow-tail coats and white yachting caps, carrying little leather lunch boxes bearing the letters "U. C. T." This touch was a take-off on the get-up of the St. Paul crowd with its sample cases.

The St. Paul men had a number of small banners carrying humorous devices. For instance, one of them was headed "What do you want for $2 per day?" and it bore a picture of a tired-looking drummer turning down the covers of a bed in a country hotel. On the sheet was a community of large and very active animals labelled "Snapping turtles."

After the parade the excursion on the lake took place. Three boats had been engaged, and every visitor and a large number of people of the city were taken for the trip. This was one of the features of the entertainment which had been most looked forward to. The trip on the lake does not mean very much to Duluth people, for they are so used to it that it has lost its significance, but to the visitor there is no form of entertainment which means so much or has the same interest. The number who went out was very large. It was the intention to take the party to West Superior to witness the launching of the great steamer Charles R. Van Hise about 1 o'clock. This was another event that the visitors anticipated would be to them an exceedingly interesting experience.

Tonight the festivities will conclude with the grand ball at the Armory.

THE BUSINESS SESSIONS.

Officials Elected and Place of Next Meeting Fixed at Fargo.

Business sessions of the grand council were held last evening and this morning. At the session yesterday afternoon the election of officers took place. Thomas Kleinogel, of Fargo, N. D., grand junior councilor, was chosen grand councilor. F. X. Gravel, of Duluth, who has been grand conductor the past year, was elected grand junior councilor. The following are the other officers elected:

Grand conductor—Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks.

Grand page—Ernest Grant, of Minneapolis.

Grand sentinel—George W. Rodgers of St. Paul.

Grand treasurer—A. H. Overman, of Duluth.

Grand secretary—J. M. Dresser, of St. Paul.

The contest for the office of treasurer was a lively one, C. F. Williams, of Grand Forks, being pushed for the place also. Mr. Overman finally received 23 votes to 10 for Mr. Williams.

Mr. Overman still had a year to serve in the executive council, and upon his election as treasurer resigned, and R. L. Farr was chosen for the unexpired term. O. M. Hatcher, of Winnipeg, and W. G. Jacobs, of Aberdeen, were elected members of the executive committee for two years each.

The selection of the place for the next meeting brought forward only two cities aspiring for the honor, Winnipeg and Fargo. The latter won it easily. The meeting will be on the fourth Friday and Saturday of next May.

The new officers were installed by the grand councilor, who thereupon became past grand councilor.

The following delegates to the supreme council were named: B. F. Holbrook, of Minneapolis; Thomas Kleinogel, of Fargo, and Henry Mooney, of Duluth. Their alternates were: J. F. Jordan, of Minneapolis; C. Burtek, of Sioux Falls, and P. C. Crenshaw, of Fargo.

The Winnipeg council, which has been working under a special dispensation, was granted a regular charter and will be numbered 154.

The following resolutions reported by the committee on resolutions were passed:

"We, your committee, recommend that the hearty thanks of this grand council and the fraternity at large is due and is hereby extended to Zenith council No. 40, the jobbers, business men, ladies and the city of Duluth, for the splendid and hospitable manner in which they have received and entertained the members of our order at this our seventh annual session. We desire to express our thanks to the several railroads over which we have traveled for their courteous treatment and the many comforts which they provided. We desire to especially mention and express our sincere thanks to the citizens of Bemidji for the elaborate lunch and kind treatment received from them by the Northwestern delegation on the Great Northern special. We further tender our thanks and appreciation to the Duluth lodge of Elks for their entertainment on June 14."

The committee on state of the order presented a fine report. The excellent condition of the order was reviewed, including the growth of membership, etc. The report had only one criticism to make, and that was to the effect that the fraternal feeling has not been cultivated as much as it might have been. An improvement in this direction was urged.

The committee on mileage and per diem recommended that $707.32 be allowed to officers and delegates, and the recommendation was adopted. The transportation committee stated that it had completed arrangements with the St. Paul & Duluth for their departure, and that a special train would be in readiness for them Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

THE LYCEUM CONCERT.

Fine Program Rendered By Bands and Individual Talent.

A large, delighted audience attended the commercial travelers' free concert at the Lyceum last evening, and listened to a program of varied artistic merit, admirably presented. This program in itself was a novelty, including as it did an interesting mixture of extremes. There was a little of everything from grand opera to ragtime, and from stately church music to rollicking drinking songs. The classics were not unduely neglected but the body of the program contained much charming and delicious music of the lower and easier forms of composition, for which the audience seemed grateful.

A Sousa march, "The Bride Elect," by the combined Crookston and Duluth City bands, rendered with dash, spirit and richness of instrumentation opened the program. This was followed with a selection from Dekoven's "Robin Hood," by the Crookston band, G. Oliver Riggs, director. This band is composed of a really clever lot of young musicians and at once became immensely popular with the audience. The third number was a tenor solo, "Mona," by E. W. Farr, of Mineapolis. His voice is of good range, smooth and even in quality throughout, resonant, powerful and beautifully colored. He responded generously to an encore.

G. OLIVER RIGGS,

A quartet, consisting of Mrs. Robert Knebel, Mrs. Burt Holcomb, Miss Clara Hector and Miss Justine Shannen, aroused the audience to wild demonstrations of approval with an artistic rendering of the "Lost Chord," by Sullivan, and for an encore sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

With the "Awakening of the Lion," a caprice heroique, by the Duluth City band, the audience awoke to the fact that it was enjoying a superb performance, and demanded two encores. The local organization was in great form last night, and all its numbers and encores were received with well-merited enthusiasm.

Miss Clara Richardson sang Gregh's "Dream of Love" in a very charming manner, and generously responded to the encore which at this part of the program was understood to be a regular thing. Robert Cox gave several intensely amusing character sketches, including an imitation of a Yankee preacher, the celebrated Italian meeting with John L. Sullivan, and a James Whitcomb Riley poem. It was full of rollicking comedy and broad shafts of humor. Master Shirley Alexander sang several pieces of church music very acceptably, and the Crookston band played a nocturne, by Pflug. P. Doran sang the "Old-Fashioned Mother," and for an encore he gave a sparkling drinking song, and the audience finally let him off with "Buffalo."

F. G. Bradberry's violin solo, the ballad and polonaise, Op. 38, by Vieuxtemps, was played in his usual masterful way, with great strength in tone, melodic conception and harmonic treatment. Mrs. Robert Knebel's brilliant soprano voice rang out with beautiful effect a solo selected, and the entertainment closed with a selection from the "Bohemian Girl," by the Duluth City band, a sextette selection from Donizetti's beautiful "Lucia de Lammermore," the sextette consisting of Mrs. Robert Knebel, Mrs. Burt Holcomb, G. L. Tyler, C. Mandelert, Franz Schultz, and Cyril Tyler. The closing number was the "Star and Stripes Forever," by the combined bands.

THE LADIES RECEIVE.

Entertainment For the Members of Fair Sex Visiting Here.

Yesterday afternoon the ladies of Zenith council No. 40 held a reception for the lady strangers within the city. All through the afternoon the Elks' parlors presented pretty pictures as women and young ladies came and went. The varied costumes and smiling faces were pleasant to look upon. Music was furnished by Flaaten's orchestra and the numbers were executed with the usual skill it displays. They were "Chanson Sans Paroles," Tchaikowsky; selection from "Singing Girl," Herbert; "The Vision," Blon; "Fest" overture, Leutner; march from "Scenes Pittoresque," Massenet; "Emani," Verdi; Hungarian dances, Brahms.

Miss Charlotte McLaren and Miss Clara Richardson, accompanied by Mrs. Emil Olund rendered some beautiful selections. Mrs. McLaren sang a Scotch lullaby "Hush A By" and "Spanish Romance." Miss Richardson rendered a concert valse by Arditi. A trio "Hush" by Mrs. Emil Olund, Miss McLaren and Miss Richardson was among the most delightful numbers. Miss Olund favored her audience with a vocal selection, a Romance by Damstroon.

The visiting ladies expressed their appreciation in the warmest terms of the hospitality shown them by the ladies of Duluth.

The ladies who attended the punch table were Mrs. A. Arnison and Miss Louie Anderson. Those on the entertaining committee were:

POPULATION.

Little Doubt That the Duluth Census Will Show 60,000 People.

The taking of the census of Duluth will be completed this evening. An additional day was allowed so that there is still time to get any names on the lists up to tonight. Of course it is impossible to obtain anything like a close estimate of what the population will be, as the enumerators are forbidden to tell how many names they get, but from the checking the citizens' committee has done it is believed that the population of the city will be about 60,000 and possibly a thousand or two more than that. When the committee started upon its work of getting the population of Duluth enrolled it did not expect to find nearly so many people here as it afterward developed that there are. A canvass of the city showed that every house was occupied, every boarding house filled and almost every place where people could be lodged is filled constantly. Within a short time the committee knew that 53,000 would not be any too much to expect. Today reports have been coming in all day to the office of a person here and a person there who has not been enrolled. These have been gathered in as far as possible, but there is no doubt that some will be missed.

IT REFUSES.

St. Louis Transit Company Refuses to Arbitrate With the Strikers.

St. Louis, June 16.—President Gompers made this statement regarding the failure to reach an agreement:

"After three hours and a half discussion with President Whittaker, I am sorry to have to announce that the company has declined to submit the question of reinstatement of the men to arbitration.

"President Whitaker said that as far as he would go was to promise to place the striking union men on the list and give them work as they were called for.

"I suggested that the matter be submitted to a board of arbitration composed of representatives of the company and the union, as well as of honest and reputable citizens. The suggestion was turned down by Mr. Whitaker.

"The company, having declined to arbitrate, the negotiations were off and my mission there was ended.

"I am not prepared to say now what my course will be until I have had time to think the crisis over carefully.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Large Number of Duluth People Will Visit Superior Next Week.

There is a probability that all three of the Duluth national guard companies will attend the Wisconsin encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next Thursday. From present indications several hundred people from this side of the bay will attend the encampment, but a special invitation has been extended the national guard to take part in Thursday's big parade, and the members are making preparations to go but it is doubtful whether or not very many can leave work.

Mayor Hugo in talking over the situation this morning said that it was a duty Duluth owed to Superior to help make the entertainment a great success and he thought that every merchant in Duluth should give the clerks in his employ, who belong to the national guard, a half day off on Thursday.

Decorations Were Scarce.

The Duluth traveling men would like to have seen more of the business houses in the city decorated in honor of their guests. They were pleased to note that the Great Eastern clothing house was handsomely adorned with flags and bunting in their honor, but were rather chagrined to find that it was about the only large business house in town which did anything in that line.

The Republican National Committee Adjusts Some More Contests.

Philadelphia, June 16.—The Republican national committee began business today by taking up the contest from the Norfolk, Va., district. In this district ex-Congressman George E. Bowden and William S. Holland claim to be the regular delegates, while this honor is contested by H. H. Libbey and Aloah H. Martin.

John A. Wise appeared for Libbey and Martin. He contended for the regularity of the convention which selected his clients, and attacked in bitter terms the personnel of the opposition, growing quite personal in his reference to Bowden. He charged Bowden with a desire only to control the patronage without reference to party success, saying that Mowden had himself voted the Democratic ticket.

Bowden contradicted in vigorous language Wise's claim to regularity, saying that he and Holland had been elected almost two months before they heard of the pretensions of Libbey and Martin. He claimed that the convention at which they were nominated was called by the regularly appointed district chairman, and that it was fully endorsed by the state committee.

During the hearing in this case Senator Quay came into the committee room and received quite an ovation. He was applauded by many, and all the committeemen greeted him with a cordial handshake. He remained only a few minutes.

The committe decided the Virginia case in favor of the Bowden delegates.

The committee then decided upon the urgent request of the delegates from Alabama, to reopen some of the district cases from that state. The Fourth and Seventh districts were reconsidered on the assurance that the factions themselves had reached a compromise agreement, the understanding being that the delegates representing the Vaughn faction should be seated in one case and those of the Wickersham faction in the other. Accordingly, the committee decided to place on the temporary roll Aldrich and Smith, Vaughnites from the Fourth district, and Lathrop and Ezel, Wickersham men, from the Seventh district. The transaction was accomplished without discussion. The contest in the Second district was withdrawn and the Vaughn men seated.

The committee also decided to reconsider its decision in the case of the Fifth district of Mississippi. The committee then took a recess until 3 o'clock.

The sub-committe appointed to investigate the Delaware contest has concluded to recommend that neither the Addicks nor the Dupont delegates be placed upon the temporary roll of the convention.

TO PRESERVE THE BALANCE.

Powers Figuring on Keeping the Equilibrium In China.

Washington, June 16.—It is learned in authoritative quarters that the negotiations in relation to the Chinese crisis have led to a discussion of the larger subject of so adjusting and harmonizing the action of the several powers interested as to maintain complete equilibrium and assure the continued peace of the world. The French authorities have been particularly active in urging that one of the prerequisites of any action was to see that it tended toward maintaining the balance between the countries interested in the East, and there is reason to believe the representatives have had considerable influence in keeping any one of the nations from putting a preponderating military force in China, a course that would open the way to a general international disturbance.

The unconfirmed and unofficial rumor that Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister at Pekin, had been killed, soon spread to diplomatic circles and caused great uneasiness as the erroneous statement got abroad that the state department had received confirmation of the report. As a matter of fact, neither the state department nor the German embassy knows anything of it. The rumor was none the less disquieting, for aside from the grave international aspect of such an act, Baron von Ketteler is intimately known here, having been first secretary of the German embassy up to a few years ago.

The only dispatch bearing on China received in diplomatic quarters today was one to the British embassy announcing that Japan would send a small additional force of soldiers and marines to Tien Tsin.

DR. MITCHELL'S GREAT WORK.

Crowds Continue to Throng the Office of This Wonderful Magnetic Physician.

The past week has been a record-breaker in the work of Dr. Mitchell. People afflicted with all the ailments that flesh is heir to have crowded the office and reception rooms of the great Magnetic Healer, at 17 East Superior street.

A reporter, having his attention called to the large number of people who had been cured, visited Dr. Mitchell. The doctor treated him courteously, saying: "You can see how busy I am by these people who are waiting to see me. I have had a succession of very large crowds here all the week, having to turn away many whom I was not able to see. I shall be glad to see any and every one. I am here to do all the good I can, and only limitation of time and strength will prevent me from seeing every one who desires my services. I give consultation free. As to my success, I refer to have you investigate for yourself. I will select a few letters at random from this drawer for your inspection." The reporter wishes to give for the benefit of all sufferers who may read this statement, the following testimonials, which he has received direct:

Mr. R. G. W., who was entirely blind, and restored to his eyesight, had consulted oculists and physicians, who all informed him he would never see. Cured in a few weeks by Dr. Mitchell.

A lady who had consumption was given up by the physicians. Restored to health by Dr. Mitchell.

Mr. J. S. was afflicted with kidney and stomach trouble for a number of years, could find no relief in the usual remedies. Cured in a few treatments.

Mrs. J. C. Y. had a cancer on her face and was cured by Dr. Mitchell's magnetic treatments.

Mrs. B. E. H. for fifteen years suffered with heart trouble and dropsy. Tried everything, electricity and all kinds of medicine without getting any relief. Cured by Dr. Mitchell's treatments.

Mr. P. H. M. cured of deafness and catarrh.

Mrs. C. C. L., cured of nervous prostration in ten treatments.

To see and to know positively that he is, of a verity, curing all manner of ailments with animal magnetism, and that in the most incredible short space of time is creating an exciting episode in this city; almost every train coming to Duluth brings some poor suffering afflicted man or woman to him, and to witness the delight of those people as they return to their homes renewed beings in the possession of new life, health and energy is certainly the opportunity of a lifetime, and is profoundly appreciated and widely commented on by an intelligent public.

Dr. Mitchell cures all forms of female complaints without exposure or the use of instruments. He also cures all nervous trouble, rheumatism, neuralgia, stomach trouble and in fact all diseases and deformities that flesh is heir to.

None who are suffering should fail to see this great healer. Take no man's word but go yourself and witness his marvelous power that has brought health and happiness to thousands.

I want you to ask me for names and addresses of patients. Can send you to hundreds of patients whom I have cured. Not patients from outlandish localities, where no one resides but in your own city, at your own door. If I have the power to make the deaf hear, the dumb speak, the blind see and the lame walk I want to prove it by my good works.

Office hours daily 9 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.; Sunday 9 a. m. to 12 m. Remember the name, Dr. Mitchell. Bring this advertisement with you. It will entitle you to consultation and examination free. 'Phone 579. Duluth, Minn.

THE DAKOTAS.

North Dakota Grain Elevator Tax Law Valid---Cass County Sensation.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Judge Fiske has handed down an important tax decision holding the new state grain elevator law valid. Under this law all grain found in elevators April 1 is taxed regardless of ownership. The elevator companies are given liens on grain they do not own for the amount of the taxes. In other words the companies are made to help collect the taxes which were evaded under the old law.

Fargo—The northern part of the county is enjoying a sensation in the reported elopement of Mrs. C. A. Warner, the wife of a well known farmer near Eric, with a painter, named Silk. Mrs. Warner left home with a team ostensibly to visit friends at Wheatland. When she failed to return the second day her husband instituted a search, and discovered she did not go to Wheatland but to Casselton, where she is alleged to have met Silk, and both left for British Columbia. Mrs. Warner deserted her little children, which is the worst feature of the affair.

Bismarck—Arguments in the Simpson disbarment case were made to the supreme court yesterday by Attorney Newton for the prosecution and Attorney Gregory for the defense, and the case went to the court for consideration. There is great interest in the outcome, as Simpson has just been nominated for state senator at Dickinson.

Special agents of the land department are investigating violations of the law against fencing government land. One case has come to the attention of a special agent where 25,000 acres of government land was fenced in for pasture. Numerous other cases are reported and action will be taken at once.

The Emmons county seat contest case has been settled and the county seat will remain at Linton, to which place it was moved from Williamsport.

Larimore—In the state firemen's tournament contests here in the hose wet test, Lakota got first place, Michigan City second and Northwood third.

The hose coupling contest resulted in a tie between C. S. More and E. B. Ware, of Lakota, and J. H. Read and J. E. Messersmith, of Dickinson in 2-5, Messersmith won the tie in 3-5 1-5. George LaSell and W. A. Irwin, of Lakota, made it in 2 4-5—no final in the ladder climbing contest. Glen Hallet, of Fargo, got first place and John Gant, of Grafton, and Chris Schwartz, of Park River, tied for second. Combination race, which includes the work of an entire department, the first combination team was made up of the Fargo hook and ladder and the Lakota running team. Time, 18 3-5; final, 36. Second team, Wahpeton hook and ladder and Grafton hose team. Time, 18 1-5; final, 41. Third team, Fargo hook and ladder and Dickinson hose team. Time, 18 3-5; final 1. Fourth team, Wahpeton hook and ladder and Michigan City hose team. Time, 18 1-5; final, 55.

The judges were: J. R. French, Wahpeton; W. L. Reade, Bismarck; Arthur Bassett, Fargo; W. W. Heffron, Tower City; starting judge, William Simpson, Mandan; hydrant judge, George A. Bissell, Larimore.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Brookings—The Sheep Breeders and Wool Growers' association, in session here, elected officers as follows: E. L. Spurling, Brookings, president; S. P. Howell, Sutherland, vice president; W. F. T. Bushnell, Aberdeen, secretary; S. E. Wilson, Bijou Hills, treasurer; executive committee, M. F. Greeley, Garry, chairman; John Armstrong, DeSmet; G. M. Shepperd, Clear Lake; J. L. Manning, Boge; J. C. Milne, Huron.

Sioux Falls—William Dowdle, who is alleged to have received his wounds at the hands of Joseph Koetzle, the saloonkeeper, who was arrested Wednesday night, is dead.

Extraordinary Measures of Physicians Keep Life in Body of Elmer E. Stewart.

NOW RESTING EASILY

Artificial Respiration Induced For Five Hours---Is Partially Conscious.

For five hours yesterday afternoon, physicians and nurses worked incessantly and almost desperately to keep life in the body of Elmer E. Stewart, whose attempt at suicide caused such a sensation yesterday. From the time he was taken to St. Luke's hospital, shortly after noon, until six o'clock last night, he was so near death's door that he did not have enough strength to breathe. All afternoon he was kept alive by artifical respiration, and at six o'clock, the anxious workers and his intimate friends, who had closely followed the seemingly impossible fight for life, were rewarded by just the slightest natural breathing on the part of the patient. During the evening he gained a little strength, but about midnight seemed slowly sinking again. Then he passed a good night and at times this morning his respiration seemed slowly and gradually getting back to the normal. At times today he has been partially conscious, and at noon, the attending physician, Dr. W. G. Goffe, said that the chances were exceptionally good for his ultimate recovery.

Subsequent developments have thrown very little light on Mr. Stewart's reasons for wanting to take his own life. There have been wild, and unreasonable rumors floating around, as in case of nearly every other attempted suicide, but for the most part they are wholly without foundation. As nearly as can be learned Mr. Stewart's ill health caused him to become despondent, and the worry is believed to have resulted in a sort of temporary unbalancing of his mind. Persons that saw him on the street very early yesterday morning say that he appeared very melancholy and acted rather strangely.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the gradually improvement in his condition so noticeable this morning, still continued and it was thought that in a few hours he would be entirely conscious and out of danger.

Several prominent physicians that have watched the case closely say that if Mr. Stewart recovers, it will be one of the most remarkable instances of reviving life, on record. The body was found in the bushes near the new Normal school, at just the right time, for had he been without medical treatment and good nursing but a few minutes longer, the efforts to keep him alive by forced artificial respiration, would have been without avail, if not entirely unnecessary.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Bernard Holton Falls Over While Waiting For the Filling of a Prescription.

Benard Holton died very suddenly while sitting in the Lyceum drug store about 6:30 last evening. In Coroner Eckland's absence from the city, Dr. J. M. Robinson and Dr. W. R. Bagley held a post mortem examination at Tibbett's undertaking rooms this morning, finding that death was caused by heart trouble from which Mr. Holton had been suffering for about five years.

The deceased is 50 years of age and leaves a wife and family living in Wicklow street near Thirtieth avenue west. Mrs. Holton is reported to be in a very critical condition and it was while in the drug store to have a prescription filled for her, that Mr. Holton dropped dead.

Manager Bruce Nimmo of the Lyceum drug store took the prescription and was filling it, when he heard a gasping sound and turning saw Mr. Holton just about dropping over on the floor where he had been sitting. By the time Mr. Nimmo reached him he was dead.

No arrangements had been made for the funeral as late hour this afternoon.

GREAT RIOT PROMOTER.

Latest Bowery Beverage a Great Inflamer of Passions.

That new and insidious brand of foolishness that they are dispensing in Bowery beverage emporiums, is certainly a riot promoter. Night before last it caused John Peterson to lose considerable cash and about $1400 worth of certificates of deposit, to say nothing of his executing a barbaric war dance and trying to force an entrance into the chamber of horrors at 3 o'clock in the morning. Last night this liquid Hinfrateur caused James Driscoll to try to butt the entire police force off the face of the earth, and to sing the missionary soup song of his remote ancestors. When he got through he had amout as much clothing on him as would cover a postage stamp. When he sobered up to the degree of discretion he was willing to bet that he had been alone all night in a howling wilderness. He got ten days in police court this morning.

Dave Collins is said to have tried one of the riot promoters and gave his watch to an excursionist. A short time afterward he stole the watch from the man he gave it to and was arrested for larceny.

There was a rumor current that a friend of a Bowery bartender called on him just afte the death of his wife. He looked so depressed that the man behind the bar gave him three of the riot promoters and he went out. He recovered consciousness in West Superior two days later and he had married again.

James Daly and Alexander Grant were arrested today charged with stealing shoes, and in police court this morning J. Olson and Jay Grant, charged with drunkenness, were allowed to go under suspended sentences.

Yesterday afternoon there was a little disturbance down on Garfield avenue. Ex-Alderman Duren is having a house built and Henry Yates was doing the carpenter work. It is said that Mr. Duren went to the place to superintend the work and Mr. Yates objected. Unkind and even harsh conversation ensued, and according to the police reports, Mr. Yates ruined Mr. Duren's new straw hat by hitting him a crushing blow on the top of the head with a hatchet. Mr. Yates was arrested but is now out on $25 bail for his appearance on Tuesday morning.

The Hibernian Convention.

The Duluth delegation to the state convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Rochester returned last evening bringing glowing accounts of the convention, the hospitality of the people of Rochester, and also two state officers of the order. John Flood, the county president of the local Hibernians, was elected state treasurer, and Mrs. D. P. McDonald, president of the Daughters of Erin Division, No. 1, of this city, was elected state treasurer of the ladies' auxiliary order.

Those attending the convention were: Mrs. D. P. McDonald, Mrs. J. H. Sullivan, Mrs. Kline, Miss May Horigan, John Flood, F. S. Kelly, Patrick McCabe, A. J. Bears, C. P. Maginnis, W. J. Lannigan, J. J. Moran and J. H. Sullivan.

Need Only Pay Freight.

Mayor Hugo has received a leter from Congressman Morris giving a list of several hundred old cannon that the navy department is willing to farm out for park and public building ornaments. The letter states that Duluth can have just as many as the city cares to pay the freight for. The letter was turned over to Secretary Helm of the board of park commissioners, and it is probable that some of the guns will be secured for the public parks of this city.

Ben Ami Excursion.

Those who desire to take a trip around the horn tomorrow afternoon will have an opportunity to do so. The steamer Ben Ami will make an excursion tomorrow afternoon, leaving Singer's dock at 2 o'clock and 5 o'clock p. m. The trip is a delightful one, and doubtless many will take advantage of the opportunity.

THE GREAT SUBURBAN

A Fine Field and a Fast Track For the Big Race.

THE LIST OF ENTRIES

Ethelbert, the Great Four-Year-Old, Is the General Favorite.

New York, June 16.—Not since the Suburban was first run at the track of the Coney Island Jockey club at Sheepshead bay has there been such a fine field of horses engaged as went to the post today for the classic event. All of the best horses in training are entered, and the contest bids fair to be a record-breaker, so that the winner is likely to walk back to the judges' stand and see hoisted something better than the 2:05 which greeted Salvator ten years ago when he won his match with Tenny, his great rival.

The list of entries, weights and jockeys is as follows:

Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.
Ethelbert,	130	Maher
Imp,	128	O'Connor
Jean Beraud,	127	Turner
Kinley Mack,	125	McCue
John Bright,	119	Spencer
Prince McClurg,	117	Winkfield
Raffaello,	113	Jenkins
Intrusive,	111	Shaw
Petruchio,	102	Rausch
Survivor,	100	Mitchell
Gulden,	100	Odom
Sarmatin,	99	Henry
Herbert,	96	Slack

There were scores of people at the tracks early today to watch the exercising of the candidates, and when all had been sent over the fast track, the discussion over the chances of the lot was long and earnest.

The great 4-year-old Ethelbert, winner of many stakes as a 3-year old of the Metropolitan handicap and the match with Jean Beraud as a 4-year-old, up to the present has been an easy winner this season. Few were willing to acknowledge that he could be beaten in the race today, and he is probably one of the strongest favorites that ever started for the event. This is surprising, in view of the fact that Imp and Jean Beraud are against him. There is no doubt of his starting, for the track is dry and fast and the day is fair, all of which Perry Belmont thinks are necessary to have him go to the post.

Next to Etherbert comes Jean Beraud and Imp, the former the best 2-year-old of his year and the latter one of the best mares that ever raced. Beraud was off in his 3-year-old form and began his 4-year-old racing with the match between him and Ethelbert, in which he was carried off his feet in the first three furlongs and soundly beaten at the mile and a quarter. A day or two after he went to the post in a race with Imp and others, and, while the mare was the favorite, Jean came home winner by a neck in a mile and a furlong race, in which the pair were lapped all the way. Unquestionably Jean Beraud is in better condition than when he raced with Ethelbert two weeks ago.

Imp, who last season won the Suburban in fast time and beat Ethelbert in the Brighton cup, will stand a drive for the Brighton route of a long race and never quit. If she is beaten, it will have to be by a better horse.

John Bright comes out of the West with a reputation which Easterners are disposed to scout.

Kinley Mack is not likely to have a wet track today, as he did when he won the Brooklyn handicap, and his legs have not the confidence of betters.

Raffaello is entitled to consideration over his good work in the handicap, while Petruchio, with his Brooklyn Derby behind him, has some friends who think he has a good chance to win with his light weight. The others will all have their friends, but they will be swamped in the wave of popularity which sweeps Ethelbert on.

One feature of today's race will probably never be repeated. It has always been the custom in the big race for the lightweights to go out and make the pace, but this time all three of the top weights do their best in front, and will try to break each other's hearts today from the fall of the flag. All of them can run the first half in better than 48 seconds, and Imp and Ethelbert can keep on at about the same pace. Jean Beraud may do it too, and one of the grandest finishes ever seen on a race track is likely to result.

The observing of Memorial Day has been postponed to Sunday, June 24.

The Committee on Memorial Day,
T. J. ST. GERMAIN, Chairman.

TO MAKE CITIZENS.

Special Term of Court to Be Held For That Purpose.

Judge Ensign held a special term of district court last night for the purpose of hearing applications for citizenship, and during the evening twenty-seven men whose birth occured in foreign lands were made citizens and voters of the United States. It was understood that the most of this number were brought in by Republican workers, so that they have made the first start in this class of pre-election work.

From now on there will be one evening each week when applicants can be heard by the district court. Each Friday evening at 7 o'clock there will be a special term for citizenship purposes, for the benefit especially of working men who cannot well affor to lose the time required to visit the court while it is in regular session during the day. Those who desire to become citizens should have no difficulty in making arrangements to be at these sessions with their first papers and the necessary two witnesses.

These Friday evening sessions will be continued up to the limit within which the acquisition of second papers will entitle the possessor to the privilege of franchise at the fall elections. This time will be up early in August.

Soon after July 4 the court will make arrangements for a tour of the iron ranges, where a number of special terms for the purpose of issuing second papers will be held. The dates and places have not been fixed upon, but they will be made in plenty of time to give the range people notice.

MARINE NEWS.

Ore Shippers Would Advance Rates If They Could Get Vessels.

Cleveland, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—If ore shippers thought they could get any vessels by advancing the rates 5 or 10 cents a ton they would do so, but there would be no inducement to the Bessemer company, which holds practically all the available capacity. Probably one-third of the Rockefeller vessels in all are tied up. The list includes all the whalebacks as well as the barges, except those that are now on Lake Michigan. These will probably be tied up also as soon as they get through with the grain they are loading or carrying.

GRAIN RATES.

Chicago, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freight rates were on an even keel today at 2 cents. All in all, the market was in a healthy condition for both shippers and carriers.

TEACHERS' SUMMER SCHOOL.

Will Be Held at High School July 9 to August 4.

The third annual teachers' summer school will be held at the Duluth high school from July 9 to August 4, and a large attendance is expected from the district surrounding and including Duluth. Charles Alden Smith, principal of the Duluth high school, will conduct the summer school. An excellent corps of instructors has been engaged, and the opportunity will be one that few teachers will miss if they can help it. Among the instructors will be Harriet H. Foss, assistant at the Alexandria high school; V. R. Wasson, superintendent of the Blue Earth, Minn., public schools; Nellie L. Woodbury, assistant in the Willmar high school; Mary Gardner, teacher in the Jefferson school, Duluth; and B. N. Wheeler, superintendent of St. Louis county schools.

Mr. Smith will handle pedagogy. Miss Foss will conduct history and grammar. Mr. Wasson will give geography and nature study, Miss Woodbury will give reading and music. Miss Gardner will conduct a model school, and Mr. Wheeler will, if ten or more desire to take up those subjects, teach civics and the history education.

In the model school to be conducted by Miss Gardner twenty to thirty children will be taught from 9 o'clock to 12 o'clock each morning, including lessons in reading, numbers, science and literature. Some excursions will be planned and carried out as was done last year.

Duluth Real Estate is a Good Thing to Own.

REALTY MARKET

More Doing This Week Than the Surface Conditions Would Indicate.

IN THE RANGE TOWNS

Considerable Business Being Done There as the Transfers Show.

If the real estate mart were an open pit like a chamber of commerce or a board of trade there would appear a good deal more activity during the past week than under the present circumstances. The reason for this is that it is the old story of deals in the aft but not far enough in bloom to be picked, to tangle up a little metaphor. This does not mean that real estate agents have been dangling for possible purchasers trying to induce them to buy, but that sales are made but not yet ready for announcement. While the week has not been of special activity there has been quite a little movement of real estate on the quiet, and some good deals will be announced shortly.

* * *

Duluth is not theonly place in the county where there is real estate business in progress. It will be noticed that the list of transfers given below includes quite a number of transfers of property in the range towns. Generally the prices are good, for values are on the rise up there with the opening ot new mines and the steady increase of population. Nearly every range town is full, and in many of them people are living in tents. Under circumstances like these there is small wonder the real estate finds a ready sale.

HERTZ TALKS OF BOERS

Rabbi Joseph Herman Hertz of Johannesburg Answers the Query Whether the Boers Deserve Our Sympathy.

IS BASED ON EXPERIENCE

(By Joseph Herman Hertz, Ph. D., Rabbi of Wetwatersraud Hebrew congregation, Johannesburg).

In the war now waging between Great Britain and the South African republic are the Boers entitled to the sympathy of the people of the United States?

Sentiment answers "Yes." But what does common sense answer? Common sense bids us remember that the spirit of history knows nothing of sentimentality; that to extend the domain of sentiment over a question where it has no legitimate control, is demoralizing and unworthy of a clear-thinking people; and, above all things, that we must see facts not as we wish, but as we find them.

Now, facts seen as they are, will speedily force us to the conclusion that the Boers are not entitled to our sympathy because there are few civilized governments which in their ideals, tempers and methods, differ so widely as does the government founded on the Declaration of Independence from that founded on the Sand River convention.

Various proofs immediately suggest themselves to clinch this argument. For example, Lincoln's "No man is good enough to govern another man without that other man's consent" might profitably be compared with Kruger's tacit assumption, "No man, not a Transvaal Boer, ought to have any voice as to how he should be governed, especially if he be in the Transvaal you were tolerated there; and things even in legislation were beginning to be mended."

"Toleration?" answer, the Catholic and Jew—"We do not want toleration. Toleration is an insult. Nuisances are tolerated." And as far as the mending of the obnoxious sections of the old grondwet are concerned, we feel that bad laws must not be patched, nor must they be mended, bad laws must be burned. And I know I voiced the sentiments of every Jew and Catholic in South Africa when at the great Uitlander meeting of July 29 last, I declared: "We do not want liberties, we want liberty!"

Some years ago a friend of mine, a Presbyterian clergyman in the Transvaal, a student of American history, delivered a lecture before a Young People's society on the "Boston Tea Party." An enlightened burgher who was present denounced that lecture as an outrage against decency and good order. "What right had any man to speak in the Transvaal on a subject like "The Boston Tea Party," with its watchword taxation without representation is tyranny? Those Americans had no more reason to resist their government than the Uitlanders have today; and, for a clergyman to praise their attitude is nothing short of fomenting revolt!"

Now, remember that this, from the mouth of the Transvaal burgher is by no means madness; rather it is method, foresight and consistency. But, in all fairness, can as much be said for the pro-Boer sympathizer? Has he a right to use divers measures and divers weights in moral questions, as an American praising

DO THE BOERS DESERVE AMERICAN SYMPATHY.

Joseph Herman Hertz, Ph. D., Rabbi of Wetwatersraud Hebrew Congregation, Johannesburg, gives his opinion of the struggle between Britain and the Boers and tells many things regarding the strug gle which will be of keen interest to Americans an intelligent or an educated person.' But I refrain from using stock arguments derived from books, hearsay or reporter's imagination. I call to mind the wise warning that no man ought to talk on South African problems unless he has taken the preliminary precaution of being born in South Africa. And feeling that my aim is to do the next best thing, to confine myself at least to facts derived from my own experience during my two years' stay at the storm center of the Uitlander agitation.

It has been my privilege to bring to the notice of the civilized world that the grievances of the Uitlanders were not altogether material grievances, financial grievances, but that there were moral grievances, as well; foremost among these, discrimination against Catholics and Jews on the score of religious belief. I shall, therefore, quote to you chapter and verse on this important topic, so helpful for the perception of moral bearings on this subject.

The revised grondwet (constitution) of 1896 provided that the following persons must be members of some Protestant church: The president (article 31); and state secretary (article 11b); members of the first and second volksraad (articles 26 and 27); magistrates (article 140); superintendent of natives and minister of mines (article 86); superintendent of education (articles 5, laws No. 5, 1892), and teachers in government subsidized schools (articles 23 and 40 of same law); and, of course, all military officials.

Grondwet-tinkering is a periodical pastime of the wise men of Pretoria. Only last year the grondwet was altogether recast. Deputations, pleas and petitions from all sides went up for removal of this last remnant of barbarism, to no avail. All the clauses relating to the religious disabilities, with one solitary exception, (article 16b), remained in full force.

It is not humiliating that in the closing year of the nineteenth century, when many of us are already on tiptoe for the whiffs of purer air that the coming century will bring, to see, in a republic, laws that carry with them the close air of mediaevalism, which are a survival of the "good old times" when witches were burned and people lashed to church against their will?

Of course the Boer sympathizer admits to the Jew and Catholic that these laws are bad; "but you enjoyed many liberties his ancestors, what an anglophobe he reviles in the Uitlanders and their British friends?

One other illustration. No one took a more enthusiastic part in the Fourth of July celebration by the Americans in Pretoria than some of the highest of the Boer officials. Unfortunately they knew nothing of the contents of the Declaration of Independence. They sat down expecting to be in a position to crow over the common enemy of Boers and Americans. They got more than they bargained for. They heard "we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created free and equal—that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed—that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it. The history of the present King is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations; he has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws of naturalization of foreigners. He has obstructed the administration of justice and has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices, etc., etc. In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury."

Paul Leicester Ford has recently brought to light the amusing incident of Benjamin Franklin listening to the address of welcome made in his honor at the Paris academy and, in his ignorance of the French language, applauding loudest those portions which sang his praises. This Pretoria incident is, however, funnier than its Paris counterpart. Gen. Joubert and State Secretary Reitz, with the best grace possible under the circumstances soon had to face the ill-suppressed smiles of an audience that realized only too well how completely tables had turned. These Boer worthies came to scoff and remained to sulk the rest of the evening. You see English people, notwithstanding the semi-idiotic caricature that does duty as the stage Englishman in America, saw and humbly enjoyed the joke.

I sometimes wonder whether some Americans could see it.

JOSEPH H. HERTZ.

TO ABOLISH THE ARMY CANTEEN.

Mrs. Ellen Foster Says the Glory of Our Army Is the Character of "the Man Behind the Gun"—Why Harm Him With Intoxicants?

ASSERTS THAT IT IS BEYOND THE DIGNITY OF THE GOVERNMENT TO SELL INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Washington, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The American nation is proud of its army and its navy. Popular government and free institutions yield the peaceable fruits of political righteousness within the breast works of defense "far flung" by ships and guns.

The American people find their pride tempered with tender solicitude; for the soldiers and the sailors of the army and navy are also sons and brothers.

The nation is one nation, and the interests of the people are one: Soldiers, sailors, citizens, men, women and children, possess common interests; our sorrows are common sorrows; the conquests of peace and the costly victories of war, we share together; the sublime emotions of Memorial Day passing for the hour across the glorious sun of our Christian civilization, soften the glare of our material prosperity and bring into clearer relief the essential features of our substantial progress.

Because of their pride in the army and their love for the army, large numbers of the best people in the country are opposed to the sale of intoxicating liquors in army canteens. They are much gratified that Secretary Long during the war with Spain, by general order prohibited such sale in the navy; the words of the order are: "After mature deliberation, the department has decided that it is for the best interest of the service that the sale or issue to enlisted men of malt or other alcoholic liquors on board ships of the navy, or within the limits of naval stations is prohibited."

It is a fact worthy of notice that during the war with Spain while the navy was in constant action, not one man died of disease; all honor to the clear brain and steady nerve of the men in Cuban waters and in Manilla bay; the record of deaths in the army from camp disease brings so painful recollections that we shudder as we write the figures—5,75.

Is it strange that both pride and love drive us to a calm though intense consideration of anything and everything which touches the welfare of the men of the army. The government has expended large sums of money in coast defenses; we are told by the war department that these defenses are greatly in need of more men merely to keep these expensive munitions of war in good condition for use; it is feared that they will actually deteriorate in value if not thus taken care of. But no weapon in war is so delicate in organization, so expensive in original outlay, and long continued preparation as "the man behind the gun." The glory of our army is the character of the average man in it; the average man everywhere is harmed by the faithful use of intoxicating liquors; we are informed that in the tropics where our men now largely are, this use is malignant in effect.

This is why we oppose the sale of intoxicating liquors in the post exchange, commonly known as the army canteen.

Intoxicating beverages do not improve the physical health of the soldier, but, on the contrary, materially weaken his muscle, unsteady his nerve, decrease his force in action and lessen his power of resistance under the ordinary and unavoidable strain of military duty and climatic danger.

We reach these conclusions from personal observations of the result of the habitual use even of mild intoxicating beverages in civil life, from the testimony of men of wide observation in many climates and from the unequivocal testimony of officers of the highest grade in military and naval service in this country and throughout the world.

Maj. Gen. Miles, Adjt. Gen. Corbin, Maj. Gen. Shafter, Maj. Gen. Wheeler, a large number of other generals, colonels, and officers of lesser grade speak in strong language of the harmful results of the army canteen.

Maj. Gen. Miles in an extended order dated Washington, July 2, 1898. "The history of other armies has demonstrated that in a hot climate abstinence from the use of intoxicating drink is essential to continued health and efficiency."

Adjt. Gen. Henry C. Corbin United States army, in his official report in 1892, when he ranked as assistant adjutant general said:

"A cause of restlessness (in the army) is traced to the excess of the exchange, the saloon feature of which is not productive of good, and should be done away with without further experiment. The sale of beer superintended by a commissioned officer and served by non-commissioned officers and soldiers, is not conducive to discipline, nor is it a picture that can be submitted to the people for their approval. The men who drink spend the greater portion of their money for beer. The credit system brings them to the pay table with little or no money due. This takes all heart out of them, and makes them quite ready to ask their discharge and try some other calling."

Surgeon General Sternberg says: "I do not think much of the beer canteen. The theory that the soldier needs a beer canteen to keep him from going to outside saloons for something stronger, is all wrong. There is nothing in it. On the contrary a great many young soldiers who are not accustomed to drink contract drinking habits at these canteens, and are ruined. There is no need whatever for intoxicating drinks at these canteens, and it will be a good thing for the army if they are abolished."

Maj. Gen. Shafter writes: "I have always been opposed to the canteen system or the sale of intoxicating drinks of any kind on military reservations; and have opposed it until absolutely overruled, and required to establish a canteen at my post. I regard it as demoralizing to the men, besides impairing seriously their efficiency. There are always, in every regiment, a number of men who will under any circumstances get and drink liquor, but the majority are temperate, abstemious men; and it is to those that the evil effects of the post exchange system work the greatest injury as young men who would not think of going away from the post for liquor will, when it is placed before them and every inducement offered them to purchase, do so, and thus gradually acquire habits of intemperance."

Maj. Gen. Wheeler says: "I am a thorough believer in temperance in all things, and am utterly opposed to soldiers being sold intoxicating liquors and I believe that every effort should be exercised to remove the temptation of such dissipation from them. You must recollect that all men are human, and if we cannot make everything perfect, we must make it as near perfect as possible."

Maj. Gen. Poynton said of the regiments at Camp Thomas: "They had something worse than a sutler, each one had a canteen," and deprecated the fact that army regulations permitted the canteen system.

Col. James C. Lee, assistant quartermaster general, said: "I think the freedom of the admission of beer and other articles into camp, and the frequenting of the rum selling holes in town, more dangerous than sleeping on the ground."

Commodore I. H. Gibbs, U. S. N., says: "In my opinion there can be no question that the public good would be greatly enhanced by the exclusion of alcoholic drink as a beverage from both army and navy circles. The man who needs the stimulus of alcoholic liquor to enable him to perform his duty is not to be trusted in any capacity. In my experience of nearly fifty years as an officer in the United States navy, I think I can safely say that 90 per cent of all punishments inflicted on board ship that have come under my observation can be traced directly to rum."

Rear Admiral A. L. Kimberley, U. S. N., writes: "I should say as a naval man that alcoholic liquor could be dispensed with advantage except for medical purposes. In the navy the grog ration has been abolished for years, and coffee substituted in the early morning before any work is done. I look upon alcoholic drinks as medicine, and they should be used as such."

Gen. O. Wilcox said: "It is my opinion that the public good, as well as personal character of those concerned, would be enhanced very much by the exclusion of liquor from the rank and file of the army except under due medical prescription."

Gen. W. B. Rochester says: "There is no doubt that the drink habit works very great injury to the army. It has been shown over and over again that those who endure the greatest fatigue and exposure are the men who do not drink."

Col. W. J. Glenn, Camp Meade, Middleton, Penn., writes: "There are many ways that a soldier can ruin himself, but, I think the canteen is the most damnable of all; I have never allowed one in my regiment and I never will."

THE ENGLISH ARMY.

The great British generals whose names are now household words and the story of whose deeds is being told the world around are the founders, promoters and actual officers of the Army Temperance Association.

Those who advocate the abolition of the army canteen in the United States army find themselves in the honorable company of Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief Field Marshal Lord Roberts, Gen. Sir George White, Gen. Lord Methuen, Gen. Sir Charless Warren, Gen. J. Kelley-Kenney, Gen. Sir F. W. Gatacre, Gen. Sir R. H. Butler and seventy-three of the leading generals of the British army who are the vice-presidents of the Association.

The Army Association in India contains twenty-four thousand members. Lord Roberts boasts that his twenty-four thousand men furnished two thousand more effective troops than the remaining thirty-one thousand men of that army did, who were not abstainers.

Lord Landsdown, secretary of state for war, gives his open approval of the temperance reform in the army.

Is not the testimony of our own great generals in harmony with that of these commanders of the English army? The fighting strength of the British soldier is unimpeached—and our men stand with them without fear of invidious comparison.

Let us never forget, however, that every enlisted soldier is a man as well as a fighter. He was a son, a brother, a husband and a citizen before he was a soldier; if he escapes the perils of the camp and the field, he will go back to civil life and to its duties when his term of enlistment is over. If he has done well, if he lives up to the possibilities of the service he will be a more manly man, he will be a better citizen for having been subjected to military duty and discipline; if, however, he shall have acquired the habit of using intoxicating liquors he will return to civil life and to his family with deeper wounds than those of shot and shell. The average United States soldier is equal in the average man in civil life. Notice what Gen. Shafter says about this: "There are always in every regiment a number of men that will under any circumstances get and drink liquor, but the great majority are temperate, abstemious men."

We have now a large army in the ends of the earth; boys born and reared in the clear air of our temperate zone are sweltering in the tropics. Under the new conditions of colonial life the nation goes out to meet the twentieth century. We are not visitors, not mere travelers, we are now residents, we are proprietors, among the nations of the earth. The church, the school, the shop, the factory, will soon follow the flag, but everywhere the army and navy will for a long time be the visible and tangible embodiment of the United States government; every man from major general to corporal and private will be a personal representative of Western civilization, which claims as its chief glory the dignity of manhood and the glory and beauty of personal rectitude.

Shall the government become a party to the debauchery which always follows the sale of intoxicating liquors? Shall it confess weakness and lack of discipline to restrain the incorrigible few, and therefore put temptation in the way of many? Shall it be less careful of its own men over whom it has absolute control, as to food, clothing and every detail of human life, when railroads and other great industries have of their employes? Large numbers of these corporations say men must abstain while in their employ. They do not argue the question on sentimental or moral grounds. They merely say: "We want reliable service, and universal testimony affirms that men are not reliable who use intoxicating liquors.

The prohibition of the sale of liquors in the army canteen is urged on every

THE ARMY CANTEEN MUST BE ABOLISHED.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster is an active and an extremely busy woman, but she has found time to write a forceful article attacking the army canteen. Her argument is well sustained and will command the respect even of those who do not agree with her views.

The Demon of the Coal-Pit Doomed

An Invention By Thomas A. Edison, Jr., That Promises to Make Mining Horrors Merely a Matter of History.

TEST ABOUT TO TAKE PLACE.

New York, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The days of the coal mine catastrophe are nearly over. The country will not much longer be horrified to read in the morning papers that men who toil with pick and shovel far below the earth's surface have been killed by wholesale, shattered, mangled, torn limb from limb, in consequence of the defective lamps with which they are provided, igniting the deadly gas that no device or invention has succeeded in eliminating from the underground atmosphere. Too often the miner's own carelessness has brought on the catastrophe, but the fact that the careless one paid for his neglect with his life brought little comfort to those who had daily to face the same danger, or to the relative and families of the men who work in the underground tunnels and passages amid black, grimy surroundings that threaten death at any moment. It has dawned upon the inventive mind of one man that the only way to insure the miner being safe while at work is to save him from the consequences of his own carelessness and make it impossible for a thoughtless act to endanger his life and that of his fellow workmen.

The inventive genius to whom the miners are indebted for this inovation is Thomas A. Edison, Jr., son of the illustrious father. He has brought to bear on the difficulty of providing a lamp that shall be absolutely safe for mining purposes all the stored up knowledge of a lifetime spent in the atmosphere of electrical invention. With the successful introduction of the electrical current for illuminating purposes, it was thought that its use in mines would prevent a recurrence of disisters and many mine owners made provision to adopt it, but they found it impracticable with the dynamo and wiring of the mine, owing primarily to its excessive cost and secondly, that the element of danger not wholly eliminated because of the fact that the insulating conductors of the current produced by the dynamo could not be placed in the mine with that assurance of safety necessary to successful maintenance. It is not a very difficult matter to wire up houses on the surface, but when it comes to providing conductors to transmit electric currents under the earth it is another and a very expensive problem. Neither was it possible to produce a storage battery lamp of a capacity sufficient to enable the miner to work out his "shift" of eight hours, the weight and bulk making it impracticable from the side of portability. The primary batteries that were capable of producing current for the purpose were all open to the same objection. They were not suitable to the condition existing in the mine on account of their fragility and the difficulties of making up and recharging and the liability to disarrangement when moved about.

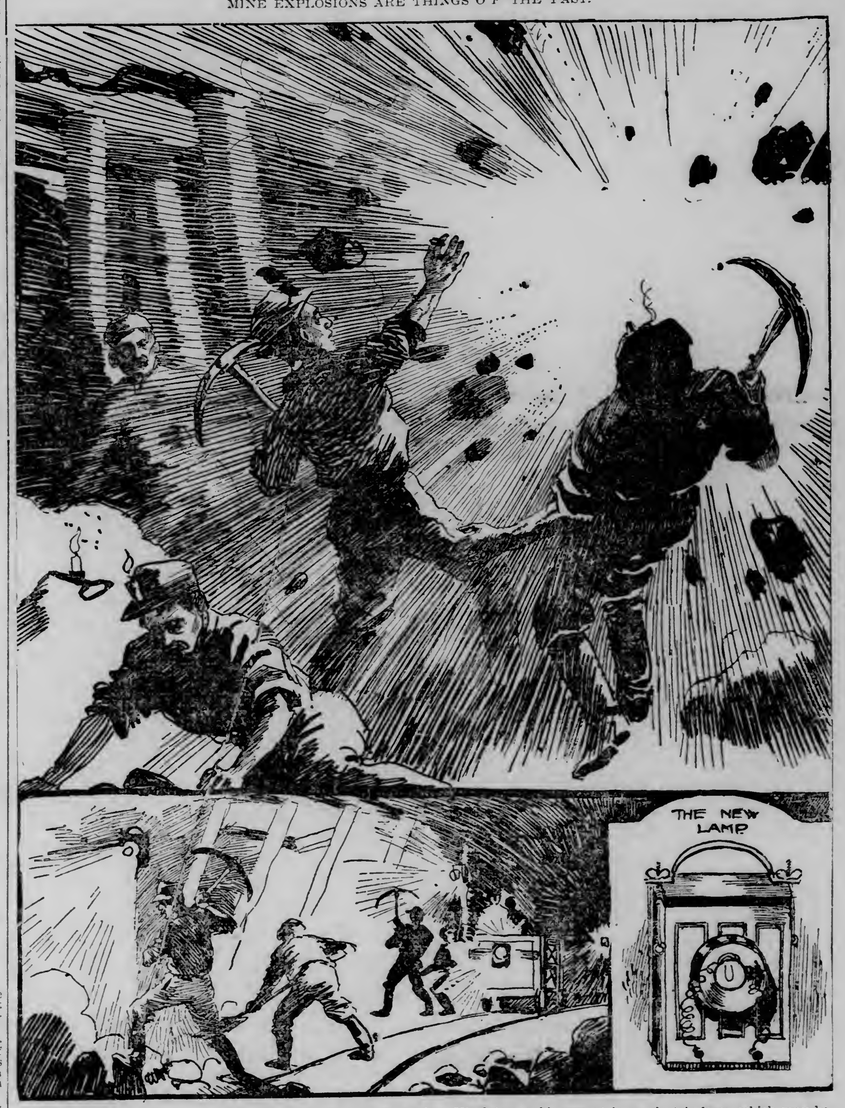
Mr. Edison has perfected a primary battery that makes mining safe and at the same time absolutely takes it out of the power of the careless miner to compass the destruction of himself and others through his desire to "light his pipe." This battery consists of a hard rubber box 6 by 4¾ by 4¾ inches, and weights when charged, 3½ pounds. The elements composing the battery are carbon and zinc, the solution to actuate it is composed of sulphuric aicd and water with nitrate of soda (Chili salt peter) as a depolarizer. All of the connections are made at the bottom, the porous pots and carbons being fixed at the bottom of the cells in an acid proof cement and the zincs, when dropped into their places, making their own connection.

When the action of the solution has done its work, the recharging of the battery is effected by simply turning it upside down and flushing with clean water, putting in new solution and replacing the zincs. The battern is then instantly ready for use, with no more trouble than is necesary to keep alive an ordinary oil lamp.

The lamp is a miniature incandescent of three-candle power, enclosed in a circular brass casing, with a strong glass in front and a parabolic reflector, which makes most of the rays. One charging of the battery with the solution will give a strong and clear light which will remain at full candle-power for ten hours and the cost of maintenance is merely the cost of the acid and zinc consumed, which is 3 cents for this time limit.

Under the laws of Pennsylvania and in almost all other states where coal is mined, the character of the light used in the work of mining—and it is as important a factor as the pick and the tram car—cannot be changed without the sanction of the body which controls mining regulations. Efforts are now being made to have Mr. Edisons lamp given a test and he feels confident that through its adoption that the useless slaughter of the industrious miners will cease. If he does succeed in rendering mine explosions almost or wholly impossible he will rank among the greatest benefactors of this age of electrical progress.

MINE EXPLOSIONS ARE THINGS O F THE PAST.



Young Thomas A. Edison, Jr., has inherited his father's genius. His latest achievement is an electric lamp which may be used underground. Danger of explosion is entirely removed as the light is extinguished immediately at contact with the air. The lower picture shows miners working in a mine illuminated with electricity.

TROLLEY LINE BY EXPRESS.

It is a novel thing to have the entire equipment of a trolley road shipped on an express train, but that is what the Larchmont Railroad company did, says the New York Journal. Larchmont is the home of many millionaires of New York, and they recently decided that they wanted an electric railway system. So President Charles Singer of the company was given until June 1 to construct the road under the conditions of the franchise. President Singer was equal to the emergency, so he telegraphed to a big steel works in Reading, Penn., ordering Larchmont's new railroad.

"Send it quick as possible," said he, in closing the order. "The freight trains are too slow. Put it on a fast express."

Fifty tons of rails, 700 fancy painted trolley poles and a full quota of switches and other equipment were loaded on cars. As the cars had to be attached to the fastest trains containing parlor and drawing cars, the Pennsylvania company furnished its most elegantly equipped cars, the red mahogany ones, with the letters "Pennsylvania Limited" painted in gold on the sides.

The special cars containing the railroad came from Philadelphia to Larchmont on the fast Colonial that goes through from Washington to Boston every day via the Harlem River branch of the New Haven railroad.

A CUSTOM EXPLAINED.

It has been suggested that suicides were buried at cross roads because it was usual to erect a cross at such places. Those who were excluded from holy rites were buried there as the place next in sanctity to consecrated ground. It was an old superstition that the devil danced at cross roads, and that the erection of a cross thereat would prevent such unseemly practices. From this or some other superstition, such as the fear that his ghost might walk the earth, arose the custom of driving a stake through the suicide's body. These plausible theories have gained many advocates, but it is more likely that burial at cross roads was intended as a mark of indignity. The temples, or rather altars, of the heathen Teutons were mostly at the junction of cross roads. The place of execution was there, and criminals were sacrificed to the gods; hence suicides were buried at the cross roads to give as strong an impression as possible of heathen burial. Probably, too, the publicity of such a spot, which insured the fact that a great number of people would become directly aware of the degrading consequences of the crime, had a good deal to do with its selection. A curious fact in this connection is to be found in Plato's Laws (book ix., chapter 12). The murderer of any of his near kin, after being put to death, was "cast out of the city, naked, in an appointed place where three roads meet, and let all the magistrates, in behalf of the whole state, carry each a stone and hurl it at the head of the dead body."

Fashions in Mourning.

They Grow Richer in Variety as the Season Advances and Mourning More Generally Worn Than Ever Before.

Dainty and Exquisite Lingerie.

Dance Gowns and Hop Gowns.

Fashions in mourning costumes continue to grow richer in variety as the summer advances. Indeed, it might be said that it is the fashion to mourn, for, in spite of the absurdity of this statement, it is in a great measure true in that mourning is more generally worn than ever before.

Never before has it been so readily adopted as it is now, and although it is worn for a shorter period than has been customary for some time, this badge of respect for the dead is now demanded by social etiquette, even when the relationship is quite distant, and in this case is often only put on for six weeks and then replaced with colors. A few months of black is all that is required for mourning a member of an immediate family, and even a widow now discards her black in a year, though several months of lavender, black and most ostracized, has returned again to popularity—but in what disguise! It seems to be perfectly rejuvenated and changed by its period of rest. Where it was once clumsy and unmanageable it is now soft and obedient, and is used in the most charming and graceful ways for soft folds, draperies and even tucking on trills. And this is not all—it is now a water proofed fabric. A light weight of drap d'Alma, Clarette, and a fabric called Ophelia crepe are correct for summer wear.

Light veiling gowns as well as India silks, peau de soies, French taffetas and Sicilliennes are used with good effect in combination with trimmings of crape, chiffon, net ruchings and black monsselines, the lighter touches being deftly put on by these thin and airy trimmings. The model gown we illustrate this week shows how these ideas are carried out.

All white costumes for the summer without a ray of color, or even a bit of black, are considered to be in the depths of mourning, but there must be no lace or open embroidery on these gowns, simply blind embroidery or ruchings, pleatings and insertions of white blonde net or footing. Black and white combinations are reserved for a later stage when mourning is light.

But enough of dark subjects! You must hear of the latest styles in lingerie. Truly this is an age of wild extravagance, and one grows dizzy at the thought of roughly estimating the value of the summer outfit of "My Lady of Modes"—she is simply the most dainty and exquisite thing imaginable this season—and alas the cost of this prettiness! For the woman of means who expends her gold in procuring these daintyisms the cost is enough, but in comparison to the measureless energy of nimble fingers, the dimming of eyesight and the precious hours squandered in constructing them, one must acknowledge that the price is but fair.

The bewitching little underwaists which are glimpsed now and again beneath the veiling of gossamer frocks so much affected this summer are gems of needlework art. A use of lace (and real lace at that) is now highly preferred to embroidery, and when strips of embroidery are employed they are not the usual made insertions, but are cut from the finest all-over embroidery, and carefully rolled and whipped to the bands of lace insertion on each side. The whole underwaist is frequently made of these alternate lace and embroidered strips, with sometimes cunning little puffings of the sheerest muslin holding the lace insertions together.

The likeness of these little affairs to hothouse exotics, both as to fabric and evanescent charm, is marked. They are so frail and perishable that a few trips to the laundry converts them to one or two light shreds, and if they are made of ribbon and lace, as they sometimes are, a few good sunbaths will make them pale and fade away. When neither embroidery or puffings are used to join the cobweb lines of lace, the band of fine soft cambric between the lace insertings is covered with French knots of herringbone stitchings.

The love of color which has of late years been so encouraged by the fashion, is now showing itself in lingerie. A new style of underskirt has appeared, which shows a most delicious flouncing at the bottom, made of colored handkerchiefs. Very large bordered handkerchiefs, as fine and thin in consistency as those for the pocket, with lines of open beading and embroidered dots covering the lilac and pink points which form their edges, have a circle cut from their center, and are opened diagonally from one corner and sewed together, forming a graceful and beautifully ample circular flounce, with the points of the squares falling upon a narrower underflounce with the same border at the bottom of the skirt.

Another caprice, also is a muslin petticoat, with a flounce of lace and embroidery, either of point de Paris or Valenciennes lace sewed on at the knees. Beneath this lace and embroidery flounce, which is transparent, the petticoat has a line of small flat pearl buttons, to which arose colored taffeta flounce attached to a band of corresponding buttonholes is buttoned. Of course the silk flounce may be changed to match the color of any gown with which it is worn, and one of these lace and muslin skirts may be used with varied effect by having several silk flounces to be slipped beneath its filmy upper flounce and buttoned to the skirt.

With dance gowns, for which a lace skirt is positively essential, this idea of changing the color to correspond with that of the gown is of great value, and

CHARMING SUMMER MODELS.

Figure 1—This charming gown is carried out in white and pale china blue. The corsage prettily tucked pouches over yoke of embroidered gown which falls softly upon a draped corselet of black taffeta. The embroidery is repeated in the little chinilsette. Small looped rosettes of black velvet complete the scheme of color. The hat is of the new plateau shape in black crinoline, the under brim fitted in by a row of nodding ostrich tips.

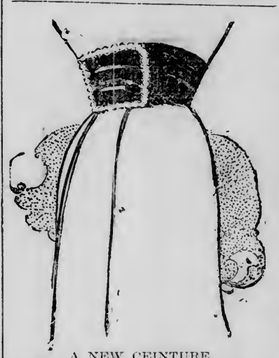
WAIST WITH LINGERIE SLEEVES.

This model waist has the new lingerie sleeves and shows the broad-shouldered effect now sought after. The body of the waist is embroidered net over taffeta. The sleeves, undersleeves revers and soft front are white dotted mull in tiny tucks. A band of black velvet and bands of the same on the cuffs give the finishing touch of black. The swathed waistband is of taffeta.

youth, without much character to be sure, but with that subtle magical charm of mere freshness and newness so keenly felt by all but the young themselves. I saw a charming one of these debutante frocks at a designers a day or two ago. It was all white, with a deep bertha of accordion pleated tulle tulle pleatings, dancing gayly out in all directions. You can't imagine how simple and young the whole thing looked. It was worn with a satin ribbon sash, the ends of which were cut in a point and bordered with full pleatings of tulle.

Another hop gown of a decidedly contrasting character had a color motive of yellow, shading into an intense tone of orange, or flame. It was one of the new Empire gowns, worn with a short bolero of point de Venise, and a tightly fitted princesse foundation of pale yellow, which was veiled in chiffon of a decided orange tint, over this another chiffon sheathing hung in unbroken lines from beneath the bolero to the floor, but with very little fullness. The upper gown of chiffon was again of the very palest shade of yellow, spangled profusely in gilt and rhinestones, and having galons of inserted point de Venise at the bottom, beneath which the pale yellow was cut away and gleams of the strong orange showed with striking effect through the open spaces of the lace. A soft peau de soie ribbon of a pale shade of yellow was caught in a few choux at the side and then draped across the bust and held by a topaz ornament, two long fringed ends falling nearly to the floor.



A NEW CEINTURE.

The deep corselet in every form and variety continues to hold sway, and novel ideas for its decoration are highly valued. The pretty notion of a great carved stross buckle at the back with two piercing teeth in the center is a popular fad just now, and is especially effective worn with a girdle of black velvet.

about the neck. The bertha fell in two long points back and front, but stood out prettily on the shoulders in shorter points. A tulle sleeve tucked to the elbow, and released to form a puff, beneath which a pleating of tulle fell which was sloped to an extremely long point at the elbow, and was decidedly short in front. The skirt of organdie was shirred in tucks around the hips, and at the bottom was a mass of little

The Twentieth Century.

When a few months more shall have passed we will then stand at the very threshold of the twentieth century, and the nineteenth will be a thing of the past. It will, however, be known as the century of invention and discovery, and among some of the greatest of these we can truthfully mention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated remedy for all aliments arising from a disordered stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency, constipation and biliousness. It has been one of the greatest blessings to mankind during the past fifty years as a health builder. Many physicians recommend it. Take advice, try a bottle and be convinced, but be sure to get the genuine with a Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

PALE BLUE MOHAIR GOWN.

This bewitching bolero worn with a plain flaring skirt of the same shimmering blue mohair, is trimmed in a most novel and effective way with facings and revers of white moire antique, outlined with black cord braid and daintily embroidered in black silk. The bell sleeves stopping short of the waist are bordered in the same fashion and fall over an undersleeve of creamy batiste. A dashing black satin tie decorates the under blouse, its spreading ends falling almost to the crushed corselet of white Liberty silk.

It is curious to trace in the development of this mourning fad—for so it may almost be called—the influence of English fashions upon our own, and also those of the French. In consequence of the South African trouble the greater number of England's social leaders are in black, and therefore their fashion periodicals and designers are turning their attention to the artistic treatment of mourning fabrics and styles. So many charming and becoming effects have been set forth that the contagion has spread both into France and this country, and mourning toilettes are attracting general interest everywhere among the fashionable classes.

Neither is it now a depressing custom for the old idea of the inky cloak as a substitute for vainer forms of dress, and the wearing of black as an encouragement to indifference to one's appearance is a dead creed. The very deepest of deep black is now wrought into attractive and coquettish effects that in the light of bygone customs might be severely termed frolicsome.

There is a large selection of materials nowadays for mourning, and crape, which was once so drearily stiff and somber in appearance that it was al-

Mrs. Edmands was Cured of a Severe Case of Rheumatism at that advanced age.

Mrs. Susan H. Edmands.

Mrs. Susan H. Edmands, of 37 Broad St., Newburyport, Mass, when recently interviewed, said:

"A year ago last February I was taken with rheumatism. My hands swelled, and I suffered from soreness in the joints of my arms and limbs. At my age this was quite a serious matter, and I employed two doctors, but they did not cure me. One day my son found a little book at the door which contained a statement by a minister who formerly preached here, and was known to be a man of great truth and honesty. Over his signature he stated that he had been cured of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I told my doctor if he was willing I would try the pills myself. The minister whose statement I had read was known to the doctor, and the latter did not object, so I tried the pills. I soon began to see an improvement. The swelling went down and there was less soreness. I continued the use of the pills, in all seven boxes, and was entirely cured. If I am ever troubled with the rheumatism again I shall surely take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and advise others to do so who are afflicted with this disease." Signed SUSAN H. EDMANDS.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People expel impurities from the blood, and supply the material for rapidly rebuilding wasted nerve tissues. It has performed hundreds of almost miraculous cures in severe cases of Rheumatism, many times after doctors had given up hope.

ground of physical and moral welfare. The opinions of army men who are responsible for the efficiency of the troops under their commands have been cited. But beyond efficiency in the technique of military discipline, this government is responsible to the people for the general well being of men in its service; among the "people" are the women of the country, who have reared the men, who are rank and file of the army and navy. They are not experts in military drill, they do not shoulder arms, but their shoulders have born burdens and their arms have carried the children, now grown to be men strong enough to defend the flag the world over. The women of the country want the army canteen abolished, and it will be abolished. There are men in congress or men now out of congress who will accomplish this result. These men will abolish the canteen, because they recognize the right of the women to ask it and because they themselves are convinced that this sale of intoxicating liquors is harmful to our soldiers and is beneath the dignity of this government.

Had a Narrow Escape.

W. A. Thompson, Jr., formerly of Duluth, had a narrow escape while sitting in a barber's chair in St. Louis a few days ago. One of the riots which have become an everyday feature of the scenes on St. Louis' streets was in progress, and some bullets from revolvers playfully discharged by somebody passed into the barber shop, one of them lodging in the woodwork of the chair he was occupying. Mr. Thompson is there engaged in overseeing the construction of the McDougall whalebacks for river purposes.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

Dullness Seems Marked in Comparison with the Recent Activity, But Business is Larger Than a Year Ago.

THE OUTLOOK IS GOOD.

New York, June 16.—Bradstreet's today says: Measured by recent records and recollections of business activity the present season's dullness seems specially marked and the reactionary movement of price makes trade look worse than it really is. Judged by such indicators as railroad tariffs and the statistics of foreign trade the volume of business doing is considerably larger than a year ago, when it will be recollected trade was cheerfully active. It is true bank clearings are considerably smaller than last year's and yet outside of the metropolis bank clearings are heavier this year than last. The cereal markets may hold down bulk of the advance shown last week on the strength of bad crop reports, but foreign recognition of conditions here has not sought the direction of increased makings. The acreage remaining in wheat is little below that actually harvested a year ago and owing to the favorable condition in the Southwest and on the Pacific coast the general average on June 1 is better than a year ago, but spring wheat, owing to the late rain, promises a much less favorable result.

The corn acreage will be larger, but the condition is much below the average, particularly in the heaviest producing state, Texas. Reflection of this is found in the advance of 7c in spot cotton and of a slightly smaller relative gain in the next crop deliveries. In manufactured textiles dullness is still the feature. Wool is dull and on the whole week at the East, while goods prices have been secured in the West.

Lower prices for iron and steel have not met expectations of causing a reduction in output and the latest furnace report indicates an actually larger output and increased stock, though this latter feature apparently has been magnified because supplies of high-grade pig iron are still scarce, particularly so at the South, the situation as to low grades are in plentiful supply, with little demand. Further shading of pig iron quotations are reported East and West and the possibility of a 25 per cent restriction of production is reported under consideration of leading iron producers. A significant feature is the expressed desire of large ore consumers that deliveries be heeded back. Rails and structural steel are still well held, but there is talk of a reduction in prices for the latter product. The other metals are dull and on the whole weak.

Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 4,668,929 bushels, against 1,239,221 bushes last week, 2,784,741 bushels in the corresponding week of 1899, 4,226,787 bushels in 1898, 2,577,319 bushels in 1897 and 3,120,317 bushels in 1896. Since July 1 this season the exports of wheat aggregate 191,821,082 bushels, against 218,922,892 bushels last year, and 227,252,818 bushels in 1897-98. Corn exports for the week aggregate 3,634,-206 bushels against 3,981,471 bushels last week, 3,285,294 bushels in this week a year ago, 4,766,766 bushels in 1898, 1,921,213 bushels in 1897, and 1, 510,761 bushels in 1896.

Since July 1, this season, corn exports aggregate 189,254,627 bushels, against 262,-425,526 bushels during the same period a year ago, and 190,611,629 bushels in 1897-98.

The failures for the week in the United States number 180 as compared with 181 last week, 214 the week a year ago, 207 in 1899, 226 in 1897 and 265 in 1896. Failures in the Dominion of Canada number 27, as against 24 last week, 35 in this week a year ago, 17 in 1899, 21 in 1897 and 25 in 1896.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: A season of declining prices is never wholly agreeable to business men whose stock on hand is losing part of its value. Yet there are times when return to the highest prosperity in business is not possible except through readjustment of prices. The highest prosperity the country has ever reached prior to the panic was in 1890. After depression for several years the highest point reached with last year's recovery was 80 per cent on March 16, but the gradual yielding has already returned the regular prices to a shade less than 75c, where it was practically with the highest prosperity in 1892.

The output of iron furnaces June 1 was 296,376 tons weekly, an increase of 2,526 tons, making the yield only 1638 tons less than at the highest point ever reached before. But the increase of unsold stock to 329,480 tons, about 84,000 tons in May, disclosed a larger decline than was expected in the new business upon which nearly all the work and furnaces have now to rely and reports that furnaces of considerable capacity have already been closed this month seem likely to be correct.

Within a week or two the labor organizations and the employers will be discussing new demands for higher wages, and shorter hours, and the closing of many works for lack of orders will have much influence about that time. Supplies are gradually changing, anthracite No. 1 to $20 and Pittsburg gray forge to $17.50, and sales of bars are reported there at $1.50. After the closing of furnaces and works has more nearly adjusted present supply to the demand ,the fact that many large operations are held back until prices have been readjusted will have its proper influence.

The boot and shoe branch has been hindered more than any other manufacture this year, perhaps by difference as to price. It is urged that wholesale and retail dealers have on hand too large stock taken when the great advance was in progress. Reconstruction moves slowly in cotton goods ,though a few quotations are slightly reduced ,the uncertainty shifting in the market for raw cotton having some influence. The present conditions help those who look for lower prices in the goods market. No further change appears this week in the wool markets, although their stagnation with irregular prices for goods beyond the most favored staples, still indicates a downward tendency.

Wheat has been advanced nearly 3 cents with accounts of extensive injury to growing grain and the exports from Atlantic ports, flour included, have been in two weeks of June 5,587,137 bushels, against 2,526,801 last year. Pacific exports 1,555,388 against 1,055,512 last year and corn exports 6,000,462 bushels against 5,812,959 last year. The active movement from the farmers seems to discredit many accounts of injury, although receipts have been somewhat smaller than last year.

Failures for the week have been 162 in the United States against 136 last year, and 21 in Canada against 18 last year.

FEVER AT QUEMADOS.

Yellow Jack Menaces the Troops Stationed at Havana.

Havana, June 16.—Yellow fever has broken out at Quemados, eighteen miles from Havana, where United States troops are stationed. Thus far there have been fourteen cases, three of which resulted fatally. At present only six are under treatment, and all are expected to recover. Two soldiers who married Cuban women were attacked, but they recovered. A sergeant of the signal service died.

Maj. Grant Edmunds and Mrs. Edmunds were both stricken. Capt. Edmonds of the signal corps is in the detention hospital, under suspicion, but it is likely that his disorder is not more serious than malaria.

Havana city is exceptionally clear, only three cases being under treatment, which is less than was the case during any month since last winter. Gen. Lee is taking every precaution to prevent troops in barracks contracting the disease. Dr. Harvard says that the fever at Quemados is under control. It has been some months since there was an outbreak.

SECULAR SHOTS AT THE PULPIT.

Boston Globe: The very latest thing in church collection boxes is a patented affair which leaves each contribution dropped into it in plain sight until the deacon presses a button and causes it to drop into a receptacle from which only one with a proper key can take it. The object is to let everybody know what anybody gives.

Minneapolis Journal: The Episcopal convention of the diocese of Massachusetts has given the first practical answer to Ian Maclaren's humorous question: "Shall we shoot the old minister?" That body has decided that any minister of that church who has labored in Massachusetts for twenty-five years and is 65 years of age shall, at his own option, be retired with an allowance of $500 a year. This is as practical as missionary work.

Portland Oregonian: The Methodist church may continue to be officially down on dancing, cardplaying, theatergoing, horseracing and other wicked amusements, but we observe that the Epworth league keeps on in its mad whirl of gaiety, giving picnics, excursions, parlor entertainments, playing copenhagen and so on. It would perhaps be unfair to suggest that the wise fathers of the church wink the other eye at the failure of the young people to follow the rigid letter of the discipline; if they do not, they should. The young people are the life of the church, and will in time become its body. If the innocent pastimes of other young people are to be placed under the ban, woe to the Methodist church.

Boston Transcript: Where so much has been accomplished in a forward direction, it is perhaps ungracious to find fault with a slight exhibition of ultra-conservatism. The proposition to change the rule governing amusements, so as to have card-playing, dancing, theaters, the circus, etc., matters to be decided by the individual judgment and conscience, was voted down, notwithstanding the fact that the majority report of the committee favored it. The rule is largely a dead letter and the handling which it received in the conference will be likely to knock the breath out of it altogether. As the conservatives had only three votes to spare out of a total of over 500, the mere continuance of the general prohibition in the statute book of the denomination will have no restraining force except with those who do not need rules and statutes for the shaping of their moral and religious lives. The rule remains only to be more generally dishonored than it was before.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

Six Are Filed All Sustaining the Lower Courts.

St. Paul, June 16.—Chief Justice Start, of the supreme court, filed six decisions yesterday in all of which the decisions of the lower court are affirmed.

In the case of Joseph J. Winczewski, respondent, vs. the Winona & Western Railway company, appellant, Justice Brown and Louis dissent from the views of the majority, which favor the plaintiff. The action was brought to recover damages for personal injuries, and the plaintiff has received a verdict of $1000.75 against the railroad company. A majority of the court holds that the negligence was all on the side of the railroad company; that the men had a right to suppose that the train would slow down to the regulation eight miles an hour. The two dissenting justices ridicule the idea that the plaintiff was not guilty of negligence in riding backward toward an approaching train, and also contend that since the rule requiring the train to slow down to eight miles an hour was never enforced, it was a dead letter and the railroad company was not guilty of negligence for running at the usual rate of speed through town.

The county commissioners of Fillmore county cannot recover from the bondsmen of the defunct Fillmore County bank the $2824.80 which the county had on deposit in the bank at the time it failed. The commissioners authorized a reduction in the rate interest paid on county deposits from 3 to 2 per cent, without notifying the bondsmen. That action voided the bond, and the county is in the hole. The supreme court yesterday rendered a decision to that effect, sustaining a decision of the district court.

The chief justice also affirmed the lower courts in the following cases: E. W. Davies, assignee of H. O. Lewis, insolvent, respondent; J. E. Dow, appellant. State plaintiff, vs. Mary Mayo, defendant. Robert Porteous, respondent, vs. Commonwealth Lumber company, appellant. Joseph Kletschka, appellant, vs. Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway company, respondent.

MR. TOWNE'S REMINISCENCES.

Continues His Narrative of European Trip at Morley Church.

Charles A. Towne addressed a good audience last night at the Morley Congregational church on his reminiscences of a European vacation. He entertained his audience delightfully, of course, and those present enjoyed the talk very much. He gave an eloquent description of the many beauties of such a trip, and poetically described the ruins of the Coliseum and a midnight scene in Venice. He carried his audience into Turkey, and told many new and interesting things about that interesting country. He told how the sultan is guarded. Whenever he leaves the palace 14,000 infantry and 300 cavalry guard every approach in order that none with evil intent may come near the sacred presence. Mr. Towne and his party had permission to stand on one of the balconies that overlooked the line of march, and as they stood there they noted the presence of spies near each person to see that they attempted no harm to the ruler of the Ottoman empire. He spoke of Turkey's despotic government, and said that if was only a question or time before it would have to get in line with the other countries and embrace civilization.

CLEMENTS CONVICTED.

Caledonia, Minn., June 16.—After two hours' deliberation the jury in the J. R. Clements case of wrecking the Fillmore county bank in 1898, brought in a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment.

LEMON PIE PASTRY.

Mix scant half-teaspoon salt with one cup pastry flour. Chop in a quarter-cup lard and mix with cold water into stiff dough. Pound it out flat and half an inch thick. Put on butter in little dabs, roll up and put out again. Do this four times, using one-fourth cup in all. Put it out again and lay on ice until chilled. Then roll it an inch larger than the plate and cut off for a rim, put this strip on the edge, first wetting the under paste.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Isabella M. Parsons and William Parsons, her husband, as mortgagors, to Eliza F. Phelps, as mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of December, 1891, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded on the 19th day of December, 1891, at eight o'clock in the forenoon, in Book 98 of mortgages, on page 182 of the records, in the office of the register of deeds, in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota. The premises covered by said mortgage, and thereby mortgaged, are situated in the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, and are described as follows: Lot numbered fourteen (14), of block seventy-nine (79), Endion Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging.

Said default consists in the non-payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage, which principal sum became due and payable on the first day of December, 1894, and in the non-payment of the interest upon said principal sum from the 1st day of June, 1899.

There is therefore claimed to be due, and there is due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, in principal and interest, the sum of thirty-seven hundred fifty-one and 12-100 dollars, ($3751.12), and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law, or otherwise, to recover said debt, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, which has become operative by reason of the default aforesaid, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises above described, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Monday, the 23rd day of July, 1900, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as by law provided.

Dated June 9th, 1900.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of eleven hundred sixty-nine and 16-100 dollars ($1169.16), which amount is claimed to be due and is due, owing and unpaid at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly made and delivered by Erek Nelson and Augusta Nellson, his wife, mortgagors, to James H. Struble, committee of the person and estate of Robert Killgore, lunatic, mortgagee, bearing date July 22nd, 1891, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on August 25th, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in Book 98, of mortgages, on page 60.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale, which power by reason of said default has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and pursuant to the statues in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit: Lot numbered three hundred seventy-eight (378), of block one hundred sixty-nine (169), Duluth Proper, Second division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, of said county, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Monday, the 9th day of July, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, together with fifty dollars attorneys' fees, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as by law provided.

Dated May 26th, 1900.

Duluth Ball Team Will Play Several Games Next Week at St. Paul During the Elks' Carnival.

Duluth and Little Falls at Oneota Park.

Scheme to Make Limited Boxing Exhibitions Legal.

A game nearly every day is the prospect for the Duluth team next week. Manager Wade will take the maroon stockings to St. Paul for the Elks' carnival, and will play three or four games with the champion Lennon & Gibbon's team of the Twin City league. The games will be played at Lexington Park, and the local team is confident of winning out on the trip, both financially and in the matter of games. On next Sunday the local team plays Superior at West Superior.

Today and tomorrow Duluth and Little Falls play at Oneota Park, and two good games are on the cards. Elliott pitches for Duluth this afternoon and Cox tomorrow. The make-up of the teams is:

Duluth.		Little Falls.
Hartman	catcher	Smith
Cox, Elliott	pitcher	Farrell
Kline	first base	Gravel
McCarthy	second base	Walling
Shephard	short stop	Hickey
Warner	third base	Bouraffa
Featherstone	left field	Newman
Lambert	center field	Carley
Hurley	right field	Sylvester

If plans, which are at present being formulated, do not miscarry, Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis will witness a revival of legalized boxing before another year has passed. A bill is in the course of preparation which will receive its introduction at the coming session of the state legislature. It will provide for limited round exhibitions before duly organized atheletic clubs. A farther provision, designed to prevent brutality, grants a city official, to be named later, the power to stop proceedings when, in his opinion, one of the principals is outclassed, and at any time as his judgment may dictate. The number of rounds which the promoters intend to incorporate in the proposed bill has not yet been definitely decided, but it is thought that six will be sufficient to satisfy all concerned.

After a thorough investigation the High School Athletic association has decided not to protest the dashes in last Saturday's Ironwood meet. There is no question that the Ironwood school was guilty of a palpable infraction of track rules, first in allowing Urquhart a flying start, and secondly, in not sending him back a yard as a penalty for breaking over the line ahead of the pistol the first time, for not sending him back two yards for his second offense, and ruling him out altogether for the third break. The local men were handicapped and crippled, but put up a wonderfully plucky fight, only losing by five points, which they feel was taken from them by unfair starts in the dashes and hurdles. In the distance work the Michigan men were never on the same stretch with Haroldson and Rakowsky. The two Duluth men simply ran away from their competitors, and fought out a driving finish between themselves in the half-mile event, while in the mile event Haroldson had things all his own way.

"Australian Billy" Murphy, one of the swiftest lightweight fighting machines in the country, will arrive in Duluth the latter part of this month, and will probably be matched to fight "Eddie" Schumberg, of West Superior, some time in July. Murphy is one of the squarest and cleverest little men in the business. He expects to be in Duluth most of the summer, and is anxious to box all comers, from 115 up to 140 pounds. For four years he was the best in his class, and created quite a sensation out at 'Frisco a few years ago. "Jimmie" Griffin, of this city, knows the little Australian well, having trained with him during his vigorous Pacific coast campaign, and he says he is one of the finest all around good fellows that ever put on the gloves.

Wiggs, the former Superior twirler with the erratic tendencies, came very near duplicating the aerial flight he took in the second inning of the Duluth-Superior game at Oneota park two weeks ago at Chatham, Ont., on Monday of this week. Wiggs separated himself from the Superior aggregation very suddenly after that game and went to his home in Chicago. He was signed by the London team of the International league, and was put in to pitch against Chatham. He gave ten bases on balls in five innings, and was touched up for eight safe hits, netting thirteen runs. Jimmie Hart went in after the fifth inning, and the final score was: Chatham, 16; London, 6.

Roy Patterson, the crack pitcher of the Duluth team last season, pitched a brilliant winning game for the Chicago White Stockings against Detroit on Monday. The score was 2 to 1, and Detroit only succeeded in getting six scattered hits.

Billy Phyle, who was traded to Kansas City by the Chicago league team for John Ganzel, the big first baseman, is at his home in St. Cloud, and refuses to report with Manning's aggregation.

The Herald acknowledges the receipt of Spalding's official golf guide for 1900. It gives an accurate and concise report of the game, with scores of all important matches played last season.

The greatest horror of the race track occured at Waltham, Mass., Memorial Day, when W. F. Stafford and Harry E. Miles, while pacing Stinson in a four-cornered twenty-mile race, ran off the track and were dashed against the electric light poles with such terrific force as to smash the machine hopelessly and result in the death of both riders within a few hours, break a spectator's hip and put another in the hospital. It has caused a shock throughout cycling circles and has shown riders of these machines and those who follow them the full danger that exists in their use unless they are steered and controlled by the most experienced men in the game.

It was the second fatality in the history of cycle racing, the first being Joseph Griebler of St. Cloud, this state, who, four years ago, met his death at Lima, Ohio. There is, however, to this day, some doubt as to the actual cause of Griebler's death. There are many who believe that he was a dead man before he struck the post on the opposite side of the track, and maintain that he overworked himself to such an extent that he was dead while still flying along on his wheel. It is known that in that fatal half mile race poor Griebler rode as he had never ridden before.

It has always been recognized that there is a dangerous element to bicycle racing, but when it is noted how many races have been run during the past ten years, and the great number of men who have participated, it is truly wonderful that the fatalities are so few. There are more bicycle racing men than men who take part in horse racing or football, but the violent deaths have been fewer. Football has claimed many times more victims.

A. G. Spalding, director of sports at the Paris exposition, desires to call the attention of the American gymnasts to the valuable prizes which will be given for the international championship, to take place at the Paris exposition July 19 and 20. The prizes certainly are the most valuable ever given for a gymnastic program. The following is the list:

First—Object of art, bronze, "Atalanta" (Saulo, sculpture), valued 1000 francs one gold plaque of the exposition.

Second—Object of art, bronze, "Atalanta" (Saulo, sculptor), value 1000 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Third—Bronze, 700 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Fourth—Bronze, 600 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Fifth—Sevres vase, 500 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Sixth—Sevres cup, 400 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Seventh—Pottery, 300 francs, "Atalanta," one gold plaque of the exposition.

Eighth—Sevres vase, 300 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Ninth—Sevres cup, 200 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Tenth—Sevres vase, 150 francs; one gold plaque of the exposition.

Eleventh to fifteenth—Object of art, 120 francs; gold medal.

Sixteenth to thirtieth—Object of art, 75 francs; enamel medal and plaque of the exposition.

Forty-first to seventieth—Object of art, 50 francs; silver plaque of the exposition.

Seventy-first to eightieth—Object of art, 40 francs; silver plaque of the exposition.

Eighty-first to one hundreth—Object of art, 30 francs; silver plaque of the exposition.

One hundreth to the one hundred and thirtieth—Gold plaque of the exposition.

One hundred and thirty-first to two hundredth—Bronze plaque, silver plated

The University of Pennsylvania held a meet early in the week prepatory for the Paris games. Alexander Grant broke a world's record, running 1500 meters in 4:08 3-5, two-fifths of a second better than the time made by Bray of Williams college at the recent Knickerbocker Athletic club games.

Princeton's athletes who will take part in the Paris games sailed from New York Wednesday. They are seven in number, as follows: ex-Capt. John Cregan and Perry, 1903, distance runners; Capt. Alexander W. Coleman, 1902, and D. Horton, 1903, pole vaulters; W. C. Carroll, 1900, and G. P. Servis, 1903, high jumpers, and Frank Jarvis, 1900, sprinter. Walter Christie goes along on trainer. The men will train daily on board ship. After arriving in London, about June 20, both morning and afternoon practice will be the order until the English championships, July 7, after which the Paris games will be the objective mark.

The Georgetown university athletic track team, composed of C. J. Martell, manager; W. B. Foley, trainer; Arthur F. Minahan, sprinter; J. E. Mulligan, captain of track leave Washington Sunday, June 17, for Boston, from which point they will embark June 20 for Paris.

Terry McGovern, king of the featherweights, got his second crack at Tommy White of Chicago, on Tuesday evening, at Coney island, and the result of the mill shows that the clever Chicago boy played in big luck when he stuck six rounds in front of the Brooklyn terror a few weeks ago. Terry punched Tommy down and out inside of three rounds, and he could have turned the trick in two if the lights had not gone out after a couple of minutes' fighting in the first round, when Terry already had his man on the way to Queer street. The fight was much like the go the boys had at Tattersalls, except that it was shorter, as it was figured it ought to be. Terry rushed Tommy all around the ring, missing with many a punch, but landing enough heavy smashes to quickly put White groggy. Terry paid no attention to Tommy's left jabs. He kept boring in with resistless energy. He beat down White's guard and floored him twice before the end of the second round. The bell saved Tommy. In the third White was down half a dozen times. He came back for more as often as he could, groggy but game as ever. When he went down the last time he turned his ankle and had to stay on the floor, but it didn't make much difference, for it was only a question of another punch or two before White would have been put out for fair. The boys were to weigh 128 pounds at the ringside. White was half a pound overweight. Terry didn't raise the beam with part of his clothes on. He did not object to the overweight.

The result of the mill is one more evidence that McGovern is by all odds the greatest feather-weight we have ever seen, not baring Dixon in his palmy days.

* * *

George Dixon, who today is not much better than a shadow of the little fighting machine of a few years ago, known to the fistic world as "Little Chocolate," had a short shade the best of a hot six-round go with Benny Yanger, the "Tipton Slasher," at Chicago, Tuesday night. The wonderful little colored fighter was as willing and as aggressive as ever, but he was shy his old-time speed, and his punches did not go home with the vim and snap and accuracy that marked his work in the days when he was undisputed champion. As it was he was fast enough to gain a slight advantage over the rugged Italian youngster who faced him, although the decision of a draw rendered by Referee Carroll was about as good a ruling as could have been made and met with the approbation of the spectators, who almost to a man were rooting for Yanger. Dixon's advantage was scarcely great enough to entitle him to the decision.

* * *

Jack Jeffries, like his big brother Jim, can stand a world of punishment. He took enough punching from Billy Stift at Chicago Tuesday to knock out half a dozen ordinary fighters. It looks as though the younger Jeffries will never make a top-notcher. He appears to be shoulder-bound, and he seems to forget all his knowledge of boxing when he gets into a mill that's on the level. Stift floored him on the first round, put a score of left and rights on him before the scrap was over that were hard enough to fell an ox. The big Californian was dazed a few times, but he stood the hammering remarkably well and Stift was fast tiring as a result of his own exertions and the bear-like squeezes of Jeff in the clinches toward the end. Billy held on as much as the law allows in the final two rounds, and had Jeffries known how to land a punch he might have won. As it was the clean and telling blows landed by Champion Jim's brother could be counted on the fingers. A half-hearted left stab or two, one good right swing to the kidneys, and a few inconsequential jolts to the ribs with the free arm were all the offensive numbers the man from the coast had to offer. It was Stift's decision in a walk.

* * *

Billy Ryan, of Syracuse, gave Oscar Gardner a merry game over at Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday. The Omaha Kid had Ryan all but out in the tenth and eleventh rounds, but the clever Syracuse boy came back and outpointed Oscar until the eighteenth round. In this round Gardner reached the jaw with a couple of stiff ones, and Ryan took a short journey to dreamland.

Although Fitzsimmons, McCoy and Jeffries are all on the sick list, yet those who admire heavyweight boxing contests will not be disappointed. Fitzsimmons declared off his contest with Ruhlin last night, and McCoy announced that he would be unable to meet Sharkey June 25. Thereupon Ruhlin and Sharkey, the only heavyweights able to retain their health, decided to fight a battle.

While no articles have yet been signed, yet it is practically agreed that the Sailor and the Akron Giant will meet at the Seaside Sporting club, Coney Island, on June 26.

* * *

Gus Ruhlin, the Akron Giant, who will probably meet Tom Sharkey at Coney Island, June 30, has a singular record in the roped square. It runs in and out like a brook, and does not give one an idea of much stability. After a few novice battles, he was pitted against Yank Kenny, and was defeated in sixteen rounds. That was regarded by the experts as a sure indication that Ruhlin would not succeed as a boxer.

Following that painful affair, Ruhlin got a decision over Steve O'Donnell in twenty rounds.

That he supplemented by a twenty-round drawn battle with Jim Jeffries, who, though much greener than at present, still had little advantage over Ruhlin in that respect.

Next the big Ohioan was pitted against Kid McCoy and lost the decision in twenty rounds. Ruhlin was put to ribbons by the clever Kid, but was on his feet and strong at the close. As a matter of fact he was chasing McCoy about the ring and aiming dangerous blows at the Kid's body when the twentieth round ended.

Next came the one disgraceful defeat of his career, when Tom Sharkey put him to sleep with a punch in the first round. Ruhlin barely had his hands up to the Sailor's left swing got over the big fellow's guard and landed flush on the point of the jaw. Subsequently it took Ruhlin twenty-two rounds in which to stop the behemoth of the prize ring. Ed Dunkhorst, and then after mixing it with Goddard and Choynski in six-round bouts, Ruhlin had the hardest fight of his life. It was with Peter Maher, and it is questionable if two heavyweights ever before wanted each other so fiercely. Maher floored Ruhlin half a dozen times, but failed to keep the big fellow down. Ruhlin, on the other hand, pounded Maher's face out of shape. It was called a draw.

Ruhlin then proceeded to the coast and lost a decision in twenty rounds to Joe Kennedy. The latter came East and was knocked out by Maher in two rounds.

Since then Ruhlin has put to sleep inside of ten rounds such third raters as George Lawlor, Jack Steinzer, Jim Jeffords, Jack McCormick, Stockings Conroy, Jack Finnegan and Yank Kenny.

His defect was slowness of the cart horse description, and ignorance of modern boxing methods. He has improved much in both respects in the past year, and claims to have gained many valuable points as a result of his experience in Corbett's training camp.

Fred Clarke, the captain and manager of the Pittsburgs, has got some original notions about the labor organization proposed by certain ball players. "The best thing that ball players can do," said he, "is to stick to their knitting and play ball. Sport and labor have nothing in common. We are merely the creatures of the public, and liable to be thrown over tomorrow. Baseball is not a necessity, like a house, and baseball players are not part of the economy of society, like carpenters. Half the trouble with the Pittsburg team is that some of the players have had their heads full of the new organization and have been playing ball like wooden men. It was the same in the days of the Brotherhood. Ball players who pay attention to their business get big money for it. They are responsible to no one but themselves, and their employers. I don't propose to go into any organization that ties up my independence."

* * *

"The game is getting faster and faster every season," says Buck Ewing, "and managers must look to young players to keep their team in the game. The veterans of the game, who have been moving along almost as rapidly as the game, now find it getting beyond them, and I look for a wholesale retirement of old gentlemen and a decided influx of young blood. While it takes a full season for a young player to become familiar with the work in the National league, when they do get going right they pick up the finer points of the game and are quicker witted than the men who started in when baseball was played principally with the hands and brain figured but little in the contests."

Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph: It has been asserted that McGraw is not the highest-salaried player known to the game.

"Why," said somebody recently, "Comiskey was just as well paid."

Here are facts. Chris Von der Ahe paid Charley Comiskey $6000 for seven months' work (Comiskey showed checks to prove this), and that would be $857 per month. Of course, on a six-month basis it would be $1000 per month, which is the princely stipend paid first-class railroad managers and A1 newspaper editors, overtopping the pay of senators and congressmen. Well, John J. McGraw will get $6000 per annum from Mr. Robinson's plethoric purse for his five months' work, which is $1200 per month. Great country this, when a man who can not earn $60 per month in any capacity requiring educational status can command a monthly fortune for two hours' amusement (to him) per day.

Oscar Gardiner, the "Omaha kid," won on a foul in a bout with Billy Barrett of New York in the 15th round of what was to have been a 25-round bout before the Broadway Athletic club last night. Oscar's brother Eddie was the lad who was matched to meet Barrett but through a delay on the railroad from Wheeling, Eddie was unable to appear. Oscar, although suffering from an injured right hand, went in at catch weights for the New Yorker and the latter kept dropping to one knee to avoid punishment. In the 14th round Barrett landed a heavy left on Gardiner's head which staggered the "Kid" but he recovered quickly and sent a left to Barrett's wind before the call of the gong. In the 15th round Barrett resumed his "dropping" tactics and Referee Charles White disqualified him, giving the bout to Gardiner. Lou Meyers of New York met Jim Hayward, colored, of Chicago, in a bout at 136 pounds and Meyers knocked his opponent out in the fifth round.

Fire in the Hecla Shaft Extinguished and Another Week Will See the Mine Being Worked With a Full Force.

Houghton, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless the unexpected should happen and fire break out anew in No. 2 Hecla shaft, the Calumet & Hecla mine will be running full-handed in all departments by another week. The fire was most successfully handled and was extinguished in two weeks. The fire doors and fire-fighting appliances so liberally distributed through the mine did not prove entirely effective in the hour of need, but all the money expended in elaborate devices for fighting fire and preventing its spread have paid for themselves, for it was through their aid that the flames were confined to No. 2 Hecla. The first shafts were reopened a week ago and others from day to day, as the indications favored such work. The gas from the burning wood had permeated all parts of the Hecla and Calumet branches of the mine, and it was necessary to start the free circulation of air. This was accomplished in a highly ingenious manner; the big steel skips, which haul up the copper rock and lower timber, were supplied with a sort of guard or gasket, which nearly filled the compartments in which they ran, and were then started running, in pairs. The skip in one shaft would be lowered, at the rate of thirty miles an hour or so, while the skip in another shaft, connected with the first by underground passages, would be hoisted at the same rate of speed. In effect this device was an air pump and the skips were the pistons. The plan was successful and in a short time air currents were started and the workings effectually purified from gas, which was replaced with pure air from the surface.

It is as yet too early to give any figures of the damage wrought by the fire. It is probable that a quarter to half mile of No. 2 Hecla shaft will be found pretty much to need rebuilding, but the fire did not affect the production of the mine in the slightest, and as the shaft burned was one little used, the damage will never be felt by shareholders, although the fire was unquestionably responsible for the reduction of the quarterly dividend next payable, from $20 to $10.

Messrs. R. Kondo and M. Otagawa, of Tokio, Japan, have been visiting the local copper mines. Mr. Kondo is one of the foremost business and scientific men of the Mikado's empire and visited the Lake Superior mines twelve years ago. He is president of the Nippon Maru, which, with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, run nearly a score of steamers between the Pacific coast and Oriental ports. Messrs. Kondo and Otagawa are the principal owners of the Ashio copper mines, the production of which is about 700 tons of ingot copper monthly, practically equivalent to the output of the Quincy, but the Ashio employs about 2000 men in its mines and smelters, while the Quincy gets along with less than half that number. The ore is mainly a copper sulphide, in rhyolite resembling that of the Anaconda mine in Montana. The deepest shaft of the Ashio is now down 1500 feet and the mine is well equipped with modern machinery, mostly made in Chicago, Milwaukee and San Francisco. The other principal copper producer of Japan is the Besshie, which is of about the same importance as the Ashio, and possesses enormously large bodies of low-grade copper pyrites, which are matted at the mines and in the near-by city of Niihama, the matte being smelted later to 99 per cent fine, in reverbatory furnaces, at the town named. Japan is exporting about 15,000 tons of refined copper annually, worth nearly 10,000,000 yen, or $5,000,000 gold, at the present range of prices, and this is a tremendous aid to the business interests of the empire, which is using a vast amount of money in the regeneration of the islands and the unbuilding of a strong modern army and navy. Mr. Kondo, who is a polished gentleman and an important man at home, made no secret of the determination of the Japanese to fight Russia, and expressed the sentiment which apparently governs the nation, from the Mikado and his cabinet down to the jinrikisha boys, when he said that a fight there must be, and it was better to fight soon, before Russia had completed her transcontinental railroad and entrenched herself yet more thoroughly in China and Corea.

A large number of miners—several hundred all told—returned from the Transvaal during the war. They are now going back to South Africa, many of them having been summoned by cable. Their stories of Johannesburg's prosperity and the "pound a day," which is the minimum wage paid any white man working underground, have developed what threatens to be an epidemic of African fever, and a considerable number of miners never there before are going to Africa. As a rule these are men of exceptional skill. The Witwatersrand country is a good one for the skilled miner or mechanic, but a poor one for almost any other class of labor.

The Robbins lode of the Phoenix is receiving attention, being nearly unwatered. Fifteen tons of mass and barrel copper have been shipped to the smelters, this coming entirely from the opening work done on the St. Clair lode.

The Adventure has levied an assessment of $2 per share—$200,000—for the building and equipping of a stamp mill. The mine is showing well underground and should easily be able to feed one stamp within a year, and it will take that time to get the mill running.

Excavating for the new stamp mill of the Baltic is well under way, and is being carried to the sandstone, a depth of twenty-four feet, to secure solid foundations for the stamp heads. At the new Isle Royale mill it is necessary to go through sixty-six feet of overburden to get to the solid rock, which is also sandstone. Steel caissons, to be filled with cement, will be used under the stamps. The new dock of the Isle Royale is in use and the railroad is practically completed.

Work at the new mill of the Quincy is progressing slowly but surely. It will be some months yet before the mill can go into commission.

About half of the grading on the Mohawk railway line has been completed. The 7-mile narrow-gauge logging road bought from Hebard & Son will be widened to standard gauge and re-ballasted with rock.

The showing of copper in all four shafts of the Champion mine continues exceptionally rich. It is now generally believed that the Baltic, Trimountain and Champion are all opened on the same lode. If so, this is one of the master lodes of the district, averaging nearly forty feet wide and frequently reaching fifty to sixty feet in width. The Baltic is averaging about 85-100 of 1 per cent refined copper, mill run of rock.

The Atlantic is now averaging about 70-100 of 1 per cent ingot copper. The return ran down as low as 55-100 of 1 per cent two years ago.

A practical test of the Emons process for saving fine mineral from tailings has been made on the Franklin sands by T. J. Mays, of Dubuque, Iowa, with fairly satisfactory results, although further tests will be required to get a thorough appreciation of the possibilities of the process. The system is a very simple one, like most of the successful milling and smelting processes. The tailings, found here in the shape of stamp sand, ranging from minute particles to the coarseness of fine gravel, are put through a revolving cylindrical screen, having a mesh of one millimeter. Coarse particles and rubbish are rejected from the lower end, and the screened sand is carried through an inclined launder, by a stream of water, to a round iron table, sloping slightly to all sides from the center, this much resembling the Evans table with which is in general use in the mills of this district. In the center of this iron table is a round wooden table, about four feet in diameter, also sloping somewhat from the center and set a foot above the table beneath. The "sludge" is poured into the center of this wooden table, and jets of water playing thereon rapidly wash the sand in solution to the edge, which is surrounded by an iron band, just high enough to keep the "sludge" from slopping over, and just far enough from the wooden table to allow it to pass between. The iron table is stationary, but a 6-armed wheel drags canvas strips around it, packing the sand firmly. The copper, being heavier than sand, sinks nearer the center, and the coarser particles pass entirely over the table. Clean-ups are made frequently and the richer portions of the sand vanned by passing over the table a second and third time.

THE ORE MOVEMENT.

Shipments Over a Million Tons Ahead of Last Year.

Cleveland, June 16.—The Iron Trade Review says: The ore market is still devoid of interest, apart from that which attaches to the statistics of the movement from upper lake ports. Official figures docks show that up to June 1 there had been shipped 3,265,888 tons, against 2,225,061 tons to the corresponding date in 1899—a gain of 1,140,827 tons, or 35 per cent. Though the season opened earlier this year than last, it is estimated that fully 3,000,000 tons was brought down last month, which is up to the best month's total of last year, a remarkable record when it is considered that frozen ore in the stockpiles delayed vessels at Lake Superior ports early last month. Such a rate of shipments, with a portion of the ore fleet scarcely more than half employed for several weeks, is an impressive comment on the capacity of the vessels now available for ore, and gives no great support to expectations of higher wild rates in the middle of the season. The blowing out of a number of valley furnaces will mean a considerable curtailment of ore consumption in the summer months, and that the feeling as to the results of this on the Mesaba range there is evidence year's business is not so buoyant.

TELL ABOUT IT.

A Duluth Citizen is Pleased to do it for the Benefit of Others.

When you know a good thing tell it
It will not lessen its goodness.
But will do good to others.
There's more misery just like it.
There are lots of lame backs in Duluth.
It's a busy place and backs are used.
There's urinary trouble to a large extent.
Colds affects the kidneys.
The kidneys are the cause, not the colds.
Keep them in shape and life is life.
Doan's Kidney Pills do perfect work.
Are for kidneys only.
Duluth people testify to their merit.
Here's a case of it:

Mr. Henry D. Hibke, of 508 Third street west, employed by the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, says: "I had heavy aching pains in the small of my back, making it difficult for me to stoop or lift anything. I could not rest comfortably at night, and in the morning rose tired and unrested. The kidney secretions were highly colored, distressing and irregular, depositing a dark sediment. I was also troubled with attacks of headache. I attribute the trouble to the jarring of the wagon and to exposure. I was feeling very bad when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills very highly recommended, procured them at the Duluth Drug company, and commenced using them. They helped me from the very start, and since finishing the treatment I have not had the slightest trace of my old trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

MISS TERRY IS SAFE.

The Methodist Missionaries at Tsun All Escaped.

New York, June 16.—In response to the cable from China a few days ago, from Dr. A. B. Leonard, of the Methodist Episcopal Missionary society, asking for the safety of the missionaries, the following was received yesterday from Tien Tsin:

"Tsun Hua safely arrived here. Shan Tun is ordered to Ching Kiang. Pekin very dangerous state. Chinese army is quite uncertain."

The first sentence of the above disposes of the rumor circulated a day or two ago that Miss Terry had been murdered. She was at Tsun Hua and all the Methodist missionaries there have, it appears, arrived safely in Pekin. Ching Kiang is on the Yang Tse river, about 200 miles above Shanghai. The Shan Tung missionaries will go there if they can.

NEW YORK IDYL.

Reverse of the story of King Cophetua and the beggar maid you will have the romance of the New York society queen, Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Ronalds and Franklin Dilger, the grocer's lad, says the New York Journal.

The heroine of the latter day love story lies dead in her Fifth avenue home, while her still youthful husband mourns inconsolably. Mrs. Reglid, as she called herself, was 76 years old, and her widower is today about 30. He will, it is said, inherit her entire fortune.

Twenty years ago Frank Dilger helped around in the grocery store of his father, John Dilger, at No. 334 Hear ystreet, but found time to spout Shakespeare in dark corners of the cellar. He took good care, however, to conceal his histronic ambitions. But when by the death of his grandmother, he inherited a fortune which insured him an income of $1500 a year he dropped groceries and started in to rival Booth.

He didn't quite succeed in that, but he did find an opening which brought him an opportunity to appear with such approved artists as Effie Elser, Stuart Robson, Rosina Vokes. On his accession to the stage, however, he changed his surname by spelling it backward, thus, Reglid, and his Christian name was made a thing of romantic beauty by being tortured into "Francklyn."

Francklyn Reglid and Frank Dilger would never have spoken could they have met after a few years of dramatic experience. Reginald had become a bird of paradise. He was a matinee idol. Fair aristocrats sighed for him and wrote him tender notes. All this admiration only caused him to grow more gorgeous, even as the radiant peacock exhibits new glories the more he is admired. But it was Reglid's ambition so it was said, to be loved by a veritable grand dame, and when the elegant Mrs. Ronalds drifted into his ken he was fascinated despite the disparity in their years. The courtship was brief but ardent, and one of the consequences of it was that Peter Lorillard Ronalds, Mrs. Ronalds' husband, returned to this country from his magnificent home at Monte Carlo and began a suit for divorce. He, however, had not lived with his wife since 1867. He was the cousin of Pierre Lorillard II. and also related to Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, the Conklings and other well-known New York families.

Then, on Aug. 16, 1894, society was startled by the announcement of the marriage of Adele A. Ronalds to Charles Francklyn Reglid. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Davis at Avenel, New Rochelle, N. Y. The bride was 70 and the bridegroom not yet 30, but the match was a love match pure and simple. From that day the married life of the pair was as perfect as existence can be where wealth and perfect taste help to smooth over the rough places and true affection deadens all.

The day they were married Reglid's wife turned over to him $750,000 as a wedding gift. The only condition she made was that this money should not be used for speculation in Wall street. Reglid always religiously respected his wife's wishes.

But a few months ago a malady from which Mrs. Reglid had long been suffering assumed a serious form. She grew rapidly worse, and died on Saturday morning at her home, No. 45 Fifth avenue. The onetime grocer boy is now a millionaire, for all his wife's fortune will go to him. At the time of her second marriage Mrs. Reglid had a town house at No. 64 West Fifty-fifth street, a country house at New Rochelle and sixty acres of land on the outskirts of the village.

WONDERFUL VITALITY.

Although Chief Engineer Farnsworth of the East Chester Electric Light company received a shock of 1040 volts of electricity this afternoon he is still alive, says a Mount Vernon, N. Y., special to the New York Times. Ordinarily 750 volts are enough to kill any man. How Farnsworth came to escape death has puzzled both the electricians of the company and the physician who is attending him. All of them express the belief that he has a wonderful constitution and a remarkably strong heart.

The accident happened while Farnsworth was changing the plugs on the switchboard this afternoon. He pulled out the wrong plug, and the entire 1040 volts flashed through his body. With his hand burned almost to a crisp he continued to clutch the plug, and was unable to let go. Two electricians employed by the company chanced to come into the room, and found him writhing on the floor, but still holding desperately to the fatal plug. The smell of burning flesh filled the room. One of them rushed to the switchboard and cut the current off.

The injured man was picked up unconscious. He was bleeding from the nose and ears. A physician was called in who succeeded in restoring Farnsworth to consciousness, after which he was removed to his home in a carriage. His chief injuries are the burns on his hands and face, where they came in contact with the plug. His physician says that he will recover within a few days.

Talk of the Politicians

The Sargent-Halden-Whipple Combination Is Giving the Other Candidates For County Offices Much Anxiety.

PRIMARIES NEXT TUESDAY

The combination which was formed by Sheriff Sargent, Auditor Halden and Treasurer Whipple last week, and which really became only generally known on Saturday, was the astonishment of all politicians, and it took them several days to grasp the idea. At first they would not believe it and ridiculed the proposition that a three-cornered deal of that kind could be made and carried through to success. How could the ranges be taken care of? they asked. It was the general supposition that the ranges would demand either the office of auditor or treasurer, and in that event the combination would have been liable to a rending asunder. But the week wore on and then came the announcement that the ranges would ask for the offices of judge of probate and superintendent of schools, and for no others. Then there was some hard thinking in the minds of the candidates outside of the ring. Alarm soon took possession of them, and the puzzling question among them now is, "Can the combine be busted?" Candidates for offices other than the three are at sea too. They do not know whether the combine will attempt to make deals for the other places, and are afraid that if it becomes necessary to further their own interests they will do it. The three men say, however, that they are in the fight simply for themselves, and that all they want is to get their own renominations and will let the others strictly alone. These assurances have been insufficient to allay suspicion, however.

* * *

The candidacy of W. G. Bonham for the office of judge of probate was announced definitely this week. That he will have the support of the two ranges is practically certain, although there are some who think that Judge Middlecoff may cut in on him there somewhat. E. O. Loveland, of Soudan, was also announced as a candidate for superintendent of schools, and he likewise is apt to have the united support of the ranges.

Now, if the ranges unite on these two men, there is little doubt that they will seek to form combinations that will win out for them. The strongest combination is the one that they will take, and the most natural conclusion is that they will ally themselves with the Sargent-Halden-Whipple combine. If they do, and both sides are able to deliver the goods, it will be almost impossible to beat the double combine. But there is that old saying about the slip betwixt the cup and the lip.

* * *

J. E. Cooley is confident of winning, in spite of the combination. A. P. Cook is in the tightest position of any of them, for the reason that the dominating fight is over the office of sheriff, and the organization of the convention will be drawn on the lines of Sargent and Cook. That nomination will be the first one to be made, according to the call, and all the combine's delegates will be lined up for Mr. Sargent. But after the nomination is made they may not be held in line. Of course, this is something that Mr. Halden and Mr. Whipple have to take their chances on. The selection of delegates will undoubtedly be made with a view to getting men that will be for all three.

* * *

Superintendent B. N. Wheeler of the county schools is one man who seems to be in an unfortunate position. Nobody seems to think he will be able to win against the Tower man, and he may fall largely through the same thing that creates panics, a lack of confidence. A singular thing in Mr. Wheeler's case is that two years ago he was selected as a range candidate. He was then in the Virginia schools, and the ranges brought him out as a candidate from that part of the county and secured the place on that representation. Now they no longer claim ownership of Mr. Wheeler and have taken up a new man.

* * *

Up to the present time August Lofgren seems to be the only man from West Duluth who is after any office. This fact may aid him in his canvass. He wants to try it again against R. S. Munger and is an announced candidate for the nomination for register of deeds. R. C. McKinlay, Charles Peterson and Gust Bergquist are also candidates for the same office.

* * *

Charles P. Frank has come forward as a candidate for county surveyor.

* * *

As announced last week, Ed Patterson is a candidate for county commissioner against John Williams. Charles Kauppi is looking for a renomination, but Otto Giffert is disputing matters with him and desires the honor for himself. J. S. Forward seems to be the only candidate in the other district.

* * *

The primaries will be held next Tuesday evening and the convention Thursday, and between now and then there will be some of the hardest political hustling that the county has ever seen.

* * *

The Democrats who have been watching a good deal of Republican fun got together this week, and there was a little excitement there. For some little time it has been suggested that the Democrats of this county might endorse T. T. Hudson for selection as a delegate-at-large to the Kansas City convention. Mr. Hudson, like every man who has been engaged in active political work for years, has some enemies, and they objected to his preferment. They quietly organized and carried the convention, and were ready to instruct the delegation to vote for Senator C. O. Baldwin for delegate-at-large, but decided not to. A plan of selecting state delegates was proposed which looked to them like a scheme on the part of the Hudson men to control the delegation for him. It was voted down very strongly.

This action has made it appear that there is a contest between Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Hudson for the honor of going to Kansas City. As a matter of fact, neither of them have coveted the honor or knew that there was to be any feeling over the matter in the convention.

Mr. Hudson states that he is not nor has been at any time a candidate for the honor of going to Kansas City, and would rather stay at home than go. There is only one appeal that would persuade him to go, and that would be on the score that he might be of assistance to Mr. Towne or the party there. His personal inclination is entirely against going.

Mr. Baldwin also has no particular desire to go there, and has done nothing to make possible his going there.

GINSENG.

Probably no herb has ever fetched a higher price than ginseng, which has a fabulous reputation in China and Japan, and, indeed throughout the East, as an almost universal remedy. It is especially valued as a restorative in exhaustion, whether mental or physical, but, strange to say, European doctors cannot discover any good grounds for the widespread belief in its efficacy. For use the root is dried, and is of a pleasant aromatic flavor. The favorite variety comes from Korea, and has been sold in China for twenty times its weight in silver. It is also grown in Chinese Tartary, and as much as 500,000 pounds of varieties which bring lower prices is taken annually into China from North America.

EDGAR ALLEN POE'S GRAVE

Reminiscences of the Poet and Novelist By the Old Sexton of Westminster Graveyard at Washington.

Washington June 19.—(Special to The Herald).—Just a few months more than a half century has been numbered with the things of the past since Edgar Allen Poe, the poet and novelist, was laid to rest in peaceful old Westminster graveyard, perhaps the oldest burying ground in Baltimore; but as time rolls on the poems and tales of this great American author grow nearer and dearer to the entire civilized world. His works are more widely known and read, perhaps, than those of any other American author they have been translated into the language of every people that possess a modern literature, and the editions of his work are innumerable.

Much has been written concerning Poe. He has been eulogized and admired, scandalized and defamed. The generous writer has admired his talents and has let his faults go unchallenged; but the just critic, while giving unstinted praise to his genius, must of necessity, say a word—if only in pity—concerning the unfortunate habit which hastened his untimely end. The really mean things said about him are due to contemporaries whom he overshadowed. He was a severe critic of writers, but it cannot be said with truth that Poe was unjust. Time has consigned to obscurity the poetasters and writers against whom this brilliant mind warned his readers, thus ratifying his judgment. But the history of Poe is too well known to need a recapitulation in this article, and it is of quiet old Westminster graveyard, its aged sexton, the burial of Poe, and the monument erected by the public school children, the writer wishes to bring out.

Westminster graveyard was laid out more than a century and a half ago and is the property of the First Presbyterian church. It is located at the corner of Greene and Fayette streets, and occupies nearly half a square, being inclosed with a stone and iron fence, and until a few months ago was guarded day and night by George W. Spence, for many years sexton, and whose father was sexton before him. Mr. Spence was a peculiar and eccentric man, and although courteous and kindly at all times there were those who had a fear of coming in contact with him on account of his constant association with the dead and the graveyard, his home being within an archway under the rear of the church, in which were a number of graves. Just why this old man, above the average in intelligence and with well-to-do relatives right in Baltimore, preferred to live among the tombs of the dead, with a large brindle dog as his only companion, rather than a comfortable home is difficult to understand. Possibly the correct solution is the fact that Mr. Spence was one of Poe's greatest admirers, and when the unhappy and unfortunate poet was laid to rest, the grave was made near the archway which afterwards was occupied by Mr. Spence as his home. The old gentleman never grew tired of talking of Poe, and there are residents of Baltimore who claim that it was not until after Mr. Poe died that the sexton took up his place of abode under the church. Mr. Spence died a few months ago, but his faithful companion "Sailor," the dog, is now owned by a gentleman living several miles from the graveyard, and it is said whenever the dog can escape from his home he immediately goes to the graveyard and walking around the high fence whines most piteously. "Sailor" will allow no one to touch him while at the graveyard, and when he finds that he can not get in he returns to his home. Another peculiar fact is that it is almost impossible to keep cats out of the graveyard, and stranger still is the fact that on Poe's monument and around it can nearly always be seen one or two cats. This spot seems to be their favorite place, and while the writer was in the graveyard a few days ago, a large tortoise shell cat was snugly sleeping on the very spot where it is said the remains of Poe's wife were placed many years after she died at Fordham, N. Y. When the fact is recalled that Mrs. Poe died in the early autumn, her life passing away as she lay on a bed of straw wrapped in one of her husband's coats and in her bosom, to keep her warm, nestled a tortoise shell cat, it is enough to cause the superstitious to hasten away from the ancient burying place.

According to Mr. Spence, in an interview a sort time before his death, Mr. Poe was a frequent visitor to Westminster graveyard. "Mr. Poe would wander in and out among the old tombstones and vaults," said Mr. Spence, "and he was always quiet and gloomy. He appeared in deep thought. Especially did he like to look at the graves of the Poes, but he would examine the inscriptions on all the stones and monuments. It was only occasionally that he would ask a question about some person or date. I always liked the great man, for he was a great man, and I was pained when I heard of his death. I knew nothing of his death until notified to prepare the grave for the ninth of October, 1848—I will never forget the day. It was dark and gloomy; not raining but damp and raw and threatening. I got everything in readiness, and you would have been surprised to have seen the funeral procession—there was just the hearse and one hack followed behind. There wasn't a single flower, not one sir. In the hack was the minister, Rev. W. T. D. T. Clemm, Judge Nelson Poe, Mr. Henry Herring and Hon. Z. Collins Lee, that was all—only four—except the grave digger and myself. The service was soon over, and the gentlemen went away. I declare most sacredly that I took as much pains with that burial as I ever did with any, yet somebody started the story in the papers that Mr. Poe had been buried like a dog, and that trouble was not even taken to have the coffin placed in an outside box, all of which was untrue, for no one has ever been put away in this place in that manner. There was nothing to mark the grave of Mr. Poe, and one day I picked up a piece of sandstone with the number "80" on it that had been broken off one of the stones marking the number and division of lots. I put this at the head of Mr. Poe's grave, and this was the monument to the great poet and author for nearly thirty years. When his mother-in-law, Mrs. Clemm, died she was buried by the side of Mr. Poe, she having made that request of me during her last visit to his grave, which she often came to visit, and she never left without a bit of grass or weed plucked from it. Mrs. Clemm was devoted to Mr. Poe, and I've heard her say 'my poor dear Eddie' as the tears rolled down her cheeks. Yes, yes, I loved Mr. Poe, and I was as happy as could be when that monument was erected there in 1875, but that is not as grand a one as he deserved. It was I who took up his bones and those of Mrs. Clemm and placed them in new boxes and reinterred them where the monument now stands; and, oh, 'what a crowd there was here that day, when the monument was unveiled. There were sermons and speeches and songs, and flowers, and all sorts of doings, but all this was to late to do Mr. Poe any good. My friend, he needed these good things while he lived, but now-a-days people don't seem to care much about the living or dead."

With this the old sexton walked into his home in the archway among the graves, and it was not long after this that his eyes were closed in death and another came to take his place in careing for the graves of old Westminster, where sleep such men as John Stricker, the distinguished Marylander and soldier of the Revolution; Paul Bentanon, another Revolutionary hero, in whose arms Count Pulaski died at the battle of Savanah; Gen. Samuel Smith, a soldier of the Revolution, secretary of the navy, mayor of Baltimore and for thirty years a member of congress; James McHenry, one of the framers of the constitution, secretary to Gen. Washington, during the Revolution, and Secretary of war in his cabinet; William Patterson, father of beautiful Betsy Patterson, belle of Baltimore, and afterward wife of Jerome Bonaparte; Phillip Barton Key, who met death from a pistol shot at the hands of Gen. Dan Sickles; the father and grandfather of the poet, (Joan David Poe), John Calhoun, first mayor of Baltimore, and others of equal note.

The World Of Labor

Duluth Was Quite Prominent at the Red Wing Meeting of the State Federation.

It has been a rather dull week in labor circles, and except for the Red Wing convention of the state federation, in which the Duluth delegation played such an important part, there would be almost nothing to record for the week.

The re-election of M. E. Neary of Minneapolis to the presidency of the state organization gives nearly as much satisfaction in this city as does splendid endorsement given W. E. McEwen by his unanimous re-election to the office of secretary and treasurer. Duluth fared well in the matter of committee appointments, there being at least one local man on every special or standing committee named by the convention.

Secretary McEwen in his annual report said that since the convention in this city a year ago, the receipts of the state organization were $819 of which $457 still remained in the treasury.

For the coming year the members of the state federation will watch with interest the action of the Colorado state federation in placing a political ticket in the field. This does not mean that Minnesota will, necessarily, follow the lead of the western state, but there is a strong inclination on the part of many prominent labor leaders of the state to urge similar action in case the Colorado movement proves successful.

In some quarters the state federation has been accused of catering to socialism, in the resolutions adopted, favoring the collective ownership of all means of production and distribution. However there is a madifying clause in this resolution which provides that such ownership is only favored when the industries become so centralized as to form a trust, and then the government should take hold and operate for the benefit of all the people.

* * *

The outlook for labor, organized and unorganized, is not as bright as it was a few weeks ago. Lack of rain is closing the saw mills, and very few men are needed for railroad work in Minnesota. If the crops are a failure in the Northwest this fall, the outlook for the laboring man will be rather dubious this winter. The fact that saw mills are retarded in their operation will undoubtedly mean a smaller timber cut next winter and consequently a smaller force of men will be needed for the work. At present there is absolutely no demand for farm hands.

LABOR NOTES.

Scotland has 110,000 unionists.

Pittsburg fire bosses demand $2.70 a day.

No strike in North Carolina in a year.

Indiana has one non-union glass factory.

Louisville has 1100 union tobacco workers.

Washington, Ind., section men get $1.20 a day.

Indianapolis barbers will prosecute Sunday shavers.

New York electrical workers want $4 for eight hours.

Seven hundred New York clerks recently joined the K. of L.

South Bend, Ind., plumbers earn $3 for nine hours; juniors, $1.75.

The Garment Workers' International union has 30,000 members.

Indiana hoisting engineers get $75 (first) and $65 (second) per month.

New York city is said to be deluged with men in search of employment.

Some New York machinists were conceded the 9-hour day last week.

London bartenders, who work 102 hours per week, will demand the 12-hour day.

A St. Paul union carpenter was fined $10 for working for a non-union boss.

Georgia unionists elected a journalist, a printer and a machinist to the legislature.

Chicago municipal employment agencies secured work for 15,136 people in twenty weeks.

Louisville plasterers' wages have been increased 60 cents per day; painters' 25 cents.

Portland, Me., granite cutters were conceded the 8-hour day and 35 cents per hour.

Kansas City bakers pay journeymen $13 a week; foremen, $18; sixty hours constitute a week.

Indianapolis union printers get $16.50 per week and work nine hours per day; non-union ten hours, $10 to $12 per week.

It is predicted that all of the brickmakers employed along the Hudson river will soon be associated in one huge labor organization.

New York International Machinists on July 1 will raise the reinstatement fee for ex-members to $25.

At Brazil, Ind., a strike of clay workers was caused by the company refusing to take back all the old employes when the plant resumed operations after a month's idleness.

Chicago building trades' wages range from $4 a day, the pay of bricklayers, steamfitters, gasfitters, plumbers and other tradesmen, down to $2.50 a day, the sum that is received by plain building laborers.

Some journeymen bakers in Dentford, England, threatened to strike because their employers made it a custom to hold prayers on Sunday night before preparing the dough for Monday's bread, and refuse to pay for the time thus spent.

The French official publication entitled the Bulletin de l'Office du Travail reports that in the 660 trade unions of wage workers making returns to the department of labor, with an aggregate membership of 109,150, 7 per cent were reported as unemployed on March 15.

The Cigarmakers' union of McSherrystown, Pa., now has a membership of enarly 800, having initiated 107 members at its last meeting. One manufacturer who opposed the union bitterly for five years has given up the fight and unionzeid his factory from top to bottom.

Action is being taken by the Amalgamated Society of Painters and Decorators of New York and the Amalgamated Society of Painters and Decorators of Brooklyn borough to settle the long fight which has been the cause of so much trouble in the building trades of Brooklyn.

STAMPEDE FOR TEDDY

New York's Governor Overshadows All Other Booms For Vice Presidency.

LEADERS ARE AT SEA

President's Friends Uncertain Whether to Join In Stemming the Tide.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Unless the concensus of opinion of the most experienced political observers in the country is awry, the selection of a candidate for vice-president virtually will have been made before today closes.

The key to the situation is held by Governor Roosevelt, of New York. He alone can unlock it, and it seems certain at this writing that McKinley and Roosevelt will be the slogan with which the Republicans will appeal to the country in the approaching campaign.

And yet Governor Roosevelt will have to decide, and thus far he has not said the decisive word. His position is unique in American politics. He does not desire, personally, the nomination for vice-president. The acknowledged leaders of the administration forces in the convention, down deep in their hearts do not want him to take it. Their opposition is not personal to Roosevelt. Largely, it is because some of the administration leaders have other preferences. That is true of Mr. Hanna. His personal choice is former Secretary Bliss, of New York. He made his choice without detracting in the least from the distinctive qualifications of other aspirants for vice-presidential honors—notably Long, Dolliver and others.

Confronted by such a situation, Governor Roosevelt's position better may be imagined than described.

Several weeks ago, he said to the president that he would not, in any conceivable circumstances, be a candidate for vice-president. He believed he might serve better the interests of the Republican party by standing again for the governorship of New York. He believes that now.

His position is unchanged, he says, yet, in face of that fact, in face of the desire of a few, at least, of the well known administration leaders to nominate somebody else, the nomination seems to be forcing itself, by a curious combination of circumstances, upon the New York governor, whether he wants it or not, and whether the leaders want him to have it or not.

The running of the tide towards Rosevelt can be stemmed only by one man—the president. The drift of sentiment always has been towards a New York man, because of the prevalent belief that a strong New York man was needed on the ticket. This fact accounts for the rise of the Roosevelt stock yesterday.

In a wonderful degree McKinley is the dominant force of this assemblage of Republicans. No considerable fraction of the delegates to the convention desires to do that which the president does not want done. But the president is saying nothing.

The formidable proportions assumed by the Roosevelt boom—if so it may be termed—was the subject of earnest consideration by the prominent Republican leaders who attended the dinner at the residence of Clement A. Griscom, just outside of Philadelphia last night. That dinner may become historic. Only friends of the administration were present—only leaders of the administration forces. The platform was discussed, and so was Mr. Roosevelt.

From one who attended the dinner it is learned that there is a question among the friends of the president, who believe they have the entire convention situation well in hand, whether they will join Governor Roosevelt in an attempt to stem the stampede which started towards New York's Rough Rider executive yesterday.

There is an apparent misunderstanding between Roosevelt and leaders of the convention. A strong disposition was manifested in some quarters to suspect that he has been flirting with fate all along, and that he has not been "honest Injun" in his statements that he does not desire the nomination. This belief, it was contended, did Governor Roosevelt injustice, and it was said that when he and those who were inclined to oppose him got together, the seeming differences soon would be solved.

The chief difficulty encountered by those who would nominate some other man than Roosevelt is to find a satisfactory candidate upon whom all can agree and who will appeal to the delegates as a candidate who will add material strength to the ticket abd be of presidential caliber in the unfortunate contingency that he should be called to the chair of the chief executive. It is pointed out that Roosevelt is a vote-getter. Indeed, one of the strong arguments made to him by his admirers was that the campaign as a candidate for the vice presidency would afford him brilliant opportunity to display to the best advantage in the interests of his party the talents he possesses in so notable a degree as a political orator.

It is quite certain that long range politics is being played in the game now pending in this staid Quaker City. It is indicated that Governor Roosevelt has aspirations to be the party's candidate for president in 1904. Those who are pressing his candidacy for the vice presidency now have told him that in the event of his making a great campaign on the stump this year the credit for victory, if victory should come to the Republicans, largely would be his, and thus he would be in strong position to appeal to the party for the presidential nomination.

Even if Mr. Bliss finally should consent to become a candidate—and a strong intimation is given that, in certain circumstances, he could be induced to stand—it is questionable whether to nominate him over the heads of the leaders of the New York Republicans would be desirable.

One of the most distinguished participants in the conference that dined at Mr. Griscom's last night, when asked today whether an effort would be made to stem the stampede toward Roosevelt, begun Saturday, replied: "With whom would you stem it? You cannot defeat something with nothing. Governor Roosevelt's candidacy is something tangible. It no longer can be reckoned with as an ephemeral thing."

In a nutshell that is the situation as it is regarded by the best political minds in attendance upon the convention.

It is intimated, but the intimation lacks even the tacit confirmation of Governor Roosevelt himself, that he will rise to a question of personal privilege in the convention and either withdraw his name unconditionally, or state his reasons for not desiring the nomination. That he will decline the nomination if once it should be made, nobody believes. In fact, he said that no man in such circumstances could refuse to obey the party's mandate and live in the hope of a political future.

The intimation, it may be said, originated with friends of Representative Dolliver, the magnetic orator of Iowa, who has made so strong a bid for the vice presidential nomination.

In connection with the Sunday stampede for Roosevelt, some signed statements are published today which indicate that it has developed considerable feeling.

Gen. Grosvenor, the distinguished Ohioan, who generally is regarded as the mouthpiece of the administration on the floor of the house and as the father of the Dolliver boom, among other things says:

"There are rumors to the effect that because the administration is not anxious for the nomination of Governor Roosevelt, certain persons, feeling some grievance against the administration, are organizing, or attempting to organize to force Roosevelt on the ticket. That this can be done successfully without the consent and connivance of Roosevelt, no man knows. That Roosevelt, in this way, is playing the part which involves duplicity nobody is heard to assert. That there is a deep purpose to drive Roosevelt from the convention for governor in New York everybody knows.

"It may be that those of us who live until Thursday will witness one of the liveliest fights in many years. It will not be conceded that men like Long, Dolliver, Scott and some others can be brushed aside by the mere will of a dictator, and a great convention stampeded to aid in fighting out the political prejudices or ambitions of any set of men. Should the name of Roosevelt be announced in the convention a single word from him from the platform denouncing the movement would put an irrecovable end to the whole performance."

Senator Thurston, one of the delegates-at-large from Nebraska, always a cordial supporter of the administration, makes these pungent comments in his statements:

"Certainly Roosevelt will not consent to a presentation of his name—about that there can be no question. He has too much of what is generally called horse sense to put himself in the vice presidential campaign. And it would be a campaign for a man of Roosevelt's temperament and boundless ambition. I don't believe he will consent to have his name presented, and if it is presented without his consent it will meet the opposition of many who now say that the manner of its present projection is not intended as an offering of love to the president and his closest friends."

Representative Dolliver's friends insist that he will not be stampeded from the race. They declare he will remain until the finish. Despite these statements, however, the feeling at this time is that Roosevelt, unless political signs should fail to an unusual degree, will be McKinley's running mate.

Toward 11 o'clock, Governor Roosevelt began active work to stem the tide of sentiment in favor of his nomination. He had conferences with Henry C. Payne, Senator Lodge, Senator Hanna, National Committeeman Gilbs, of New York, and Benjamin B. Odell, in addition to other leaders.

Senator Hanna, it is stated, advised that the proper course for him to pursue, was to issue a statement positively declining the nomination. "It will be entirely consistent with your previous statements," the senator is said to have urged, "and will convince people that you have lost none of your determination when you set out to accomplish a result."

"But I have never asserted," answered Governor Roosevelt, "that I would decline if nominated. I do not want the office, but I am not sure that I can refuse if the convention fails to listen to my protest."

"Then you had better take a razor and cut your throat," suggested Senator Lodge. "To decline the nomination would be equally as fatal."

Congressman Littauer, another of the governor's personal friends, in New York said: "The thing has gone too far to stop it with appeals to delegates. It cannot be stopped in that way. The only way is for the governor to say that he will not accept under any circumstances. He would then carry out the general belief that he is a man of his word and of determination."

Several other friends of the governor urged him to politely decline, and after adding that he was about equally advised on both sides of the controversy by his close personal friends, he announced that he would come to a decision by 4 o'clock this afternoon.

At 12 noon, he was absolutely undecided in the matter but it was determined that the result lay personally with him and that it was useless to try and work a change of sentiment from the delegations.

A delegation from Kansas, headed by Mr. Burton, called and the governor chatted with them. Referring to Mr. Burton just as they were leaving, he said: "My dear fellow, I want to do what is right by the party, but I honestly believe that my path of duty lies in New York state."

"Well," said Mr. Burton, "if we don't get you for you, we'll vote for Woodruff."

A delegation of Iowa men also had a long interview with Roosevelt. At the conclusion of the interview, the situation was summed up as follows by Lafe Young, who headed the delegation: "He did not say he would and he did not say he wouldn't, and as we came out of his room, Mark Hanna was waiting to see him to urge him to refuse the nomination and Henry Cabot Lodge was waiting to urge him to take it. That is the situation as we left it."

The delegation was composed of George E. Roberts, director of the mint; Mr. D. O'Connell, solicitor of the treasury, and Lafe Young. Professor Albert G. Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, accompanied the party. Professor Shaw is a warm friend of Governor Roosevelt, and is strong in his denunciation of the attempt to force the nomination upon the governor. The interview opened by a statement by Mr. Young to Governor Roosevelt to the effect that the Dolliver men desired, if possible, to gain some definite idea as to what he desired or intended to do.

"It is easier to say what I desire to do," replied the governor with a laugh. "I desire to be governor of New York again and I do not desire to be nominated for vice president of the United States.

"Can you give us an idea of what you intend to do," asked Mr. Roberts.

"Well," replied the governor," these fellows have placed me in an awful position. I want to be governor of New York for another term, at least, and I do not care to be nominated for vice president, but they are forcing the matter on me on all sides, and it is going to be very difficult to decide it. If I refuse it, people will say that Roosevelt has the big head and thinks he is too much of a man to be vice president. I don't care to be placed in such a position, for it is not true that I hold any such opinion of myself."

"Then, why, governor," said Mr. O'Connell, "don't you take the stand taken by Senator Allison when they tried to get him to take the place. He simply said 'I don't want it gentlemen—I will not take it—good day.' If you accept the nomination, you are simply playing into their hands, making yourself a party to their schemes."

"Oh, come now, Young, you are too hard," replied the governor with a laugh.

"I am not hard at all," replied Mr. Young. "I am simply stating the situation as I know it exists; as you and everybody else know it exists. These men cannot hurt you. If you decline to take the nomination. No man can hurt Roosevelt save Roosevelt himself."

"Well, gentlemen," said the governor. "I have said all that I can say at the present time. Mr. Hanna and a number of other gentlemen are waiting to see me and I will be glad to see you all at any time."

"Then you cannot give us any positive assurance at this time as to what you will do?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"I have said all that I can say at the present time," was the reply, and the committee left without securing much more definite assurance than they possessed when they entered the governor's room.

At 12 o'clock, Senator Hanna came out of Roosevelt's room. He said there was little to say as a result of the conference.

"The governor just stands where he has always been. He does not want the nomination. It is a question whether or not the convention will be stampeded for him."

"Will you try and prevent the stampede?" he was asked.

"I cannot say. That must be determined later. I am looking out for the interests of the Republican part andv we will try and do what is best for the vice presidency."

When the senator descended to his room he was met by Mr. Bliss, Mr. Grosvenor and other men close to the administration and they immediately went into a private conference in Hanna's room.

DELEGATIONS AND CLUBS.

Are Busy Perfecting Their Organization---Several Contests.

Philadelphia, June 18.—The Maine delegation arrived at the Walton today and opened headquarters near Senator Hanna's rooms. The delegation is for Long, but if Roosevelt consents to allow his name to go before the convention, the Maine men probably will split their vote between the New York governor and Cornelius N. Bliss. This was the sentiment of the delegation this morning.

The Kansas delegation arrived this morning and reported that the sentiment for vice president was nearly unanimous for Roosevelt, Dolliver being second choice.

The West Virginia delegation arrived, some of them very late last night and the balance of them today. In discussing the question of vice president, Morris Herkheimer, the probable chairman of the delegation, said:

"We are for Roosevelt if he can be persuaded to take the nomination. If he cannot be induced to run, we will go for Dolliver, the greater part of us. We consider him the best man for the position outside of Roosevelt. This is not definite, however, and if Roosevelt will consent to take the place there will be no other choice with us."

Virginia's contingent also came in and, like nearly all other delegations declared itself for Roosevelt if he could be induced to make the race. After Roosevelt, they were inclined to favor Dolliver, but said that they would not prefer him to any man whom the New York delegation might agree upon.

Park Agnew, delegate-at-large from the state, said:

"We do not think there will be any necessity of considering any second person if Roosevelt will consent to run. We think he is the best man possible, if he will accept. After Roosevelt we like Bliss very well, but Dolliver is a good man, and we think very well of his chances. The one trouble to our mind regarding Dolliver is tht he is not from a state where he can add much strength to the ticket."

Senator Mason was among today's early arrivals. He lost no time in taking a positive position against Governor Roosevelt.

"I am for one of the candidates for vice president," he said, "it matters not which—for one of the men who want the office and are willing to say they want it. I do not want anyone's political feeling violated in the operation of selecting a candidate. I do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt can in honor accept the nomination if tendered to him." Asked if he would make a speech in the convention, the senator replied:

"No; I have no apologies to make."

Among the most active people about the Walton corridors today was Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, president of the Woman's league. She is a staunch supporter of Mr. Dolliver and adheres to her confidence in his nomination.

"Governor Roosevelt is an ideal candidate," she said, "but I believe that he can serve the country, the party and the state of New York better as governor of that state than as vice president; therefore I do not want him nominated, and I do want Mr. Dolliver to succeed, because he embodies more of the Roosevelt qualities than any other candidate."

The Massachusetts delegates were split up in small lots for the purpose of advocating Long for the vice presidency. From most of the states outside New England they could get no positive pledges for their candidate.

The New Hampshire delegation today perfected its organization. Senator Gallinger was elected chairman. The New Hampshire men passed a resolution to stand by Secretary Long for second place on the ticket until he is elected or withdraws.

The representatives from Oklahoma territory partly organized today. Harry C. Thompson was selected to head the delegation. A poll was taken and it was found that they will support Dolliver for vice president. If Roosevelt allows his name to be presented to the convention, then the territory's vote will go to ihm.

The Hamilton club, of Chicago, 100 strong, upon their arrival, paraded through the streets on the way to their hotel. The club, which displayed several gorgeous banners was neatly attired in black, with silk hats, each member carrying an umbrella. The club was headed by a band of seventy-five boys whict they brought from Chicago.

The Marquette club, of Chicago, 250 strong, reached here early today and went through to Atlantic City. They will return in time for the parade tonight. The Unconditional Republican club, of Albany, Col. Geo. Addington, marshal, is en route to this city by boat and will arrive at 6 o'clock.

Three Washington, D. C. clubs arrived at the same hour. They were the Blaine Invincible Republican club, 125 men; the W. Calvin Case Republican club, and N. M. Parker Republican club, 150 men, Winfield Scott Hancock, marshal.

PRESSMEN AND ASSISTANTS.

Milwaukee, June 18.—The twelfth annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America opened in the council chamber of the city hall today, and will continue sessions throughout the week. President James H. Bowman of Chicago delivered his annual report, in which he reviewed the year's record of the union.. The remainder of the day was taken up with routine business. Washington and New York are already in the field for the next convention.

HEARING POSTPONED.

New York, June 18.—The examination of C. F. W. Neely, which has been postponed a number of times, and was set for today before a United States commissioner, was again postponed to next Monday.

FORTS ARE OCCUPIED

The Taku North Forts Are Taken By the Combined Fleets.

RETIRE TO TIEN TSIN

Chefu Report Indicates the Retreat of the Pekin Relief Force.

London, June 18.—A dispatch from Chefu, under today's dato, says:

"The forces of the combined fleets occupied the Taku north forts yesterday, after exploding a magazine. The British gunboat Algerine was damaged and two of her officers and four men were wounded.

"Japan and Russia are reported to be landing a large force of troops.

"All is quiet here."

4:58 p. m.—The admiralty office has received the following dispatch from Chefu, under today's date:

"The Japanese man-of-war Teyashi (?) has just arrived from Taku. She reports that the commander-in-chief and troops are back at Tien Tsin."

TROOPS FOR CHINA.

American Soldiers Have Been Ordered From the Philippines.

New York, June 18.—American troops have been ordered from the Philippines to China, says a Washington special to the Herald. Whether the men will be landed or not, will depend upon the situation when they arrive.

The administration has decided that to insure protection of American life and property throughout China, order must be re-established in Pekin, and the empress dowager and the Tsung Li Yamen, impressed with the necessity of acting as the powers wish in the matter of guarding foreigners and their interests.

"Japan's course in disppatching 1000 men to Taku will be followed," said a well informed diplomat last night, "by Russia, which might deem it desirable to send a large force, especially since Great Britain and Japan combined, will have an overwhelming force in that section of China unless she draws on her forces at Port Arthur and along the Siberian frontier. The action of this government in sending troops to Taku, with the probability that they will be landed, will also have influence upon Russian's move, as there is always danger that as British and Japanese interests are nearly identical with those of this country, it may undertake a policy on similar lines, inimical to Russia's supposed interests."

If the foreign legations in Pekin have been burned, as reported, the success of the Boxers has probably been obtained at fearful cost. Reports to the state department show that on June 1, there was in Pekin about 400 sailors and marines. Great Britain, Russia and France had the largest number, 75 each, the United states 47, Japan 42, Italy 22 and Germany the remainder."

In diplomatic circles it is held that if the murder of Germany's only representative has been permitted, practically as the result of a movement approved by the government, China committed an act of war against the Berlin government. This is also true of the Japanese government, a member of whose official staff in Pekin was killed. It is hoped, however, that neither Germany nor Japan will take radical action, but will co-operate with the powers to restore order.

FORTS REPORTED TAKEN.

Taku Forts Reported Occupied By the International Troops.

London, June 18.—Shanghai is to the front again with the statement that the Taku forts have been occupied by the international troops. According to a Cheefoe special, seventeen forts opened fire upon the warships, whereupon the fleet replied in kind and silenced the Chinese guns and the international forces subsequently landed and seized the forts.

The news of this engagement is stated to have been brought to Cheefoo by a Japanese warship, but the date of the occurrence is not given. According to a dispatch, the Chinese bombardment followed an ultimatum sent by the commander of the fleet.

An official dispatch from the German consul at Cheefoo received in Berlin confirms the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat with the following message:

"The Jananese torpedo boat reports that the legations at Pekin have been taken."

Whether taken by the Boxers of the Chinese troops or the mob, is, apparently, not stated, nor is mentioned in the message of the Japanese torpedo boat of the capture of the Taku forts.

RUSSIA MAKES A CLAIM.

Comes Down on China For Fifty Million Taels.

London, June 18.—A dispatch from Shanghai says Rusia has demanded 50,000,000 taels indemnity for the damage done to the Chinese railroads in which Russians are interested.

THEY ARE PRISONERS.

French Residents at Yunnan Sena Prevented From Leaving.

Paris, June 18.—5:45 p. m.—The French consul general in South China, who was instructed to send into Tonquin all the French citizens at Yunnan-Sena, cables from the latter place, under date of Thursday, June 14, that he had been prevented from leaving with his companions by the viceroy, and that his house and all the missions had been burned. He adds that everything, including their clothes, has been stolen and that they are practically prisoners.

GUICHEN TO GO.

Paris, June 18.—The French first class cruiser Guichen, and the French armored cruiser Admiral Charner have been ordered to fit out immediately for China.

THE NINTH TO GO.

Manilla, June 18.—10 a. m.—The Ninth regiment has been ordered to Manilla whence it will proceed to China.

NINTH DELAYED.

Washington, June 18.—The war department has received the following cablegram from Gen. MacArthur, at Manilla, dated yesterday: "Ninth infantry, Col. Liscum ordered to Taku on Logan, transport Port Albert, probably start 24th; typhoon delays movement."

REGIMENT FOR SIMLA.

Simla, June 18.—In consequence of the gravity of the Chinese situation, the Seventh Bengal infantry has been ordered to proceed to Hong Kong.

POST ATTACKED

Boers Attack British Post at Zand River and Are Repulsed.

London, June 18.—A belated dispatch from Lord Roberts, sent from Pretoria under date of June 16, gives an official version of an attack on a British post at Zand river, June 16, by 800 Boers, with three guns. It says that Gen. Knox, with a mixed force, drove off the Boers, who left four dead and four prisoners on the field. The British loss was Maj. Seymour and two men killed and nine wounded.

A rumor at Cape Town says that Lord Roberts is about to seize the Delagoa Bay railroad as a strong strategic point, and the announcement of the completion of the new Cape cabinet constitute the only other news from South Africa today.

RUMORS IN MULTITUDE.

Reports About Delagoa Bay and Secret Expeditions.

New York, June 18.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: News from South Africa was meager at midnight. The opinion prevails at Cape Town that the Delagoa bay communications will be cut off speedily and the war be brought to a close. There have been many untrustworthy rumors about secret expeditions toward Komatipoort, but there has been no definite information that any movement of this kind is in progress through Swasiland. Lord Roberts' own plan of campaign seems to involve complete separation of the Free State and the Transvaal forces by the occupation of the railway between Johannesburg and Laing's Nek, which will probably be captured this week.

Press dispatches indicate that no advance has been made from Volksrust toward Ermelo and that there has been no change in the situation in the Free State. Gen. Rundle's division is skirmishing with the commandoes, but only nsignificant outpost affairs are reported, with some artillery dring near Picksburg.

The ministerial crisis at Cape Town is believed to be at an end and Sir John Gordon Sprigg is reported to have received assurances from Mr. Schreiner's group which will enable him to enter office.

CAPE COLONY CABINET.

Sir Gordon Sprigg Has Succeeded In Forming One.

Cape Town, June 18.—The new cabinet has been officially announced. Sir Gordon Sprigg is premier and treasurer; J. J. Graham is colonial secretary; Mr. Innis, attorney general; Smartt, department public works; Sir Peter Faure, agriculture, and Frost without portfolio.

KRUGER GOES TO ATKMAR.

He Locates His Headquarters at That Point.

London, June 18.—The Lourenzo Marques correspondent of the Times says: President Kruger has removed his headquarters to Atkmar, near Nelspruit. Trustworthy men who have been at Machadodorp within a few days say it is extremely problematical whether the Boers will carry out their previous intention to retire to the Lydenburg hills. These people are inclined to believe that the Boers will stick to the Main line of railway as long as possible and that unless they surrender they will fall back to the Dekaap valley, the most mountainous positions of the Transvaal. A strong objection to the Lydenburg district is the fact that the native tribes are very much unsettled.

DEAL CLOSED.

St. Paul & Duluth Transfer to the Northern Pacific Is Announced.

St. Paul, June 18.—Circulars announcing the absorption of the St. Paul & Duluth by the Northern Pacific railway have been issued by R. Somers Hay, president of the St. Paul & Duluth, and C. S. Mellen, president of the Northern Pacific. Under date of June 15, 1900, a formal deed of transfer was drawn up and executed. In the deed, the Minnesota law against consolidation of parallel and competing lines is quoted and the statement made that these roads do not come under that law.

The Northern Pacific paid 380 for its St. Paul & Duluth shares of stock, which was higher than the market price.

CASTAWAYS ARRIVE.

Philadelphia, June 18.—The British steamer Maryland, from London for this city, which arrived today, had on board Capt. Baxter, his daughter, and eight of the crew of the British schooner Nelly, who were picked up at sea on June 11. The Nelly was owned in St. Johns, N. F., and was bound from Barbadoes to that place. She was abandoned in a water-logged condition in latitude 42.12, longitude 4.14.

CHIEF SAMORY DEAD.

Paris, June 18.—A dispatch from the French Congo district announces that Chief Samory, who for a long time was the most redoubtable opponent of the French in West Africa and who was captured in 1898 by French expedition has just died at Libreville, where he was transported after his capture.

QUAKERS WAKED UP

Incoming Delegates, Marching Clubs and Bands Are Making Things Lively.

HANNA SPHINX-LIKE

Says He Has No Ideas on the Vice Presidential Situation.

Philadelphia, June 18.—After several days of indescribable dullness, today is electric with interest. The crowds, which have been conspicuously absent, are arriving on every incoming train, and marching clubs and bands are on all of the principal streets making things lively in true convention style. The perfunctory proceedings of the past few days have given way to aggressiveness and bustle, and tens of thousands of strangers will be in the city by nightfall.

The weather today is delightful, fair, cool and bracing. It is in sharp contrast to that of Saturday and Sunday, during which a cold rain fell almost constantly.

Delegation meetings for the purpose of selecting members of convention committees will be the order of the day. Interest, of course, will center in the action of the New York delegation, which will convene at 8 o'clock tonight. At that time, action will be taken by the delegation as to Governor Roosevelt, and it is not unlikely that he may make some statement at the meeting of his position and desires.

The distribution of tickets for the convention was begun by Sergeant-at-Arms Wiswell this morning. The city of Philadelphia was given 4000 of the cards, which will be given only to those persons who subscribed to the local convention fund. Each delegate received his own and two additional tickets, and every alternate was given one seat. The national committeemen were each presented with twenty-five of the much sought after pasteboards, while the remainder were distributed among distinguished men invited by the national committee.

Governor Roosevelt arose early this morning, but even while he was dressing he was talking to visitors, as he breakfasted about 8:30 and while eating grasped at every bit of gossip that was brought in, as eagerly as if he expected to get some relief from the pressure.

He was told that Congressman Grosvenor, Senator Fairbanks and some other prominent people were out working against his nomination, and he expressed satisfaction.

It may be said with a show of authority that Governor Roosevelt is now busy with the problem of deciding whether he will absolutely decline the nomination even if it is offered in the convention. He was of the opinion up to 9 o'clock this morning that he could not decline if it was thrust upon him, and he is only wavering because of the advice of personal friends that he cannot hurt himself any more by declining than he can by accepting.

Lieutenant Governor Woodruff, himself a candidate for vice president, took a new view of the situation. He said to the Associated Press:

"They cannot stop, in my opinion, the nomination of Roosevelt for vice president. In fact, it is good as made. I do not see, either, how Roosevelt can possibly, with benefit to himself, either stop short of the boom or decline the nomination if it is given him. In either event, it would be regarded as a tacit surrender to Hanna, and the country at large would assert that either he had been forced out of the nomination by Hanna and the administration or compelled to decline it by the same forces."

Governor Roosevelt was asked this morning whether the persistent rumors that New York would endorse him tonight had any foundation. He said rather sharply "None whatever. The delegation is pledged not to do so, and I am assured this morning that they will not attempt to endorse me."

"Perhaps they hope to get your consent to such an endorsement," was suggested.

"Never—Never," he said, in his emphatic way. "I will not consent, no matter what happens, I shall not allow my own state delegation to be for my nomination. You may rest assured that they will not endorse it."

Among the New York state delegation, it was the opinion that there would be no attempt to endorse any vice presidential candidate, the delegation leaving the matter open.

George Walbridge said to the Associated Press this morning, in the presence of Congressman Payne:

"I don't think they can stop Roosevelt's nomination, but I don't believe New York will formally endorse him because the delegation will consider it wise to stop just like governor in his attempt to meet the situation."

Senator Hanna arrived in the city at 9:15 this morning, having spent the night with Mr. Cheston of Haverford. He went directly to his apartments at Hotel Walton.

Among those who pressed upon him were many newly arrived delegates, who merely wanted to clinke hands, and many of them wore badges proclaiming themselves as advocates of McKinley and Roosevelt. The senator looked upon these with a good-natured smile upon his broad face, but he declined to talk. The small army of newspaper men could only say that he was not then prepared to say anything.

"I have just come to the city," he said. "How can I say anything; I have seen nobody."

"But you have some thoughts of your own on the situation," was suggested.

"Hardly, so early in the morning," he replied.

With this, the elevator snatched him out of the hands of the crowd and he went to his own apartments, where he went over the situation with Col. Dick and others of his faithful followers.

Senator Hanna's friends admit very frankly that unless there is a radical change, the nomination of Roosevelt is inevitable."

"It now looks," said one of the most prominent of these friends, early in the day, as if both the nominations of McKinley and Roosevelt would be made by acclamation. We do not care so much about that, but we feel a little sore over the prospect of the governor's acceptance after his positive declaration to us earlier in the season that he would decline if nominated."

"Decline if nominated?" echoed Senator Kean of New Jersey, who stands with Chairman Hanna. "Decline? He cannot afford to decline if nominated. I do not consider Governor Roosevelt's nomination as positively assured, for I think he may find a wey in advance to prevent that consummation. But once named, he cannot decline. No man can."

It was suggested that Senator Allison found a way of stopping his boom.

"Ah," responded the senator, "that is different. Senator Allison is an older man than Governor Roosevelt. He is established where he is. Mr. Roosevelt is naturally laaking out for the future."

Even Col. Dick admitted the strong probability of Roosevelt's nomination. Yet he remarked that some time must yet elapse between now and the naming of a vice presidential candidate, and there was always a possibility of changes until the end.

The originators of the Roosevelt stampede are not yielding an inch. Senator Quay is among the firmest. J. F. Sanders, national committeeman from Colorado, who was among the first to embark upon the Roosevelt enterprise, said today:

"We will land our fish sure. It is even an easier catch than we had counted upon. No Eastern man ever came to the West who made such an impression as did Roosevelt. The mountains and plains naturally love a rough rider."

The Dolliver people abated none of the confidence they expressed last night regarding the chances of their man. They say they had assurances of Governor Roosevelt that he would tell them what his intentions were and they had as yet received no word from him to the effect that he would not take the place. Jude Young and Mr. Roberts, who are working the Dolliver boom, had an engagement with Governor Roosevelt today, in which it was expected that the governor would tell his attitude. Besides Young and Roberts, the other parties to the conference were to be Professor Albert G. Shaw and Professor Butler, of Columbia college. Both of these gentlemen are warm personal friends of Governor Roosevelt, and are strongly of the opinion that he should not make the nomination of vice president. They have not ceased to urge him to decline the honor if the convention attempts to thrust it upon him, and the Dolliver people are placing great reliance in the ability of these men to induce the governor to decline to take the place under any circumstances. If they succeed in carrying this point, they say that Dolliver will have a clear field as far as the nomination is concerned, although they do not claim that he will stampede the convention by any means. They say that with Roosevelt out of the way there will be nothing to it but Dolliver.

STUDY THE PROBLEMS.

The Philippines Commissioners Assign Subjects For Investigation.

Manilla, June 18.—Judge Taft and his colleagues of the civil commission are studying the different legislative phases of the situation preparatory to the work of enacting new laws on Sept. 1, when they assume legislative power. The subjects have been tentatively divided among them as follows: Judge Taft, crown lands, land titles, the church and the civil service, the last named with a view of bringing from the United States a good class of government employes who shall eventually replace army officers in the civil administration. Luke Wright, internal improvements, constabulary, commerce, corporation franchises and the criminal code; Henry C. Ide, banking and currency and the organization of civil courts, and Bernard Moser, revenues, taxation and schools. The commissioners have established offices in the same building with Gen. MacArthur and are receiving, discussing and absorbing the opinions of army and navy men and foreigners and Filipinos. The people seem pleased with the democratic courses of the commissioners and with their habitually courteous demeanor. The earlier feeling of disappointment is slowly disappearing.

Malarial fever has been prevalent since April in parts of Cavite and Batangas provinces, which are garrisoned by the Forty-sixth and Thirty-ninth regiments. Thirty per cent of the men of each regiment are on the sick list. Of two battallons in Batangas province one has 150 sick and the other 190.

THE HAVANA ELECTION.

The Entire Ticket of the Nationalist Party Elected.

Havana, June 18.—Gen. Alexandro Rodriguez, Nationalist, was elected mayor of Havana, polling 13,673 votes against 6661 cast for Senor Estrada Mora, independent. The total vote fell about 4500 below the registration.

The National party elected its entire ticket, eighteen councilmen, the treasurer, one correctional judge and three municipal judges. The other correctional judgeship fell to an independent candidate, as did also the fourth municipal judgeship. Of the six other councilmen, four are Republicans and two Nationalists, who ran independently. Reports from every part of the island go to show that perfect order prevailed at the polls. Not a shot was fired, nor was there any sign of disturbance anywhere.

MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

Hull of Missing Sealing Schooner Pioneer Found.

Seattle, Wash., June 18.—According to a dispatch received from Alaska, the strange disappearance of the sealing schooner Pioneer, last seen October 4, 1899, when spoken to by the Aonoke on her way down from Bering sea with seal skins, has been at last cleared away. The Siwash Ranchos of Quatsinok are said to have found the hull of the vessel tossing on the rocks 50 miles from the coast. The Indians are said to have found eight skeletons supposed to be those of Capt. Stone and his crew.

A SUN SPOT.

Paris, Abbe Mareux, the astronomer, has discovered and sketched through the big telescope in the optic palace of the exposition, a remarkable spot in the sun forming a part of an extensive group and having a diameter of nearly forty kilometers. This spot, he says, will remain for seven days and become visible to the naked eye. He predicts the appearance of other spots in July, August and September, inferring that the heat during these months will be very great.

OMAHA KILLING.

Omaha, Neb., June 18.—C. H. King, a stock broker, living on North Twenty-first street, this city, shot James Flood, a hackman, yesterday. King had telephoned for a hack. Flood was intoxicated when he arrived and insisted on coming into the house. King commanded him not to enter but Flood kept coming. King then shot through the door, killing Flood almost instantly. King was found in Council Bluffs later and was arrested.

MAY NOT COME WEST

President's Proposed Trip to California This Summer May Be Abandoned.

THE INDIAN FAMINE

Missionary to Bombay Tells of the Extensive Work of Relief.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—President McKinley is unable, as yet, to state to his admirers in different parts of the country regarding the plan he will pursue for spending his time during the summer months. At one time, he really consented to go to San Francisco to witness the launching of the battleship Ohio, but recently he had told the California representatives, who have importuned him to be present upon this occasion, that it would be impossible for him to announce until some time in July whether or not he will be able to make this journey. The indications at the present time are that he will find it impossible, at least impolitic, to take the trip which, in many respects, would be considered by the people simply a journey to further his own interests for re-election as president of the United States. The president will be present at the Fourth of July celebrations at Canton, his Ohio home, and until after that time he is not anxious to accept invitations anywhere else and may decide to remain at Washington that some summer resort during the heated term of the present summer. The Californians have not yet given up the idea, however, that he may find it convenient to visit the West coast. In such an event, he will not only make a trip through California, but will go northward from that point to Portland, Seattle and Spokane, and return East to spend a few hours at least, at St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. If the president finds that it is impossible to go to the Pacific coast this summer, he will, at least, spend a few weeks in the New England states and while he may not consider it wise to make campaign speeches in the interests of the Republicans and his own candidacy, he will mingle with the people of New England and may be able to gain votes for himself and his party during his stay in that section of the country.

David Bennett Hill, of New York, is said to be one of the latest aspirants for the vice-presidential nomination at Kansas City. Mr. Hill is one of the delegates at large from New York state and has emphatically announced that he favors Col. Bryan as the Democratic candidate for the presidency this year. He is not, of course, entirely satisfied to have the Chicago platform of 1896 reaffirmed at Kansas City, but if unable to prevent action of this kind, will submit as pleasantly as he can, and if Col. Bryan is nominated for president should be offered him, it is said in Washington that he would consent to make the race with Col. Bryan.

Rev. Justin E. Abbott, who for the last eighteen years has been a missionary to Bombay, India, in connection with the American board of foreign missions, has spent a few days in Washington endeavoring to work up some interest among the people regarding the famine in that country. His principal work, however, has been in Baltimore in trying to induce the Baltimore committee of 100 on the India famine relief fund to put forth greater efforts to raise additional money for this famine-stricken country.

He had experience in famine relief in 1897 and has been kept in touch with the present needs of India by correspondence with those engaged in that work. Mr. Abbott is an American, but has been in India for thirty years, having gone there when a child.

In speaking of the conditions in India he said:

"The famine has been in existence for eight months and has been getting worse each month. Storms and rain which are now gradually drying up. Whole villages have, in many cases, been deserted because of the failure of a water supply. In many large cities the water is bought by the gallon and the poor have to wait and fight for hours for a few drops. Cattle in thousands have died of thirst as well as hunger. Irrigation has amounted to little. The whole famine area is a cracked desert on which the sun pours down a terrible heat. The leaves of the trees have been stripped off to supply fodder for the starving cattle, thus increasing the desolate aspect of the land.

"The system of relief carried on by the government of India is very complete and effective in preventing actual death from starvation, but the native states, with some noble exceptions, seem to care but little for the poor who suffer in their midst. The work of relief is on an immense scale, but even when best managed the suffering is only partly relieved.

"The government of India deserves the thanks of the world for its efforts to save life—efforts that are on a scale never before attempted in the history of the world. The native press of India which is as free to criticise the government as the press of America, bears testimony to the noble efforts that are being put forth to save the lives of the millions of the poor. The difficulties of the government are very great, due to the ignorance and superstition of many, especially of the wild tribes and because of caste pride. Many prefer to die than be paupers at the relief camps.

"Deaths by starvation in British territory are not due to insufficient help from the government, but because the people do not promptly make use of their opportunities. Thousands, when too late, make their way from their home to the relief camps, and either die on the way or perish at the camps, possibly from the eating of food which they have not the strength to digest.

"I have noticed in some papers that the government of India is criticised for not seizing grain, feeding the hungry and settling with the merchants afterwards. Such arbitrary action would, however, so upset the grain trade that the difficulties of the situation would be intensified. The decision of the government not to interfere with the grain trade is universally considered in India as the wisest method, and it has resulted in the equalizing of prices over the famine area. It has stimulated trade, and millions of bushels of the cheaper grains are being poured into the famine area of India where crops are good, and from Burmah and other lands. Importaton of grain is thus very active.

There is a peculiar portrait in Washington which has created much interest among those who knok of its existence. Its peculiarity is that every year it has been changed to show the changes which time would have made in the original. The portrait is by a Washington artist and is that of his wife, and was painted many years ago when she was a young bride. A few years after the portrait was painted the young wife died, and so great was the grief of the artist that he determined to keep her likeness with him all the time, and to do so he decided that year by year he would change the portrait so as to make it grow old with him and thus keep her, as it were, ever with him. Every year, on the anniversary of his wedding day, the artist locked himself in his studio and changed the lines of the face of the portrait, adding what he thought would make the difference of one year. There have been many anniversaries of that marriage day, and consequently many changes in the portrait. Today the picture is that of an old woman, the hair turned gray, the face wrinkled and pale, but still beneath the marks of time, as made by the brush of the artist, can be seen the early beauty of the bride and the attractiveness of the young woman.

It is said that the late Judge Culberson, of Texas, for many years in congress and at the time of his death a member of the codifying commission, had in his possession documents which would prove an important contribution to the records of the rebellion, and would show that Texas came near being one of the chief battle grounds of the civil war. Gen. Sam Houston was governor of Texas at the time of the beginning of the conflict, and was opposed to seceding, but the ordinance of secession passed the legislature. President Lincoln knew of Gen. Houston's stand, and sent a messenger to Austin offering to furnish the governor 75,000 soldiers to back him. A conference of the Union men was held in the executive mansion, and the messenger personally delivered the president's offer. The responsibility was more than they could undertake and President Lincoln was so informed.

Fatal Accident to Brakeman on the Logging Road at Ely.

Ely, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oatis Welligmann, brakeman on the logging road here, was run over and instantly killed Saturday night. His body was shipped to his widowed mother, who resides in Minneapolis, this morning.

The accident occurred while Welligmann was attempting to reach a brake from a load of logs piled on a flat car. His body was badly mutilated, the head and limbs being completely severed from the body.

OUR PRODUCE TRADE.

Comparison of Imports and Exports For Ten Years.

Washington, June 18.—A statistical review of our foreign trade in agricultural products during the ten fiscal years, 1890-99, compiled by Frank H. Hitchcock, chief of the foreign market, section of the agricultural department was made public last night.

It shows that the average annual agricultural imports for the past decade amounted to about $387,000,000, while the total imports of all kinds averaged about $750,000,000. In 1899, for the fourth time in the history of our foreign commerce, the annual value of domestic merchandise exported by this country exceeded $1,000,000. The first such record was made in 1892, when the declared valuation amounted to $1,015,732,911. In 1897, they were $1,032,007,603, and 1898 scored the unprecedented value of $1,210,293,913. Then came 1899, recording $1,202,951,222. The 1899 total imports were valued at $697,148,489, much below the average for the last decade but considerably above the 1898 figures. In 1899, the excess of domestic exports over imports reached $506,782,733, and of agricultural exports over agricultural imports, $437,296,852.

COMMISSION OF INQUIRY.

Wood Will Appoint One to Investigate Cuban Officials.

Havana, June 18.—So many extraordinary charges have been published in the United States that Governor General Wood has decided to appoint a special commission consisting of one American assembly officer and two Cuban civilians to hear testimony offered by any who may wish to make specific charges of malfeasance in office and negligence of duty. The committee will have power to investigate charges and compel the attendance of witnesses in court. Governor General Wood referring to the matter today said:

"The time will come when these persistant reports against men holding office will have to be faced. My object is to make officialdom in Cuba as clean as possible."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Each national convention is to be asked by the Municipal Ownership league to define its position in relation to the accepting or refusing to endorse in the party platform the initiative and referendum. It was decided upon at a public meeting in Chicago yesterday called by the league. State conventions will be asked to declare their position on the question of municipal ownership of public utilities. This course was adopted by the league in order to secure the election of state legislators who will vote in favor of government control of all public utilities.

The circular of the navy department calling for proposals for supplying armor requires bids to be submitted Aug. 10 next. The circular calls for 2300 tons of class A armor, face hardened, of the best quality and subject to ballastic test. It also calls for 3600 tons of class B armor of equivalent quality, and for 1200 tons of lowest grade of class C armor, not face hardened. No time limit for deliveries is fixed by the circular.

Asher L. Newton, of Vermont, representing the New York Athletic club, yesterday won the right to represent Greater New York and the Metropolitan association of the Amateur Athletic union in the Marathon race which is to be one of the feature of the sports at the Paris exposition next month. There were twenty-five starters and the winner's time was 1:28.5 3-5 for the journey of fifteen miles.

The steamer Dirigo arrived at Seattle from Lynn Canal last evening, having on board eighty-five passengers, who brought down about $200,000 in gold dust. The passengers all declare that this summer's output from the Klondike will be much larger than the last and estimates are made all the way from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The war department reports that the customs receipts in the island of Cuba for the first four months of 1900 were $5,414,563, an increase of $969,811 over the customs receipts for the corresponding months of the preceding year.

The Des Moines, Iowa, Auditorium, used as a convention hall and constructed a year ago at a cost of $50,000, was destroyed by fire yesterday. It was insured for $25,000. It will be rebuilt at once.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c and 25c.

CATARRH: FORERUNNER OF CONSUMPTION.

Few realize what a deep-seated, obstinate disease Catarrh is, regarding it as a simple inflammation of the nose and throat, little or no attention is given it. But, however insignificant it may seem at first, it is serious and far-reaching in its results.

The foul secretions entering the circulation poison the entire system. The stomach, kidneys—in fact all the organs—feel the effect of this catarrhal poison, and when the lungs are reached its progress is rapid and destructive, and finally ends in consumption.

It frequently happens that the senses of hearing and smell are in part or entirely lost, the soft bones of the nose eaten into and destroyed, causing intense suffering and greatly disfiguring the face. While sprays, washes and salves may give temporary relief, no permanent benefit can be expected from such treatment.

CATARRH IS A CONSTITUTIONAL OR BLOOD DISEASE, and far beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time, meet with disappointment and allow the disease to take firmer hold. Only a real blood remedy can reach this troublesome and dangerous disease.

S. S. S cures Catarrh because it first cleanses and builds up the blood, purifies it, makes it rich and healthy, stimulates and puts new life into the sluggish worn-out organs, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous accumulations.

Mrs. Josephine Polhill, of Due West, S. C., writes: "I had Catarrh, which became so deep-seated that I was entirely deaf in one ear, and all inside of my nose, including part of the bone, sloughed off. When the disease had gone this far the physician gave me up as incurable. I determined to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the seat of the disease, and after a few weeks' treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than seven years have had no sign of the disease."

S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful tonical and purifying properties. It is the only vegetable blood purifier known, and a certain and safe cure for all blood troubles. Send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases, and at the same time write our physicians about your case. They will cheerfully give you any information or advice wanted. We make no charge for this.

KINLEY MACK.

Tremendous Crowd Saw the Best Suburban Handicap Run In Years.

New York, June 18.—With a good track under him and a fine sky above, Kinley Mack, with McCue up, took the $10,000 suburban handicap away from the great Ethelbert on Saturday afternoon at Sheepshead Bay by a length and a half.

Ethelbert was the public favorite all the way through the stretch, but to no better avail than second place, while Gulden ran in third and Imp and Jean Beraud trailed home in fifth and sixth.

There was an enormous crowd at the track, even at the start of the first race. The sky was gray, but at no time was there any fear of rain. The weather was warm and the track good.

The horses paraded past the grand stand to the post soon after 4 o'clock and were promptly lined up in front of the barrier ready for the start of the suburban.

Two false breaks were made in the first ten minutes, but five minutes later the starter caught the horses all in a good line and sent them away together.

They went thundering down the stretch the first time with Imp in the lead. Jean Beraud had second place, Kinley Mack third and Ethelbert fourth, but dropping back and not seeming to care for the position he had drawn against the rail.

Around the lower turn they rushed. Before the stretch was completed the turn Jean Beraud poked his head in front of Imp, and they were running as a pair a length in front of Kinley Mack, who was in turn a length to the better of Gulden.

The great Ethelbert was slowly dropping back and soon took seventh position, inch by inch, foot by foot, Jean Beraud slowly slipped away from the others, but when half a mile had been made the pride of the Whitney string had a length the best of it, in 49 1-5 seconds, and it surprised the crowd to see the effet Ethelbert way back in the rear.

Next to Jean Beraud came the grand mare Imp, with only a head the advantage over Kinley Mack, the Brooklyn handicap winner, who was hanging on like grim death in spite of the fact that everybody thought he could run only in the mud.

Guiden was still in fourth place, and the others close up. Maher still laid back while it took thirteen seconds to run the next furlong, and all but Ethelbert were beginning to drag nearer to the leader.

Jean Beraud's margin began to get smaller and smaller as horses and jockeys were straining every nerve to get closer to the leader and strive to poke their noses to the front. They whirled past the 5-furlong post as if they were in for a 4-mile race instead of a short mile and a quarter.

Thirteen seconds more and the sixth furlong pole was reached in 1:15, with Jean Beraud a neck in front of Imp, and Imp but a neck in front of Kinley Mack, who was half a length in front of Gulden.

Around the upper turn they charged, no change being made in the pace. Thirteen seconds more ticked off and the seventh furlong post was passed, Imp was faltering. So was Jean Beraud, but the neck he had over Imp was now a length.

McCue then came sailing up alongside with Kinley Mack. Turner dug his heels into the quivering flanks of Jean Beraud, and the gallant son of His Highness responded to the best of his ability. He did nobly for a few seconds and then again began to fall back. He soon joined Imp, who also had about enough of the race.

At this point the stars of the horses had rounded the upper turn and were sailing along the short straight. The turn was passed and the judges' stand was in sight. Kinley Mack was swinging along not the least bit in a hurry, while Jean Beraud was spent completely and dropping back towards the rear.

Imp was hanging on to fourth place and to Fitzhugh St. Like a whirlwind Ethelbert was coming through the stretch. Maher was digging in his heels in a frantic effort to make up the immense amount of ground he had lost during the first mile of his journey, and the shouts of encouragement were roared at him from the crowd.

He was eating up the ground in great bounds as he seemed to fairly fly through the stretch.

First Imp was met and passed as if she was standing still. Then there was Gulden to reckon with, and the 3-year-old looked as if he was anchored, so fast did Ethelbert pace him in the rear.

Now there was a furlong to go, and the great crowd began to shout to Ethelbert as if to help the gallant thoroughbred along. There was no use for Maher to spur or flog him.

The horse knew what was wanted of him, and as if in resentment of the pull on him in the early part of the race he gathered himself together, dug his toes into the yielding earth and seemed fairly to crouch and spring with each space-devouring stride.

It was heart breaking to see that gallant thoroughbred, with fire in his eyes, his red nostrils flaring, and his heart beating hard with every stride, doing his best to overtake Minley Mack. But it was a hopeless task.

Foot by foot he cut down the great lead, but the distance was too short and as they rushed past the stand Kinley Mack was the victor by a length and a half over Ethelbert, having run the last quarter in 25 3-5 seconds. Ethelbert made a marvelous race at the last.

THE ST. LOUIS DERBY.

Sam Phillips Won In a Gallop By Three Lengths.

St. Louis, June 18.—Among the plaudits of 25,000 enthusiastic spectators Sam Phillips, the gallant son of St. Florian and Reckon, flashed under the imaginary line, winner of the St. Louis derby, Saturday afternoon.

To a good start Wounded Knee was first to show, passing the judge's stand, Wounded Knee was a neck in front of Highland Lad, who led Dr. Cave by a head, all the others being within striking distance.

In the run down the back stretch Florizar assumed command, but only momentarily, for Tommy Burns shook up Sam Phillips and he shot to the front. At the mile and a quarter Phillips was two open lengths in frot of Florizar, who had a length the advance of Star Chamber, whom Devlin had brought up from fifth position.

Sam Phillips came into the stretch a length before Star Chamber, he four lengths ahead of Florizar. From this point the race became a regular procession, Sam Phillips winning in a gallop by three lengths from Star Chamber, who in turn bear Florizar four lengths for the place. Wounded Knee staggered in four lengths behind Florizar.

The race is worth $10,000 to the winner.

BIG BULGE IN WHEAT

Market Started Strong and Rose Over Three Cents Above Saturday.

THE CABLES HIGHER

Chief Cause of Strength Was Crop Situation In the Northwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 18.—The wheat market was booming again today, and prices soared rapidly during the early part of the session on the strength of the flood of damage reports from the Northwest. There was a heavy demand which quickly absorbed all the offerings and prices went up despite the profit-taking. The reports were of the most gloomy description, some declaring that North Dakota would not raise enough wheat for seed. Liverpool was higher and the amount on passage showed heavy decrease. There were also unfavorable reports about the Russian crop, but all these bullish influences were not considered alongside the damage reports from the Red River valley and other parts of the Northwest. The bullish fever was on, and prices rose rapidly, closing 3½c higher than on Saturday, both here and at Chicago for the July option.

Trading was active on the Duluth board, July wheat opened ½c up at 75¾c, sold up to 77¾c at 9:50, reacted to 76⅞c at 10, advanced to 77⅝c at 10:30, eased off to 77⅜c at 11:30, recovered to 77¾c at 11:40 and was forced up to 78⅝c at 1:05. Then it fell off and closed at 78¼c, a net advance of 3⅜c for the day. September wheat started ½c higher at 76¼c, rose to 76¾c at 9:50, reacted to 77⅜c at 10:30, sold up to 78⅜c at 11:55, eased off to 78¼c at 12:07 and was sold at 78¼c at 1 o'clock. It closed at 79⅜c, being 3½c higher than on Saturday. Cash sales were 30,000 bus at 1c under July. Corn advanced ½c. Oats and barley were unchanged. Rye gained ½c. Cash flax was unchanged. CHICAGO BOARD.

Wheat Booming, Other Cereals Firm and Provisions Steady.

Chicago, June 18.—Wheat went booming upward again today. Crop reports covering Sunday were sensationally gloomy and there was an enormous demand which swallowed heavy profit-taking offerings without a break. July opened 74@75c over Saturday at 75@75¾c and on wildly excited bidding soared early to 77⅞c and then reacted to 77⅛c. To print all the damage reports received this morning would take columns, but they told of fields wiped out or nearly so; of re-sowing and of damage which no amount of rain could now repair. One report said North Dakota could not raise enough spring wheat for seed. An authoritive statistician wired the following to a local firm: "Visited every section of North Dakota, covering the best counties thoroughly; 20 per cent no possibility, against 80,000,000 bus shown by movement last year. Saturday and Sunday worst days yet, and no amount of rain can now help crop." The weather map showed rains in the Northwest, but people in the Dakotas and Minnesota were heavy buyers here and their reports were, as a rule, as pessimistic as the one quoted. Local receipts 111 cars, 5 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 649 cars, against 776 last week and 845 a year ago. Liverpool was higher, the Russian crop news was unfavorable and there was a heavy decrease of the amount on passage, but as influences these were quite lost.

The early advance was but a foretaste of the boom that was to come. July later eased to 76⅝@77c and then under a panicky demand plunged forward to 79¾c, within 1c of last year's highest price. Under profit-taking, July dipped to 78¾c and closed 3⅜c higher than Saturday at 78⅝@78¾c.

The corn market was quiet early but later turned strong with wheat and rose steadily to 40¾c. July opened a shade lower at 39½@39⅝c and sold to 39¾c. Receipts here were 849 cars. The pit suffered by desertions to wheat.

July touched 40¾c and closed ½@⅝c higher at 39⅞@40c.

Oats were quiet and firm in sympathy with wheat. July opened unchanged at 23⅝@23¾c and sold to 23¾@¼c. Local receipts were 265 cars.

Provisions were steady and quiet. Hog receipts were lighter than expected there at the yards yesterday and the wheat strength was also a support. July pork opened 10@15c higher at $11.65@11.65 and sold off to $11.50. July lard opened unchanged at $6.70@6.72½ and then eased to $6.67½. July ribs began the session 5c higher at $6.75, touched 77½, later easing to $6.72½@6.75.

Close: Wheat—June 77¾c; July, 78¾@78¾c. August, 79⅝c.: Corn—June, 39⅝@40c; July, 39⅝@40c; August, 40⅜c. Oats—June, 23⅝c; July, 23¼c; August, 23c. Pork—June, $11.50; July, $11.50; September, $11.70. Lard—June, $6.67½; July, $6.67½; September, $6.80; October, $6.80; November, $6.80. Ribs—June, $6.72½; July, $6.72½; September, $6.80. Flax Northwestern and Southwestern, $1.80; September, $1.36½; October, $1.32. Rye, July, 57c. Barley, 38c. Clover, $7.75.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Harrett & Zimmerman: The trade the past week opened sluggish, with a continued slow and dull trade throughout the week, except on a certain grade of horses such as the best kind of expressers, heavy drafters and fine drivers, which moved fairly active. This feature of the market was immediately followed by a sharp break in prices which showed no sign of recovery at the close of the week's sales. Mule trade, likewise, fell off considerably with a decline in prices, and although there is a prospect of a good trade in this line, the present movement is feeble. Railroad men were few on the market. Quotations:

Drafters, choice	$120@150
Drafters, common to good	90@110

GETTING SECOND PAPERS.

Rush of Applicants at the Court House.

The recent rush of applicants for second citizenship papers has been made because of the approaching primaries of the Republican party of the county, which takes place tomorrow night. The applicants have been brought in by workers for candidates under the impression that if they would be qualified to vote at the fall elections they would be qualified to vote at the primaries. It is said that this view of it is wrong, and that those who are taking out second papers now will not be eligible to vote at the primaries tomorrow night. The law provides that in order to vote at primary elections men must be legally qualified voters, and voters are not qualified unless their papers have been issued for three months prior to the time when he exercises his new franchise. This is the view some have taken of the situation, but others say that if a man is in a position where he will be qualified to vote by election day he is entitled to vote at the primaries held in advance of that election.

The following second papers were issued this morning: Ole Olssen, Hans Olsen, Charles Olsen, Peter Holmquist, John Mikkela, Matt Hall, Thomas B. Greenway and John Roed.

GREAT SALE OF WHITE GOODS.

Silberstein & Bondy Company Make Some Extraordinary Offerings.

The Silberstein & Bondy company will continue their half yearly sale of white goods tomorrow. This sale eclipses any previous effort in this direction, as they have gathered together stocks of whites from makers and importers which appeal to women folks who appreciate quality when coupled with low prices. This is a sale of high class goods such as the Silberstein & Bondy company carry in stock at all times. White goods of high quality will be on sale tomorrow morning.

Don't miss this great opportunity in white goods, as the patrons of the Silberstein & Bondy company, who look to them for the best class of merchandise, will take advantage of this sale.

Would Levy an Assessment.

John H. Dight, receiver after judgment in the stockholders' liability case of Luther Mendenhall against the Duluth Dry Goods company, has asked the district court to levy a second assessment against the stockholders. The first assessment of 76 2-3 per cent against the stockholders produced $20,060.09, and out of the indebtedness of $81,531.76 there is still due $52,573.67. The receiver asks that a further assessment of 22 1-3 per cent be made, which will bring the total assessment up to the full statutory liability of the stockholders. The matter will come up in special term of district court Saturday.

SELLING OF STOCKS

Pressure Was Renewed In Force and Prices Declined Once More.

CLOSING WAS DULL

And Was About Steady at Small Net Changes, Mostly Losses.

New York, June 18.—There were a few gains at the opening of the stock exchange market in response to supporting orders placed in the London market before the opening, but the selling pressure was soon renewed in force and the opening gains were quickly wiped out and initial losses extended. Tennessee Coal and Pennsylvania lost a point, and Wheeling & Lake Erie, first preferred, 1¾. Otherwise, the losses were fractional. Federal Steel showed considerable firmness. The selling of stocks was large during the first hour, both through commission houses and professional operators. Those who had set themselves to the task of supporting the market had to absorb heavy offerings and declines reaching from ¼ to 1½ resulted in several stocks. Where there was no support, losses were greater, as in the Minneapolis & St. Louis stocks. The common dropping 7½ on a few sales and the preferred 2½. A demand from shorts kept Louisville up, the price rising at one time nearly a point net. The industrials were comparatively neglected and firm in spots. Some of the steel stocks were above Saturday's prices. The buying diminished as prices recovered to near Saturday's level and the bears made a fresh attack on prices, carrying them below the previous low level.

Support was renewed when prices were forced down and the market became quieter about Saturday's level. American Hoop dropped 1 7-8 and Steel and Wire 1 5-8, ex-dividend, but both stocks rallied substantially. Lackawanna sold 4¼ below the last sale. Bonds were in sympathy with stocks The market sold down to the lowest in the last hour. Northern Pacific touching 70. Covering by the shorts caused a sharp rally, reaching a point in Northern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. Earlier losses were in some instances wiped out. The market became dull against the rally and closed quiet and about steady at small net changes mostly losses.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 18.—The cotton market opened steady, with prices unchanged to 12 points lower. Sentiment at the start was emphatically bearish under sensational political reports and rumors concerning affairs in the far East and under a pronounced break in both departments of the English market. Soon after the opening, prices rallied on profit-taking and change in the character of foreign business. Conflicting crop accounts then kept speculation within comparatively narrow limits.

Spot cotton closed quiet. Middling uplands, 9 1-16c; middling gulf, 9 5-16c; sales, 5563 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. MAY DIRECT REMOVAL.

Council Likely to Order Change of the Fire Alarm Wires.

Tonight's council proceedings promise to be a little slow. It is probable that a resolution will be passed instructing the board of fire commissioners to remove the fire and police alarm wires from the poles of the Duluth Telephone company to the Zenith company poles. The board of fire commissioners has indicated its intention of moving the wires if the council so desires, but otherwise would rather not disturb the system.

The special council committee appointed last week to confer with the board of fire commissioners in regard to sending the new fire engine to West Duluth will have a report, but the incident seems closed. The board has entire control of the placing of apparatus of the fire department, and the council is powerless. The board has given as its ultimatum that the new engine shall not be sent to West Duluth, and the continued discussion of the question is only causing unnecessary strife.

FLOWER GIVING.

Meanings of Flowers and How to Offer Them.

The old-fashioned language of flowers has acquired a new significance. The time has come when it is necessary to make a study of the etiquette of flower giving. Not only do the flowers convey a message to the recipient, but the manner in which they are sent—in boxes, baskets or bouquets—has a deep meaning. The woman who is favored with many floral gifts has learned to read, as from a letter, the sentiments which prompted the generosity of the donor.

There seems to be a tacit understanding between florists and their male customers, for the latter do not go into detail and say, "I want to compliment a lady I have recently met, the hostess of last night's dinner. What shall I send her?" or "I was bored at dinner last night and want to pay my dinner debt in flowers." The actual and entire meaning of "an order" is never discussed. In the generality of cases a florist knows considerably more of the affairs of his patron than does the doctor or minister. In a little time he knows the names and addresses of the friends of a customer, and also in what esteem they are held. The history of many love affairs is written out in the order books of florists. So, though all flowers are charming and acceptable, embarrassment and misunderstanding may result from a thoughtless, though generous order.

The meaning of flowers varies according to the circumstances under which they are presented. A red rose can mean nothing or can signify "I love you," or it can plead, "Please give me your love." But every rule is subject to one condition. That flower which is generally known to be a person's favorite, even though it be "a red, red rose," is allowable under any circumstances where a gift is at all acceptable, says the New York Herald.

Occasionally a flowering plant in a pretty jardiniere may be sent to the married woman whose hospitalities have been frequent and informal. In such a gift may be read lasting appreciation of her kindliness. On the occasion of this old friend's giving a formal reception or dinner, a handsome basket of flowers or group of orchids sent before the affair conveys the donor's compliments and sincere wishes for the success of the entertainment. If sent afterward it means "Your affair was the success of the season."

A young man should be careful nowadays in selecting flowers for a young married woman. Flowers should never be sent to her on regular days or without a card. He should avoid red roses, except American Beauties. The combination of pink roses and orchids is tabooed. An ordinary florist's box of mixed roses is allowable as is any growing plant, in springtime great masses of early blossoms are deemed the prettiest possible compliment to any one. Huge high baskets, fitted with tin, and high, slender jardiniores are provided for the long, sprazzy branches of dogwood, cherry, apple, peach, japonica and locust blossoms.

When a young man falls in love with a girl "at first sight" and sends her a costly basket of orchids semi-weekly, she expects to be called upon to answer an important question in the immediate future. And if the girl wears a few of the orchids it implies "I am happy." The flowers placed in the drawing room mean, "I refuse to see any significance in your gift." If the orchids are not in sight when the donor calls it is to be presumed that they are in the girl's own room, and that signifies "I shall keep you guessing awhile."

The girl who receives a weekly box of delicate pink roses realizes that she is much admired by the sender. The admiration increases in proportion as the color of the roses deepens. When the deep, drooping Jacqueminot arrives it means "I love you." But not until a few delicate orchids nestle amid the sweet red roses is the man ready to speak of what is in his heart—love and marriage. If the semi-weekly box arrives and contains carnations, daffodils and narcissuses instead of pink roses, then the fair one realizes that her admirer but cherishes her with a purely platonic affection.

Lilies of the valley, rosebuds, narcissus, jasmine, mignonette, any delicate, costly flowers are sent to dolliance as tokens of admiration and to plead the cause of Amicita.

The florist usually knows when the young man has arrived at a satisfactory understanding, because he leaves a standing order for violets. The purple flowers continue to shower upon the happy girl until lilies of the valley, orchids and bridal roses terminate the floral wooing.

If a man receives a bunch of marguerites with no card, it means that some girl suggests that he ask himself a few questions: One I love, two I love, three I love; I say, four I love with all my heart," etc. If the bachelor unexpectedly receives several boxes of flowers at once, it signifies that several ladies of his acquaintance deem it high time he gave one of those delightful afternoon affairs in his bachelor apartments, and the married lady (usually an old friend pressed into service by the girls) who sends a box of tea roses offers to act as hostess.

It is remarkable how many flowers are being presented to men. They even send them to each other. But the bachelor apartments of almost any favored "lady's man" frequently have the appearance of a bower. Of late flowers are to be found even in business offices. And it is right that men should share the flowers, which are the most delicate and exquisite of our blessed gifts.

WAS ANSWERED.

Max O'Rell (M. Paul Blouet), who has recently been in this country for the triple purpose of lecturing, to dispose of a novel, and to sell a play based on the incidents of the novel, tells, in the June issue of Success, a new, good story at his own expense, in which he figured in his last American trip. "I was lecturing to the students of a religious college," said O'Rell; "but, before I began, one of the professors, a very solemn man, stepped forward and offered a prayer in which he asked the Lord to permit the audience to see the point of my jokes. This was the petition, as it fell upon my astonished ears, and it impressed me so much that I afterwards wrote it down as a souvenir or keepsake:

"'O Lord, said the petitioner, 'Thou knowest that we work hard for Thee, and that recreation is necessary in order that we may work with renewed vigor. We have tonight with us a gentleman from France, whose criticisms are witty and refined, but subtle; and we pray Thee to so prepare our minds that we may thoroughly understand and enjoy them.'

"I am still wondering," said O'Rell, "whether my lectures are so subtle as to need praying over, or whether those particular auditors were so dull that they needed divine assistance to help them out. Of one thing I am morally certain—that they showed, by their appreciation, that the professor's prayer was not in vain."

Another Instance of Pension Abuses.

An illustration of the abuses of which congress is guilty in the passing of private pension bills was furnished in the closing days of the recent session when the house passed a bill to pension one Charles De Arnaud at the rate of $30 a month. The pension office has since investigated the record of this person and has established the fact that during the war of the rebellion De Arnaud was in the employ of the federal government as a spy. At the same time he served the Confederate government in the same capacity, and it is claimed that he performed the more valuable service for the latter. And for such services congress votes his a pension of $30 a month, while there are thousands of deserving soldiers of the Union army who receive either no pension at all or $6 or $8 per month, to obtain which they had to follow the regular channels prescribed by law and prove to the satisfaction of the pension bureau their right to such recognition. This whole private pension bill business is tainted with fraud. Whoever has a just claim will follow the regular course. He is not averse to an examination of his record by the pension bureau. It is only the fraudulent claimant who resorts to a private pension bill to sneak in by a back door. As a rule the private bills name an amount far in excess of that established by law, which is another insult and injury to the meritorious soldier deserving of a pension.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

That serious damage has been done to the spring wheat crop in the Northwest by the long continued drouth admits of no doubt. Estimates as to the extent of the damage vary. The fact that the crop will be at least considerably below the average has naturally had the effect of sending up the price of wheat. It would be strange if such an admittedly bullish factor did not work to the advantage of those on the bull side of the market.

In other sections of this country, the crops are in excellent condition, and in the Southwest the winter wheat districts promise a yield much in excess of the normal, consequently those who are pushing up prices on the strength of the damage in the Northwest would do well to remember a few statistics that must soon be taken into account. The Chicago Trade Bulletin, a conservative authority, says the winter wheat yield will not be less than 330,000,000 bushels, or 34,000,000 more than in 1899. It is figured by the same paper, in view of the department of agriculture's June report and other information, that the spring wheat harvest will scarcely fall short of 230,000,000 bushels. Therefore, the aggregate may be about 560,000,000 bushels, as against 547,000,000 bushels in 1899. Available stocks of wheat and flour in the United States and Canada, June 1, were equal to 89,679,000 bushels, as compared with 66,412,000 a year previous. The stocks afloat for the visible in Europe are only 2,500,000 bushels less than a year ago, being 68,130,000 bushels.

The crop conditions in Europe are said to be fair, about the only really poor showing being made by France. A recent cablegram from Paris says that the wheat crop of France has suffered severely from storms and unfavorable weather. According to the most reliable figures, gathered from all points of the country and tabulated by Edward Green, secretary of the American chamber of commerce in Paris, the present indications are that the crop will be a short one. Should the weather from now on until harvest time continue unfavorable, the crop will be still further curtailed. Estimates made of the crop, taking into consideration all the conditions, range from 94,000,000 to 105,000,000 hectoliters, from 258,594,000 to 288,855,000 bushels). Conservative men put the figure at about 100,000,000 hectoliters or 275,120,000 bushels. The wheat crop last year was 129,000,000 hectoliters or 354,994,800 bushels, and as the consumption of France amounts to 120,000,000 hectoliters, there should be a surplus from the last crop of 9,000,000 hectoliters, or say about 24,760,000 bushels. Should this year's crop turn out not to exceed 275,120,000 bushels (taking into account the surplus from last year) France will probably have to purchase upward of 30,000,000 bushels to make up for the deficit. At the same time, it is well to remember that the crop may turn out much better than is now figured. Favorable weather from now until harvest would make a wonderful difference in the yield. The crop may turn out large enough to supply the home consumption, and France may not be forced to buy a bushel of wheat.

Of course there have been no exports from India this season, but liberal shipments have come from Agentine and Australia and are likely to continue coming in increasing quantities. Prices have advanced recently because of the damage in the Northwest, but it is well to remember that there is plenty of breadstuffs to supply the world. There will be no shortages, and all talk of $1 wheat seems absurd.

GERMANS AND IMPERIALISM.

Oswald Ottendorfer, the editor of the Staats Zeitung, of New York, the leading German newspaper in this country, has been talking again with reference to the presidential campaign and the attitude of the German-Americans. No man has a keener insight than Mr. Ottendorfer into German character; four years ago his paper supported the Republican ticket, and when he now says that the Germans fear the imperialistic attitude of McKinley and will vote for Bryan his opinion is entitled to be treated with great respect and as a statement of a fact that may decide the coming election.

"German-Americans," says Mr. Ottendorfer in a review of the present political attitude of his countrymen, "feel that they have been misled and betrayed by President McKinley. Just as they were four years ago, they are now opposed to unlimited coinage of silver at any ratio. They dread the uncertainty that would follow a silver victory. But in the imperialistic principles of McKinley Republicans they see a tangible evil which they will reject. In their dilemma they will accept that which they fear least, and as a body they will cast their votes, I believe, for Bryan. German-Americans see an actual danger in expansion. With them this is no phantom. They are familiar with the evils of militarism, from which they escaped when they left the fatherland. They will never vote to be returned to those evils in their adopted country. Whatever opinions they may hold on other questions, they will certainly vote to avoid the danger which threatens the republic through President McKinley's imperialistic attitude. The German voters hold the balance of power in New York, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois. It is in their power to give these states to Bryan, and with them he will win. Let the Democrats go before the country on two issues, imperialism and the trusts, dropping the dangerous financial issue, and their success will be assured."

If what Mr. Ottendorfer says is correct, and he is in an excellent position to judge the attitude of the German-Americans, the Republicans will have good reason to fear the verdict in November. Four years ago the German vote was almost unanimous for McKinley. Without it this year he cannot win. The way in which Wisconsin and Illinois swung into the Democratic column in 1892 on the school question shows what the united German vote in those states can do. The German vote in Minnesota and Iowa is also large, and if the Republicans lose it, how can they win in these states?

The New York World after waging war against Mr. Bryan nearly four years, has finally come out flat-footed in support of that gentleman for the presidency in an editorial which closes as follows: "Mr. Bryan, who, as the World said two months ago, will be renominated by acclamation, represents the American and therefore the Democratic side of these living, burning, dominating issues. He is for this reason entitled to and will receive the support of the World and of all who believe with us that the only issue worth considering in this campaign is the preservation of the republic, the maintenance of the constitution, and a return to the principles of the Declaration of Independence."

One of the few men who has been long and prominent in public life and is not a lawyer, is Alexander M. Dockerey, who has been nominated for governor by the Democrats of Missouri. Mr. Dockerey has been in congress many years, and continually in office since 1872, when he was 26 years old. His father was a Methodist preacher, and his son by hard struggles succeeded in educating himself for a physician, which is, at least nominally, his profession still. But he was a "natural born" politician, and politics has been his chief business. Though a steady partisan, he is a clean, able man, much admired by his friends and respected by his political enemies.

John R. McLean, who sailed for Europe on Saturday, is reported to have sent his personal check for $25,000 to Mr. Bryan to be used in the coming campaign. It is stated the check was sent as an evidence of good will and to prevent any misconstruction of his trip to Europe.

The ice trust will probably not be much interested in the statement of an Eastern geologist that in the year A. D. 1,879,426 this earth will be a solid ball of ice.

There is one strong objection to Irving M. Scott, of California, who has been mentioned for vice president on the Republican ticket: He has very large contract dealings with the government. That fact should keep him out of any office in the government.

For the first time in the history of national politics, the two parties will hold conventions to select vice presidents. The standard-bearers are already picked, and the platforms practically decided upon.

There is one thing at least in favor of Roosevelt as a candidate. It is said Hanna does not want him on the ticket. That should not weaken him with the people.

Duluth demonstrated its ability to handle and take good care of all the big crowds that may come here.

It looks like McKinley and Roosevelt at Philadelphia.

MAUD AND THE BABY SHOW.

Maud Muller—the Maudie who raked the hay
And gazed at the Judge on the summer day,

And, thanks to good Whittier's rhyming pen,
Gave chances for parodies to other men.

Maud Muller got married, but not to the Judge,
And Whittier tells us that she had to drudge.

Maud Muller—for that was her maiden name—
Her married cognomen is unknown to fame.

It chanced that she stood in the baby show,
'Mongst infants displayed in many a row.

Babies in satin, and babies in silk,
And babies to advertise "Raisemright's Milk."

Babies that giggled, and babies that cried—
'Twas there that the Judge by fair Maudie was spied.

The Judge was all dignity, portly and slow,
For he was a-judging this infantile show.

And Maudie—the Maudie who charmed in her youth—
Exhibited triplets in her dainty booth.

Three triplets—(why, certainly, there would be three)—
And Maudie, nee Muller, all proudly stood she.

The Judge ambled slowly adown the display.
When he saw the triplets he stopped in dismay.

Reflections came humming like bees in a swarm—
He saw the new hay and the old Muller farm.

He saw the fair girl who was raking the hay—
He thought of the blues which beset him that day.

He thought of the fancies he'd cherished so long—
The fancies that Whittier put in his song.

He gazed at the triplets and gasped, with a grin,
And a sigh of relief: "Ah, it might have been!"

He tied the blue ribbon on Maudie's display,
And most dignifiedly he ambled away.

But all through the day his reflections would go
To Maudie—and then to the triplets on show.

"I'm thankful! I'm thankful!" he'd mutter,
It might have been—but it never was."

TRITE TAKE-OFFS.

Indianapolis Journal: "Jones, you'll never get rich like other men if you take so many afternoons off to baseball games."

"Oh, I don't know; I'll outlive them and catch up in the long run."

Washington Star: "I suppose you appreciate the opportunity to get away from Washington and enjoy a rest?"

"Rest!" answered Senator Sorghum. "Why, this is the time of year when the downright dickering really begins."

Philadelphia Press: "Well, I'll be dadblittered!" exclaimed the spruce young rabbit. "So this is the choice feast you said we'd find here."

"What's the matter with this?" demanded the other rabbit, who had generously led the way to this particular truck patch. What could possible be better than fresh spring onions?"

"But," retorted the first, disgustedly, "I told you I had a date with my best girl for this evening."

TOWNE FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Sauk Center Avalanche: His nomination means much to the Northwest and with Bryan, Towne and Lind in the field, the North Star state will cover itself with glory at the polls next November. The press throughout the country speaks well of the Duluth statesman. In fact he stands well abroad as well as at home. Towne is the most talked of man in the United States today. No one speaks ill of him. Even the New York Sun, that staid old Democratic paper, says that Towne has an excellent reputation as a leader by leaving the Republican party.

Litchfield Independent: However, so far as Minnesota is concerned, Towne will be perfectly acceptable, we believe. He is a man of bright attainments, of undoubted integrity, and a man who would not swerve from his path of duty for any sordid consideration. There is nothing of the timeserver or weather vane about him. He will stand for what he believes is right, though the heavens fall.

Will Succeed Himself.

Hinckley Enterprise: Gradually the Republican candidates for gubernatorial honors are dropping out of the race. Very few of those mentioned for the office really care for what little honor there is in being numbered with the "also rans." The fact is as patent to them as to any one else that John Lind will succeed himself.

Their Curiosity Satiated.

Martin County Sentinel: By accident we run across a back number of Bob Dunn's Princeton Union, printed in the year '99. Here's an editorial item it contains: "The thing that seems to excite the greatest wonder and curiosity among the Cubans is the failure of American officials to steal the revenues of the island. The Cubans have not been used to that sort of revenue officers." The "wonder and curiosity" among the Cubans has been satiated. Mark Hanna's carpet bagging thieves can give the natives cards and spades. And the half has not been told.

Van Sant's Fate.

Roseau County Times: The man who runs up against John Lind will surely be defeated this fall. Senators, congressmen, representatives and local officers seeking election dare not oppose him and the Republican country press will say but little against him. Van Sant will be sacrificed by the members of his own party.

The Rounder

A good deal is said regarding courtesy or lack of it in men who ride on street cars. The following incident shows that there is another side of the matter: Not long ago three well-dressed women sat in a Superior street car chatting busily. The car was crowded, but the three women had disposed themselves so that while they really occupied the places of two more, they were very comfortable. The car stopped at a crossing and another woman entered. She was ill-dressed, but she carried a great, heavy baby in her tired arms, and her face expressed every degree of weariness down to the stage where she looked as though she might drop any minute.

No one got up, so she leaned against the side of the door near the three women and looked at them appealingly. They glanced in her direction as he entered, and then plunged themselves still more deeply into their conversation. Had they merely straightened themselves in their seats there would have been ample room for the tired woman with the baby. But they were very comfortable, and they paid no attention to the situation.

There happened to be on the rear platform one of the kind of men that come to the front in most exigencies with the right idea to fit the occasion. He wore overalls and a cheap cotton shirt, and he smelled of tobacco, and his clothes were very, very muddy; altogether he made a poor figure of a hero, but he is the hero of this story. He sized up this situation, looked indignantly at the three women in the car, and then his face lighted up. Brushing past the woman with the baby, he pushed himself into a seat between two of the three women. They drew back indignantly, and immediately he had plenty of room. Then he arose.

"Madam," he said to the tired woman with the baby, "here is a seat."

She thanked him and sank into the seat he had left vacant with a look of great relief. Then the other women looked tired, and their faces gave the impression that they were thinking very deeply about something.

* * *

A prominent business man of this city recently had the good fortune of becoming the father of a fine boy, the first in the family. So elated was he over the event that he immediately telegraphed to an intimate friend in St. Paul the following: "It's a boy. 8 pounds 6 ounces; red hair." When the friend received the telegram it read as follows, owing to the fact that the intelligent operator was a second cousin of our old friend the intelligent compositor: "It's a boy. 8 pounds 6 ounces of red hair." The friend, not a little astonished at this remarkable intelligence, forwarded the telegram back to Duluth with a request for an explanation. It took some little time to straighten the matter out to the satisfaction of the St Paul friend.

AN AMERICAN SPECTACLE.

Cincinnati Enquirer: A great many things are done in this country for the sake of emphasis and display. This is a period of organizations and dress parades. Men join together in societies and travel hundreds and even thousands of miles to hold conventions which have nothing in particular to do. Women also tire themselves out in holding meetings, mothers' congresses and other things which have no practical results except to make business for the railroad companies and the dealers in solid and liquid refreshments.

The politicians, too, flit about the country in large numbers in almost useless enterprises. A large crowd will be in Philadelphia next week on account of the Republican national convention. The hotels will be crowded, and many men who have the luxury of hair mattresses at home will feel lucky to be permitted to curl up on a cot in a "drafty" hall. There will be a large consumption of "red liquor"—some of it very bad—and strangers in the city will submit gratefully to headaches that would distress them at home. Grown men who are supposed to have reached the age of discretion will march through the streets by night carrying dripping torches and shouting for cheap leaders. Wheezy brass bands will be blown desperately in hotel offices, and those athirst will be reaching over half a dozen rows of shoulders to the autocrat behind the bar. Clubs dressed in Prince Albert coats, high hats and white gloves with enormous badges on their breasts and carrying canes, will have traveled by night and day to march through Market and Chestnut streets for the satisfaction of hearing remarks at the curbstones to the effect that that is "a fine body of men." Did anybody ever seen a club "ragged out" in this manner that did not present a fine appearance, provided the drill master has done reasonably good work? Fine clothes and rich trappings have converted many a ward watcher into a "perfect gentleman."

Then there will be ponderous gentlemen who will do the "heavy standing 'round" in the hotel lobbies and corridors and on the platform in convention hall, and the men dressed with a little brief authority in the distributor of tickets, and the spellbinders who will bellow themselves hoarse before an audience of 12,000 or 15,000 people, and the mob who will yell "louder," and the ladies who will wave flags, fans and lace handkerchiefs and make a display of shirt waists and millinery.

And all this will cost from $20,000 to $25,000.

And all for what?

To give the appearance of doing something in convention that will have been done, practically, before a delegate or a visitor reaches the town.

To nominate for president William McKinley and for vice president, whoever may be picked out by Mark Hanna and Tom Platt within the next few days, and to adopt a set of resolutions which have already been indited and which have the seal of administration approval on them.

What is the use of all this "fuss and feathers?" Why will men join themselves into crowds and make themselves hot and uncomfortable merely for the sake of appearing to participate in something that is done already?

The work of the convention at Philadelphia could easily be done in a day, though the proceedings may be "strung out" to give the thrifty Quaker City shopkeepers a chance to sell goods, damp and otherwise.

The desire to get into crowds is a human infirmity. To go to the Philadelphia convention will be to witness a dress rehearsal of a poor play. There will probably be thousands in Philadelphia who will not even gain admission to the convention hall. They will go home "half dead" and lugubriously inform their friends that they had a "real nice time."

THE LYNCHING QUESTION.

Committee to Present Matter to the Republican Convention.

Washington, June 18.—The following named persons have been appointed a committee by the National Afro-American council to present before the Republican national convention the questions of lynching and the violation of the ballot in the South:

Hon. George H. White, Bishop Alex Walters, Jesse Lawson, Hon. J. C. Napier, Col. W. A. Pledger, Hon. J. C. Perry, J. T. Minter, Bishop A. Grant, J. E. Bruce, J. Frank Blackburn, Hon. H. C. Smith, Rev. H. T. Johnson, Hon. Charles N. Robinson, Daniel Murray, W. C. Payne, Rev. George L. Lee, George C. Clinton, Bishop H. L. Holsey, Samuel E. Lacey, Bishop H. M. Moore, Hon. George L. Knox, Bishop C. S. Smith, Hon. John Mitchell, Jr., Hon. C. F. Adams, Editor A. L. Manley, Bishop George Clinton and J. E. Johnson.

The committee will endeavor to have the convention take a strong stand against mob violence in every part of the United States and against the suffrage laws of certain states which it is claimed in effect nullify the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States.

THE DAKOTAS.

Enforcement League After Fargo Druggists---Cass County Elopers Caught.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—There is some indication that the Fargo druggists are to have the same experience as those of Grafton. A. Lindele, the secretary of the North Dakota Enforcement league, is in the city and is spending some time in conference with the members of the league here and in the inspection of the reports of the druggists of the monthly sales, as filed with the county court. The investigation shows that in some cases the same individual has made frequent purchases from the same druggist on the same day, and assigned different complaints as a reason why he should have whisky for medicinal purposes.

Sheriff Wilson returned from Leeds having in custody Lou Silk, who eloped last week with Mrs. C. E. Warner, of Erie.

The scandal caused a great deal of excitement at Erie, owing to the fact that the lady was well and favorably known in that vicinity, and since then Mr. Warner has been straining every effort to locate the pair.

Friday night a telegram was received from Leeds stating that Silk and Mrs. Warner were at that place, and Sheriff Wilson immediately started for Leeds. Mrs. Warner accompanied the sheriff as far as Larimore and from there she crossed over to Wheatland. If she felt in the leastwise penitent she gave no sign, and stated as a reason for her rash act that she had been ill-treated at home and her life made unbearable.

Harry Curtiss, a painter, is in trouble over numerous checks alleged to have been forged by him. He has lived around Fargo a number of years and last winter was sent up for a short time sentence on the charge of stealing a rug in a house he was painting. Recently it is claimed he has forged a number of checks, which he succeeded in cashing by purchasing a small amount of goods, and tendering the worthless paper in exchange would receive the difference in cash.

The Hotel Webster has made another of its frequent changes of managers. The new one is Mike Foley, formerly of the Clarendon in St. Paul.

Grand Forks—Several crop experts, who arrived here after touring the state, give most discouraging reports. The hot south wind prevailing today is continuing the damage already done by the drouth. The outlook for even half a wheat crop is very poor.

Cavalier—The Pembina county Republican judicial convention here, instructed the delegates for W. J. Kneeshaw, of Pembina, to succeed Judge E. A. Sauter as judge of the Seventh judicial district.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Elk Point—Lorenzo Stevens shot Samuel Livingstone through the heart, causing instant death, Sunday morning at Volga, 52 years old. Stevens is 45. They worked small adjoining farms. Stevens' daughter, about 19 years old, wanted to marry Livingstone's son. This caused bad feeling among the men. Stevens was arrested. He says that Livingstone came into his field and an altercation was followed by blows. Stevens' boy, 10 years old, was the only eye-witness.

IN MICHIGAN.

Ishpeming—The five large tanks at the Ropes gold mine are now nearly ready. If the special pumps ordered arrive as soon as expected the work of treating the tailings will be started about the first week in the coming month.

The first shipment of Mohawk te, the new mineral, a composition of nickel, copper, arsenic and cobalt, which was discovered some months ago at the Mohawk mine, will be made this week to New Jersey, where it will be smelted for commercial purposes. The shipment comprises fifty tons of the new mineral.

The drift on the vein is in about 105 feet. The vein appears to narrow and then widen, but at no place has it shown up very large and it is impossible to form any estimate as yet of the size or probable value of the formation. No work is being done on the second vein of Mohawkite which was found some time ago at the same mine.

TERRY IN A CAKE WALK.

Ellen Terry once caked-walked in public—and only once. That was in the Grand Opera house in Chicago, and the greatest English actress was not on the stage, either, but in the audience. It happened last week at a matinee to Hay Irwin's "Sister Mary." May Irwin herself told about it yesterday, says the Kansas City Star.

"I met Ellen Terry several years ago over in England," said Miss Irwin, squaring her great shoulders t and setting her head back between them in preparation for telling her story. "She came to see me in Chicago and said she wanted to go to the Wednesday matinee. I said, 'Certainly, you shall have a box.'

"'Oh, no; don't give me a box,' said Miss Terry, 'I would be seen and I couldn't enjoy the performance. Give me a seat down stairs.

"So Miss Terry was at the matinee in a front seat in the orchestra. I noticed her at the end of the whist party scene in the second act, when the cake walk music begins. She jumped to her feet in rhythm with the music and she leaned forward clapping her hands merrily. Then she came back on the stage and sat in the wings. The music of the cake walk began again. It was too much for her. She was on her feet holding her skirts jauntily, leaning far back with her hands swinging to the music.

"'Oh, hum,' laughed jolly May, 'think of the delicate Portia doing a cake walk! I told her she'd make a hit if she introduced that in the 'Merchant of Venice.'

"After that Ellen Terry and I were together in my room for—Oh, two hours. We had a good long talk. Before she left she said: 'Please, can't I come to your Saturday matinee? And I would like a box this time. I have some friends I want to bring.'

"'I should say you could,' I told her. 'You can have two or three boxes if you want them, and bring all the friends you've got.'

"Saturday afternoon, there she was in a box with a lot of young women. Girls, you know, who couldn't afford to pay to see the play. But that's just like Ellen Terry. She's so great. She's not like some people, who have no use for anybody but the rich ones. She sat there among the girls, jollying them and pleasing them until the cake walk. She jumped from her chair and I could see her flouncing up and down in the back of the box. The girls were laughing and so was she. Ah, she's the woman for me!"

Miss Irwin dug around among a heap of letters and papers and other things on her table. "I want to find something to show you," talking while she dug. "Oh, here it is."

She held in her hand a small roll of Manilla wrapping paper. She opened it out. Scrawled over the ragged bit of paper were these words:

"Nell to May: Come to London for a summer season and be a huge success, as you are here.—E. T."

"During the last act," continued 'Sister Mary,' "Ellen Terry sent out and bought a great bunch of roses. She handed them to me when the play was over. Something was written on the brown papers which held them. I tore it off and this is it."

COTTON IN RUSSIA.

The total production of Russian cotton, up to within a few years, has hardly reached half of the total yield of the United States. The output of India does not exceed 3,000,000 bales, and that of Japan is hardly 300,000 pounds. Within a few years, however, Russia has been striving to create an important cotton center in Turkestan, and she expects to secure raw material from that quarter in sufficient quantity to supply the mills of the metropolis, says Consul J. C. Covert. It is difficult at first glance to explain the success here; the climate is severe, the extremes of temperature marked, rain is rare and the heat intense. But the extreme warmth of summer intensifies the power of vegetation, and irrigation takes the place of rain.

NEW THEORY

The Believers In It Say That Old Age Can Be Cured.

Disciples of Animal Therapy Say Youth Can Be Indefinitely Prolonged.

While the eyes of the medical world are turned in expectancy toward Paris for the realization of the promise made by Professor Metchnikoff that by his discovery of certain toxins he can prolong life beyond the Biblical limit, a society of medical men has been quietly forming who have already put the principles into practice.

They call themselves the American Animal Therapy association, and believe that remedial and therapeutic agents can be drawn from the animal as well as the vegetable and mineral kingdoms. The pioneer, or rather the discoverer of the new theory, is Dr. B. F. Roberts, of Green City, Mo., at present continuing his researches in Europe with a view of perfecting the system, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Like Brown-Sequard and Metchnikoff he conceived the idea thirty years ago, and has experimented upon since, that the lymphatic system of animals possessed therapeutical principles. Physiology taught him the powerful reconstructive and defensive functions of this system, and he believed that the lymph of lower animals would act as a strengthening tonic to all life if it could be safely injected into the human body. He selected senility as the best condition to test the merit of his theory, in view of the fact that old age is due to impaired structure or function of cells. If, therefore, the lymph could remove some of the effects of senility it would likewise serve to cure or greatly benefit many chronic diseases whose pathology is due to the results of impaired function or structure cells.

To demonstrate his theories he proceeded to treat senility in man and in various lower animals with injections of pure lymph taken from the Rocky Mountain goat. He selected this goat because of the unusual development of his lymphatic system, and his equally unusual healthfulness and hardiness. He found he could keep the lymph two days by mixing it equally with a solution of 90 parts distilled water and 10 parts of alcohol. He injected five to six drops of this mixture twice a day for thirty or forty days in many well-marked cases of senility. Without exception the old men became stronger, more supple, of better facial expression and color. Lost powers were restored, and other disabilities removed. These cases were treated before the days of asepsis, and he was soon forced to discontinue the treatment of human beings because of local infections. He had, however, proved that he could accomplish a good deal in the treatment of senescence.

During the years of his experiments with various methods of preparation he continued to treat animals with the plain lymph, and to examine their tissues before and after treatment. He soon added certain fluids of the bull and goat to the lymph and found them adding to its strength. It was from the results of these animal experiments that his disciples believe that he has established the accuracy of his theories, and by which he was encouraged to persevere in his efforts to prepare lymph so as to avoid local infection and to keep it indefinitely in an active condition. These experiments proved to his satisfaction that the lymph could alter bone structure, remove the excess of ~~sclerosis~~ ~~pass~~ ~~to~~ ~~sauoq~~ ~~in~~ ~~sipsing~~ blood vessels and gelatin, that fatty infiltration and degeneration in the heart muscle and voluntary muscle could be largely removed, and that the animals would become more active experience less difficulty in breathing, stronger and of greatly improved appearance.

In the early part of 1897 Roberts had perfected his present method to a certain degree by which he could maintain the lymph and organic extracts in an active condition for an indefinite period. His final product was a lymph composed of the entire contents of the thoracic duct, receptaculum chyli and lymphatic glands of a five-and-a-half-months-old Rocky Mountain goat extracted before death; entire contents of a certain gland of a one-year-old goat and-two-and-one - half - years-old bull taken before death; extracts from lymphatic glands taken before death of a five-and-one-half-months-old goat; extracts from cervicle cord and from certain glands of a five-and-a-half-months-old goat taken immediately after death. This lymph is purified, fumigated and made perfectly antiseptic by being passed through retorts.

Thus far the experiments made have been conducted with great care, and the enthusiasts for the new discovery claim that in it they have found almost a specific for chronic articular rheumatism, chronic neuralgia, locomotor ataxia, hemiplegia, spastic paraphlegia, neuritis, progressive muscular atrophy, primary dementia, imbecility, epilepsy, chorea, nerve exhaustion, impotence, tuberculosis, arterial sclerosis, senile prostatitis and interstitial nephritis. They also claim that with the use of the lymph they have noticed in their patients a marked increase of agility, strength and endurance, improved heart action and superficial circulation; also, marked betterment of sclerosed (hardened) arteries, complete cure of senile prostratitis, frequent restoration of power, a decided improvement of mental faculties and a brightening of the facial aspect.

Since these experiments Dr. Joseph R. Hawley, professor of practice of medicine in the Chicago Clinella school; Dr. A. L. Flanders, of Boston; Dr. O. K. Thompson, of Detroit; Dr. Frederick C. Holden, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Dr. A. A. Lowenthal, formerly physician of Illinois Eastern Hospital for the Insane, at Kankakee, Ill.; Dr. John S. Miller, of Aurora, Ill.; Dr. Herbert Keenan, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Dr. Charles S. Smith, of Providence, R. I., have been pursuing these investigations, and report most gratifying results.

Dr. Roberts is now in Rome, Italy, continuing his study of the subject, and with the object of obtaining different materials for new animal extracts and to transport to this country a number of Siberian beavers. The contents of certain glands of this animal are believed to represent nearly the highest type of cell life.

TRADE OF PORTO RICO.

Statement of Imports and Exports For Eight Months.

Washington, June 18.—The division of customs and insular affairs of the war department has made public its monthly bulletin treating of the trade of Porto Rico for the period of eight months, ended Feb. 28, 1900. During the period named, merchandise to the value of $6,736,575 was imported into the island. Goods to the value of $1,974,601 were admitted free of duty. The total exportation of merchandise amounted to $8,198,796, products of agriculture predominating to the amount of $7,748,503, or 96 per cent of the total exports. The trade by countries, including gold and silver, was as follows: Imports from the United States, $2,971,225; Spain, $1,726,246; United Kingdom, $1,154,963; Germany, $396,282; Canada, $304,139. Exports to United States, $615,498; France, $942,402; Spain, $225,184; Italy, $283,178. The total trade with all countries combined, including gold and silver, amounts to: Imports, $6,801,934.34; exports, $3,252,540.

NOT HAMPERED BY RUSSIA.

The opponents of Russia generally close the door of discussion by the statement, "Russia has already taken possession of Manchuria." Facts, however, do not support this assurance, says the North American Review. Manchuria is still under Manchu rule and the people pay taxes to China, not to Russia. There is even less interference in internal affairs than China complains of in other parts of China from other countries. Nothing has been done to frustrate the work of either Protestant or Catholic missionaries. The part of Newchwang is still an open port, and it is yet to be proved that foreign trade in Manchuria has been hampered by Russia.

ON THE GOLDEN RULE

Sermon By Rev. A. C. Manson to the Foresters--- Other Sermons.

The twenty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the Independent Order of Foresters was observed by the Foresters and companion courts attending service in a body at the Second Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Rev. A. C. Manson delivered the anniversary sermon, taking for his text what he said was the fundamental principle of the order, the golden rule, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets." These words, he said, were uttered for practical use."

Matthew 7, 12: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets.

"These are the words of our Lord, they were uttered for practical use. They were read in His own life, and His years of work were an exemplification of the fact. Christ was the man of good deeds. He lived the golden rule, and He went out of the way again and again to show us what man should be to man, and nowhere in all codes of laws can anything be found that can begin to compare with the standard established by Jesus. Something like this golden rule was contained in the old writings of the Jews, where the Jew was told to love his neighbor as himself, but with them it was a negative, while the teachings of Jesus makes it positive, with a redundancy that is sublime. With the Jew the rule was, if there is anything that you do not like, that is distasteful to you, do not do that to another. Jesus says, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you," etc.

"To carry out this high ideal one must have heaven's law in his heart, for it is heaven's law. Much has been said through all the centuries as to what man should be to man; poets and philosophers have vied with each other, both in ancient and modern times, and all tend to show that the soul of man is only a fragment of a larger whole and goes out in search of other souls in which to find its true completion, and the soul that lives for itself can never begin to realize the sweetness flowing from such a life as is described in our text.

Much has been written on friendship and love by the ancients. In cases it runs high, and even in mythology are found traces of great friendships, but not until Jesus spake were men expected to love their enemies, and the golden rule applied to them also. The literature of every country can give instances of heroic love, of large generosity, but nowhere can we find any comparison with that love which prompted the Son of God to lay down his life for his friends.

"I have chosen this text today to emphasize a truth that is not unknown to the Independent Order of Foresters. The founders of our magnificent order must have given this golden rule its right place in their life, for it has as its basic principal the amelioration of the woes of the human family. The grand aim of our order is to unite in one brotherhood all good men, without regard to sectarian creeds, political dogmas or conditions in life; to provide for relief in sickness or disability; to establish upon the mutual aid plan a fund for the relief of widows and orphans of deceased members; to foster a spirit of cooperation in all departments of labor and commerce; to assist the unfortunate and relieve the distressed; to encourage and protect the professional man, laborer, artisan, tradesman, farmer, and all engaged in industrial pursuits.

"We are taught by its laws to be sober, upright and conscientious, willing to help, ready to relieve, and obedient to the laws of our country. In our domestic relations we are taught as husbands, to be affectionate and truthful; as fathers, regardful of the moral and material wellbeing of our children and dependents; as sons, dutiful and exemplary; as friends, to be steadfast and true. Every court inculcates the highest demands along the moral, social and intellectual lines; it remembers the words of holy writ, "that pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

"Such an order requires no defence, its principles are its bulwarks, and the man or woman who has the honor to belong to such a society need never blush as they make known to the world by word and act the principles for which they live. The principles are high and elevating, and if they are not lived up to in the highest sense it is the fault of the individual Forester and not the order, as the abuse of Christianity by its professors is no blemish on Christianity, but rather on its professors.

"Our text might, at first sight, suggest selfishness, but our Lord does not recognize or foster any such feeling, he only refers to a method of measuring the character of our actions, which we may easily perceive to be the only method by which our actions can be estimated aright; and yet while this is the demand of the law and prophets and Christ, and although there are societies and organizations at work to make this law operative in the life of man, the world at this late date bleeds under the cruel display of man's inhumanity to man, which makes countless numbers mourn. The teachings of Jesus were never more needed than now, for after much popular effort made to raise the race, we have to confess much disappointment and failure. God has given us a country second to no nation in the world, the constitution of our government is sublime in its conditions and provisions; we have everything that brain and wealth can plan and purchase, a country where the poor man can rise in fame and fortune, where the son of the cabin may rise to the throne of the White House, where the child of poverty may become the millionaire in a generation by laying hold of conditions within the reach of all, and yet today, through the greed of a few of our plutocrats, and the schemes of our unprincipled men, our nation, like many of the older world, has poverty where there should be plenty, tears and broken hearts where sunbeams and joy should reign, all because the unregenerate heart is the same antagonistic thing towards God, the world dulling its ears to its Creator's voice, and the multitude seeking its own gain, with its foot on the neck of purity and virtue, its hand on whisky can and pistol, its brain devising wicked plans, its heart hating what our text demands, seeks not the best blessings, but that and that only which ministers to its depravity. Oh! that the world could for a moment take time to catch the echo of this teacher's voice. Oh! that man could lay aside the smoked goggles that keep from their view the practical demonstrations that are seen in our churches and fraternal societies, and learn that after all the golden rule pays for two worlds.."

Continuing, Rev. Mr. Manson spoke of the conditions in the country with large fortunes accumulating and people being ground down so that they must work in sweat shops, and with all their hard labor can only keep body and soul together, and that in poor fashion, and then said:

"John D. Rockefeller may be a rich man, and a church member, but it would seem, if this golden rule had its place in his life, that much of his possessions would be more evenly distributed. His vast possessions are largely the result of his Standard Oil and iron ore combines, and were Christ's words lived out by him today his whalebacks would be on the bosom of our great lakes, manned and freighted, to the joy of the hearts that are heavy and sad.

"All trusts have running through them the selfish spirit, and it is to be much deplored that under our present administration so much of this has come to the surface. Combinations and trusts such as have developed recently have nothing to commend them to the great heart of mankind. Their purpose is to rob the poor, to enrich the few, to raise the price to suit the manufacturer and to pull down the wages of the workingman. I care not whether they be Democratic or Republican combines, church or state combines, any combine that tries to destroy this God-given law is the sworn enemy of the human race.

"But I would not create the impression that this is a one-sided thing, by any means, for the same spirit predominates in many of our unions. The unions, right enough in themselves, can organize, should organize, for the betterment of employer and laborer along the lines of co-operation for the good of the commonwealth, but when used for selfish purposes, they are a curse to the employer, the laborer and the community at large. When the question is raised, how much can be won for little effort, and values are not considered. Nothing but the golden rule can rectify these wrongs, and were it applied to our strikes and threatened upheavals, better days would soon dawn throughout christendom."

In contra-distinction to the abuse of the golden rule in the commercial world, Rev. Mr. Manson spoke of the principles and work of the Independent Order of Foresters, in closing, as follows:

"When the founders of our order met at Newark, N. J., in 1874 and organized what later became the present society, one of the grandest achievements of the nineteenth century was accomplished along fraternal lines. The ever-increasing pressure of business and the inadequate compensation for toil preventing so many from providing a fund for 'the dark hour' that comes to all, suggested the benevolent features of our order. It did not come into existence to compete with and undermine companies that can only minister to people of affluence, but it did come into being to give the poor man a chance to provide for the dear ones of his heart and home, and could we today follow the almost $7,000,000 paid by our order into the purse of the widow and orphan, and see what of burning tear it has helped to dry, what of heart wound it has helped to heal, what of life to lift, we could have the vast truth demonstrated that the whole conception and plan was born in heaven.

"Although our society obligates its members to visit the sick and afflicted, it cannot be said that all this is done solely for that reason. The law of our text is the incentive to such heavenly deeds. There are sorrowing ones in all our towns standing by the sick bed trying to wipe away the death sweat from the brow of the bread-winner, who, but for the kindness of rustic, big-hearted men and the tenderer feeling of the sisterhood, would have to close the eye of the dear one after the spirit has gone; but our order of wingless angels has, by their love and sympathy made known to broken hearts that all of heaven is not on the other shore. Angels would do the work with gladness that we demand of our members, but Foresters have the commission, and to their honor be it said, they do their work well. I have stood by the weeping form of the mother as she parted for all time with the child of her heart, and when she could not carry her tired-out body away from the sealed casket, a sister wiped her tear away, and the strong arms of sisters helped her into the comfortable carriage provided for her use as they wended tombward. I have seen scenes too sacred to mention done in the name of our order, scenes which as angels gaze on them from time to time must make them rejoice. Could the army of unfortunates rise and speak, and the broken-hearted throng blend their testimonies, it would call forth a shout of praise such as has not been heard in the world; but the loving Christ, if we have done it out of love for him, will record the deed, and the praise shout which shall thrill our souls will not be of earth but heaven. Forestry, like the great church, has spread her mantel over a large portion of the world. Her's is an onward march; victory is in her train; and while the tramp, tramp of her legions sends their echo forward and backward, she receives from her own, from her every court, the heartiest God-speed. And as her eloquent orators tell to the uninitiated the glories and blessings of our fraternal and benevolent order, crowds come to us and assure our permanent success. I would that I had time to speak of all the great things that we as an order offer to men, for the half has not been told, but I must not trespass further on your time.

"Our order deals largely with the things of this life, but its longing eye is heavenward turned for ideal fellowship, and we are told to look forward to the time when He shall say, 'Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.' Without this, all our good deeds would not amount to much in the other world, and let me say in closing that if we shall hear that good word yonder, we must first respond to the same speaker here as he says 'Come unto me and I will give you rest.' If we give him the throne of our hearts and humbly trust him for salvation, we will hear that 'well done,' but I do not promise to you, my brethren, any such reward or any such welcome home if you reject him here. You may stand on the other side with a record of Forestry behind you, and you may have carried out the human requirements to the letter, but if you reject the friend who died for you that you might have life through Him, then there can be no such good news for you when you stand on the eternal shore. Let me, therefore, beseach you who have not already done so to accept the friendship of Him who is the friend of friends. Trust Him, love Him who goes with all His loyal followers to the valley of the shadows, and who, when friends can go no further, takes His trusting ones to the tearless home and rewards them with joy that is unending.

"Foresters, let us do our duty here, stand by each other, heal the broken hearts, remove the heavy burdens from the oppressed, dry the tears and make the widow and orphan feel that the golden rule is in operation, but let us never forget that only as men are regenerated in Jesus Christ, then, and only then, will come the day to our world spoken of by Burns, 'Tis coming yet for a' that, when man tae man the warld o'er shall brithers be an' a' that.'

"The time is coming when the ills of the world will be righted. We may cry, 'How long, O Lord?' and grow weary in anticipation, but the day will dawn. Let us by holy lives help to usher in this glad new day."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Decorate Graves and Listen to Memorial Sermon By Dr. Ryan.

Rev. Dr. Ryan, of St. Paul's church, delivered the memorial address to the Knights of Pythias last evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The members of North Star Lodge and Lakeside company of the Uniform Rank, met at 7 o'clock at their hall and marched to the church. In the afternoon the decoration of graves of deceased members of the order took place. There are seventeen members buried at Forest Hill cemetery, and the principal detachment of the members of the order went there. The other cemeteries where members of the order are buried were visited by details. The services at the church were very impressive. Dr. Ryan took for his text a portion of St. John iv. 38: "I sent you to reap that wherein ye bestowed no labor. Other men labored, and ye are entered into their labors." He spoke in part as follows:

"It is a law of this world that one man shall sow, another reap. In ancient times men paved the way for Christ, and died without seeing the vision, as Moses, who could only look over into the promised land, and leave to his successors the rest. The fruits of Our Master's toil are to be realized by us. Long generations toiled for our good, bore the sternest privations, suffered and conquered, with the reward of their labors showing little visible evidence they yet they did not reap. It is left for us of the nineteenth century to comprehend all this. We view with pride our century. We flatter ourselves on its development, its wonderful institutions, its ingenious inventions, and we are apt to look at the cruel forms of the social and political life of those who went before us with scorn, forgetting that they erected the platform on which all our improvements of today are based. Who could excel Darwin when, after years of toil he brought to view the great theory of evolution.

"We owe it to the people to commemorate the dead. We need the encouragement of the thought of our departed heroes with us.

"In the fifth century, before Christ, lived two men, Damon and Pythias. Damon, a Pythagorean, was celebrated for his disinterested affection for Pythias, or Phyntics, a member of the same sect. Condemned to death by Diongssius I of Syracuse, Pythias begged to be set at liberty for a short while that he might arrange his affairs. Damon pledged his life for the return of his friend, and Pythias faithfully returned before the appointed day of execution. The tyrant, to express his admiration of their fidelity, released both the friends, and begged to be admitted to their friendship. This exemplary exhibition of love, away off there, lived, and from people of affluence, but it did come into being to give the poor man a chance to provide for the dear ones of his heart and home, and could we today follow the almost $7,000,000 paid by our order into the purse of the widow and orphan, and see what of burning tear it has helped to dry, what of heart wound it has helped to heal, what of life to lift, we could have the vast truth demonstrated that the whole conception and plan was born in heaven.

"Although our society obligates its members to visit the sick and afflicted, it cannot be said that all this is done solely for that reason. The law of our text is the incentive to such heavenly deeds. There are sorrowing ones in all our towns standing by the sick bed trying to wipe away the death sweat from the brow of the bread-winner, who, but for the kindness of rustic, big-hearted men and the tenderer feeling of the sisterhood, would have to close the eye of the dear one after the spirit has gone; but our order of wingless angels has, by their love and sympathy made known to broken hearts that all of heaven is not on the other shore. Angels would do the work with gladness that we demand of our members, but Foresters have the commission, and to their honor be it said, they do their work well. I have stood by the weeping form of the mother as she parted for all time with the child of her heart, and when she could not carry her tired-out body away from the sealed casket, a sister wiped her tear away, and the strong arms of sisters helped her into the comfortable carriage provided for her use as they wended tombward. I have seen scenes too sacred to mention done in the name of our order, scenes which as angels gaze on them from time to time must make them rejoice. Could the army of unfortunates rise and speak, and the broken-hearted throng blend their testimonies, it would call forth a shout of praise such as has not been heard in the world; but the loving Christ, if we have done it out of love for him, will record the deed, and the praise shout which shall thrill our souls will not be of earth but heaven. Forestry, like the great church, has spread her mantel over a large portion of the world. Her's is an onward march; victory is in her train; and while the tramp, tramp of her legions sends their echo forward and backward, she receives from her own, from her every court, the heartiest God-speed. And as her eloquent orators tell to the uninitiated the glories and blessings of our fraternal and benevolent order, crowds come to us and assure our permanent success. I would that I had time to speak of all the great things that we as an order offer to men, for the half has not been told, but I must not trespass further on your time.

"Our order deals largely with the things of this life, but its longing eye is heavenward turned for ideal fellowship, and we are told to look forward to the time when He shall say, 'Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.' Without this, all our good deeds would not amount to much in the other world, and let me say in closing that if we shall hear that good word yonder, we must first respond to the same speaker here as he says 'Come unto me and I will give you rest.' If we give him the throne of our hearts and humbly trust him for salvation, we will hear that 'well done,' but I do not promise to you, my brethren, any such reward or any such welcome home if you reject him here. You may stand on the other side with a record of Forestry behind you, and you may have carried out the human requirements to the letter, but if you reject the friend who died for you that

NEW COUNCIL INSTITUTED.

Knight of Columbus Are Installed at Superior.

A council of the Order of the Knights of Columbus was instituted in Superior yesterday, and a large number of Duluth people attended. The institution was held in the Ritchie block, and the services for three degrees were impressively conducted. The order is a Catholic fraternal organization, and the new council will be called Superior council. It starts with 60 charter members. The first degree was conferred by Professor Hartigan, of St. Paul; the second by F. W. Sullivan, of Duluth; and the third by Hon. T. D. O'Brien, of St. Paul. There were about 250 members in Superior for the occasion, and last night the new council gave them a banquet at the West Superior hotel at which nearly 200 guests were present. Addresses and toasts followed the banquet.

CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES.

Lakeside Presbyterian Church Holds Them In the Morning.

Children's day exercises at the Lakeside Presbyterian church took place yesterday morning, and were very successful. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns. The primary classes were ranged on the platform, while the front rows were reserved for the adult classes. The exercises of the children were closely followed by the members of the congregation. Several hymns were sung and responsive readings were engaged in by the large audience, after which the following program was given: "First Children's Day," Nellie Coleman; "Burial of Moses," Fannie Stephenson; "Flower Voices," a dialogue, by five girls of Mrs. McDowell's class; song, Mrs. Ferguson's class: "St. Anthony and the Child," Myrina Todd; song, "The Alder by the River," five girls; "The Two Brothers," Jessie Todd; "Saved by a Cheer," Marie McDowell; song, by ten little girls of the primary class; "A Good Receipt for a Rainy Day," Florence Whipple; recitation, Guy Rutherford; song, Norma Agree and Freda Bartholomew; "An Army is Coming," Alvera Skoog; "What the Clock Says," Mary Marvin; recitation, Gertrude Davies.

A large class from the primary room graduated to the school proper, the test being the repeating of the Apostle's creed and the ten commandments. Rev. Mr. Ferguson, the pastor, complimented the children on the excellence with which they had performed their various parts.

"God bless the children," said he, "they were the recifients of many favors from Jesus Christ while He was on earth, and we could not get along without them."

Mary Blackmarr and Thomas Manley were honorably mentioned for having repeated without an error the shorter catechism, and were presented with bibles.

The collection was for the purpose of spreading Sunday schools throughout the country, and realized the sum of $20.

VAN HISE LAUNCHED.

Large Crowd Present When the Great Steamer Plunged.

The new Bessemer steamer, Charles R. Van Hise, was successfully launched at West Superior Saturday afternoon. The monster single deck freighter took the plunge without special feature or accident at exactly 3 o'clock, and little Miss Dorothy Olcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Olcott, of this city, smashed a bottle of wine, swathed in red, white and blue ribbons, across the bow and she christened it.

The Van Hise will not go in commission before July 1. She is one of the most modern vessels on the lakes and is 461 feet long.

THE WOODMEN'S SERVICE.

Memorial Exercises Held at First Methodist Church.

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30, at the First M. E. church, memorial services under the auspices of Duluth, Imperial and Old Hickory camps, M. W. A., were held. The decorations were beautiful, especially the floral designs. Dr. Long gave an address of welcome. He expressed his pleasure at being present at the time.

"I think," said he, "that the society that does not remember its dead has no business to exist. I am so glad that your rules compel every member to take out insurance, so that those dearest and nearest to him are cared for."

Neighbor Rev. J. H. B. Smith, of Morley Congregational church, spoke also of the provision made by the Woodmen for their families. He said that there are always two great forces at work, one to establish, the other to destroy, in all the natural laws throughout the universe. One is the hard, incessant trial which hopes to bear fruitage. The other is death, which takes away all, unless provision is made for it.

Neighbor Rev. Mr. Sanderson, of West Duluth, also gave an address, which he opened with a recitation from Carleton, describing rural life. He spoke of the bountiful earth and its generous productions, and stated that if a great many people who are living in the city on the ragged edge of nothing would get a little portion of land in the country and cultivate it, the community, themselves and everyone concerned would be bettered.

The music was especially fine. It consisted of a quartet, 'I'm a Pilgrim," by Mrs. E. Woodward, Miss Shannon, D. G. Black and F. E. Woodward; a solo, "Face to Face," by Mrs. Woodward, and a quartet, "The Lord is My Shepherd."

Little Falls Team Is Too Thoroughly Outclassed For Interesting Play.

WILL GO TO ST. PAUL

Duluth Nine Will Tackle Crack Team of the Saintly City.

The Duluth team's mania for easy marks must have been satisfied with Saturday and Sunday's games. Against a very inferior aggregation of corner-lot graduates, the superbas played fast enough ball to hold even with anything in the Northwest. Tonight the team leaves for St. Paul to play a series of four games with Lennon & Gibbons' team—probably the speediest lot of ball players in the Twin City league. However, if the local team plays with anything like the snap, speed and confidence that it exhibited against the unfortunate Little Falls gathering, it is likely to win three out of the four.

For the coming series which will be watched with considerable interest by the Duluth fans, the make-up of the two teams is likely to be as follows:

Duluth.	Lennon & Gibbons.
Hartman	catcher...Claytor, O'Malley
Cox, Elliott	pitchers...Powers, Smith
Kline	first base...Martin
McCarthy	second base...Reed
Shephard	short stop...Murphy
Warner	third base...Reardon
Featherstone	left field...Matlocks
Lamley	center field...Thinel
Hurley	right field...Hart

A large number of Duluth people will attend the St. Paul Elks' carnival this week and 250 members of the order in Superior for the occasion, and last night the new council gave them a banquet at the West Superior hotel at which nearly 200 guests were present. Addresses and toasts followed the banquet.

Returning from St. Paul on Saturday morning, the Duluths are scheduled to play Superior at West Superior on Saturday and Sunday and the following week Superior will play two games at Oneota Park. Duluth July 4 is arranged for two more games at West Superior. The Elks' carnival opens over there on that date and it is expected that the games will prove a large drawing card.

The following is the score by innings for Saturday's game:

	R	H	E
Little Falls	1	0	3
Duluth	5	5	2

Batteries—Duluth, Elliott and Hartmann Little Falls, Farrell and French.

Yesterday's game with Cox in the box came even easier for the locals. The score was:

	R	H	E
Little Falls	0	2	9
Duluth	5	5	2

Batteries—Duluth, Cox and Hartman, Little Falls, Hickey, Robinson and Grieker.

Superior also went out of its class for a little easy money with Grand Forks. Saturday's game was:

	R	H	E
Grand Forks	0	3	9
Superior	5	5	1

Batteries—Superior, Hanley and Lee; Grand Forks, Hannan and Hanrahan.

Yesterday Superior would have shut out the Grand Forks team had it not been for nine costly errors. The score was:

	R	H	E
Grand Forks	0	5	5
Superior	4	3	2

Batteries—Superior, Glendon and Lee; Grand Forks, Craig and Hanrahan.

On Saturday afternoon the Stone-Ordean-Wells team defeated the Marshall-Wells team in a hard fought and exciting game. This game was on the old West End grounds near the Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore docks and proved a fair interesting game than the one at Oneota Park. The line-up was as follows:

S. O. W. Co.	M. W. Co.
Allen	pitcher...Kempton, Springer
Reinhart	catcher...Russell
G. McMullen	first base...McCullough
W. McMullen	second base...Peterson
Ketchum	third base...Kempton, Springer
Forgy	short stop...Stewart
Neff	right field...Wing
Peterson	left field...Kreiger
Russell	center field...Spindler

S. O. W. Co.	2	0	4	2	2	2	0	0	0—12
M. W. Co.	4	0	0	0	0	1	4	0	0—9

Umpire, Dave Paddock.

Yesterday afternoon the Big Duluth team played the West End Eagles and won out in a very one-sided contest by a score of 39 to 9.

THEY VISIT SUPERIOR.

Duluth Veterans Go Over to Meet Commander Shaw.

Albert D. Shaw, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, arrived in Superior Saturday afternoon much to the surprise of the members of the posts over there. He was not expected until this week but the members of the posts were delighted to have him just the same and have been entertaining him royally ever since.

Saturday evening he was entertained at the post hall over there and there was a large turnout of the veterans. The Superior men were treated to a surprise which delighted them very much. The word had been passed around among the Duluth veterans that it would be a graceful thing to make a visit to the Superior post and about fifteen veterans from this city went over there Saturday evening. They did not know until a short time before leaving that Commander Shaw was there and they were delighted to have arranged the visit for that reason. The Superior men welcomed the Duluth men heartily and the evening was passed very pleasantly. The Duluth members made short addresses and Commander Shaw also spoke. Several Superior members were, of course, heard and the exchange of sentiments was very happy.

The state encampment will open tomorrow and the attendance is expected to be very large. The great parade will take place Thursday afternoon. The Duluth National Guard will probably go over for it and the G. A. R. of Duluth will have a large representation in the line.

Commander Shaw will be unable to stay in Superior as long as the veterans over there had hoped for. He has an engagement to unveil a monument in Boston this week and to keep the appointment he must leave Superior tomorrow evening. Tonight he is to deliver a public address and a number of the Duluth veterans expect to go over.

TO MEET HERE.

Duluth Convocation of Episcopal Church to Have Annual Session.

The annual convocation of the Duluth Episcopal district is to meet in this city at St. Paul's Episcopal church next Wednesday. At this session there are expected to be thirty-five clergymen in attendance and about as many laymen. The session will open at 9 o'clock and the sermon will be preached by Rev. H. F. Parshall, of St. Cloud. The balance of the day will be taken up with the routine business, including the election of officers. In the evening at 7:45 o'clock there will be a missionary meeting with addresses on various topics connected with work in that field. The delegates and alternates from St. Paul's church are as follows: Judge Dickinson, W. S. Bishop, A. E. Prudden, Henry Taylor, T. S. Wood, Dr. Bowers, F. W. Paine, H. F. Greene, James Cullyord, G. A. St. Clair and W. W. Bradbury; alternates, F. L. Gilbert, J. H. Dight, William Dalrymple, A. F. M. Custance, Frederick Davis, Thomas Phillips and D. A. Petre.

The annual meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the diocese of Duluth will be held in St. Paul's church on Thursday. There will be a celebration of the holy communion for the members of the auxiliary at 9 a. m. at which service Bishop Morrison will preach. At 10:30 a. m. the business meeting will be called and reports of the year's work will be received and officers for the coming year nominated. Adjournment at 12 m. At 2 p. m. will be held a meeting of general interest to all church women. At this meeting there will be addresses on various topics connected with missionary work and plans for the coming eayr will be discussed. Miss Julia C. Emery, general secretary, will be present, and will make an address, and the bishop will speak at the close of the meeting.

Northern Boats' First Coming.

The first sailing of the Northern Steamship company's steamers will be Saturday, June 23, at 2 o'clock p. m., and boats will leave every Saturday and Tuesday thereafter during the season. For the first sailing the company announces reduced rates to all ports between Duluth and Buffalo. A party of Iowa editors will meet the first boat here for a trip down the lakes, and as they come from a section where the boats have never been advertised before it is expected that this will enlarge the territory drawn from by the big passenger boats.

PROMISES TO BE GOOD

Mrs. Vetline Coe Will Go Back to the Farm and Behave.

FREE A FEW MOMENTS

William McDougall Dismissed But Quickly Rearrested By Federal Authorities.

She, still buoyant and happy, and he, still surcharged with bitterness and gloom, Mrs. Vetline Coe and Archie Lequisire were examined in police court this morning. She was charged with having left her happy home, a husband and five children in Redwood Falls to elope to this city with Lequisire, and this morning her husband and her own mother appeared against her. She promised to be good and go back to the farm and was let off on probation, but Lequisire was bound over to the grand jury and requested to put up $500 for his appearance in September, and failing to do this, spend the intervening time in the county jail.

William McDougall, the man that is believed to have blown the Duluth & Iron Range safe at Virginia and looted the safe of the Hibbing hotel about May 25, was up for examination, but the case was dismissed owing to a lack of evidence against him. McDougall was a free man for just about five minutes. After the case was dismissed he and his attorney stepped into Judge Edson's private room for a few moments, closing the door behind them. Immediately there was a scattering of detectives and court officers, as it was believed that McDougall would jump out of a window. Court Officer Jensen pushed open the door and invited McDougall to step outside, and as he started to comply with the request, Deputy United States Marshal Sharvy stepped up and served papers on him for breaking into the postoffice at Iron Junction. This took the alleged safe-cracker out of the jurisdiction of the municipal court and local police, and he was escorted to the federal court, where the examination was set for Wednesday afternoon and his bond fixed at $500. He is charged with taking $16 belonging to the money order fund.

Dennis McGuire was arraigned charged with breaking in a door and two windows and threatening to smash a $75 mirror in No. 210 St. Croix avenue Saturday night. The complaint was made out by a woman known as Bessie Ranney, and as it was a grand jury offense, McGuire was held for an examination Wednesday morning.

William Hannan, charged with stealing $1.85 from Oscar Hogan, entered a plea of not guilty, and his hearing will take place Wednesday afternoon. O. Olin forfeited $10 bail on a charge of drunkenness, and Patrick Newton forfeited $5, charged with visiting a house of ill-fame.

J. W. Bowden was in for drunkenness and explained his predicament by saying that he came in from Dakota last week with the excursion and met his brother-in-law, and the meeting was too much for him and he got drunk. Ed McGuire, Pat Whalen, C. M. O'Neil and Thomas Gorman were each given five days' hard labor for stealing a sleep in box cars, and Dan Noble, John DeWard, Pat Murphy, James Coyle, Charles McAllister and Joe Bourgisie, each got 10-day sentences for vagrancy, drunkenness and begging on the street.

THE PAVILION OPENING.

New Departure in the Way of Entertainment---Vaudeville and Concert.

Matt Kusell, who with his brother, Leon Kusell, is registered at the Spalding will open the Pavilion on Sunday afternoon next. This will be welcome news to the amusement loving public of the city, as during the former seasons Mr. Kusell was here he gained the confidence and good will of everybody by faithfully adhering to his promises, and presenting only the best attractions. This season Mr. Kusell will inaugurate a new policy, presenting high class vaudeville, comic opera and comedy. A competent orchestra has been engaged and good music will be a special feature. At the conclusion of the regular performance a promenade concert will take place on the lower floor where refreshments will be served.

The Pavilion is now being thoroughly renovated and beautified and will hardly be recognized in its new dress. Mr. Kusell has engaged a first-class vaudeville company for his opening attraction and intends to show the public that he intends to keep the laurels won during his former visits here. Everything presented at the Pavilion will be the best and will be within reach of everybody. The prices of admission being 10, 20 and 30 cents.

Leon Kusell, who was manager for the late Edwin Mayo, when he appeared at the Lyceum theater here in "Pudd'nhead Wilson," will be associate manager. The Pavilion will be conducted in an orderly and moral manner and ladies and children, unaccompanied by escorts, need feel no hesitancy about attending the performances. The concert will commence on the lower floor at 7 o'clock, the performance in the theater after arrival of 8:15 car continuing until 10, when the concert down stairs will be resumed, making it a continuous performance, and obviating the waits of former seasons. There will be no dull moments, and those not wishing to remain for the later music and enjoy the glorious view of the city as afforded from the Pavilion, will thus be enabled to reach their homes at an early hour.

MANY CLOSE CALLS.

People Will Jump on and Off Ferry Before It Lands.

Owing to the prevalent desire to get on and off the Park Point ferry boat before it stops at the wharf, three people had narrow escapes from serious accident and possibly death, during the rush yesterday afternoon. A well known young lady, in attempting to board the boat on the Park Point side, missed her footing and fell down between the boat and the dock, she was quickly pulled from her dangerous position by Officer Dwyer and Capt. Ryan, but a short time afterward a woman tried to make a flying leap from the boat on to the Lake avenue dock and landed only half way up. She struggled fiercely and managed to keep from dropping into the water till helped up, and almost on the next trip a little girl tried the same act and made just about as dismal a failure, in fact she came near going down between the boat and the dock.

Both Capt. Ryan and Officer Dwyer rendered efficient service in keeping the crowd in check, but they say they were never so happy as when that rush was over. Men, women and children would make a jump for the Estelle as she was landing, despite the efforts and warning of the police and crew.

Officer Dwyer was kept very busy on the ferry till late in the afternoon and then hearing that a couple of gambling games were going on down the point he hustled down there but the gamblers had received a tip and ceased operations before he reached them.

COMMITTEE WINDS UP.

Refers Alabama Contests to the Convention and Adjourns.

Philadelphia, June 18.—The national Republican committee has again decided to refer the principal contests in the state of Alabama to the convention, to be investigated by the committee on credentials.

The leaders thought Saturday that they had succeeded in securing an agreement for the elimination of the office holders and the seating of an equal number of men from the two delegations to make full representation from the state. Obstacles were, however, found in the way of this proceeding in a large part of the state, and when the matter was taken up in the committee today that body decided to put none of the delegates from the state at large from the Third and Fourth districts on the temporary roll.

After an hour's sitting the committee concluded its labors and adjourned sine die.

Aside from the action taken upon the Alabama contest, the most important matter which came before the committee at today's meeting was the resignation of Col. Swords as sergeant-at-arms of the committee. The colonel has held this position for twelve years, and there were expressions of regret as well as of surprise over his determination to resign. The following resolution, introduced by Mr. Fessenden, was unanimously adopted after eulogistic remarks by Messrs. Payne, Clayton, Manley, Thurston and Gibbs:

"Resolved, that appreciating the long and faithful services of Col. L. Swords, as sergeant-at-arms of the committee, the committee extends to him its acknowledgement of his successful administration of office and the courteous manner in which he has discharged his duties.

"Be it further resolved, that in retiring from the service of the committee he carries with him all the good wills of the members and that these resolutions be placed upon the records and a copy presented to him as a testimonial of our esteem."

Committeeman Tiepke, of Rhode Island, secured permission to withdraw his resolution concerning the representation of non-Republican states in congress from the table for the purpose of presenting it to the committee on resolutions unprejudiced by committee action.

The delegates from Alaska, J. E. Held and W. E. D. Grant, were admitted to seats as were those from Hawaiia. Col. Salm Parker and A. N. Kepoikr, in the latter case there were some pleasant speeches. Col. Parker said that his grandfather was an American and that he felt proud to be an American citizen and was glad to be allowed to sit in a national convention.

After resolutions of thanks to Chairman Hanna, and Secretary Dick, and also to the press of the country and to the people of Philadelphia, the committee adjourned.

HILL-TOP PAVILION! IT NEXT SUNDAY!

Will Put Out Signs.

In a few days the board of health will post yellow signs all over the city, in conspicuous places, instructing people not to throw paper on the streets or spit on the sidewalks. Persons who do not believe in signs or otherwise ignore the warning of the board of health are liable to prosecution and a fine not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days.

The health board has determined to join with the street car company in seeing that the anti-spitting ordinance is stringently enforced.

THE RICHES OF NOME

Richness and Productiveness of the Gold Fields Exceeds All Stories.

THE ALPHA'S CARGO

Brings a Quarter of a Million Belonging to Five Persons.

Vancouver, B. C., June 18.—The gold fields on Cape Nome are richer and more productive than has yet been reported is the story brought down by the steamer Alpha, which has arrived from the north. From a single claim worked by twenty men in the employ of Jack Brady $15,000 was taken out in one week, and the same claim panned out $56,000 within the month.

As an earnest account of Cape Nome's productiveness, the Alpha brought down $250,000 in gold dust. There were five passengers on board, and the dust belonged to four of them in the following amounts: Jack Gill, of Seattle, $145,000. J. O. Monaghan, of Denver, $40,000. Frank Green, of Kansas City, $30,000; Glen Tinsley, an old Dawson miner who went to Nome last year, $35,000.

Unusual interest has followed the Alpha's trip, not only because she was the first steamer to sail for Cape Nome, but more especially on account of international complications, the Alpha being a Canadian boat and Nome not being a sub-port of entry. But the skipper had no trouble with the customs regulations. He sailed from Vancouver April 5, clearing for St. Michaels. He says that he was so menaced with icebergs as he approached St. Michaels that he proceeded to Nome, landing 153 passengers and their supplies on the beach on May 25, and sailing for Vancouver on May 30.

The people of Nome had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the steamer, and a guessing contest, with a $5000 prize, had been arranged for the naming of the first vessels from the South.

The gold producing area of Nome seems much greater than was at first supposed, and all over the country men are reported to be washing out 15 to 20 cents to the pan in gold.

THE MINING CONGRESS.

Big Attendance and Large Mineral Display Is Expected.

Milwaukee, June 18.—The international mining congress begins a five days' convention in this city tomorrow. Between 1000 and 1500 delegates are expected to attend, coming from all parts of the Union, Canada and Mexico. A large collection of mineral displays from various sections is being installed at the exposition building, where the convention will be held.

The chief work to be done at the convention will be the formation of a permanent organization instead of the present unorganized body. The main subject that will come up for discussion of interest to the majority of mining men is that of a department of mines and mining, with a secretary who shall be a member of the cabinet of the United States just as the secretary of agriculture is. The congress will work will all its clientele for this end. Subjects pertaining to mining legislation will also come up.

ROAD DEFIANT.

Santa Fe Prevents Federal Quarantine Inspector From Discharging His Duties.

Needles, Cal., June 18.—The federal quarantine inspector has been prevented from molesting passengers on Santa Fe trains at the state line and his authority is ignored by the railroad officials. Orders have been issued to all conductors to take up the pass of the inspector. Mr. Jenkins, if presented and collect his fare. Jenkins has wired to Surgeon Kinyoun for instructions. The conductors have also been ordered to give the inspector no information.

San Francisco, June 18.—In issuing health certificates to persons intending to leave this state, Federal Quarantine Officer Kinyoun is acting under instructions from Washington. Surgeon General Wyman is quoted in a special dispatch as saying:

"I have issued orders to Dr. Kinyoun to maintain a quarantine along the borders of the state of California. The fact that the local quarantine has been lifted will not excuse lack of vigil on the part of the federal authorities.

"My desire is to establish such a strict quarantine along the Pacific coast that it will be impossible for those suspected of having the dread disease to gain entrance to our shores."

C. N. Sterry, chief counsel of the Santa Fe Railroad company, which is ignoring Dr. Kinyoun's order providing for the inspection of certificates at the state line, will today ask the United States circuit court to enjoin the enforcement of such order.

IN A COMBINE.

Alaska and Northwest Territory Transportation Interests Form a Consolidation.

Seattle, June 18.—A strong combination of the transportation companies, doing business in Alaska and the Northwest territory, has been formed. The White Pass & Yukon Railway company has practically absorbed the Canadian Development company and the John Irving Navigation company. The management of the three big companies has been brought under one control, which will be from general headquarters at Skaguay.

Politicians Hustling Vigorously In Anticipation of Coming Primaries.

A NEW COMPLICATION

Candidacy of John Mewhinney of Biwabik Causing Considerable Figuring.

Today is an active one among the politicians who are seeking nominations at the hands of the county convention this week, or are interested in some one who is. The primaries will be held tomorrow evening, and the finishing touches must be placed on the different booms within the next few hours, or never. The court house is almost like a place deserted, and every one is out hustling.

The situation has been somewhat complicated by the announcement of John Mewhinney, of Biwabik, that he wants the nomination for county treasurer. The Herald said a week or so ago that he was suggested as having desires of that nature. He admits now that he has, and that he will make a strong effort to get the endorsement of the range towns.

This announcement was of especial concern to the Sargent-Whipple-Haldeman combination. If Mr. Mewhinney should get the support of the two ranges crystallized upon himself he would be pretty sure to get the nomination. What would Messrs. Sargent and Halden do if he should come down here with the ranges solid is the question generally asked, the answer being, in most cases, that Mr. Whipple would probably have to bow to the inevitable.

The candidacy of Mr. Mewhinney is also interesting in its bearing upon the candidacy of W. G. Bonham. It makes it more embarrassing for the latter without a doubt, for it is likely in a way to divide the range towns. Mr. Mewhinney is reported to have said that if he found that Mr. Bonham was stronger than he, and that the former's chances were being interfered with by his candidacy, he would step out of the way.

Some have expressed the belief that the ranges would get to quarreling over candidates and then get nothing, but there is another outcome which has suggested itself to many of the politicians. It is that the ranges may conclude that since they do the electing, it is not too much for them to ask for three of the offices, and they may present Mr. Bonham and Mr. Mewhinney both. They would probably get them too if they did. But there comes the rub, that in that event the Vermilion range would probably not be content with merely the minor office of superintendent of schools, and would want something better. There are many possibilities for trouble in the situation.

The Vermilion range has been reported as not solidly united on E. O. Loveland, of Soudan, for superintendent of schools. It is said that he has only been at that place for a year or so, hardly long enough to be identified as a resident there, and that not all of the Vermilion people are ready to advance him as a range resident. B. N. Wheeler, the present superintendent, has some friends on both ranges, particularly the Mesaba, and might have a few delegates. A new candidate for this office has appeared in the person of Fred Park, of Proctorknott, who has been teaching there and whose home is at West Duluth.

BURNS LUMBER.

Fire Gets Into Moon & Kerr's Piles at Virginia---Engine Sent Up.

A telegram was received from Virginia this morning stating that forest fires were threatening the lumber piles of the Moon & Kerr Lumber company on the shore of Silver lake, south of the mill, which was burned in the fire recently. There was not much wind blowing, the telegram said, and it was from the south, but if it should shift toward the town and rise in velocity the balance of the village would be wiped out, in all probability. A request was made that help be sent from Duluth.

In response to the telegram a fire engine, the Silsby, was loaded on to a car and, with a good supply of hose and four men accompanying it, was sent by special train up there to fight the fire.

A later telegram said that the fire was in the lumber and that it was raging, but that it had not yet advanced toward the town, although it was in danger.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS.

Says It Is Best He Should Be Governor.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Governor Roosevelt today gave out this statement:

"In view of the revival of the talk of myself as a vice presidential candidate, I have this to say:

"It is impossible too deeply to express how touched I am by the attitude of these delegates who have wished me to take this nomination. Moreover, it is not necessary to say how thoroughly I understand the high honor and dignity of the office, an office so high and so honorable that it is well worthy the ambition of any man in the United States.

"But while I appreciate all this to the fullest extent, nevertheless I feel most deeply that the field of my best usefulness to the public and to the party is in New York state, and if the party should see fit to renominate me for governor I can in that position help the national ticket as in no other way. I very earnestly ask that every friend of mine in the convention respect my wish and my judgment in this matter."

WAS BURIED ALIVE.

The knowledge that Mrs. Emsley Needham, wife of a farmer near Roann, this county, had been buried alive twenty years ago has caused a sensation of undisguised horror in that quiet country neighborhood, says a Wabash, Ind., special dispatch. The young woman died when her first child was born about the year 1880. When the body was straightened for the grave it is now recalled by some of the women who aided in that duty, doubt was expressed as to whether life was extinct. At their suggestion Mr. Needham sent for a physician who made an examination, and after several tests he declared that there were no signs of life and recommended that the funeral be proceeded with.

On the following day the interment took place, and recent events have demonstrated that the doctor was mistaken and that Mrs. Needham was alive when placed in the grave, and in all probability returned to consciousness, and endured the indescribable agony that comes of a realization of a situation so horrible. Even after the doctor had pronounced her dead one of the attendants laid her hand on the breast of the supposed corpse and found the flesh warm, and another woman asserted that as she was placing gloves on the hands one of the members closed. Still the physician was positive, and, as there was no further signs of animation, the family protested no further, it being explained by the doctor that the movement was merely spasmodic contraction of the muscles and signified nothing.

For several years after the body was buried in Soap Hill cemetery, near Roann, the neighbors discussed the mooted question, but it soon ceased to be debated. Last week it was resolved by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Bryan, parents of Mrs. Needham, to remove the remains of their daughter to the Odd Fellows' cemetery, near Roann, and when the casket was exhumed the persons present at the opening of the coffin were astounded to notice the glass broken, the left arm, which, with the right, had been laid upon the breast at the time of the burial, lying beside the trunk, while the right was uplifted, with the hand clenched beneath the head, the hair having apparently been clutched violently in the agony of the moment. The body itself, which was laid upon the back, was partially turned over, and the surroundings were indicative of a terrible struggle. The theory is that Mrs. Needham was, when buried, in a state of suspended animation, and, perhaps, understood all that was going on, but was powerless to help herself.

JAPANESE LABOR.

All over the West Japanese laborers have within a few months began to replace white labor as section men on railroads, as railroad laborers in shovel gangs and in some instances they are being employed in round houses and shops, says Leslie's Weekly. They are employed almost exclusively in orchards, gardens and hop fields, in sugar beet, orange and prune culture, in salmon canneries and are gradually being put in the places of white miners in coal mines.

MARINE NEWS.

Sixty New Bottom Plates Needed to Repair the Steamer Owego.

Buffalo, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—It will take sixty new bottom plates and several frames to make the steamer Owego as good as she was before her sojourn on Manitou Island. She is now in the Union Dry dock.

THE FREIGHT SITUATION.

The grain freight market is rather ill today. Largely owing to the fact that the markets are so unsettled that there is little business being done for shipment, there is hardly any demand for tonnage, and what demand there is is not accompanied by tempting offers in the way of rates. It was understood that one small lot was chartered today for 2¼, and that that rate was offered for tonnage. Vessel men say that the rate can hardly be considered as less than 2½ cents, however, and that the present condition is due to the wheat market.

Chicago, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was an active demand for boats to take grain and rates held steady at 2 cents.

TOOK AN ORE CARGO.

The whaleback steamer Alexander McDougall left yesterday for Lake Erie, with a cargo of iron ore from the Missabe dock. This is one of the vessels that have been tied up here under Rockefeller's orders for his whalebacks to go in ordinary unless they could get ore at $1.25. The McDougall has been here just two weeks, and she was one of the later arrivals of the fleet now lying in the harbor. None of the others have been touched, and the fact that the McDougall has been loaded and sent out is not by any means regarded as an indication that the attempt to bull the freight market has been given up.

EXPENSIVE FEATHER.

The tail feathers of the feriwah, a rare member of the family of paradiseidae, or birds of paradise, are the most expensive known. Indeed, its price may be called prohibitive, for the only tuft existing in England—probably in any civilized land—was procured with such difficulty that it is considered to be worth $50,000, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. It now adorns the apex of the coronet worn on state occasions by the prince of Wales.

An old English book says it took 150 years to make a noted beauty. Slow business. In this country we make 'em in ninety days with Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

The Half Yearly White Sale!

Hand-Made Muslin Underwear—It's difficult to tell in print the merits of articles of this kind, so much depends upon even the shape of the garment—the pattern and fineness of the trimming, and the material itself—hence you will see the necessity of personal inspection—and take this as an earnest suggestion—that we are not paying money to put this announcement in the paper unless it's something that will be so much to your advantage as will prove we have strong grounds for expecting you to come—we do not intend that cheapness will make this store a success, but the goodness and cheapness together without the usual amount of "trash" so frequently put before you at ridiculous prices—merely to blind you into paying more for more worthy sorts—more extra salespeople will be here tomorrow, so's to be able to give you just as good service as in less busier times. Here are some general descriptions and price suggestions:
